BRITISH PLANES HURL GREATEST BLOWS AT NAZIS

London Raided 15th Successive Night.

LONDON, Sept. 22, Sunday (AP).—British warplanes swarmed across the English channel last night and early today in a fiery and explosive smash at the French and lowland invasion bases of the Germans.

Cliffside observers on the British side saw miles of flame sown along the opposite shore and, in the brightly lighted night, were heartened in the conviction that the invasion program had been knocked awry.

The German air force struck back thru the 15th consecutive night of raids on London and the English countryside, but bomb weary Britons said the attacks seemed less severe than usual.

Observers on the Dover cliffs said the R. A. F. onslaught against the nearest German held ports was the heaviest ever made as Britain's battle of the air switched more strongly to the offensive.

Long Mass of Flames.

The British concentrated on Dunkirk, Calais, and Boulogne. That whole area appeared to be one long mass of fire. The attack was a resumption, at even heightened fury, of long assaults thru Friday night against German ships and barges jammed beam to beam in clusters of 50 and more in the harbors of the channel and North sea.

Attack after attack on the ports from Boulogne to Dunkirk, fateful town of escape for the British army trapped in Flanders, on up the coast to the tidal bases of the Low Countries left devastation and flame astride quays, moles, channels, and docks, officials said.

Hour long raids by three waves of planes were made on Dunkirk alone, where the pilots found the greatest concentrations of German troop vessels.

Attack on Supply Train.

Other raiders penetrated interior Holland, Belgium, and Germany itself and the pilot of one came back to describe an attack from 800 feet on a supply train near Munster. Two big bombs hit the train, front and rear.

"The engine was lifted up into the air and blown to bits and fragments of the wrecked train shot up as high as the attacking aircraft," the official account said.

The government declared that by their raids, night after night, the British bombers had attacked between 80 and 90 per cent of all Germany's gasoline plants.

Saturday's air ministry list of Friday night's bombings included:

The seven main German "invasion ports" of Flushing, the Netherlands; Antwerp, Zeebrugge, and Ostend, Belgium; Dunkirk, Calais, and Boulogne.

Two German supply ships, "badly damaged."

Damage to Barges.

"Further damage" to concentrations of self-propelled barges, military stores, and other shipping.

The Dortmund-Ems canal, which leads from the heart of Westphalia to the North sea and is a key link in Germany's internal communications system.

A supply train, a munitions factory, rail communications, distribution centers, and freight yards at nine points in Germany, the Netherlands, and Belgium.

Several German airdromes.

The Germans, in loosing their 15th straight night of attack on London, struck with individual bombers.

Crashes to Doom.

One raider, attempting to pierce the London barrage of antiaircraft guns, came crashing to his doom. There was an explosion and a tremendous flash as his bombs burst with the impact, but the site was declared to be an open space.

Other raiders spread an arc of incendiary bombs around three sides of the city. Fires quickly broke out. Auxiliary firemen were reported to have subdued them. One big bomb smashed several shops and jarred an underground public shelter in which hundreds of persons were sleeping.

The British Press association said raiders on the northeast coast early today were driven away by heavy

TEN YEAR GAIN IS 7 PER CENT, A RECORD LOW

8,634,835 Increase; Birth Rate Lags.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21 (AP).—The census bureau announced tonight that the population of the United States on April 1 was 131,409,881. This was a gain of 7 per cent since 1930—the smallest percentage increase in any decade of American history.

The 48 states and the District of Columbia reported 8,634,835 more residents than they did 10 years ago, but individual states had widely differing stories.

By percentages, Florida gained the fastest of the states, 27.9 per cent, while South Dakota lost the most, 7.5 per cent. The District of Columbia, where the number of government workers has doubled, outpaced all the states with a 36.2 gain.

California Gains Over Million.

In actual numbers, California gained the most, 1,196,437, and Kansas lost the most, 81,862.

The 7 per cent national gain was less than half the ratio in any previous decade. Census director William L. Austin said this was due to a declining birth rate and a virtual stoppage of immigration during the last 10 years. From 1910 to 1920 the gain was 14.9 per cent, and from 1920 to 1930 it was 16.1 per cent.

Austin said many sociologists had predicted that, eventually, the population would reach some "static" level and stop increasing. While his bureau is unwilling to make an official prediction, he said the peak might be reached in 1970 or 1980.

Note Birth Rate Lags.

The effect of birth rates on the population total was shown, he added, in the fact that the northern states accounted for only one-third of the national gain, while the southern half of the country—where the birth rate is higher—and the Pacific coast states accounted for two-thirds of the increase.

All the southeastern states had important increases, New England barely gained at all, and industrial states like New York and Pennsylvania gained less than the national average.

Parts of the middle west, where drouths and dust storms have plagued the people, had losses. The population declined in North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, and Oklahoma. The only other state to lose was Vermont.

Illinois Ranks Third.

New York continued as the most populous state with 13,379,622 residents, which was 6.3 per cent more than it had in 1930. Pennsylvania, Illinois, and Ohio again held the next three ranks, in that order. Then began a number of changes, with California ousting Texas from fifth place. Other states to better their ranking included Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia, Louisiana, Arkansas, South Carolina, West Virginia, Florida, Rhode Island, District of Columbia, and New Mexico.

Falling behind were Texas, Alabama, Iowa, Oklahoma, Kansas, Connecticut, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana, Utah, and New Hampshire.

Nevada Trails All States.

Nevada continued to trail the states with 110,014 residents, an increase of about 20,000.

The large shifts in population may change the distribution of seats in the house of representatives, but the exact changes cannot be determined until the census figures are verified.

Then, unless congress enacts an apportionment system in 60 days, a computation made by the census bureau must be certified to the states by the clerk of the house and the new seating will affect the house elections in the fall of 1942.

15 States to Change.

Dr. Calvert L. Dedrick, apportionment expert of the bureau, said he guessed about 15 states would either lose or gain seats.

One of the possibilities that the new figures raised was that the center of population has moved eastward for the first time in history. It is almost certain to move southward from its 1930 location, 2.9 miles northeast of Linton, Ind.

New Deal Tax Puts 300 Coal Miners on Dole

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rushville, Ill., Sept. 21.—In the Schuyler county hills around here are about 300 coal miners, virtual fugitives from the New Deal. As in other sections of central Illinois, they have been deprived of a livelihood natural to this bituminous region by the red tape and taxes of federal and state burocracy. A large portion of them supplement meager relief incomes by stealthy digging—by bootlegging coal.

A charge that these pit miners were shaken down for the state house machine's campaign fund was added this afternoon to the many complaints against the administrations at Washington, D. C., and at Springfield. The charge was made by James Stroup, owner of a small mine near Brooklyn.

State Closes Mine.

"I wouldn't pay," he said, "so the state made me close my mine two months ago. At least they made me stop operating the mine, but that doesn't keep some of the men who used to work for me from hoisting a truckload or so when no one is watching."

Stroup, 67 years old, was interviewed in his overalls, sitting in the shade of a tree behind his unpainted farmhouse. The environment reflected his economic plight, but he boasted that he was one of the few in these parts not receiving some kind of dole.

"One of the state men called me out of the mine a couple of months ago and said I would have to pay 4½ per cent on my sales," Stroup related.

"The state man said the 4½ per cent was for the campaign fund. He said I owed since 1935.

"When I said I would not pay he said I'd have to close. He gave me this form to fill out and mail in this self-addressed envelope."

Business "Terminated."

Stroup displayed a stamped envelope addressed to W. W. Burnham, Quincy, Ill., Division of Unemployment Compensation of the State Department of Labor. Inside was a form labeled "Notice of termination of business."

Stroup is not schooled. He admitted that the "wheel barrow load" of papers that are mailed to him from Washington and from Springfield are above his bookkeeping ability.

"There are 60 of these little mines like mine in Schuyler county," Stroup continued. "None can get along with all of the taxes and regulations that are forced on us from Washington and from Springfield.

"The big mine operators haven't as much ground for complaint as the small owners and the miners. Reports from Washington say that putting the little miners out of business is good for the country because the little mines keep down the price of coal. I can't see how higher prices for coal help the public, or the miners who lose their jobs.

"If Willkie and Green are elected, they will let a man earn an honest living. If they kill the red tape, I hope and believe I'll be able to employ a hundred men. I never voted Republican in my life and neither did my father, but I'm going to vote for Willkie and Green this fall."

SCAN WASTE LANDS IN VAIN SEARCH FOR MISSING ARMY PLANE

Gen. Honeycutt.
[AP Wirephoto.]

Hours of flying over the sparsely populated lowlands between Savannah, Ga., and Jacksonville, Fla., disclosed no trace of the Fort Bragg, N. C., commandant, his two companions, or the three place army observation plane in which they left the fort late yesterday for a hop to Jacksonville.

The plane, piloted by Capt. George F. Kehoe, was last reported over Savannah at 7:34 p. m. [Chicago time] last night. Corporal Robert J. Schnitz of Chicago was the third man aboard.

Maj. Sam Ellis returned to Atlanta tonight after an aerial search over the area where the ship was believed to have fallen. "We saw nothing that resembled a plane," he said. Maj. Ellis said he intended to resume the search tomorrow.

Hillsborough, Cal., Sept. 21 [Special].—While $100,000 in cash lay ready for delivery, a day of silence at the palatial home of Count Marc de Tristan was broken tonight with the brief announcement there had been no contact with the swarthy kidnaper who stole his 3 year old son yesterday.

The demanded ransom was raised by the wealthy families of which the little victim is a member. Except for this disclosure, a veil of secrecy obscured any steps relatives might be taking to obtain release of the curly haired boy.

The hook nosed kidnaper, who signed the ransom note "Unconventional Eccentric," had a free hand to open negotiations with the family. Police and federal agents withdrew from the case at the family's urgent plea lest the abductor carry out his implied threat of death if he encountered interference.

Ad Placed in Paper.

But no attempt has been made to communicate with the parents, a member of the immediate family confided. He indicated that nothing more could be done until the kidnaper responds to the advertisment the De Tristans placed in a San Francisco paper, as the abductor had instructed, to signify their willingness to pay the ransom.

It was expected that intermediaries in negotiations would be Louis S. Cates, New York copper magnate and stepfather of Countess de Tristan, and the countess' brother, Charles Christenson, member of a big timber firm.

The only clews in the case, the first major kidnaping in nearly a year and a half, were the ransom note, the hat the abductor lost in a scuffle with the child's nurse, and a meager description of him and the car he used.

U. S. Agents Confident.

However, federal agents said many cases had been solved with less to go on.

The sunny faced boy, the only child of the De Tristans, was snatched from his nurse, Miss Mary Foley, 50 years old, as he was being wheeled in a buggy a few blocks from his home. The nurse was knocked down in a scuffle as she tried frantically to thwart the husky middle aged man brandished a pistol and struck at her.

Marc Jr. was speeded away in a dark sedan pursued ineffectively for some distance by a Negro chauffeur.

M'NARY ASSAILS WALLACE 'SHRED AND PATCH' PLAN

BY PERCY WOOD.

Speaking as a farmer to farmers, Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, Republican Vice Presidential nominee, headlined an 11th congressional district rally in Aurora yesterday with a double barreled attack on the New Deal's agricultural program and its long time administrator, Henry A. Wallace, his Democratic opponent.

A typical Saturday afternoon crowd, numbering several thousands, faced McNary and the Illinois state candidates from the grandstand of Exposition park. Many were neighbors of Justus L. Johnson of Aurora, nominee for secretary of state, in whose honor the rally was held.

McNary, Wendell L. Willkie's running mate, chose to open his campaign against this rural, sunny background, hammering the New Dealers for giving the farmers only "a thing of shreds and patches," and taking his opponent to task for attempting to brand the Republicans appeasers.

Reckoning Delayed, Says McNary.

The farm program which has been directed from Washington, D. C., for the last seven and a half years has settled nothing, McNary declared, and has only delayed the "day of reckoning."

"If I thought," he continued, "that the best the government of the United States had to offer the farmers was regimented subsistence and a permanent state of disparity, then I should despair for my country."

He spoke on "The New Deal's Every-Normal Poverty," making a word play on Wallace's definition of the grain surpluses as the "Every-Normal Granary."

"It is a condition," McNary declared, "which, if not checked, seems on the way to providing ever normal poverty for the farmer."

G. O. P. Plan Outlined.

McNary settled himself into his farm expert's chair with a summary of steps "the next administration" will take in the farmer's behalf.

"At the least," he said, "it will reserve to the American farm producer first access to his own market. It will further, by every means, seek to enlarge the American market for farm products.

"Third, it will search for a formula for freeing the American farm price from the vagaries of foreign markets; putting the farmer on the same footing with other American producers who sell at the American—not the world—price. That simply means folding the American farmer at last into the American economy."

Generalization Termed Unworthy.

Replying to Wallace's charge of appeasement, McNary asserted:

"To say that the Republican party is the 'party of appeasement,' to suggest that Republicans, as Republicans, are eager to appease Hitler, with the blood of the European democracies fresh on his hands, is, of course, an irresponsible generalization unworthy of a leader in times of tension."

He said he did not share his opponent's contention that the New Deal has "unique qualifications to arm America."

"I maintain," McNary said, "that the New Deal's failure with an America at peace disqualifies it for administering the affairs of an America that may be at war.

Waste Held Enfeebling.

"The New Deal's frivolous waste of our substance has enfeebled us in advance of the vast effort that may lie ahead.

"Will is needed—a will capable of integrating a gigantic national effort; will plus the willingness to collaborate with all elements in the population and the added—and vital—capacity to get things done.

"I have every confidence that an administration possessing the attributes I describe would galvanize the nation into an intensified effort that would shortly spell security against any foe. I look for that type of administration under Willkie."

State candidates who spoke, in addition to Johnson, were Wayland Brooks, for senator; Dwight H. Green, for governor; Hugh Cross, for lieutenant governor; George F. Barrett, for attorney general; Warren Wright, for treasurer; Arthur C. Lueder, for auditor, and Stephen A. Day and William G. Stratton, for congressmen at large.

Links New Deal to the Plight of Europe.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 21.—Wendell Willkie, Republican nominee for President, would render economic assistance to keep China free and democratic, and he would aid England in all ways short of going into the European war. He would build a great defense system for this country and bring about an industrial revival which would strengthen this country and aid the cause of human freedom thruout the world.

These are the elements of what Willkie calls the "Battle of America," which he gave tonight in a massmeeting at the Civic auditorium here as a climax to three days of campaigning in California. He left here tonight for Oregon.

Heard by Overflow Crowd.

Willkie told a crowd which packed the auditorium [which seats 10,000] and overflowed on the plaza of Civic center that the Roosevelt administration has contributed to the downfall of the European democracy and charged that it must bear a direct responsibility for the present war.

The nominee quoted from a 1937 statement of Winston Churchill, prime minister of Great Britain, in support of his charge that the New Deal course here has adversely affected the democracies of the world. Churchill, according to Willkie, said:

"There is one way above all others in which the United States can aid the European democracies. Let her regain and maintain her normal prosperity. A prosperous United States exerts an immense beneficent force upon world affairs.

"Evil Far and Wide."

"A United States thrown into financial and economic collapse spreads evil far and wide, and weakens France and England just at the time when they have most need to be strong.

"The quarrel in which President Roosevelt has become involved with wealth and business may produce results profoundly harmful to ideals which to him and his people are dear.

"The Washington administration has waged so ruthless a war on private enterprise that the United States is actually leading the world back into the trough of depression."

These words of Churchill, Willkie said, were those of an oracle.

Asks Pacific Bases.

Willkie's declaration in favor of aid to China, and a further commitment to acquire and develop new Pacific air bases, were new and sensational features of his Pacific coast campaign.

The Republican nominee entered the field of foreign relations in this campaign reluctantly. He had intended, he said, and still intended, to keep out of his campaign matters on which all Americans should be united. But he had to take cognizance, he said, of the charges of Vice Presidential Candidate Henry Wallace, made in Illinois, that the Republican party was the party of the "appeasers."

"I would rather not be elected to any office," Willkie said, "than to play politics with your safety and perhaps your lives."

"Wildest Theory" Yet.

With no possible justification of New Deal domestic policies, Willkie continued, the claim is now made that the New Deal and Mr. Roosevelt have been a great success in foreign affairs.

This is the wildest theory that has come out of the Roosevelt hat, Willkie said. He recognizes it, however, as the question on which this campaign may hinge among independent voters.

TEXT OF ADDRESS

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 21 (AP).—Text of Wendell L. Willkie's address in Civic auditorium tonight follows:

"At all times foreign policy is of the utmost concern to the people. But in the present critical situation we must guard it more closely than ever. Those errors and hasty actions in foreign affairs, which would not be serious in ordinary times, might today have results fatal to our welfare and safety. Foreign policy today requires a cool head, clear thinking, and courageous action.

"I may say that one of the first conclusions I reached after my nomination in Philadelphia was that certain aspects of our foreign policy should not be dragged into the campaign. And I went the limit in keeping them out.

"It was my view, and it still is, that these are matters in which we Americans must show a united front to the world. It would be unforgivable to play politics with an international crisis.

Unwarranted Charges Made.

"I was shocked, therefore, when the candidate for Vice President of the Democratic party proceeded to do that very thing. The candidate for Vice President began traveling up and down the state of Illinois using the name of Adolf Hitler to get votes for the Democratic party. He did this by making absolutely unwarranted charges against the Republicans without any basis of fact. He sought to identify the Republican party with the word 'appeasement'—a word inherited from the Munich conference of 1938, which Mr. Roosevelt himself had done so much to bring about.

"I would rather not be elected to office than play politics with your safety and perhaps your lives. That is the kind of campaigning I wanted to exclude. And so far as I am concerned, it is still excluded.

On Threshold of Bankruptcy.

"Any one who is wiling to study the evidence must agree that the New Deal has been a failure in domestic affairs. Some think it has been a colossal failure; others think that it might have been worse. My own view is that while the New Deal has achieved a number of reforms that were badly needed, its domestic policy has pushed us to the threshold of bankruptcy and unconstitutional government.

"The New Deal has spent 60 billion dollars. Yet as of August, 1940, there were more unemployed than there were in 1936. There is less opportunity and there is less real security.

"The national income has failed to break thru the level of 1926, and has for the most part been close to the level of 1920. In eight years we will have doubled our national debt. And yet we are not producing enough to supply our own people, and we are not growing enough to keep up with our own birth rate.

"But the New Dealers, knowing that they cannot possibly justify the New Deal in domestic affairs, came forward this year with the astounding theory that the New Deal party under Mr. Roosevelt has been a great success in foreign affairs. They have set up Mr. Roosevelt as the defender of democracy, the man of wisdom in whom lies the hope of the democratic world.

"What is there to justify this amazing theory? It is as wild and untenable as any theory that ever popped out of Mr. Roosevelt's hat.

The Currency Conference.

"Go back for a moment to the year 1933. That was a fateful year.. The leading democracies of Europe, with France lagging behind, were just beginning to recover from the world-wide depression that had shaken them to their foundations. Perhaps the greatest obstacle to world recovery was the instability of foreign exchange. And thru the efforts of Mr. Hoover in 1932, followed up by Mr. Roosevelt in April, 1933, a conference had been arranged to meet in London to solve this and other problems.

"Certainly you people here in San Francisco understand the importance of stability in international monetary standards. Here in this great center of shipping and trade, the gateway to the orient, you know that when exporters and importers cannot accurately predict the value of currencies in other lands, foreign trade becomes almost impossible.

Trade Is Basis of System.

"You know also that the very basis of our system of free enterprise is trade—trade in open markets, where the goods of the world are exchanged with some relationship to the laws of supply and demand. Trade is the life blood of democracy.

"But none of this seems to have been apparent to Mr. Roosevelt in 1933. For a short time after his inauguration he did indeed regard the London economic conference with favor. He did not, however, see it for what it was: a magnificent opportunity for the leader of the world's greatest democracy to do something tangible to rehabilitate the democratic world.

"On the contrary, after his delegates had arrived in London, Mr. Roosevelt violently and without warning repudiated the instructions he had given them. Sitting in a boat off the coast of Maine he hastily adopted a brand new experimental monetary program for the United States. He denounced the proposal of the conference as a 'specious fallacy.' And he had a few fine words to say concerning his favorite objectives—'reduced cost of government,' 'adequate government income,' and 'balanced budgets.'

Opened Door to Hitler.

"This rash decision wrecked the conference, and put an end to any immediate hope for stabilized international exchange. It condemned France and all the gold bloc nations to three years of deflationary pressure, ending in the collapse of their currencies. It thus weakened the structure of the democratic world and opened the way to the aggressive designs of Hitler.

"Now I am not bringing this matter up again merely to carp or criticize, I am bringing it up because I have had to reach a definition in my own mind of the responsibilities of the Presidency in foreign affairs. And the incident of the London economic conference illustrates a conclusion I have reached.

"As I see it, the President of the United States has a two-fold responsibility. He must defend and preserve our democracy and he must encourage other democracies. One of these objectives cannot be accomplished without the other because the democratic world is interdependent and interrelated. If democracy is not strong elsewhere it will be difficult to keep it strong at home.

Democracy Weakened.

"The present administration has not understood that principle. It began by weakening the other democracies and it has ended by weakening our own. Let us turn from the first term to the second.

"Four years after the London conference, after Mr. Roosevelt was inaugurated a second time, the designs of Hitler against the democracies had become the most important factor in Europe. The situation was dangerous, and recognized as such by newspaper writers, editors, and government spokesmen everywhere.

"But the fact that the situation was dangerous did not mean that inevitably within a few years most of the world would be plunged into war. There was no such inevitability. There were good reasons to believe that the tide would turn—away from depression and war to prosperity and peace. This hope was soundly based on the fact that the democracies seemed actually to be recovering from the depression.

Democracy Rooted in Prosperity.

"I want you to note here that every rising index in those free countries strengthened their freedom and their tenure on the democratic way of life. Democracy is rooted in prosperity. It has never been overthrown from within, during a prosperous period.

"But in the general economic recovery of the democracies there was one weak spot. That spot was the United States. In the United States, of all places, recovery lagged behind the rest of the democratic world, including even France. Time and time again the statistics showed that almost every country in the world was recovering faster than the great and rich United States.

"Elsewhere it was assumed that the depression in the United States could not possibly last much longer. Sooner or later recovery must come. And when it did come it would confirm and stimulate further recovery elsewhere. It would strengthen the democracies. It wolud help them to deal with the rising tide of military dictatorship.

What Should Have Been Done.

"In this situation, dangerous but far from hopeless, there were two things that the United States should have done. First, we should have assured the domestic recovery that the democratic world was waiting for. And secondly, we should have taken immediate steps to repair the damage in 1933 at the London economic conference. We should have adopted a vigorous policy for the promotion of trade and commerce. We should have set about creating a strong and prosperous area of peace.

"But on Jan. 20, 1937, when Mr. Roosevelt was inaugurated for a second term, what did he undertake as his first great job?

"He might have undertaken to promote recovery in this country—this great country that was lagging behind the rest of the world. But he wasn't interested in that.

"He might have undertaken to do something to encourage world trade and insure world peace. But world peace didn't seem to be worrying him very much.

Roosevelt's One Idea.

"Then—what was on his mind? Why, a scheme for packing the Supreme court of the United States.

"And we all remember what happened as a result of that scheme. The totally unexpected and totally unnecessary controversy about the Supreme court split America in two. Congress became preoccupied with the defense of our constitution. While Hitler's power increased from day to day, we presented to the world the spectacle of a great people, the greatest of the democracies, torn asunder by a broil over one of our most fundamental principles.

"That was the time when Franklin Roosevelt had his golden opportunity to save world democracy in the 11th hour—and don't forget that the very next year was the year of Munich. That was the time when, by encouraging industry in this country, by encouraging money to flow, and by providing people with opportunity to work, he could have placed a substantial obstacle in the path of Hitler—the obstacle of trade and prosperity. But instead of doing this, he turned against the United States Supreme court, one of the greatest democratic institutions in the world.

"When I hear the New Dealers claiming that this man is such a wizard at foreign affairs; when I hear them claim that he is the one indispensable man to defend our democracy today, I cannot take them seriously. I cannot avoid the conclusion that they are trying to sell the American people something different from that which is written in the book of history.

"I bring a charge against the New Deal which I have measured carefully. I charge that this administration has contributed to the downfall of European democracy. I charge that it must bear a direct share of the responsibility for the present war.

"In taking up this position I am not alone. I have, standing as it were at my side, speaking, I would almost say, my own words, the man who, above all others, stands forth today as the defender of democracy and freedom on this earth. This man said in 1937, less than a year after Mr. Roosevelt was inaugurated a second time:

"'There is one way above all others in which the United States can aid the European democracies. Let her regain and maintain her normal prosperity.'

"The man who said that in 1937 is Winston Churchill, the embattled prime minister of Britain.

Words of an Oracle.

"The point is so clear, it is so important, that I am going to read you what he said at some length. Listen well. The words you are about to hear are the words of an oracle.

"'There is one way above all others,' says Mr. Churchill, 'in which the United States can aid the European democracies. Let her regain and maintain her normal prosperity. A prosperous United States exerts, directly and indirectly, an immense beneficent force upon world affairs.

"'A United States thrown into financial and economic collapse spreads evil far and wide, and weakens France and England just at the time when they have most need to be strong. The quarrel in which President Roosevelt has become involved with wealth and business may produce results profoundly harmful to ideals which to him and his people are dear.

War on Private Enterprise.

"'The Washington administration,' says Mr. Churchill, 'has waged so ruthless a war on private enterprise that the United States, with none of the perils and burdens of Europe upon it, is actually at the present moment leading the world back into the trough of depression. This warfare has taken three main forms: First, the attack upon the capital reserves of great corporations, which has woefully crippled their power to make future plans and give future work; secondly, the remorseless pressure of uncertainty and ill will which has been maintained against the immense sphere of public utility undertakings; thirdly, the irksomely hampering restrictions imposed upon market and stock exchange transactions.

"'The effect has been to range the executive of the United States against all the great wealth producing agencies of the capitalist system. On both sides blood is up, and between them in their fury they can undoubtedly tear the financial and economic strength of the American people to pieces.

"'In quiet times'—I am still quoting—'there is much to be said for some of these issues being patiently fought out. But even the most enthusiastic New Dealer might ask himself whether, with Europe and indeed the whole world in its present condition, this is a good time for the United States to indulge in this devastating internecine war.

Example of Stability Asked.

"'Those who are keeping the flag of peace and free government flying in the old world have almost a right to ask that their comrades in the new world should, during these years of exceptional and not diminishing danger, set an example of strength and stability. The well-being of the United States may spell not only the well-being but the safety of all sorts and conditions of men.'

"I know of no other statement that so ably summarizes the position I stand for. I know of no more lucid analysis of the principles inherent in this campaign.

"And I will say to you here that I stand ready to defend these principles in America even as Mr. Churchill is defending them in Britain. As he is fighting the battle of Britain, so I have dedicated myself and my party to fight the battle of America.

"We may thank God, you and I, that the battle of America is not a bloody battle. But we cannot afford to assume that it is a battle of lesser consequence than the battle that Mr. Churchill is fighting.

"We are faced with a changed world beyond our shores. There has been a great reaction against the liberties of man, a counter-revolution against the principles of human freedom that were established by the American revolution and the French revolution. Whatever happens to Britain there is little to indicate that the world beyond our shores will be anything like the world we have hitherto known.

"If Britain stops Germany, it is possible that there will occur uprisings in the conquered countries, and in Germany herself, against Hitler's rule. But in that event Europe will be demoralized. If, on the other hand, Germany is victorious, the United States will be left alone to face a hostile totalitarian world.

"The loneliness of the United States is a direct result of the foreign policies of the last eight years. If Britain falls we are utterly and savagely alone.

The Fallacy of Defense.

"We must—we desperately must—rid ourselves of the fallacy that democracy can be defended with words, with poses, with political paraphernalia designed to impress the American people and no one else.

"We must send, and we must keep sending, aid to Britain, our first line of defense and our only remaining friend. We must aid her to the limit of prudence and effectiveness, as determined by impartial experts in this field.

"In the Pacific our best ends will be served by a free, strong, and democratically progressive China, and we should render China economic assistance to that end. In addition I favor exploring the acquisition and development of Pacific air bases for the protection of our interests in that ocean.

"I favor the building of a defense system adequate to protect our soil from aggression from any quarter—a defense system so strong that none will ever dare to strike.

"I favor an industrial revival, reemployment, and encouragement to American enterprises, without which we cannot hope to maintain our democratic institutions.

"These are the elements of the battle of America. Yet I am one who does not believe in fighting battles unless I am fighting for an objective. I propose that we begin to outline our objective, no matter how remote.

"We are a commercial people, and we must therefore build up the commerce of the world. We are a peaceful people, and we must therefore strengthen peace by giving other peoples—democratic peoples—our economic support.

Higher Standard of Living.

"By this I mean that we must above all things work toward a higher standard of living. We must work for a higher standard not only here in America but in other countries as well. The necessity for doing this is borne out by the statistics of our foreign trade. By and large, our trade is best with those countries which have the highest standard of living. I truly believe that a high standard of living in Canada, in Mexico, in South America, in the orient, and perhaps some day again in shattered Europe, provides the only long-term hope for democracy in this land of ours.

"In this objective there is scope for the genius of America. There is scope for our idle capital, there is scope for our capital goods industries and for our manufacturing techniques, there is new opportunity for our labor and new jobs for our unemployed.

"I realize that in the present condition of the world that objective seems almost infinitely far away.

"But distance and difficulty have never troubled our people. We have thrived on them. This beautiful city of yours stands as a living symbol of what we can hope for and what we can accomplish, if we are given a chance. We crossed a continent to get here and build a metropolis.

"Let our government have confidence in us! We are not half finished with the job we want to do. We have not half finished the job of making democracy the most powerful influence in the world."

Willkies Visit Chinatown

(Story in adjoining column.)

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

When Wendell Willkie visited San Francisco's Chinatown to make a speech in his campaign for the Presidency yesterday a little Chinese girl presented a bouquet to Mrs. Willkie.

PHOTOGRAPH IN DEAD MAN'S CAMERA PUTS PAL IN POLICE HANDS

Thomas Harnois, 47 years old, 5039 Princeton avenue, was held by Grand Crossing police yesterday for questioning because he appears in a photograph found Aug. 16 in a camera owned by a friend, William D. Schaaf, former business agent of the painters' union, who was slain on that date.

Schaaf, who was believed to have been interested in south side handbooks, was shot to death near 78th street and Ashland avenue. Investigators found in his camera a photograph which showed him with four other men, three of them known to police. After the picture was published police were told the fourth man was Harnois, and he was arrested.

Harnois said the picture was taken on a party, but said he had nothing to do with Schaaf or the others in their business activities. Harnois has been picked up by police on several previous occasions.

Wife Ends Life by Taking Poison and Slashing Arms

Mrs. Antoinette Vanagas, 58 years old, was found dead early today in a vacant lot next to her home at 5536 South Laflin street. Englewood police said she had taken poison and slashed both arms at the elbow. She was found by her husband, Anton, an elevator operator, worried over her absence. He told police she had been in bad health for two years and had made a previous suicide attempt a year ago.

President Helps Celebrate Mother's 86th Birthday

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 21 [Special].—The family of President Roosevelt tonight celebrated the 86th birthday of the President's mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt. In keeping with a family tradition, the birthday cake had only 21 candles. Among those present were the President and his wife, three of their four sons, James, Franklin Jr., and Elliott; the wives of the latter two sons, and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks Jr.

FALL FATAL TO TAVERN OWNER.

James Balog, 34 years old, who was to have celebrated his 15th wedding anniversary today, died last night in Walther Memorial hospital of injuries incurred earlier in the day in a fall in his home at 4258 Lake street. He was a tavern owner. His widow, Emma, and two daughters survive.

WILLKIE TAKES HIS APPEAL TO MAN IN STREET

Tours San Francisco and Its Environs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 21.—Wendell Willkie spent today bringing his cause directly to the man in the street in San Francisco and the bay district.

In an open car, at the head of a long parade of Willkie volunteers, with a band, a loud speaker truck and an escort of police, the nominee campaigned in this Democratic district as if he were running for mayor or alderman, speaking to street corner gatherings, answering hecklers, taking all that came to him in friendly or unfriendly crowds.

Willkie made five street corner talks in San Francisco and then crossed the bay on the new Oakland bridge to talk in Emeryville, Alameda, Oakland, and Berkeley. Berkeley is the only Republican district in this section.

Speaks in Chinatown.

As a sort of prelude to his evening speech Willkie also spoke in San Francisco's Little Italy and in Chinatown. In the Italian section of North Beach he met the most friendly crowd of the day.

In Chinatown, where he was peppered with confetti and draped with colored streamers of paper thrown from the low hung balconies in the narrow streets, Willkie made pointed reference to the friendship of America with the Chinese republic and said he wanted the people who had come here from other countries to realize their hopes and dreams in America, the new world, and the new and democratic way of life.

Big Crowds See Parade.

Downtown San Francisco turned out big crowds to see the Willkie parade, which began at the Palace hotel at 9 o'clock in the morning. The streets in the vicinity were jammed. Market street had a line of people three or four deep along the curb and toward noon, as he swung back thru town, the crowds increased.

In one talk Willkie said:

"No American citizen will be taken off relief, if I am elected, until he gets a job. The difference between the present administration and myself is that while they keep people permanently on relief, I want to put them at fruitful work. Until we can overcome what this administration has done, however, to keep people on relief, not a single one will be taken off the relief rolls."

RELIEFER HANGS HIMSELF.

Peter Fornagel, 55 years old, was found hanged yesterday in his room at 2306 19th street. Police were told he had been given an eviction notice. A relief card and a WPA card were found in his pocket.

MONTREAL PAPER HITS WATERWAY PLAN AS POLITICS

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 21.—In a front page editorial entitled "A Seaway Betrayal," the Montreal Gazette today condemns the treaty now being urged by President Roosevelt for development of a St. Lawrence river international waterway to the ocean as a necessary war measure.

Stating that the whole situation has the nastiest possible look about it, the Gazette states that the waterway project is being pushed by Mr. Roosevelt at this time as an enormously expensive enterprise in order to help him thru a critical election.

Canada welcomes the help of the United States, the editorial continues, but the only concern of the dominion now is in winning the war, not in building water routes of questionable value.

PRIMARIES LIFT G. O. P. HOPES IN NEW YORK STATE

New Deal Losing Support of Racial Groups.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 21.—Republican leaders are more hopeful than ever of carrying New York, with its big block of 47 electoral votes, as a result of the state primaries held this week.

Congressional and judicial contests showed the Democrats are losing the support of big racial groups which previously were plumping almost solidly for President Roosevelt. The Irish are definitely "off the reservation." There is wide disaffection among the Italians.

These trends are so marked that G. O. P. leaders are convinced Republican Nominee Wendell Willkie has a chance to take the President's home state away from him at the polls in November. Roosevelt-Garner electors carried New York over the Landon-Knox ticket by approximately 1,100,000 in 1936.

G. O. P. Powerful Upstate.

New York City without doubt will return a large majority for the President because of the Tammany Democratic machines and the aid of Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, but the Republicans will roll up a tremendous vote in upstate regions. The Democrats carried the city by 1,400,000 in 1936, with the help of the American Labor party, but, if the plurality slips down to the half million mark this time, Mr. Roosevelt will probably lose the state.

There was considerable evidence at the primaries to show the temper of the Irish—peeved at the Roosevelt administration's treatment of James A. Farley, who stepped down as national Democratic chairman and postmaster general because he could not stomach the third term. In addition, the Irish didn't like the reports from Washington, D. C., that Farley was debarred as a candidate for President because of his religion.

Dissenter Shows Strength.

In a solidly Irish district in Brooklyn, Congressman Marcellus Evans, an anti-Roosevelt Democrat who had been denied the support of the Democratic organization for his opinions, nevertheless bagged 7,000 votes while his opponent collected 11,000. Evans was unopposed for the Republican nomination.

Also in Brooklyn, Frank Kelly's powerful machine backed Samuel S. Leibowitz, well known criminal lawyer, against George J. Joyce for county judge. Leibowitz won by 111,719 to 60,517, but an analysis of the vote district by district showed Joyce carried virtually every assembly district in Brooklyn where the Irish population predominates.

In Manhattan, Vito Marcantonio, congressman and violent left wing critic of President Roosevelt's defense policies, came within 160 votes of capturing the Democratic nomination in an Italian district despite all Tammany could do to the contrary. Marcantonio won the Republican and Labor party designations.

Resentful of Speech.

Much of the Italian resentment arises from President Roosevelt's Charlottesville speech accusing Mussolini of stabbing a friendly neighbor in the back by declaring war on stricken France. There are more than 1,000,000 Italo-Americans in New York City.

Republicans were also cheered when James Blaine Walker Jr. overwhelmed Joseph McWilliams, leader of the anti-Semitic Christian Mobilizers, by a four to one vote for the G. O. P. nomination in the Yorkville congressional district, heavily populated with Germans. Party leaders felt this would go a long way toward stemming a Democratic whispering campaign that the Republicans were pro-Nazi or anti-Jewish.

Henry Bartlett, 85, and his bride, 72, seal their marriage.

Henry Bartlett, 85 years old, a retired carpenter, married Mrs. Sophie Lichtenstein, 72, last night in her home at 7714 South Paulina street. Bartlett, who lives at 3254 North Albany avenue, has been married twice previously. It was Mrs. Lichtenstein's second wedding, the first taking place 49 years ago yesterday.

Mrs. Lichtenstein's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Marsh 11130 Parnell avenue, served as best man and matron of honor. Bartlett has four daughters. Mrs. Lichtenstein has two sons and a daughter.

The bride said it was love at first sight when they met three months ago at a concert. The groom said they would go to New York on their honeymoon and that both liked to play pinochle. He is first bass with the Schubert Singing society, which was to serenade the couple last night. night.

M'NARY'S STATE READY TO GREET WILLKIE PARTY

Throngs in Oregon Will See Candidate.

BY HAROLD MURRAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Portland, Ore., Sept. 21.—Thousands of persons in this timber and farm land state of Senator Charles L. McNary, Republican nominee for Vice President, will get their first glimpse of Wendell L. Willkie when the Republican Presidential nominee arrives here tomorrow night.

Ralph H. Cake, national committeeman for Oregon, said plans have been made to give Willkie an enthusiastic welcome. Willkie is due in Portland, the lumber mill center of the northwest, Sunday night, after stopping in Oregon for brief talks from his special train at Klamath Falls, Eugene, and Salem, the state capital, and home of McNary.

Mrs. McNary as Hostess.

At Klamath Falls a special car with Republican leaders and newspaper editors will be attached to the Willkie train for its trip thru the state. Mrs. Charles L. McNary will board the train to act as hostess to Mrs. Willkie. Senator McNary will not be present as he is speaking in the middle west.

In accordance with Willkie's wishes, Cake said, no public appearances have been scheduled for the nominee on his arrival here tomorrow. Willkie and members of his party will go directly to their hotel to rest. Police, however, have made plans to handle several thousand persons who are expected to greet Willkie at the station.

Students to See Him.

Portland will fête Willkie Monday morning. The nominee will be taken for an hour and half automobile drive thru the city.

Plans have been made for the nominee to give two short talks from his car in the residential districts of the city.

Willkie's visit here will end with his appearance later in the morning at the public auditorium where he is scheduled to give a major campaign address.

Sees Pair Robbing Victim; Shoots One; Second Held

Joseph Janka, 25 years old, of 940 North Avers avenue, was shot and captured Friday night by Carl Britton, who said he saw Janka robbing Henry Graham of 4520 Hazel street behind Britton's home at 908 Wilson avenue. Bernard Peck, 21, of 1919 Monroe street was arrested after Janka named him as an accomplice.

CLOCKS RETURN NEXT SUNDAY TO STANDARD TIME

Chicagoans will set their clocks back one hour at 2 a. m. next Sunday, Sept. 29, as the city returns to central standard time. The change will affect Cook county and parts of Kane and Will counties.

Since daylight saving time went into effect April 28, Chicagoans have gained 154 extra hours of sunlight during which children played outdoors in greater safety, motorists' chances of being in accidents were reduced, and office workers were able to play a few more holes of golf.

The change will be observed by suburban trains, which run on daylight saving time during the summer, and by securities and commodities markets. Most thru trains, buses, and airplanes operated on standard time during the summer. Summer ended officially last night.

BARRETT SENDS CITY VOTE FRAUD DATA TO DEWEY

New York Prosecutor to Use It in Campaign.

George F. Barrett, chairman of the Illinois Volunteer Committee To Stop Vote Frauds, sent to District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York yesterday a statement of some of the specific cases of election dishonesty reported to his organization.

The material was requested by Dewey for two purposes—to aid him in fighting election crooks in New York and to inform him accurately of Chicago conditions for his guidance in a speech he has promised to make here during the campaign. Barrett recently conferred with the New York prosecutor, who warmly indorsed the practical program of the Illinois committee.

In his letter to Dewey, Barrett charged that the Kelly-Nash organization now is using Fifth column tactics by having Democrats work their way into Republican organizations and having themselves appointed as Republican judges and clerks of election.

Keeps Names Secret.

Because his committee headquarters accepted information from complainants on a confidential basis and since many of them fear reprisals if their identities are disclosed, Barrett did not include names in his letter. He used case numbers but said that full details would be furnished to law enforcement officers if they are requested.

Some of the cases listed were the following:

"Case B-29. Ballot box disappeared from polling place for two hours after the polls closed. It then mysteriously reappeared. The precinct went 90 per cent New Deal.

"Case M-13. Typical. Reported by a citizen who has been afraid to give his evidence to any one before this time. He told of a gangster who voted sixteen times in one election. Such characters go from precinct to precinct, voting under the names of registered persons they know will not go to the polls.

"Case R-4. A man, his wife and two of their daughters were charged with manipulating ballots. One pleaded guilty. Some members of this family were listed as Republicans and some as New Dealers. Isn't this an example of the Fifth column movement in politics?

Honest Citizen Resigns.

"Case M-11. An honest citizen was asked to become an election judge, spent a week studying and passed examinations. He was then told he should let only the 'right' people vote. He resigned.

"Case S-61. Polling place left unguarded while clerks and judges went to dinner.

"Case A-2. A woman who had voted eleven consecutive years in one precinct was not allowed to vote because the clerks and judges told her she was not registered. A checkup after election day showed she was officially registered. She had worked openly against the New Deal.

"Case X-37. A widow who never heard of vote frauds until our drive started became alarmed over reports of voting in the names of deceased persons. She investigated and learned that her late husband, a life-long Republican who died in 1934, had been recorded as voting Democratic in every primary since his death.

Dead 23 Years; Name Listed.

"Case T-3. The name of a man dead 23 years was found on a poll list. Some one had been voting regularly in his name.

"Case B-14. A woman watcher says she was unable to see how the votes were being counted because New Deal machine watchers congregated so closely she could not get close enough to know what was going on.

"Case K-6. The report is that a woman runs a rooming house for blind persons. The little New Deal machine apparently pays her so that she can give low rates to these blind people providing they let her vote for them. On election day she leads one blind person after another to the polling place and marks their ballots for them."

Aid to President Wilson Gives Willkie His Support

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 21 (AP).—Gilbert F. Close, former confidential secretary to President Woodrow Wilson, announced today he was supporting Wendell Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee. In a statement issued by the St. Louis Willkie Democratic club, Close said he favored Willkie because he was convinced the country "needs an experienced business man."

MOVES TO STOP VANDALISM IN PAINT STRIKE

New York, Sept. 21 [Special].—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office ordered three arrests today in an attempt to halt the disorders and vandalism that have accompanied the four week strike of painters.

Nonunion painters have been beaten and thousands of dollars worth of property damage has been caused since the inception of the strike. Today another large apartment building was damaged. Walls and hallways were daubed with huge splashes of brown paint. Officials said it would cost considerable money to repair the damage.

One of those arrested today identified himself as a member of local 848 of the Brotherhood of Painters, an A. F. of L. affiliate. He was booked on a charge of malicious mischief and questioned concerning damage done to an apartment house.

A member of local 892 of the Painters' Brotherhood and another man were arrested on a charge of felonious assault after they beat three painters at work in a residential building.

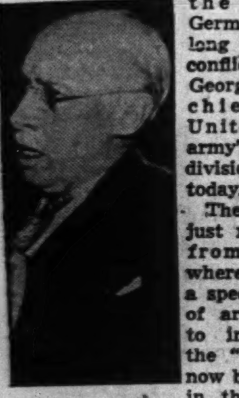
BRITAIN TO WIN, SAYS AMERICAN ARMY OBSERVER

Brig. Gen. Strong Predicts Lengthy Conflict.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Great Britain will emerge victorious from the war with Germany after a long drawn out conflict, Brig. Gen. George V. Strong, chief of the United States army's war plans division, predicted today.



Brig. Gen. Strong.

The general has just returned from England where he headed a special mission of army officers to inquire into the "total war" now being waged in the air over England and German occupied territory. His comments were made at a press conference.

The English will be able to hold out against the terrific bombings—particularly in the London area—to which they have been subjected by the Nazi airmen, Gen. Strong predicted. The royal air force is making "a magnificent showing, and the day of a possible German invasion of the island without appalling losses is past," the general told newspaper men.

Sees People Behind Churchill.

"The people are a unit behind Churchill," he said. "They are cheerful, but grimly determined to see this thing thru by ending German military domination of Europe, and I believe they can do it. There is no halfway measure or compromise."

The war is bound to be a long one, he predicted, with only two possible results: [1] the complete breaking up of Great Britain as an empire; or [2] complete destruction of Nazi-ism in Europe, and he predicts the latter.

The British do not want troops from the United States; they want materials they cannot get elsewhere, according to Gen. Strong.

"Personally, I believe Great Britain does not want assistance from the United States so far as manpower goes," he said. "They want moral support and productive capacity in munitions."

Tell of Sky Warfare.

There has been no material destruction of military objectives in England, he said, altho considerable damage has been inflicted on transportation facilities, and many fires have been started. He observed 10 days of intensive bombing of London.

"Last Sunday," he said, "I saw 32 Nazi bombers over London. Three British Hurricanes swooped down on the leaders. It was just like a hawk hitting a chicken yard. The bombers scattered hell bent in all directions. Three British pilots fought odds of ten to one extremely effectively, and prevented the dropping of bombs."

Man for man, he said, the British pilot is superior to the German in combat. He said the difference appears to be that the German is a "machine made" pilot while the Britisher is a "highly trained individual looking upon it as a sporting proposition."

Believes Invasion Would Fail.

Questioned about the possibility of a German invasion, Strong said that the Germans would get the "surprise of their life," if they tried it.

"The time that this could have happened without appalling losses to the invader is definitely past," he said. "This is because of climatic conditions such as gales and fogs, and many other factors."

For the past four months, Strong continued, British plane production has been in excess of losses.

Gen. Strong said that, generally speaking, the German pilots that had been brought down were young men between 20 and 24 years old, and apparently had a "great sense of relief to be out of the show."

Gen. Strong said he had examined operations reports of the R. A. F. as no other foreigner has been able to do and that he believed British claims of German plane losses had been accurate or understated. The British have not been as frank about their losses, he added.

Defensive Weapon Is Secret.

There have been no secret weapons employed or developed, except one, Gen. Strong said, adding that he could not discuss that one except to say that it is a defensive weapon which is somewhat effective.

"Dive bombing has petered out," the general said, "because it is suicidal in view of ground defenses. British antiaircraft defenses are responsible for from 3 to 5 per cent of the German planes brought down. The British have gone in for more powerful antiaircraft guns than anticipated."

These guns, he said, are considerably more than three inch caliber and have an effective range of 22,000 to 30,000 feet, forcing the Nazi raiders to fly at high altitudes.

Map locates the New Hebrides and New Caledonia, French possessions in the south Pacific, which have gone over to the De Gaulle government.

VICHY, France, Sept. 21 (AP).—The colonial administration of the New Hebrides, French islands in the Pacific, has gone over to Gen. Charles de Gaulle and the governor-general also has taken control of New Caledonia, a French spokesman said today.

The New Hebrides, some of whose natives still practice cannibalism, are about 50 miles from New Caledonia and the administration is shared by British and French commissioners. They amount to 5,700 square miles with a population of about 40,000 natives and about 1,000 Europeans.

The alignment of New Caledonia with the socalled "free" French government at London under Gen. de Gaulle was effected several days ago.

200,000 French Will Get Jobs on Public Works

VICHY, France, Sept. 21 (AP).—Two hundred thousand unemployed workers in unoccupied France will be given jobs on a vast new public works program expected to take five years, the government announced today. The work will include improving and lengthening rail lines, rebuilding bridges, and extending telephone and telegraph service.

STYLE CREATORS RUSH 43 TRIBUNE FASHION ENTRIES

BY MARCIA WINN.

Forty-three distinctive costumes, made from the best of 12,491 designs submitted in the $7,500 American Fashions contest sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, are now being rushed to completion for the three W-G-N fashion shows at which they will be exhibited to the public for the first time.

The shows will be held Oct. 2 in the main audience studio of the radio station. A national broadcast over the coast-to-coast Mutual Broadcasting system will mark their presentation.

Rea Seeger, fashion editor of THE TRIBUNE, who is assisting Mrs. Grace Pickering, fashion authority, in supervising the making of the garments in the shops of leading style creators in Chicago and New York, revealed yesterday that the collection reflects many new and startling trends.

Most of the silhouettes are figure-revealing. Daytime skirts, generally of straight lines, are notably short. Dramatic color combinations are employed, and fur is being used extravagantly for buttons, muffs, apron bands, lapels, collars, and hats. Leopard and Persian lamb are being employed lavishly as trimming.

The three fashion shows at W-G-N on Oct. 2 will begin at 1:45 p. m., 4 p. m., and 8:30 p. m. All seats have been sold for the 4 p. m. show and the night show, but tickets for the early matinee still are available. Admission is $1.

All applications for tickets must be made by mail to Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower. Checks or money orders should be made to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., to which the profits will go for distribution among charitable agencies.

HEALTH SPOT SHOES FOR MEN WOMEN AND CHILDREN

? ? DO YOU KNOW ? ?

A pain in your neck, back, knees, legs and ankles may be due to the kind of shoes you are wearing? Weak shoes allow the foot structure to collapse, forcing foot bones out of position, often resulting in bones of the upper body being thrown out of line.

Health Spot Shoes are scientifically designed to help you walk in balance as you wear them. They are made with thick, mellow insoles shaped to natural foot form. In Health Spot Shoes your feet function normally without stress or strain. You'll be comfortable in Health Spot Shoes.

BRITISH PLANES HURL GREATEST BLOWS AT NAZIS

Bombs Light Up Miles of French Coast.

Several persons were killed in an attack upon a northwest town.

Two Thrusts Beaten Off.

The night attacks were renewed after a day of isolated action during which two major daylight thrusts at London were beaten off, one by coastal antiaircraft and the other by British fighter planes which turned back a wave of 50 Messerschmitt fighter bombers over the southeast coast.

Most of yesterday's damage appeared to have occurred in southeast England. At least two towns in that area were bombed and the fragments of Nazi explosives fell over several districts.

A famous nonconformist church, the Lincoln tower of which was built in recent years with American funds, was burned out by incendiary bombs in Friday night's attack, but some 500 people who had been in its vaults when the raiders struck were reported safe.

[The censorship did not permit specific identification of the church; apparently it was Christ church on Westminster bridge road.]

A now famous "suicide squad"—the one that lifted an unexploded bomb from near St. Paul's cathedral—had what was under the circumstances a somewhat curious job. It dug out a bomb from the grounds of the German hospital in London.

Germans Beat Off Attacks.

BERLIN, Sept. 21 (AP).—The German air fleet, still hammering its heaviest blows against London, inflicted severe new damage to "war-essential" targets, the high command reported today.

While the German planes were carrying out night attacks on London yesterday, the official news agency, DNB, said Nazi fighter planes and a "surprise" antiaircraft barrage balked two British counter-raids on Berlin far short of their goal.

One wave of British night raiders was stopped approaching Berlin by way of the German bight, DNB said, and the other after penetrating western Germany as far as Hanover.

British Bomb Western Cities.

The high command acknowledged British bombardment of western German cities in which, it said, 13 civilians were killed, "numerous" others injured, several apartment houses destroyed, and a church cemetery hit. It placed the cost yesterday of British air operations at 14 planes and said only one German plane was missing.

Informed sources said British raiders dropped eight explosive and 40 incendiary bombs which struck residences in one hamlet in the Moselle region, and that others fell in the Cologne-Aachen district.

Particularly the center of London, west of the big bend of the Thames river, suffered from the German air blows, the high command said, and frequent hits were scored on the big Royal Albert docks.

Besides the center of London, the communique reported, "war-essential supply industries south and east of London" and "airports and other war-essential targets in south and central England" were attacked by smaller raiding squadrons.

14 Ships Reported Sunk.

German air attacks continued on London thruout this afternoon, informed sources said, with bombs of the heaviest caliber falling in the region of the Thames elbow. Damage must have been "considerable," these sources said.

Summarizing recent exploits of three commerce raiding German submarines, the high command said they had sunk 14 merchantmen totalling 78,862 tons. One commanded by Lieutenant Commander Bleichrodt, was credited with having sunk nine ships totalling 51,862 tons.

Nazi Ports Get Heaviest Blow

Principal events of yesterday in the aerial warfare between Great Britain and Germany are told on the map.

Germans Take Photos Thru Clouds with Infra-Red Rays

BERLIN, Sept. 21 (AP).—German aerial observers regularly use infra-red rays to photograph British objectives thru clouds, competent quarters said today. This is an application of a method in long and general use for such work.

Radium Lowered Into Well when Raid Sirens Blow

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP).—Every time the air raid sirens blow, two tubes, containing six grams of radium, are lowered to safety in a 50 foot well at Westminster hospital.

DENMARK FACES COAL SHORTAGE; SHUTS COLLEGE

Nazis Deliver Only Small Amount of Fuel.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept 21.—The main building of Copenhagen university—one of the oldest cultural centers of Europe—will be closed this winter. Denmark does not have enough coal to heat the building. A few special courses will be held in an old school building which was closed last year because of its old-fashioned equipment.

Denmark has been sending most of its produce to Germany ever since the Nazis occupied the country. Germany also has been buying heavily in Denmark.

Has Huge Credit.

Danish newspapers reveal that Denmark now has a credit of 300 million crowns [$60,000,000] in Germany as a result of its sales. This is a big sum for a small country of 4,000,000 inhabitants.

Germans now control almost all coal mines in western and central Europe, including those of northern France, Belgium, Luxemburg, Czecho-Slovakia, and Poland. Nevertheless, deliveries of coal to Denmark have been so small that Danes now face a serious shortage. Use of coal for hot water heaters already has been forbidden.

Emphasize Own Culture.

Efforts are being made by Denmark's leaders to keep up the morale of the population. Every Sunday, for instance, many Danes unite in communal singing—but only of Scandinavian songs.

The Danes once listened to German military bands with interest, but now they declare that most persons emphasize their own national culture. Denmark also is preparing to celebrate the 70th birthday of King Christian X, on Sept. 26 to further "stress Danish unity"

CHANNEL CALM, SKIES CLEAR, SO TENSION ON COAST INCREASES

BY STANLEY JOHNSTONE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

IN A SEACOAST TOWN OF ENGLAND, Sept. 21.—The skies are clear tonight and the English channel is so calm that it would be possible to paddle a canoe across it. Consequently, the tension has increased.

There was an ominous quiet until this afternoon, when 80 German planes came over. Part of this powerful squadron broke from the main formation and attacked the defenses in this area, the first of such assaults. These defenses would have to be reduced before German troops could be landed.

A TITANIC TASK! CARING FOR AIR ATTACK VICTIMS

British Tackle It; Need More Supplies.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 21.—An American newspaper man attempting to obtain figures and facts regarding those made homeless and destitute by air raids on London and other parts of the country is confronted with a dilemma. Such information is a military secret and therefore cannot be published.

Lady Reading.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent invariably finds himself stymied by this difficulty, despite the gratitude of officials for American gifts of money and materials to relieve the distress and suffering of the civilian population.

Among those whom THE TRIBUNE correspondent called on today was Lady Reading, head of the Women's Voluntary services, an organization with 70 branches thruout the country and a membership of 750,000.

Lady Reading organized this service in June, 1938. She has succeeded to such an extent that the American Red Cross confines its contributions for civilian relief to this organization. The British Red Cross is prohibited from tendering aid to any one except those actually wounded or to first aid cases. The American Red Cross so far has donated $4,250,000 to the women's auxiliary services or to the British Red Cross.

Lady Reading said the Women's Voluntary services had handled large numbers of refugees in the London area since the air war started.

Her organization also has arranged for the evacuation of 1,250,000 children unaccompanied by their mothers since August, 1939. The government pays so much a week for all evacuees to be provided with the necessities of life. These payments allow little for extras, and these are what the American and other relief organizations are attempting to supply.

Lady Reading said her organization particularly would like to have blankets, woolen clothing, sleeping bags, mobile canteens and kitchens, and station wagons. In addition to these items, the lord major's fund appeals for camp beds, soap, hot food, shelter, and cash for personal necessities. It also requests the public to give "a few pence to buy sweets for children," adding that "these and many other things are wanted at once."

Donate Much Equipment.

The American Red Cross is relieved of its usual tasks by Lady Reading's organization and the British Red Cross. Only three Americans, under the direction of David Bruce, comprise the staff of the American Red Cross here. This organization already has arranged for a supply of 500,000 woolen blankets from America.

Another organization, the Allied Relief fund also has done considerable toward supplying much needed clothing, material, and medical appliances, besides presenting the government with numerous ambulances. This fund already has donated 75,000 new and 12,000 old articles of clothing, 110,000 yards of cloth, 30,000 pounds of wood, 27,000 hospital articles, 400 layettes, and 5 X-ray apparatuses costing $50,000 each and which were especially necessary owing to the abandonment of equipment in the Dunkirk evacuation.

Despite such contributions, the number of homeless and destitute is growing rapidly as a result of the nightly bombings and the strain on the available relief resources is increasing proportionately.

Escape With Few Clothes.

Comment has been made on the anomaly of refugees herded into drafty, damp church halls or billeted in rickety country cottages and even sleeping in the open, when London has thousands of houses and apartments standing empty.

The demand is made that the government exercise its emergency powers and commandeer housing and other necessities to relieve the distress.

The first stage in dealing with refugees is to take them to "rest centers" where they remain supposedly for a night or two before moving on to permanent accommodations. But the transitory process in some cases is long delayed. Many of the homeless are reported to be living in rest centers for more than a week, tho many such places are inadequately equipped.

NEXT AXIS AIM: SHOWDOWN WITH GREECE, TURKEY

They Must Define Position, Fascists Assert.

ROME, Sept. 21 (AP). — Fascist spokesmen indicated tonight in the aftermath of the latest Rome-Berlin consultation, that the axis may call for a showdown from Greece and Turkey, the last harbors for British influence in southeastern Europe.

Turkey still has a defensive alliance with Great Britain; Greece still has a British pledge to protect her independence.

From Virginio Gayda, frequently Premier Mussolini's sounding board, came the strongest indication that Greece and Turkey may be asked to make plain their positions.

Ready for Conciliation.

The axis powers, Gayda wrote in Il Giornale d'Italia, are ready to support conciliation and respect for legitimate interests, but they "require final clarification of still pending problems and attitudes still in doubt."

Gayda promised also that the war against Britain "will develop with ever more intense energy and even greater and more irresistible application of means."

Joachim von Ribbentrop, Adolf Hitler's foreign minister, still was in Rome today, sightseeing, following his conferences with Mussolini and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

To See Spanish Envoy.

He will return to Berlin tomorrow, where he again will see Ramon Serrano Suner, Spain's key minister, who has been waiting there for him. He is expected to tell Serrano Suner just where Spain is expected to fit into the axis' future plans and what Spain will get in return, perhaps a share in a projected axis division of Africa.

But Gayda said the axis was in no hurry to tell what it is going to do. That will be disclosed at the "right time," he added.

Some foreign sources interpreted his reference to "still pending problems" as Italian-Albanian territorial claims on Greece and the desire of Bulgaria for an outlet on the Aegean sea—thru Greece.

Spain's virtual acceptance of its rôle was indicated in Italian dispatches from Berlin, which said "the German press notes with pleasure that from now on the solidarity of the Spanish people [with Germans and Italians] is forecast." They added that Spain's coöperation never was in doubt.

London Opens Day Shelters for Use During the Night

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP).—A government official announced today that a large number of air raid shelters in London which have been labeled "day only" will be thrown open as havens for Londoners at night. The shelters, beneath stores and office buildings, were intended originally for crowds caught downtown during shopping and business hours.

Bulgars Ask More

As Bulgarian troops began the occupation of southern Dobruja (1), ceded by Rumania, many of their countrymen clamored for two areas of Greece (2).

VARNA, Bulgaria, Sept. 21 (AP).—Flag decorated border villages today welcomed the vanguard of Bulgarian officials and troops reclaiming southern Dobruja, lost in war and regained from weakened Rumania without a fight after 28 years of dispute.

While today's formal entry into Dobruja extended Bulgaria's Black sea front to the north, many Bulgarians clamored for similar expansion to the south.

They urged that Greece be forced to return parts of Thrace and Macedonia, which Bulgaria lost in post-world war treaties, cutting her off from the Ægean sea.

Complete occupation of the territory ceded by Rumania is expected to take 10 days. It includes the strip along the border and the Black sea coast, including Balcik, resort port where the heart of Queen Marie of Rumania was enshrined.

The Bulgarian army of occupation included six regiments of infantry and four of cavalry.

LEGLESS FLYER RECEIVES HIGH BRITISH AWARD

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP). — Douglas Bader, a 30 year old R. A. F. squadron leader who lost his legs in a prewar plane accident and now uses artificial limbs, has been awarded the distinguished service order for gallantry, the air ministry announced tonight.

Bader, a native of London, at the outbreak of the war persuaded R. A. F. officials to allow him to reënter the service since he had learned to walk well and could easily operate a plane. One of his combat reports dealt with a battle which his squadron of Hurricanes had with the Germans.

"When they counted up afterward 11 of the enemy Messerschmitts and 3 Heinkels had been destroyed without so much as a bullet hole in any of the Hurricanes," the air ministry's service said.

Bader downed one of the fighters in flames, crippled another, and saw pieces fly off the starboard wing of the second machine near the engines. Then the whole starboard wing caught fire and the plane went into "a steep spiral dive well on fire."

SPAIN MAY BE 3D PARTNER IN AXIS, PRESS ASSERTS

Talks in Rome Scheduled for This Week.

BY MAURICE ENGLISH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, Sept. 21.—Extension of the Rome-Berlin axis into a Rome-Berlin-Madrid triangle with Spain collaborating in the creation of a "new order in Africa" is likely to emerge from the present diplomatic negotiations in Rome, the Spanish press declared today.

For this purpose Ramon Serrano Suner, Spanish minister of interior, now in Berlin to confer with Adolf Hitler and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, is expected to go to Rome next week before returning to Madrid.

How the new lineup is to reveal itself still is an official secret. There has been no official word yet of a formal alliance nor any open hint that Spain will enter the war at this time.

Press Calls for Coöperation

On the other hand, the press asserts that it is the destiny of Spain to coöperate in the "liberation of Africa" and in forcing the English out of the Mediterranean.

One informed source said that Serrano Suner informed Hitler that Spain considered itself directly interested in victory for the axis powers and was willing to adopt a policy of active solidarity with them.

Should the axis negotiations lead to positive action by Spain in North Africa, it is believed the British will be able to give more support to Gen. Charles DeGaulle, leader of the "Free France" movement in London.

Move May Aid British.

Britain, in line with its present policy of handling Spain gently, it is said, has been unwilling to encourage an anti-Petain movement among French Moroccan forces. Such action would have been regarded here as against Spanish interests.

It is believed that if Spain joins the axis forces, Britain probably would consider itself at liberty to give full support to Gen. DeGaulle's supporters in French Morocco.

A sidelight on the ultimate aims of Spanish policy was given today in the Falangist organ, Arriba, which said that "Spain's present tiny holdings in Africa would bring the totalitarian influence closer to Brazil and enable the axis powers to put pressure on South America."

FINDS HOME LOOTED.

Benjamin Stokes, 58, a retired policeman, returned from a visit with friends last night and found that burglars had stolen watches and jewelry worth $150 from his home at 7637 Kingston avenue.

HITLER HONORS ACE FOR 40TH VICTORY IN AIR

[Copyright: 1940: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Sept. 21.—Germany's outstanding war ace, Maj. Werner Moelders, today was awarded the Oak Leaves of the Knights' Cross of the Iron Cross by Fuehrer Hitler in recognition of his 40th enemy plane shot down in battle.

In addition Hitler sent him a personal telegram of thanks for his "heroic action in the struggle for the future of our nation."

Maj. Moelders is 27 years old. He leads the list of German aces. His career as a war flyer began with the Condor legion in Spain's civil war, from which he returned with 14 planes to his credit.

Next among German aces is Maj. Galland, who brought down his 36th enemy plane the same day that Maj. Moelders achieved his 40th victory.

FRENCH BALK AT TONGKING BASE FOR JAPS' ARMY

New Demands by Tokio Block Pact.

HANOI, French Indo-China, Sept. 22, Sunday (AP).—A new complication disturbed the touch-and-go situation over Japanese demands for military rights in French Indo-China today when authoritative French sources declared the French would refuse to let Japan make Tongking a military base.

These sources said they were ready to honor their word and give Japan the military facilities provided in the Vichy-Tokio understanding, but would balk at anything meaning Japanese military occupation of Tongking.

This statement followed a new setback in the critical negotiations after earlier hope that an amicable settlement impended. The French colonial government announced the situation has been compromised by fresh, undisclosed demands caused by Japan's desire to move troops thru Indo-China to attack Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese armies.

Hint Parley May Be Resumed.

While Maj. Gen. Issaku Nishihara, chief of the Japanese military mission, remained in his hotel room at Haiphong, where he went this morning, several of his subordinates returned here and were believed to be ready to renew the conversations.

French sources said the French army in Indo-China would prefer to go down fighting rather than submit to terms too humiliatinc. They estimated that Japan would need 300,000 men to conquer all this East Asian colony and declared that, if France resisted with the full coöperation of the Chinese army, Japan would find her fighting front stretched out 1,000 miles.

[The British owned newspaper China Mail at Hongkong said Japanese warships had moved into Tongking bay, opposite Haiphong, "as a persuasive gesture." Chinese sources in Hongkong said veteran Chinese forces were massing to move into French Indo-China at the first sign of force from Japan. Shanghai reports said Japan, in addition to wanting to thrust at China's back door, was seeking naval footholds in Indo-China that would threaten the British naval base at Singapore.]

Japs Remain on Ships.

Japanese nationals who left Hanoi environs Friday night remained aboard ships in Haiphong harbor, but it was reported that Japanese from southern Indo-China had left Saigon aboard ships bound for an undisclosed destination.

Altho French sources welcomed the United States' renewed expression of concern over Indo-China's status quo, a spokesman said it was recognized that Washington could not go so far as to threaten Japan. However, he said, a further American expression would be of "utmost importance."

Anything Possible, Says Vichy.

VICHY, France, Sept. 21 (AP).—Negotiations at Hanoi on Japanese demands for military rights in French Indo-China have entered a difficult period "from which anything can be expected," the French government announced today.

An information bureau communique said, however, the chances of an accord between Vichy and Tokio "are slightly better than the risks of a conflict."

Disinterested, Say Nazis.

BERLIN, Sept. 21 (AP).—Authorized German sources expressed disinterest today in the Japanese pressure on French Indo-China for strong military and naval footholds there.

ONETIME NAZI PRESS CHIEF IN CANADIAN PRISON

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 21 (AP).—A letter with a Canadian postmark today made the opening of his sophomore year at Harvard a happy one for Egon Hanfstaengl.

The letter was from his father, Ernst [Putzi] Hanfstaengl, Harvard graduate, former Nazi foreign press chief and friend of Fuehrer Hitler, who was interned in England, where he was living when the European war broke out.

The elder Hanfstaengl, who left Germany several years ago for what he called "voluntary exile," told his son he was in a Canadian prison camp. How he got there, when or where the camp is located, the letter did not disclose.

Views at Marshall-Bryan Wedding

'RUSTY' BRYAN FINALLY WEDS; ONLY 50 ATTEND

The marriage of Miss Helen Mary Bryan—"Rusty" to her friends—and John I. Marshall Jr., which occasioned much discussion last week because of its postponement over unexplained differences between the two families, finally took place yesterday. There were several modifications in the plans, however.

The ceremony was performed at noon in the chapel of the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest, instead of at 4:30 o'clock in the church proper; the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Bryan Jr. gave the reception in the chapel parlor instead of in their home, and only a few intimate friends, fewer than 50 in all, were present instead of the 1,500 originally invited.

The Rev. Herbert Prince officiated at the simple ceremony. Six attendants, all in gowns of two-toned green taffeta and small green turbans, preceded the bride to the altar.

Miss Helen Dick was maid of honor.

The bridesmaids were Miss Barbara Anne Buchanan, Miss Alice Blair, Mrs. Joseph C. Belden Jr., Miss Marie Louise Hulburd, and Miss Caryl Harrison. White satin, trimmed with a yoke of white lace, accentuated the slight pallor of the bride.

Maj. William A. Rafferty of Morrocco, Ind., was best man for his half-brother, the son of Mrs. John I. Marshall of Lake Forest.

The bride's father is a broker. Marshall is connected with the Middleby-Marshall Oven company, of which his late father was the head.

SHOT IN STREET FIGHT.

Joseph Truxal, 21 years old, a clerk, of 109 North Laramie avenue, was shot in the right leg by one of two men he engaged in a street fight at Chicago and Waller avenues early yesterday. The men fled in an automobile.

JAP ANGER RISES AT HINT U. S. MAY USE SINGAPORE

Tokio Sees Threat in "Offer" of Base.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Japan, Sept. 22, Sunday.—Japan was angered today by reports from Washington, D. C., that Britain was offering the use of her Singapore naval base to the United States. This move was regarded in all quarters here as unfriendly and, if accepted by the United States, as jeopardizing Japan's safety in the western Pacific. Naval authorities watching the situation most carefully declare Tokio cannot remain silent.

"For Britain to put Singapore at the disposal of the United States is tantamount to transferring its influence in the Pacific to the latter," Asahi, Tokio newspaper, declared this morning.

Sees U. S. as War Partner.

"It would also suggest practical participation by the United States in the European war, for it means the British navy will be able to throw its full weight against Germany, with the American navy acting as the custodian of the Pacific."

Japan holds that if, as a result of the arrangements, the United States navy entrenches itself in Singapore, this inevitably will infringe on Japan's "unalterable policy" of maintaining command of the western Pacific. Moreover, the Japanese say, it would be regarded as interference by the United States in the Asiatic sphere.

London Watches Parley.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 21.—The greatest importance is attached in London to conversations now going on in Washington, D. C., between Secretary of State Cordell Hull; Lord Lothian, British ambassador to the United States, and Richard G. Casey, Australian minister.

Involved are said to be the defense of the Pacific; the future of the Singapore naval base, the use of which the United States is said to be requesting, and the transport of arms to China along the Burma road. Other lands which are interested, notably the Dutch East Indies, China, and Russia, are expected to be brought into the discussions later.

The Sunday Times' diplomatic correspondent declares the United States is "alarmed by Japan's policy," especially over the situation in French Indo-China.

He adds that it would be rash to conclude that an English speaking bloc has been agreed on at this stage of the conversations."

EVEN BREAD GOES TOTALITARIAN IN IL DUCE'S DOMAIN

ROME, Sept. 21.—The ministry of corporations today announced that henceforth Italy would have "totalitarian bread." The bread will be made with a new type of flour containing more bran. The price of bread will remain unchanged altho the price of the new flour will be lower. This will give a greater profit to bakers.

JAPS SENTENCE BRITISH BUSINESS MAN TO 8 YEARS

KOBE, Japan, Sept. 21 (AP).—Vincent Peters, 46 year old British merchant, was sentenced to eight years imprisonment today on a charge of espionage. He was arrested Jan. 17 and accused of spying on Japanese naval and economic affairs.

CITY AIDS BRITISH FUND WITH RICHES AND ATTIC GOODS

5,000 Items Contributed for War Relief Sale.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Chicago has opened its treasure chests, attics, dresser drawers, and even its kennels for the British War Relief society sale which opens tomorrow.

A good 5,000 items are stacked in rich heaps or hung up on two floors at 615 North Michigan avenue. All are to be sold by Oct. 5. The list includes a $20,000 oriental rug, being offered at far less; a pedigreed Irish terrier puppy, a 1939 international atlas, 12 new silk American flags, more china than you can break in a lifetime, and a fancy white lawnmower with rubber tires and shining chromium trim.

Donations Exceed Hopes.

When Chicago architects and decorators first planned the benefit sale, they expected to receive only art objects, furniture, and home furnishings. But when the donations started rolling in, they soon had enough merchandise for an old fashioned emporium on their hands, and most of it, like the pedigreed puppy, was too valuable to be overlooked.

One woman sent an heirloom clock, another two quaint Victorian oil paintings of her forebears, and another a beautiful Spanish silver compote which, she said, a king of Spain once gave a Portuguese grandee.

One woman baked and sent a box of tea cakes. Mayor and Mrs. Kelly sent two white leather chairs, a Queen Anne table, two crystal perfume bottles, an after-dinner coffee set, and money to equip a hospital bed in England.

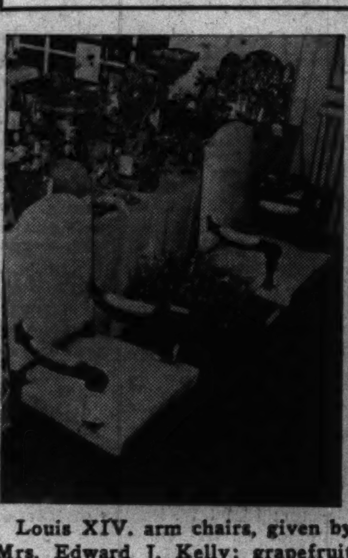
One Sends 40 Gifts.

One woman sent 40 gifts, all valuable, and another sent 37. Many sent full sets of china, some of it fine. One Chicagoan sent three Louis XIV. commodes, and another four late Jacobean chairs, upholstered in needle-point, which once sold for $1,000 apiece, and several priceless Chinese bronzes as well.

There are tables of silver, from huge old Dutch candelabra to lemon forks, and a cubbyhole of shining new aluminum pots and pans. There are lamps, old and new; chintzes, cameras, old jewelry, new clothes, a case of champagne, a Staffordshire bust of the Duke of Wellington, a miniature room, and two beauty kits, one used in 1700 and the other waiting to be used in 1940.

"But not a thing," commented Miss Cornelia Conger, a member of the arrangements committee, "that we had to throw away."

For British Relief



Louis XIV. arm chairs, given by Mrs. Edward J. Kelly; grapefruit glasses, given by Mrs. John Gary, and other articles from other donors—all to be sold for benefit of British war relief.

250 SELECTED AS COMMUNITY FUND SPONSORS

Two hundred and fifty industrial, business, professional, and social leaders have been appointed on the sponsors' committee for the 1940 Community Fund campaign, Harold H. Swift, vice chairman of Swift and company and chairman of the sponsors' committee, announced yesterday. The drive, with a goal of $3,604,000 will open officially Oct. 3 at a dinner for leaders, team captains, and company representatives in the Stevens hotel.

The sponsors' committee is responsible for half of the campaign goal. Sponsorship is conferred principally on prominent citizens and businesses concerns who [or which] by individual gifts ranging from $1,000 to $60,000 contribute half the sum needed in the drive.

The Community Fund was organized in 1930 to aid private social agencies thruout the city. This year the money raised will be allocated according to their needs to 185 Protestant, Catholic, Jewish, and nonsectarian charitable agencies, none of which either duplicates or receives government help.

PETAIN BREAKS SOCIALIST GRIP ON FIVE CITIES

Names Own Men to Rule Foes' Strongholds.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Sept. 21.—Marshal Henri Philippe Petain's edict dissolving the municipal councils of the five largest French cities in the unoccupied zone was regarded today as an onslaught on Socialist strongholds alleged to be carrying on a campaign aimed at torpedoing the Petain government.

In each city—Lyons, Marseilles, Toulouse, Vienne and Montlucon—Socialists were in power and in some cases the Socialist mayors were members of parliament. Under the edict the mayors will cease to have any function until the peace treaty is signed, and that means a virtual suspension of their power.

Herriot Heads List.

Mayor Edouard Herriot of Lyons, former premier, heads the list. It has long been whispered in Vichy he is not in sympathy with Petain's government.

At Marseilles the mayor was the Socialist senator, Henri Tasso, Mayor Ellen-Provost of Toulouse has for years been the virtual Red dictator of the city. M. Hussel, deputy mayor of Vienne, was a municipal dictator of the same kind. Max Dormoy, who was mayor of Montlucon, was minister of the interior in the Leon Blum government.

New City Régimes Named.

It was officially announced tonight that special administrative delegates have been appointed to begin running the five cities immediately. M. Surleau, prefect of the department of Bouches-du-Rhone, will be in charge of Marseilles.

Le Progres, Lyons newspaper, said: "The measure will take five mayors out of municipal and political affairs. Their political past could not be reconciled with the new orientation of government."

FOUR BANDITS ROB TAVERN.

Four armed men entered the tavern at 8440 Brandon avenue early yesterday and took $154 from Orville O'Laughlin, the proprietor, and 20 patrons.

AUSTRALIANS GO TO POLLS IN TEST FOR WAR POLICY

SYDNEY, Australia, Sept. 21 (AP).—Australians voted today in a federal election called by Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies in a test of strength on his war policy for the commonwealth.

Both he and the opposition leader, Laborite John Curtin, have pledged every possible assistance to Britain, but Curtin has stressed the primary need for home defense. A new house of representatives will be chosen for a three year term.

Rainbow Garden of Giant
TULIPS $2
Prepaid 600 miles

Thirty bulbs, six each of five named varieties separately bagged and labeled, embracing these colors:
RED, PINK, ORANGE, YELLOW, LAVENDER

With war shutting out bulbs from Holland, tulips are a rarity this fall. These bulbs were grown in our own fields in Oregon, where we have the largest American plantings. In several years of tests they proved equal or superior to imported Dutch bulbs. They are tall, giant, Darwin, Cottage and Breeder varieties, without rivals in the spring garden. With tulip bulbs so scarce few gardens will enjoy their beauty next spring. Make yours one of these few!

15 Daffodils, prepaid, $1

Daffodils are the first major flowers to bloom in spring. They last for years and usually multiply. A purchase of bulbs should pay in bloom for a lifetime. All types are in this mixture.

EUROPE, AT WAR, TURNS SHARP EYE ON U. S. ELECTION

Both Foreign Offices and Press Interested.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Sept. 21.—In the midst of a destructive war, continental Europe is giving close study to the American presidential election. For both the press and foreign offices of all countries the political struggle between Wendell L. Willkie and Franklin D. Roosevelt seems to be of absorbing interest.

The opinion is expressed that recent events have inextricably entangled the United States in European affairs. Today's Le Progres, newspaper of Lyons, discussing the recent destroyer-defense base deal made between the Roosevelt government and England, says the deal "has created between the two contracting states a strong moral lien. Practically, the accord makes the United States penetrate more deeply into the atmosphere of European events."

Swiss Papers Outspoken.

Swiss papers are more directly outspoken. In an article entitled "From One Continent to Another," the Gazette of Lausanne declares that Roosevelt "has interfered in Europe with an extreme maladroitness," while another Swiss paper, the Bund, suggests that American foreign policy as conducted by William C. Bullitt, ambassador to France, was partly responsible for the war.

The Lausanne Gazette finds it difficult to understand the Roosevelt declaration that the United States will not join in any foreign conflict unless attacked.

"In those conditions one cannot see clearly what purpose enormous military credits will serve or the law of conscription which will draft several million men. For, being given the present conditions of warfare, any attempt to attack the shores of the United States would require such an amount of transport as no power now possesses."

The article then expresses the belief that the United States fears Europe might develop a new economic organization which, together with a better exploitation of the vast African colonies, might enable Europe to dispense with American trade and thus deprive American industry of customers.

Cite American Actions.

Therefore, the paper says America backs England, which is seeking to keep Europe on the old basis and open to commerce, and Washington has been invoking the Monroe doctrine, making a defensive accord with Canada and taking an interest in the Dutch Indies and Indo-China, and having talks with the Australian commonwealth. "This activity implies an intervention in an immense domain which heretofore was marked 'No Hunting,'" the Gazette says.

The Gazette also thinks that "England may have reasons to be disturbed by American activity because the dominions, which now get protection from empire membership, might find that same protection elsewhere, and in that case they would be tempted to finish with the ruinous war and live from now on in full independence. The future will decide."

LONDON, Sept. 21.—There has been great improvement in deliveries of planes from the United States, with the result that the present rate is about 200 complete machines monthly, H. F. James, director of the Northern Aluminum company, said today. James has just returned from an inspection tour of American aviation factories as the emissary of Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production.

"I promise you," James said, "very rapid stepping up of United States deliveries in the very near future. United States manufacturers are giving priority to British orders and large extensions are being or already have been made in plants to cope with greater output requirements."

James declared that the Packard Motor company's decision to manufacture Rolls-Royce engines greatly eased the general situation. He asserted that the United States government had placed very few contracts for the building of planes, which enabled manufacturers to give most of their energies to increasing their output for Britain.

ITALIANS SHOVE ADVANCE UNITS AHEAD IN EGYPT

Push on Despite Air Raids by British.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Sept. 21 (AP).—Marshall Rodolfo Graziani, preparing for a new offensive further into Egypt, sent advanced mechanized Italian units ahead from Sidi Barrani today. Meanwhile his engineer corps works under British bombing attacks to consolidate the Fascist position at Sidi Barrani.

The job of establishing a more solid entrenchment at Sidi Barrani appeared to have been given an added urgency by the threat of continuing assaults on Italian ships, supplies, and airdromes by the British air corps and fleet.

A British communique tonight reported new air bombing of the Italian positions at Sidi Barrani and Menastir in the western desert, claiming considerable damage to aircraft and motor transport.

Acknowledge Italian Raid.

An Italian raid on Mersa Matruh, next likely Fascist objective to the east, was acknowledged, but damage was minimized.

Graziani, it was reported, is bringing more troops from the vicinity of his original base in Bardia, Italian Libya.

Italian planes raided Alexandria this morning, injuring nine persons.

In Cairo, four Saadist party members of the Egyptian cabinet resigned to enforce the party demand for a declaration of war against Italy. Premier Haasan Sabry Pasha sought to fill their places with men who would support the government policy of no war declaration at present. Observers expressed belief that the Saadist action would compel greater coöperation of Egyptian defense forces with the British.

Italians Bomb Base.

ROME, Sept 21 (AP).—Swarns of Italian planes, trying to clear the way for the eastward drive of Premier Mussolini's legions thru Egypt, made a smashing bomb attack on the entrenched British camp at Matruh, it was officially reported today.

The attacks, said the official Italian news agency Stefani, blew up trenchworks, and started fires in the important town where British have been rushing up munitions and other supplies for a stand against Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's attacks.

Stefani said long stretches of tracks were wrecked and railroad cars left in flames. The agency also reported that vanguards of British armored divisions were routed on desert trails.

The high command reported attacks on the airport at Aden and on two convoys of steamers escorted by warships heading toward the strait of Bab El Mandeb at the eastern end of the Red sea.

BRITISH, FRENCH NAVIES FIGHT OFF AFRICA—BERLIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 21.—A Berlin broadcast picked up here today told of a naval engagement in the South Atlantic, off the west coast of Africa, between units of the British and French navies. French dispatches from Vichy were quoted in the broadcast.

One French vessel was damaged the announcer said, but there was no information whether it was one of the six warships which sailed thru the straits of Gibraltar last week with British permission or one of the freighters they were convoying. The freighters were loaded chiefly with olive oil and fruit.

French official sources were quoted as saying that their naval craft refused to join battle with the stronger British squadron and escaped into Dakar, French West Africa.

BLAZE PERILS 25 FIREMEN.

Twenty-five firemen narrowly escaped injury yesterday when an explosion leveled three walls during a fire in a mattress renovating plant at 2919 Prairie avenue.

RUSH TO ENLIST IN GUARD CAUSES DRAFT PROBLEM

Fear Lack of Adequate Training Facilities.

Unexpectedly heavy enlistment in the 33d division of the Illinois National Guard was reported yesterday by Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, commanding officer. In view of this, division officers will meet next Friday in Chicago's Union League club to consider allocations of recruits to various division units.

Gen. Lawton said the meeting was necessary to guard against getting so many volunteers in the National Guard that facilities would be lacking for the training of draftees under the selective service law. He explained that one of the functions of the National Guard in the preparedness program is to train conscripted men.

The heavy enlistment pleased Adjt. Gen. Lawrence Regan. He said he thought young men of draft age were taking advantage of the voluntary enlistment privilege of selecting the branch of service they prefer, their regiment, and their companions.

Teachers and civil service employés of the Chicago public schools who are drafted for military service will not lose their jobs nor seniority rights if a resolution recommended yesterday by William H. Johnson, superintendent, and Howard P. Savage, business manager, is adopted.

A resolution will be presented at the next meeting of the Cook county board calling for the protection of pension rights of county employés who may be called for military service.

Private concerns also were taking similar action.

In the meantime, inquiries about regulations of the draft law continued to pour into the Tribune's Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street. Among the questions asked most often was which industries are regarded as vital to national defense. Details of the classification of industry have not yet been received, and inquirers were advised to register, then take the matter up with the local draft board.

ROOSEVELT PICKS GROUP TO MAKE DRAFT LAW WORK

Approves Plan for War Under Secretary.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 21.—President Roosevelt today named an advisory committee to assist in the coordination of plans for the procurement of man power for the national defense under the selective service act. Members of the committee are:

Col. William H. Draper of New York, reserve officer and specialist on selective service; Frederick Osborn of New York, director of the American Red Cross in France during the world war and consultant to the budget director; Lloyd W. Reeves of Illinois, professor at the University of Chicago, who has been serving as an executive assistant to the national defense advisory commission; Joseph P. Harris of Illinois, professor of political science at Northwestern university, also working with the commission in an advisory capacity; Channing H. Tobias of New York, director of Negro work for the Y. M. C. A. and a leader in the Negro youth movement; Wayne Coy of Indiana, administrative assistant to Paul P. McNutt, social security administrator.

Only Two Newcomers.

All members of the committee, with the exception of Coy and Tobias, were named as an advisory body on preparation of the draft program before its passage by congress.

Mr. Roosevelt today also approved the suggestion of Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson that the post of under secretary of war be created in times of national emergency.

Means New Setup.

Stimson's suggestion, which will be sent to congress, will effect complete revision of the army procurement setup. Under present law this duty is in the hands of the assistant secretary of war. With the creation of the office of under secretary, Stimson would concentrate control over procurement in his own hands and delegate authority to both the under secretary and assistant secretary. It is possible that the new post will go to Assistant Secretary Robert P. Patterson.

Fire in Tijuana Destroys Marriage, Court Records

TIJUANA, Mex. Sept. 21 (AP).—Fire early today razed the federal postoffice and three business buildings in this sleepy resort city, but firemen, aided by equipment from the American side, brought it under control shortly before dawn. Loss was unestimated, but was reported to include all court and marriage records. Many Americans have been married here to escape California's three day law.

FORT SHERIDAN REHEARSES FOR MILITARY SHOW

Public to View Guns and See Them in Action.

BY HAROLD HUTCHINGS.

Four thousand regular army troops at Fort Sheridan began rehearsals yesterday for a public exhibition of military tactics and weapons to be given at the fort for three days beginning next Friday.

Officers and men of the infantry, field artillery, coast artillery [antiaircraft], cavalry, and air corps are preparing the show under Brig. Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall, commandant of the post and commander of the 5th division. The program is designed to demonstrate the operation of many of the army's weapons and the training drills of the men who operate them. Proceeds will go to the Army Relief society, an organization which cares for the dependents of deceased soldiers.

Rehearse for Show.

The rehearsals include all the activities which will be portrayed at the show. Yesterday there was a practice parade by foot troops, a musical ride by the cavalry, calisthenics by the recruits, and infantry firing, followed by practice firing of the 61st coast artillery's three inch antiaircraft guns.

It is planned to give the spectators at the six performances—both afternoon and evening shows are scheduled—a chance not only to see the weapons in action but also to get closeup views of them.

The weapons are to be situated at convenient places on the post for this purpose. There will be the three inch antiaircraft guns and the new 81 mm. infantry mortar and its streamlined projectile, which looks much like a miniature inverted air bomb.

There will be the 37 mm. antitank gun, an infantry weapon with a high muzzle velocity. In addition there will be .50 caliber machine guns of two types—that used against low flying airplanes and that used against ground targets by the infantry.

Plan Firing at Air Targets.

Gen. Fredendall announced that planes of the 15th observation squadron from Scott field, Belleville, Ill., will tow sleeve targets for exhibition firing of the antiaircraft guns, and that coast guardsmen from the Old Chicago station will tow targets in the lake for the artillery and machine gun firing.

During the night performances 15 60-inch, 900,000 candlepower searchlights will illuminate the targets for the benefit not only of the gunners but of the visitors, who will be assembled on a bluff overlooking Lake Michigan.

The antitank platoon of the headquarters company, 2d infantry, passed thru Chicago Friday en route to Fort Sheridan for the military show. This platoon is armed with six 37 mm. antitank guns, which are towed by trucks and can be put into action quickly.

Canadian Air Force Planes Collide; Mechanic Killed

BRIGHTON, Ont., Sept. 21 (AP).—Aircraftman A. E. Porter of Morris, Man., was killed near here today when the Royal Canadian Air force plane in which he was mechanic collided with another air force plane in midair and crashed. Flying Officer C. C. Moran, the pilot, parachuted to safety and the other plane landed without mishap. R. C. A. F. officials expressed belief the planes, flying in formation, struck a down current that interlocked their wings.

PENNSYLVANIA U. GETS 5 MILLION; HONORS HOOVER

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 21 (AP).—The University of Pennsylvania pocketed $5,035,000 today—contribution of thousands of alumni and business firms—as a present for its 200th birthday and conferred honorary degrees, including one to former President Herbert Hoover.

Hoover, who already holds the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Pennsylvania, received the degree of Doctor of Civil Laws.

In one of the final addresses of the university's colorful week long bicentennial celebration, its president, Dr. Thomas S. Gates, told a convention hall audience that:

"Education and religion have been the forces upon which civilization has been borne upward in the past and will be borne upward in the future.

What the next century many have in store, Dr. Gates said, "no man can say with assurance."

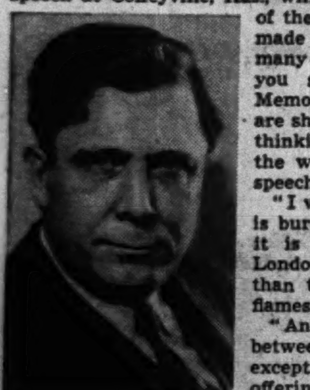
Both Sides of it

REPUBLICAN.

America Listens to a New Voice!

(Provided by Republican National Committee.)

There is overwhelming opinion that Wendell Willkie's speech at Coffeyville, Kas., will stand in history as one of the greatest utterances ever made by man. In response to many requests, we are giving you some excerpts from it. Memorize them, because they are shining beacons in the dark thinking which is engulfing the world. And he wrote the speech himself.



Wendell Willkie.

"I wonder if we realize what is burning over there. We say it is a city, a place named London. But it is much more than that. A philosophy is in flames, a way of life is in peril.

"And I wonder what stands between us and that calamity except a smooth radio voice offering us the gold brick of safety without sacrifice. We are all just as much concerned with the battle of Britain as Mr. Roosevelt. But we must be more concerned right now with the battle of America. THAT BATTLE COMES FIRST!

"Altho our cities are not in flames, American democracy is in danger. It is in danger from without and from within. And it is in danger from without because it is in danger from within. This is our battle of America.

Childhood Technique.

"We were all children once, and as children we learned certain things. Our mothers taught us to be honest, to be polite, to be pleasant and kind with other people. Our fathers taught us to be brave; they taught us that we must look out for ourselves, that we must make our own way—our own way—in the world.

"We learned also many things at school. We learned the history of our country. Twenty-seven years ago I taught American history here in the Coffeyville high school. In teaching some of you about our country I learned much more than I taught. I learned that democracy is not what we call the government, DEMOCRACY IS THE PEOPLE!

"And also in Sunday school and church we learned many things. We learned there the value of giving to each other. We learned that when men hate each other something precious is destroyed in the lives of those who hate as well as in other lives. We acquired a sense of responsibility to God, whom we could not visualize, but in whom we believed.

"All these lessons were our preparation for democracy. I take time out to remind you of them, because without them democracy cannot survive and cannot be defended. When I stand for democracy I stand for these lessons of our childhood.

"Democracy is rooted in the people. The chief executive of a democracy must, therefore, believe in the people and in the values that the people believe in.

"He Must Have Faith in Us."

"Further, he must have a deep faith in our sense of responsibility. He must know that each of us is eager to bear his or her responsibility. He must have faith in our willingness to carry our share of the load, and in our ability to do so.

"A man who does not believe in us cannot govern us in the democratic way.

"The charge I make against Franklin Roosevelt is that he has lost that confidence. Franklin Roosevelt has lost faith in the American people.

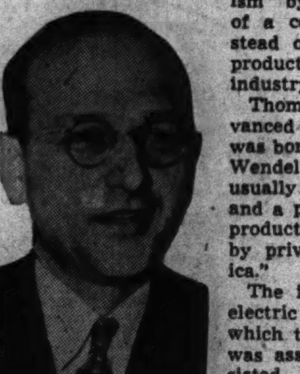
"Just look at the men surrounding him. They are cynics who scoff at our simple virtues. They think that the people are too dumb to understand democracy."

DEMOCRATIC.

Teaching Sound Business to the Power Trust.

(Provided by the Democratic National Committee.)

One of the heavier charges leveled against the Roosevelt administration is that it has encouraged "defeatism" by preaching the doctrine of a contracting economy instead of encouraging the full productive capacity of private industry.



David E. Lilienthal.

Thomas E. Dewey first advanced this theory, and later it was borrowed and expanded by Wendell Willkie. His proof usually consists of generalities and a promise to restore "full production and reëmployment by private industry in America."

The ironic part is that the electric power business, with which the Republican nominee was associated all his life, resisted, fought, and ridiculed the doctrine of expanded production and mass consumption for years before the present administration's advent.

Willkie was among the skeptics who fought TVA and the other government projects to widen the consumer area. As late as 1935 he said there was an excess of 66⅔ per cent of generating capacity in the Tennessee valley, and he added:

"We are told that we are faint hearted and of little vision; that this excess capacity will be absorbed shortly."

Report of Defense Commission.

The history of the project since then suggests that he was faint hearted and a little lacking in vision. On July 16 of this year, Mr. Knudsen and Mr. Stettinius of the National Defense commission went before congressional committees to urge a $65,000,000 increase in TVA's power producing facilities. They said this expansion was "absolutely essential" to the national defense.

This tells only a part of the story. An amusing angle is that under the stimulus of government competition, Mr. Willkie's own companies led the private utility field in rounding up new customers and expanding the sale of power. The new policy started in 1934.

The Tennessee Valley Authority announced its schedule of rates to wholesale customers in September, 1933. In some instances these rates were as much as 50 per cent below the existing rates charged by private utilities. The Commonwealth & Southern corporation, thru its subsidiaries immediately moved to meet this competition. One of the first was the Tennessee Electric Power company.

Director David E. Lilienthal of TVA explained in a recent speech how successful this policy proved in expanding the company's business. He said:

"In the first year of the rate reductions this company led the entire country in increased use of electricity per domestic customer. The increase in the first year was greater than in the total of all the six preceding years.

Leadership in Sales.

"Altho only 30th in size in the country, this company sold the largest number of electric ranges, was second in the number of electric refrigerators sold, and third in the number of electric water heaters.

"In other words, this company, with less than 100,000 customers in a region of low spending income, had larger total sales than companies in high income states like New York and Illinois."

Altho Willkie may not wish to concede it, the record shows that the government forced the electric power business to become a mass production industry. This is hardly "defeatism."

BARTON LASHES AT ROOSEVELT'S 'FREE' VOTE CRY

Reviews Coercion by New Deal Agencies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—Replying to President Roosevelt's speech at Philadelphia yesterday, Representative Bruce Barton [R., N. Y.] today declared there can be no "free election" in 1940 as far as the New Deal administration is concerned.

In the formal response of Republicans to Mr. Roosevelt's assertion at the University of Pennsylvania that "as long as periodic free elections survive, no set of people can permanently control government," Barton said:

"By this declaration Mr. Roosevelt has raised the very pertinent questions as to whether his choice by the Democratic national convention was a free choice of the people and whether under the tremendous powers assumed by this administration the 1940 election will, in fact, represent a 'free election.'

"Will the vote in the boss dominated bailiwicks of Ed Flynn of the Bronx, the Kelly-Nash machine in Chicago, the Pendergast machine in Kansas City, the New Deal machines in New Mexico and elsewhere thruout the nation, be a 'free election'?

"What about the dominance of the WPA vote by the New Deal and the padding of its rolls in earlier elections, as disclosed by congressional investigating committees?

"What about the huge funds that are being expended by the administration to influence the farm vote?

Effort to Confuse Voters.

"Does the effort by the administration to confuse the mind of the electorate, by fear of the international situation and manufactured emergencies, while refusing to discuss domestic issues, contribute to a free choice by the people?

"Does the vast amount of propaganda distributed by government agencies to influence votes at the taxpayers' expense—with, of course, no Hatch act interference—contribute to a 'free choice' by the people?"

To all of these, Barton answered, the answer is "No." He charged the administration with seeking to grasp perpetuation of power, and declared that in the event the third term effort succeeds the 1940 election will be the final popular election in the United States.

On Defense, Says Hanes.

New York, Sept. 21 [Special].—The charge that President Roosevelt used "slippery mental processes" in his speech yesterday at the 200th anniversary of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, and went on the defensive against the swelling tide of resentment at his demand for a third term was made tonight by John W. Hanes, former undersecretary of the treasury in the Roosevelt administration and an executive member of the national committee of Democrats-for-Willkie.

Hanes is associated with Lewis W. Douglas, former budget director in the Roosevelt administration; Alan Valentine, president of the University of Rochester, and Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson, former president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, in the national organization of "No Third Term" Democrats.

DEWEY CHIDES ROOSEVELT ON RULE BY ELITE

Disqualifies Self for 3d Term, Says Prosecutor.

New York, Sept. 21 [Special].—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey chided President Roosevelt tonight on the speech he made Friday at the 200th anniversary of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, and contended that the President's warning against political control of the nation by a few elite had in effect disqualified Roosevelt from holding further office.

Speaking at a testimonial dinner to Warren B. Ashmead, commemorating his 10th anniversary as Republican leader of Queens county, Dewey took the occasion to make his first political talk of the Willkie campaign. He declared that he was certain that all present would agree with the President's philosophy that government should not fall into the hands of the few elite.

Disqualifies Candidate.

"But Mr. Roosevelt, the philosopher, has disqualified from holding further office Mr. Roosevelt, the candidate for the third term," Dewey said.

"And right he is, for any other theory would close the highest office in the land to all except the one, indispensable leader of the elite. It would shut the doors of that office to those who come from the farms and factories, from the small towns and the big towns of our country.

"It would close it to those who come from the ranks by sheer ability, brainpower, and hard work. It would prohibit the election of any man who came up the hard way—from outside the White House political elite—such as the man I trust will be the next President of the United States, Wendell Willkie.

Jefferson Rejects Roosevelt.

"It is also a pleasure to see Mr. Roosevelt, the philosopher, endorsing Thomas Jefferson. For Thomas Jefferson rejects Mr. Roosevelt, the candidate, writing more than 100 years ago in solemn tones: 'Should a President consent to be a candidate for a third election, I trust he would be rejected by this demonstration of ambitious views.'

"By his expressed philosophy, and in the words of the great statesman whom he professes to follow, Mr. Roosevelt calls for his defeat. And, for once, I am happy to say, I find myself in complete accord with him."

ARMY STEPS UP FIRE POWER OF CAVALRY UNITS

More Men, Guns, Motors Will Add to Strength.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—The war department today announced reorganization of the army's horse cavalry divisions, to increase strength and motorization, bringing them into line with comparable German units.

This is the second big change in army organization announced within two weeks. The other revision stepped up the firing power of the streamlined infantry division by using more weapons and replacing outdated 75 mm. guns with 105 mm. howitzers, also in line with German organization.

Reorganization of the cavalry division is to "keep it abreast of recent developments in transportation, weapons, and mobility," the army announced. The modernization is aimed to increase the fire power—also with new 105's—and improve tactical mobility. These divisions are distinct from the two armored divisions now being formed.

More Men, More Motors.

The strength of the cavalry division will be raised from 500 officers and 8,500 enlisted men to approximately 600 officers and 9,500 enlisted men. The number of horses in the modernized cavalry division will be 6,000, compared with 8,000 in its predecessor. The number of motor vehicles will be raised from 350 to 800.

New tables of organization, showing complete equipment, are under preparation and are expected to be released soon. They will show only war strength, just as the new streamlined infantry division table has ignored peace strength.

As now set up, the modernized cavalry division will contain 715 machine guns, 268 antitank guns of small caliber, 649 submachine [Tommy] guns, 36 of the 37 mm. antitank guns, 24 of the 75 mm. howitzers, 12 of the 105 mm. howitzers, 28 mortars, approximately 9,500 pistols and 4,000 modern semiautomatic weapons—"a tremendous fire power," the army statement said.

Mobility Also Increased.

The Tribune for long has advocated a drastic stepping up in the firing power of the entire army, to place it on a basis more nearly comparable with the German organization which places a premium on fire power, with its heavy artillery and fully equipped men.

Greater fire power and mobility will be achieved in the new cavalry division by these major additions: Antitank troops in divisions and brigade echelons; weapons troops in brigade echelons; motorcycle troop and combat car troop in the reconnaissance squadron; one battalion of 105 mm. howitzers to the division artillery; one motorcycle platoon to each regimental headquarters troop.

The new division will consist of these components: Division headquarters, headquarters troop, signal troop, reconnaissance squadron, antitank troop, two cavalry brigades, divisional field artillery, engineer squadron, quartermaster squadron, and ordinance component.

Sales Tax Collections Reach an All Time High

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 21 (AP).—State 3 per cent sales tax collections reached an all time high of $90,818,210 during the fiscal year ending last June 30, the state finance department reported today. The year's collections were $9,301,672 above those for the year ending June 30, 1939. Despite increased collections of the sales levy and other state taxes, the state's general revenue fund surplus dropped $5,376,142 during the year to a total of $8,291,795. Biggest single expense of the year was $47,996,031 paid out for emergency relief.

Girl Sees Shooting

Leona Lewicki, 16, who gave police description of a robber who shot a deliveryman.

Herman Smulevitz, 38 years old, 1338 South Kedvale avenue, a delivery truck driver, won't be able to sit down for a while, at least not comfortably. He was delivering meat to a food store at 1021 North Campbell avenue last night. After getting the order, he went to his truck, parked nearby, and reached into the rear. As he did so he felt some one shoving him, and naturally shoved back. The original shover, however, was a robber, who fired a single shot, apparently from below the hip, and from a position to the side and slightly to the rear of Smulevitz. The holdup man then left. Leona Lewicki, 16, whose sister runs the foodshop, said he was about 26, very dark, slim, and in a hurry.

One of Du Page county's landmarks, the first bake shop built in Naperville, is being razed, according to word received yesterday from Miss Lucy Riedy of Lisle. Miss Riedy is the granddaughter of Peter Schmeltzer, Parisian baker who came to Naperville from Philadelphia, Pa., and built the bake shop in 1855. Many of Naperville's older residents recall Schmeltzer's covered wagon drawn by a white horse, with which he delivered his goods many years ago.

THE THIRD TERM NAVY.

Mr. Trohan's report on the status of the naval building program throws a great deal of light on what President Roosevelt is giving the country for its billions of defense appropriations. It is not a two ocean navy. It is a third term navy.

Mr. Roosevelt, as the result of the passage of the naval appropriation bill and the recent placing of orders for nearly $2,000,000,000 worth of naval craft, will be able to give the country another of his soothing radio addresses on the vast quantity of armament material "on hand or on order." Mr. Trohan's report shows just how misleading the second part of that phrase really is.

Mr. Roosevelt has 284 naval craft "on order." The guileless listener might well believe, as Mr. Roosevelt wishes him to believe, that any day now those vessels will be sliding down the ways or joining the fleet. Actually, of the 284 craft ordered, only 44 are being built. The orders for the rest are merely paper orders. Some of them will be filed away for years before construction is even started.

The capacity of building ways, in navy yards and private shipbuilding plants combined, is less than a quarter of the number of ships that Mr. Roosevelt has "on order." However, he is not even using the available capacity. There are 62 ways in the country suited to naval construction, but only 44, a little more than two-thirds of them, are actually being used for that purpose.

It is doubtful whether ships already laid down will be finished in time to protect us if the emergency facing this country is as grave as Mr. Roosevelt would have us believe. It is certain that ships that will not be started for several years cannot be considered protection against anything deserving the name of an emergency.

The naval building program appears to be following the pattern of all of Mr. Roosevelt's wasteful haste to cover up his previous neglect of our national defenses. A rational naval program would have provided for such construction as our present facilities are capable of handling, and would have used other funds for the construction of new shipways and the training of the mechanics to use them. That would have been the rational approach to the problem, but then Mr. Roosevelt would not have been able to tell the country about the vast armada he has "on order."

The naval building program demonstrates again the outstanding weakness of Mr. Roosevelt and the men around him. They think only in terms of money. They think they can solve all problems by vast appropriations. That was the remedy they applied for seven years to the depression, and it failed because they were completely lacking in the ability to spend the money wisely. It delivered votes for them, but they never delivered results to the country.

It takes a high order of ability to spend even a billion dollars and get results from it. Mr. Roosevelt is attempting to spend 14 billions for national defense. He and his appointees are going about that task with the same incompetence that they showed in trying to spend their way out of a depression. They will fail on defense as they failed on recovery unless the voters of the country turn them out in November and place the government in competent hands.

BOMBING RANGES.

A woman wrote to us the other day demanding to know why our government, in view of our great danger, has not provided bombproof shelters for noncombatants in our great cities. The letter provides evidence of the state of mind of many people in this country.

American military observers have reported that the Germans are confining their daylight bombing of England, in the main, to an area within about 200 miles of their bases on the continent. The reason is that the bombers are highly vulnerable to attack from British fighter planes and must be protected by escorts of German fighters. The fighters have a very limited range of operation. They carry only enough fuel for a couple of hours of flight at cruising speed, and chen they operate at full throttle, as they must in combat, they can remain up an even shorter time. The bombers carry enough gasoline for eight or nine hours in the air, but dare not leave the protection of their escorts.

Less than 30 miles of open water separates England from the German-held French coast at the narrowest point, yet after several weeks of intensive bombardment of such towns as Dover they are still far from being in ruins. The damage has been great, but it has not been decisive. Mr. Churchill said the losses among men in uniform have been no more than 250 in early September and the damage to essential industrial establishments has been of small consequence.

America is more than 3,000 miles from any possible enemy possessed of an air force. If the German bombers cannot operate successfully beyond the range of their fighting planes, America surely has no reason to fear an imminent bombing of its metropolitan cities.

To attack this country from the air would require the accumulation of a great number of long range bombers and fighters of a sort which no nation now possesses and which no nation could acquire for several years to come. It is not at all improbable that within the next few years war planes will be built which can fly across the ocean with a load of bombs and still have enough gasoline to get back safely, but none of our potential enemies has such a fleet today or even the beginnings of such a fleet.

Everybody in this country has read the vivid accounts of the damage done by bombing abroad and many Americans have been frightened. They think their families are in imminent danger. Instead of seeking to reassure Americans that they have no present occasion for alarm on this account, the New Dealers in Washington have actually sought to whip up the hysteria. To hear them tell it, every plane which the Germans and Italians possess could as easily attack New York and Boston as London. Mr. Roosevelt himself sought to foster this fear in his speech emphasizing the threat of bombing attacks on American cities.

The possibility of air attack from overseas must not be overlooked in our defensive calculations, but the danger is not immediate and requires no excited and insufficiently considered action on our part. Long before any foreign nation has the planes with which to bomb us we shall have warning that the new fleet is in production.

SANITY MAKING A COMEBACK.

There are signs that Wisconsin, which was the first state to suffer severely from radical experiment in government, is joining the parade toward political sanity. The heavy Republican vote cast in the Wisconsin primary is evidence that the trend back to a government based on experience and history will be continued in this year's election. That trend started two years ago.

A practically complete tabulation of the vote shows that the Republican vote was nearly 70,000 larger than the combined Democratic and Progressive vote. The large primary vote is significant of the people's conviction that the election this year is a crisis in the history of the United States. It promises to be larger than the record vote in the Roosevelt landslide primary of 1932.

The size of the vote, we think, is more revealing than the fact that a pronounced opponent of Mr. Roosevelt and his policies was nominated by the Democrats for the senate and that an anti-New Deal candidate for governor was defeated only after a close race by a candidate indorsed by the Roosevelt machine.

Many things other than political principles are involved of course in the nomination of individuals. The results reflect little more than the personalities of the candidates, the type of their campaign, and the strength of their opposition. John Cudahy, the defeated New Dealer, undoubtedly would have polled a larger vote but for the mechanical handicap that compelled his name to be written in. In the Democratic primary for governor the vote was divided among four candidates, and the New Dealer, Francis E. McGovern, won thru the division of his opposition.

The primary established more than any other fact the determination of Wisconsin to keep out of the European war. It is on this question that Senator Robert La Follette, long an intimate of Roosevelt, has broken with the President. La Follette, knowing his Wisconsin, has campaigned against conscription and has sharply attacked the President's foreign policy.

The one Republican candidate for the senate who advocated help for Great Britain short of war received a much smaller vote than his excellent character and party reputation justified. One Democratic candidate for the senate, James J. Kerwin, a conservative, supported the President's war policy, and his vote was negligible compared to the expectation justified by his previous successes in politics.

Fred H. Clausen, the Republican nominee, is a man of character and ability whom Wisconsin may well be proud to send to the United States senate. A farm born boy, he rose to head a large manufacturing company. In his campaign speeches he argued frankly that it was an absurdity that a record of personal failure should be required for political success. His victory is an indication that the voters feel it is no longer necessary to glorify incompetence and reward it by public office.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S LABOR SPIES.

President Roosevelt's smear column, led as usual by Tammany Ed Flynn, has been trying vainly to pin on Candidate Willkie the charge that some of the companies controled by Commonwealth and Southern, which he headed, had employed labor spies.

The only "evidence" that the mud slingers were able to present was the fact that the Georgia Power company, one of the Commonwealth and Southern group, paid the Pinkerton Detective agency several thousand dollars. The president of that company, Mr. Arkwright, has said that the only use the company made of these detectives was to check the collections of fares by conductors on the company's street cars and buses. No one has disputed the truth of this statement, to our knowledge.

If the use of investigators to assure the honesty of employés handling cash constitutes employment of labor spies, then President Roosevelt is the biggest employer of them in the country. The postoffice inspectors have a strict and extremely efficient system of surveillance to prevent thefts from the mails by postal employés. The G-men and treasury agents are charged with investigating peculations in other large groups of government employés. Tammany Ed's associations and training may have convinced him that it is immoral to spy on a thief in office, but it is not likely that his sentiments are widely shared.

THANKSGIVING.

[Providence (R. I.) Evening Bulletin.]

The New Deal Thanksgiving this year will be on Nov. 21, a week earlier than the traditional time, just as it was last year. That was practically announced as a certainty a year ago, but now the fact appears to have been officially confirmed.

The chamber of commerce of Pomona, Cal., took the trouble to inquire about the matter a week or so ago, explaining that Pomona merchants had some anxiety concerning the official date, and Steve Early, head of the White House secretariat, replied that "the President proposes to designate Thursday, Nov. 21, as Thanksgiving day this year."

And that is that, just as it was in 1939, but oddly enough, in the face of the White House pronouncement, a Pomona dispatch has announced that the local merchants are planning to have their own observance, whatever it is, on "old-style Thanksgiving day, Nov. 28." And we may be justified in predicting that a very large part of the United States of America will do the same, just as they did last year.

It snarls up the normal traffic and the regular routine in a considerable degree to have two Thanksgiving days, but naturally most Americans like to follow the established tradition. This is probably the least important of the New Deal manifestations of a genius for messing things up, but it is characteristic. Except for a slightly demoralized routine for a couple of November days it does little harm. And positively it serves no useful purpose whatever. The one result is a brash affront to American sentiment in the smashing of an honored tradition. Its sole significance is in its exemplification of executive egotism.

A WAR TORN WORLD SURVEYED

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

LISBON, Portugal [By Air Mail].—In reviewing impressions of eight months of travel in war torn Europe and Asia from a purely unbiased viewpoint, it is striking how certain thoughts stand out in one's recollections. This applies equally to all countries visited. First, the almost total lack of war interest on the part of the public, and second, how the armies are being used to fortify and extend political power of the leaders and parties in control. Another inescapable observation is that a great mental transition is taking place among races and populations.

Since history began people have been continuously fighting for freedom and against slavery. Today, with the exception of England, people over the world are fighting and spilling blood, a little at least, for the right to enslave themselves. This is a phenomenon difficult for most observers to understand. Slavery as practiced at different periods thruout the world was fundamentally no different from the Fascism, the Nazilism, and the communism enslaving millions in Europe today.

All these isms could be accurately condensed to defeatism. It is interesting to note that the two extreme countries are apparently the only ones that have not hoisted the white or yellow flag—definition and meaning depending on viewpoint. China, the largest and poorest country in the world, overrun by military imperialism for three years, shows no sign of national defeat. From conversations in Japanese and Chinese cities a listener would conclude that Japan was the victim in the conflict. Much more reference to belt tightening is heard in Japan than in China. The other extreme, Switzerland, one of the smallest and the richest per capita country, is continually demonstrating "will to succeed."

The term fifth column, which is receiving so much publicity, is nothing in the world but the application of means to swing public opinion for power control. There is nothing secret about it. A bugaboo is being built up around German fifth column activities because efficiency and detail are national characteristics of the Germans, and therefore, like their trained army, they are making more progress than opponents asleep at the switch.

Germany has thrown the fear of death into the world not because of what might it has or what success it has accomplished, but because of its opponents' shortcomings. When the mighty German army went thru the Maginot line near Luxemburg not a shot was fired by the French, according to the American minister to that country. Again when the mighty army crossed the Rhine near Strassburg it didn't require much might for German troops to wake French troops out of a sound sleep to tell them they were prisoners. At the time reports were flying that the Dutch lost 100,000 men in killed alone in defense of Holland, a reliable American army officer stationed in the Hague thruout the invasion said that in his opinion total Dutch casualties in killed, wounded, and accidents would be less than 20,000.

There is no intention here to underrate the German army. It is no doubt the greatest military machine ever assembled. But it is human and has displayed nothing new thus far except the extent of gullibility of defeatists. The efficiency of German propaganda may be visualized and its effects measured by the fact that American army officers in Berlin were making small bets that Germany would capture England in 30 days. Much more time has elapsed and, according to arrivals from London, England is just now beginning to fight.

As the situation stands today, Germany cannot take Britain with the equipment available. England can win with resources at her disposal if it is willing to pay the price. There is no reason for America to pay the bill. As for America's immediate danger—as for its being in the same predicament as France one year ago—that is nothing but hysteria and political bunk—a glowing example of election activity. America needs military preparation badly. It is as essential as police defense. The cause for the absence of military defense in America is bad government, and that should be corrected at once, just in case Germany or some other country or countries decide to build far more and better airplanes and battleships than they have at present.

Any immediate external trouble for the United States of America would unquestionably come from Japan, and this is unlikely. Japan is not as powerful or as stupid as many Americans believe. Japan will bluff, yell, and get by with just as much as it can, but the last thing it wants is a war with America and especially at this stage of its history. The war in China is plenty of trouble for the time.

There are no grounds for war hysteria in the United States at the present time. German tanks cannot swim, its air force failed at Dunkirk, its air force has not won against England. The English pound has gone up 15 per cent in three days here. The Channel is only 20 miles wide. The Atlantic is 3,000 miles wide.

In trying to meet tomorrow's problem today our country is in danger of yelling wolf too soon. Let us not waste our resources in amassing 1940 military equipment that will be junk before needed. We should immediately attain adequate peacetime military preparedness and henceforth keep abreast of the times by always being ready to swing into production. A good military intelligence service and a free press will keep us posted.

WHY WERE THE '90S "GAY"?

[Des Moines Register.]

A question asked on one of the radio quiz programs recently was, "Whoever dubbed the '90s 'gay' and why?" The person questioned didn't know the answer, and the allegedly correct answer given by the announcer wasn't of much help. He based his reply on some character drawings published by Life magazine in 1925.

Mark Sullivan recalled in his book, "Our Times," that "the Gay '90s was a common designation in the literature of about 20 years after they had passed." It may have originated in the confused and troubled period which immediately followed the world war, if not during the war itself. Its use has persisted.

But why? In the '90s there occurred a formidable financial panic and three or four years of severe business depression. It was a period of widespread labor troubles, of the Homestead and Pullman strikes. On occasion the decade was marked by the bitterness of its politics; of that the free silver campaign of 1896 was proof.

There were wars in the '90s—the conflict of Japan with China in 1894, of Greece with Turkey in 1897, and our own Spanish war in 1898—not to mention England's Boer war, which began in 1899.

Perhaps the contrast was in its way of looking at things. Wars were localized; a "general war" was unthinkable. The Hague arbitration tribunal was established. Even, therefore, in regard to international politics, the '90s were reasonably hopeful and carefree.

In contrast with preceding decades, especially in social habits, the '90s gave a picture of increasing cheerfulness. The vogue of outdoor sports had its origin chiefly in that decade; women for almost the first time had an important part in them.

The '90s were halcyon days, not only for music but for literature and the theater, and the books and plays of that period were usually neither morbid nor introspective, but in their own way a contribution to the humor and joy of life. If the '90s had not grappled resolutely [as they certainly did not] with their social problems, at any rate the spirit of social gayety was not disturbed.

Perhaps the '90s were "gay" because so many problems were postponed for later decades to solve!

WHAT IS A "BROKEN" HEART?

NOT long ago a friend inquired, "What is a broken heart? Can one become ill as a result of a profound disappointment?"

The influence of the emotions upon body functions is too well established to require argument. Following a disheartening episode one may grieve so persistently that appetite is interfered with, digestion fails, and absorption ceases. Indeed, deaths have occurred as an outcome of self-pity. In other words, it is possible to succumb to starvation because the zest for life has been lost. With the nutrition upset there may ensue a wasting away of vital forces. Years ago the condition was referred to as "going into a decline"—ofttimes because one's beloved married another.

An individual may be anxious about something — his job, family affairs, debts, etc.—and in consequence physical distress may appear. A case that came to my attention was that of a business man who confronted bankruptcy. He developed twinges in the chest whenever he applied himself to his problems seriously. Fortunately, he was able to refund his obligations on a satisfactory basis and his concern is now prospering. I met him three or four weeks ago, and he informed me he has had no discomfort for a year. The aching vanished coincident with the upturn in his financial affairs. Furthermore, his heart rate has decreased from 100 to little more than 70.

We must admit that pain is sometimes an exhibition of failure or inferiority. Most of us have a few acquaintances who can think themselves into a spell of sickness. They are constitutionally inadequate and "give up" readily. Some may really enjoy despondency. They expect other members of the family and all their acquaintances to pull them back to normalcy.

The assertion "My heart is broken" probably means "My feelings have been hurt," or "I have been treated unfairly." We succumb to frustrations more often when we are weak. Physicians are quite familiar with the fact that those who are faced with a long illness are subject to periods of depression from which they have difficulty in emerging. Were they well they would laugh off their apprehensions. The one who suffers a grievous experience—if it strikes him when in the best of health—will be but little affected. If it occurs when his resistance is below par he may undergo what is termed a "breakdown."

In like fashion we hear the remark, "I am bowed down with grief." Not infrequently the posture will indicate exactly that. The shoulders droop and the head and trunk bend forward. It was Charles Darwin who said, "A proud man exhibits his superiority by holding his back and his head erect." He called the phenomenon "expressive action."

Ofttimes bitter complaints are merely manifestations of one's reactions to unhappiness. Utterances such as "I have a lump in my breast," "I am faint hearted," "There is something sticking in my throat that I cannot cough up" are common examples.

The master word in life is courage; not physical bravery alone, but moral as well. Sometimes fortuitous circumstances turn night into day. The fable of the disappointed lover is enacted over and over. There was a certain popular young man who had been given the "mitten" by the lady of his choice. His disposition became morose, he refused to talk with friends, and he absented himself from all social affairs. A brief period as a professional misogynist was terminated by a consoler — a blue-eyed blonde—who proved so effective an antidote that wedding bells pealed away the blues.

TOENAILS.

C. D. writes: What causes the large toenails to grow upward?

REPLY.

Badly fitting shoes and too much crowding of the toes, weakness of the metatarsal arches, poor posture on standing, or a tendency to bunion formation. Among diseases, arthritis, ringworm, and psoriasis may be considered.

POSSIBLE.

Mrs. C. writes: Is it possible to become pregnant after a fibroid operation?

REPLY.

Yes—just so long as the organs are intact.

AIMS OF GERMAN ALLIANCE.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—The campaign of hate, which precedes all wars and is pursued more violently during wars, had for its victims in the United States 20 years ago the citizens of German extraction.

Such a campaign is again in progress and again the American citizens of German extraction are its victims.

We, however, are not complaining, even tho for 20 years we American citizens of German extraction have come to be regarded as unworthy of the important public offices which members of our large racial group formerly occupied with distinction.

May we, for instance, recall that the late Chief of Police Schuettler, the late County President Reinberg, the late County Treasurer Stuckart, former Sheriff Traeger, former Gov. Altgeld, the late Judge Brentano, and many others, were American citizens of German extraction, and that they served the people with honesty and efficiency in this community?

But during the last 20 years the places formerly tendered our group were given disproportionately to members of other racial groups. It is as if we, as a group, are suffering from some blight.

In order to protect our interests, 372 societies of American citizens of German extraction have become members of the German-American National alliance, which was formed two years ago. Incidentally many of these units have been in existence here from 50 to 75 years.

Thus, on Oct. 27, 1938, we were incorporated in Illinois with the following charter objects:

1. To promote respect for the constitution and to defend it, the laws, and the general welfare of the United States of America.

2. To oppose the formation by the United States of America of entangling alliances with foreign nations, and

3. To assure to United States citizens of Germanic blood the enjoyment of the rights and liberties guaranteed to citizens by the constitution.

These are in conformity with the principles of such heroic Americans as George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, and Abraham Lincoln. They are the principles which led our forebears to come to this country and become stalwart American citizens.

During the last two months certain newspaper articles concerning our organization have conveyed, however, an entirely erroneous impression to the public as to the character and objectives of the German-American National alliance.

Our members are American citizens; our directors receive no compensation and may not hold public office or be candidates for public office; we do not parade or use uniforms; we use and know only one flag—the American flag; our meetings are open to the public; our political activities are nonpartisan.

May we, on behalf of the over 300,000 American citizens of German extraction living in this community, ask you for "fair play"?

DISCOURTESY TO FLAG.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Literature mailed to various individuals by the British War Relief Society, Inc., 53 West Washington boulevard, Chicago, showing the names of prominent Chicagoans on its letterhead as sponsors, included a circular at the bottom of which was the notation "Reprint from Time, Aug. 26, 1940," and at the top the British flag was crossed with the American flag, the British flag being given the proper place of the American flag—the flag's own right, which is the observer's left.

This discourtesy to our flag is deeply resented, as our flag is more than a device attached to a staff and used as a standard or symbol representing the government of the United States of America.

Those who are given to handle our flag in any manner must be mindful of the courtesy and respect it commands.

LEROY H. DORSEY.

THE TWO RECORDS COMPARED.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—I have read the letter of "W. S." comparing the occupant of a swivel chair in Washington to Willkie service in the great war. The latter enlisted the second day after war was declared in 1917. He served his country on the battlefields of France and remained in Paris one year after the armistice was signed defending penniless American soldiers who were being court martialed. Who is the true "Humanitarian?"

The enlisted soldier left a young wife earning her own living here, while the assistant secretary of the navy, with an affluent wife and children, remained in the U. S. A. The assistant secretary must have used all the "brains" he had figuring out how to beat the draft, for he has failed in everything else.

NOT IN THE WASTE BASKET.

Streator, Ill., Sept. 18.—How come you never print any letters saying a good word for the Democratic administration?

All I ever see in your column are derogatory letters, yet your column is supposed to be "The Voice of the People." I am inclined to think most of them are relegated to the limbo where this letter will land: The w. k. waste basket!

Also, I may be wrong, but lots of these letters read to me like they might be written by the same person and signed with a pseudonym, probably "assigned by the Republican national committee."

I might add in closing that they get away with murder in their remarks, especially when the President publicly stated the United Stated would not go to war unless attacked.

Will you print? MRS. E. P. D.

MEANS WHAT HE SAYS.

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 16.—I know of no greater compliment that could be paid the Presidential candidate on the Republican ticket than that of Henry Ford, as reported in The Tribune yesterday:

"Willkie means what he says."

For eight long years we have listened patiently to the glittering promises of a man who did not mean what he said.

GEORGE GIRLING.

BOOS AND HISSES.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—The other evening I attended a downtown movie theater and a newsreel was flashed on the screen showing President Roosevelt and Mr. Willkie.

I then witnessed the most shocking display of bad manners I've ever seen. The Roosevelt cohorts booed and hissed Mr. Willkie, and the Willkie fans booed and hissed our President. Both men had something to say—but they couldn't be heard over the audience's uproar.

When theater audiences resort to mob tactics and boo great Americans out of hearing it's about time something should be done about it. Both men deserve utter respect.

DRAFT NOT SO POPULAR.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—I am a citizen of this not so free country—a young man of 24—eligible for the conscription act, recently made a law by our so-called great President. At this present writing I have only one dependent, my wife, but we are expecting an heir by Christmas.

It seems the only way to beat this form of conscription is to beat Roosevelt, the man who made it a success.

PENSION RIGHTS.

Waukegan, Ill., Sept. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A and B [husband and wife] own a house in joint tenancy. For the last year A has been receiving a blind pension. Will you please tell me:

1. Is that a mortgage on the house?
2. The same as old age pensions?
3. Can a house be sold with either old age or blind pension lien on them?
4. Can a member of the family clear it up? I mean pay back what a parent received. If A should die where would B be?
5. Would she lose her home? A received old age pension for about a year before he received the blind pension. A. M.

1. No.
2. No, in the sense that the old age pension is a claim against any estate that the recipient owns at the time of his death.
3. Even the old age pension does not directly make the accumulated payments a lien. See section 12. It is provided in section 13¼ that where the recipient delivers a deed which the grantee does not record, or when the deed fails to recite the consideration, or when the consideration is inadequate, the deed shall be presumed fraudulent.
4. Before arranging for conveyance of the property, we would advise taking the matter up with the pension officials.
5. Section 12 provides that if there are no claims of other creditors, then no claim of the state shall be enforced against the real estate of a recipient while it is occupied by his surviving spouse as a homestead.

"WELL—YOU DESIGNED IT— WHERE'S THE EXIT?"

[London Daily Mirror.]

TOWNSHIP HEAD AND AID CONFESS RELIEF FRAUDS

Authorities Predict Total Will Be $15,000.

Otto Ziebell, Bremen township supervisor and head of the township relief office, early today confessed complicity in the forging of relief checks and faking of relief disbursement orders over the last three years. He said he had taken perhaps $1,800 as his share. Authorities said they believed the total would approximate $15,000.

Ziebell's confession followed close on that of James Bennette, former bookkeeper in the relief office, who implicated Ziebell. Bennette said he approached the latter for an increase in salary three and a half years ago, and was told:

"We're short of funds. The only way we can arrange it is by manipulation of relief funds."

Bennette Tells of Split.

Since that time, Bennette told Lieut. Fred Mulhausen of the Homewood county highway police; Frank E. Doherty, chief deputy state fire marshal, and Joseph Springer, attorney for the Illinois emergency relief commission, he had turned over to Ziebell two-thirds of the "profit" on the forged checks and fake orders, keeping the other third.

Doherty is interested in the case because the relief station was destroyed by an incendiary fire Feb. 25. Police are said to have a clue to the arsonist from Bennette's statement.

Altho no charge had been placed against Ziebell, he was held in jail and will be questioned again this afternoon. He admitted, police said, that he had received as high as $90 or $100 from a forged $900 check.

Woman Secretary Accused.

His personal secretary, Mrs. Wilma Noell, 33 years old, 14624 McKinley street, Posen, has been booked on a charge of accessory to forgery. Ziebell himself lives at 147th street and Cleveland avenue, next to the burned station, near Posen.

Mrs. Noell is said to have admitted visiting Bennette several times after the shortage became known and he fled.

Ziebell's arrest followed the arrest Friday of Nicholas Gallagher, 34 years old, a case worker at the Bremen township relief station, charged with being an accessory to forgery. Also in custody is George Dolle, 41, ex-convict, who knew the location of Bennette's hideout in a Chicago rooming house. Four other persons, against three of whom indictments were obtained, are free on bond after their arrest on various charges.

The charges against Bennette, who disappeared immediately after the relief station fire, include bigamy.

Sued by One of His Wives.

Mrs. Marie Bennette, 36, formerly of 148th street and Cicero avenue but who recently moved to Chicago, told investigators in March that Bennette gave her $160 a month. She is the mother of three children. Mrs. Eileen Phelan Bennette, 24, of 1736 East 183d street, Harvey, the mother of two children, has instituted divorce proceedings, altho Bennette asserts he was never married to her.

Early yesterday Mrs. Marie Bennette appeared at the police station. When Lieut. Mulhausen told her of the charges against Bennette, she turned to the latter and said:

"Jim, you know I never nagged you for any money. What have you done with all this money?"

Bennette replied, "Marie, you don't understand."

WOMAN PLUNGES TO DEATH FROM SPEEDING TRAIN

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 21 (AP).—An attractive blonde woman tentatively identified as Ruth Holland Browne of East Orange, N. J., plunged to her death last night from a speeding Pennsylvania railroad express train. The tentative identification was established thru a social security card in a purse found on the Pullman car chair which the woman had occupied.

In the purse was this note: "Darling, forgive me. I'm sorry I slapped you. Please don't leave me. I love you."

The note, unsigned, apparently was written by a man, investigators said.

POWER PROJECT DUE TO BECOME A GAME REFUGE

200 Million Poured Into Uncompleted Job.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—A vast game and wild life refuge, and recreation center is being established in the area around the Fort Peck dam near Glasgow, Mont., it was learned today. This project, critics of New Deal spending policies declare, is fated to be another tragic example of waste.

This is virtually the only use, it is said, the government has found for the 200 million dollar project which was started in 1934, but still is uncompleted.

Figuring in the expenditures for the dam, the proposed center will be the costliest of its kind in the world, according to opponents of New Deal squandering, who term the Montana project as one of the most conspicuous of the administration's power follies.

Power Survey Delayed.

When the Public Works administration first authorized the project it reported the primary purpose was to put men to work improving navigation on the Missouri river, with incidental aims of flood control, prevention of bank erosion, hydro-electric power, and irrigation.

Not until the work had been proceeding for almost three years did the administration get around to surveying the hydro-electric prospects of the project, records show. Then the engineers found there was little market for electricity in that area with its deserted homesteads, and ghost villages, relics of land boom days.

The engineers also are reported to have found that irrigation was impracticable.

Ranchers Forced to Move.

Natives of the region recall that there were numerous small ranches dotting the countryside before the dam was built. These were condemned by the government and forced out of existence in anticipation of flooding the area.

This land makes up part of the 970,000 acres of publicly owned land surrounding the lake which will extend 180 miles west of the dam, thru six Montana counties. Under the terms of the proposal to establish a game range, this lake would become a giant breeding "pond" for waterfowl.

In the portion of the 970,000 acres set aside for a wild life refuge, there will be mule deer and white tailed deer, and antelope.

Make Surveys for Parks.

Surveys are being made to determine what part of the territory shall be set aside for parks and other recreational purposes.

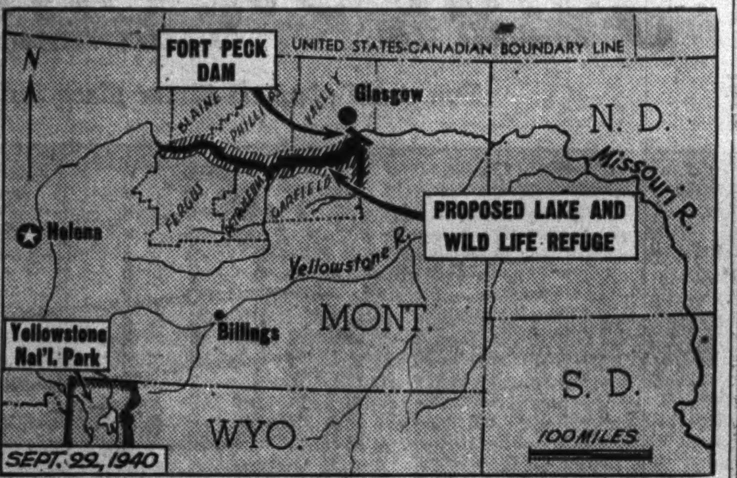
Continuing its search for a use for the dam, the administration about a year ago ordered the bureau of reclamation to make a survey on the potential uses of power for irrigation in eastern Montana and the Dakotas, much further away than was originally planned. It was finally decided to install power plants costing approximately 7 million dollars to supply these areas and this work has been started by army engineers.

SEIZE FUGITIVE IN HOLDUP.

Harry Makris, 18 years old, 1817 South Union avenue, an escaped inmate of the Dixon state hospital, was seized yesterday when a police squad fired three shots at him after he had taken 50 cents from a colored man at Monroe and Laflin streets.

$200,000,000 Game Refuge

(Story in adjoining column.)



The Fort Peck dam area near Glasgow, Mont., where the federal government started a 200 million dollar hydro-electric, soil conservation, and irrigation project six years ago, is becoming a wild life refuge. The project comprises six counties.

FRESHMAN WEEK AT U. OF C. WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Approximately 650 freshmen will be welcomed to the University of Chicago tomorrow by President Robert M. Hutchins. The president's address in Mandel hall will begin a week of freshman orientation before the formal opening of school on Sept. 30.

Dr. C. G. Rossby.

The two students in charge of getting the freshmen settled are Richard Salzmann of Dubuque, Ia., and Henrietta Mahon of Iron River, Mich. They agreed girls are more intimate with their student counselors than are the boys. "A boy is afraid of losing dignity by bringing up intimate problems," Salzmann said.

The only institute in the middle west devoted to advanced study in meteorology will be opened at the university this year. Its facilities will be directed toward training meteorologists for defense purposes. The institute, made possible by funds from an anonymous donor, is being set up on a permanent basis. Dr. C. G. Rossby will be its head.

Thirty-two institute fellowships, worth more than $35,000, were provided by the army air corps to train men to be weather forecasters.

APPROVE FUND TO FEED, HOUSE, PAY CONSCRIPTS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21 (AP).—A $1,500,000,000 defense bill, which includes funds for paying, feeding, and clothing army conscripts, was approved today by a house appropriations subcommittee.

Chairman Clifton A. Woodrum [D., Va.] said the measure would be submitted to the full appropriations committee next week and probably would come up in the house Thursday. It is expected to be the last major defense bill of the session.

Originally, the bill contained $338,000,000 additional for barracks for the army of draftees to be called into training. This was taken from the bill, however, and passed as a separate measure earlier this week in order to expedite a start on construction.

New Church in Waukegan to Be Dedicated Today

The Rev. Dr. Oswald W. S. McCall of the New First Congregational church, Ashland and Washington boulevards, will be the dedicatory preacher this afternoon for the new First Congregational church of Waukegan. The new edifice was erected on the site of the church which was destroyed by fire in November, 1939.

The Rev. J. W. F. Davies, pastor, will preach the first sermon in the new edifice this morning.

STEMMING the TIDE OF SICKNESS and ILL HEALTH WITH LOW COST MEDICAL CARE

THE tremendous advances in medical knowledge during the past fifty years have been one of the greatest achievements of modern times. Through the reduction of infant mortality and control over the infectious diseases of childhood the average span of life has been lengthened many years. As a result . . . our country is considered one of the healthiest places in the world. And so it is . . . especially for that group of individuals who, because of age and other factors, have received through education, vaccination and periodic examinations, the benefits of adequate medical supervision and care. The danger period begins in early adult life, when individuals assume responsibility for their own way of living and during their most productive years dispense with recognized methods of health protection. It is during these unprotected years, usually the late twenties, thirties and early forties . . . that heart disease, cancer, diabetes, nephritis, tuberculosis or other preventable causes of disability and early death gain a foothold within the body. As evidence of this fact, hardly a day passes that does not bring to our attention the untimely death of prominent persons in this age group. There are perhaps, various reasons why people neglect to safeguard their health, but experience proves that the "high cost" of adequate medical care is the principal one. For as medical science advanced it became impossible for any one man to master it all and the individual fees for specialized services were beyond the ability of most persons to pay. As a result only the well-to-do could afford the protective services medicine is equipped to render. Many prominent health authorities acknowledge that the big problem in medicine today is no longer a lack of knowledge or proper technique, but a wider utilization of present facilities. Eight years ago the founders of a United Medical Service believed that lower fees would help to solve the problem. They also knew through a former experience in a highly specialized field of medicine that group practice supported by complete modern facilities under one roof was the secret of low costs. So they pooled their knowledge and training in all fields of medicine and surgery . . . installed the most modern and scientific equipment in four floors of a centrally located office building and made public announcement of the various services at fees all income groups could afford. The success of this effort proves conclusively that this plan is fundamentally sound. It has enabled thousands to receive the protection of adequate medical care who were formerly among the 75 per cent of our population which leading health authorities say are being denied the benefits that new discoveries in medicine are making possible today. Good health makes life worth living and is perhaps a more important factor in our lives at present than ever before. Here you can obtain, at low cost, through a competent medical staff, supported by extensive X-ray and Laboratory equipment all preventive and curative services which modern medicine can render. The fees are fixed and the same to all. Visitors invited.

Responsible Medical Care Is Available

in All Departments of Medicine and Surgery at Low Cost

Diseases Affecting the Heart and Lungs

Although heart disease is the leading cause of death and tuberculosis still a menace to health, protection is available through early medical care. To detect the presence of heart trouble or tuberculosis and determine its extent there must be a careful clinical examination by a trained physician, blood pressure, urinalysis, microscopic examination of sputum, blood and serological tests, an electrocardiogram, a full size X-ray film of the chest, showing the size of the heart, large blood vessels and condition of the lungs . . . and when indicated a fluroscope of the chest. The fee for these services is only $7.00

Diseases of Women and Obstetrics

Medicine has made great progress in diagnosis, treatment and control in the field of gynecology. Women who seek prompt medical protection at the first sign of pain or functional disorder have greater chances for complete recovery. SEEK SWEEPING THEFT CHARGES IN UNION PROBE

Report Grand Jury Nearing Vote on Indictment.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Return of a sweeping indictment charging a conspiracy to loot the treasuries of several labor unions and otherwise misuse labor organizations was reported yesterday to be the aim of State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney's office. It was reported that the name of Frank [the Enforcer] Nitti, gang chieftain, would head the list of those accused as conspirators.

William Crawford, assistant state's attorney, intimated yesterday that the indictment is nearing a vote by the September grand jury. Crawford has been presenting evidence to the jury relating to dissipation of funds of the Building Service Employés' International union, fees paid out of dues of several of the janitors' unions, and the seizure of the bartenders' union by gangsters.

Crawford attended a conference called yesterday by Courtney. Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, and Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator, also were present.

Nelson Queries Courtney.

Courtney's actions in recent labor investigations were attacked yesterday as political by Judge Oscar F. Nelson, Republican candidate for state's attorney, who was named by Paul B. David, secretary-treasurer of the Building Service Employés' International union as one of those present when George Scalise was named president of the international in 1937. Scalise, who was forced to resign, is under conviction in New York for stealing the international's funds. Scalise also has a record as a white slaver.

"Scalise's criminal record never came to light until 1939, when anonymous circulars were distributed thruout the county," Nelson said. "That circular set out the fact that he had been convicted of the Mann act some 19 or 20 years before that time. President William Green [of the American Federation of Labor] did not know of it; no officer of the building service employés knew of it.

"The fact is that before Scalise became an organizer for the Building Service Employés' International in New York City, he had conducted a union of garage employés, under the jurisdiction of General President Dan Tobin of the International Brotherhood of Chauffeurs and Teamsters.

Scalise Suit Recalled.

"Courtney and his office must have known of Scalise's attempt to control Taylor's union in 1939, because Scalise filed a suit in the Circuit court for an accounting, and the newspapers carried the story. [The Taylor referred to was Mathew Taylor, president of the Chicago Elevator Operators' and Starters' union, who said in a deathbed statement that he had paid more than $30,000 of his union's funds to 'the mob' to protect his life.]

"In July, 1939, the newspapers of Chicago carried the story that Taylor had been held up in Douglas park; they also carried the story of the killing of Louis Schiavone, a Capone lieutenant, in 1939, when an audit of the Elevator Operators' books was found on his body.

"I ask Courtney to explain why he did not hold a grand jury investigation and get the facts in that serious situation, a year ago.

Accuses Courtney and Gilbert.

"I charge that Courtney and his chief investigator, Dan Gilbert, have countenanced and put racketeers into the labor movement of Chicago. I cite as an outstanding example, his approval of the selection of 'Lefty' Lynch, an ex-convict, as secretary-treasurer of the new Coal Teamsters' union, for which Courtney obtained a charter from Dan Tobin, general president of the Teamsters' International union.

"I never knew Scalise when he came to the convention here in 1935, before I went on the bench, and when I was representing Jerry Horan as attorney for the Flat Janitors' union. I have only seen Scalise about four or five times in my life. I saw him before the executive council at the American Federation of Labor in July, 1937, and at a meeting of the executive council at Atlantic City in August, 1937, a few months after he had been selected as Horan's successor. . . . I never received a fee from the Building Service Employés' International union.

"Again, I ask Tom Courtney: 'Why did he not do anything about the Bartenders' union until a civil suit was brought before Judge Jerome Dunne?'

"Again, I ask Tom Courtney to name one outstanding racketeer that he has prosecuted and convicted in seven years and nine months that he has been state's attorney. . . .

"He knows that when I am elected state's attorney I will clean out every racketeer in the trades union movement, and vigorously prosecute every professional criminal and the syndicate bosses who have held sway here during Courtney's administration."

Facts Twisted, Says Gilbert.

In the absence last night of Prosecutor Courtney, his chief investigator, Capt. Gilbert, charged that Judge Nelson had twisted the facts in at least three particulars. Gilbert said:

"Judge Nelson said Scalise's prison record as a pander was not known until 1938. A book written by Edward Dean Sullivan, a former Chicago newspaper man, was published in 1936 and widely read in labor circles. It gave the details of Scalise's pander record.

"Nelson said Courtney put James [Lefty] Lynch in office as head of the coal teamsters' union. The facts are: Lynch was elected by members of the union, and forced out of office by Courtney.

"Judge Nelson says Courtney has not prosecuted labor racketeers. Does he forget the indictment of 18 persons, including the judge himself, charged with racketeering in the cleaning and dyeing industry in 1933? Our office has accomplished a great deal in driving racketeers out of unions. And we intend to continue the fight."

Union Agent Discharged.

Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, receiver for the Bartenders' and Beverage Dispensers' union, local 278, announced yesterday he had discharged J. O. Gehrling, one of the union's business agents. He said Gehrling failed to appear for work Wednesday and when called in Thursday to explain his absence said he had been arrested, held in a cell, and finally fined $25 for disorderly conduct.

Gen. Keehn said he is calling a general meeting of all members of the union to be held at noon Sept. 30 in the Mural room of the Morrison hotel. He sent notices to the 4,200 members saying they would have an opportunity for a free and frank discussion of their affairs.

HUNT REALTOR MISSING SINCE TRIP TO ELWOOD

Police are searching for Franklin J. Kester, wealthy north side realtor who disappeared after a trip to Elwood, Ind., to hear Wendell L. Willkie's acceptance speech Aug. 17, it was disclosed yesterday. Kester's office is at 6217 Broadway and his home at 1061 Rosemont avenue.

Elwood police learned that a man of his description stayed at a private home there until Aug. 18, while an elderly man with him left the day before. The man resembling Kester said he was bound for Detroit, Mich., but Michigan state police were unable to find trace of him there. Other clews turned the hunt to Phelps, Wis., where a man of his description was seen Aug. 22 and said he planned to go fishing near Duluth.

Authorities fear he may have been attacked and robbed or that if he actually went fishing he may be lost.

PARTNER FAILS TO FIND TRACE OF E. J. CARR

Albert Moody, partner of Elwood J. Carr, missing lumber company executive, reported yesterday that no trace of Carr has been found. Carr, 28 years old, disappeared Sept. 12 after leaving the Carr & Moody Lumber company, 3039 South Halsteed street, with $200 in cash and $700 in checks for bank deposit. His wife, Mary Elizabeth, who lives with their two children at 12423 South 71st street, Palos Heights, fears he has met with foul play.

FOUR FROM GARY KILLED AS TRAIN STRIKES AUTO

Father, Mother, and Two Sons Are Victims.

Four residents of Gary were killed yesterday when their automobile was struck by a Big Four passenger train near Pendleton, 150 miles southeast of Gary.

Those killed were Mathew Klimczak, 57 year old, of 1904 Virginia street, Gary; his wife, Helen, 56, and their two sons, Floyd, 21, who lived with them, and Thomas, 26, of 1637 Pennsylvania street, Gary. The men were employed by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation.

Shirley Hanson, 15, of 6418 North Nordica avenue, was killed last night as she alighted from a bus and was struck by an auto driven by Glen A. Zarndt of Carpentersville, Kane county, at Higgins road and Newland avenue.

Two Die After Collision.

Miss Lucille Bartemio, 18, of 1205 North 23d avenue, Melrose Park, and Carl Price, 28, of Elgin, died in St. Joseph's hospital in Elgin of injuries incurred when Price's car collided with an automobile in which Miss Bartemio was a passenger. The crash occurred three miles east of Elgin in U. S. highway 20.

Louis Culotta, 25, of 1207 North 23d avenue, Melrose Park, in whose car Miss Bartemio was riding, was injured. Police said the accident occurred when Price attempted to pass another automobile.

Raymond Paredes, 9, of 1341 North Clark street, died in Henrotin hospital after being struck near his home by a truck driven by Arthur Yanow, 1263 North Albany avenue.

Edmund Siok Jr., 4, of 1725 North Honore street, died in North Avenue hospital after being hit in front of 1821 Wabansia avenue by a truck driven by Raymond Witek, 2334 Augusta boulevard.

Truck Driver Burns to Death.

Clifford Brophy, 36, of 4708 Hubbard street, a truck driver, was burned to death when the trailer of the truck he was driving buckled over the cab of the tractor and spilled gasoline became ignited. The accident occurred at Ohio street and Racine avenue.

A. W. Holmes, 48, of 41 North Main street, Lombard, was killed and Nemrad Anstach, 32, of 622 Elgin avenue, Forest Park, was injured Friday night when Holmes' automobile crashed into the rear of a trailer truck a mile north of Joliet on United States highway 66-A.

An unidentified man was fatally injured last night when hit by a streetcar at 57th and Cicero avenue, Cicero. He died in Berwyn hospital.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 615 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 451 were killed in Chicago, where 16,792 were injured in traffic in the same period.

REUNION STORY REAL TOUCHING; WOMAN JAILED

Mrs. Mary Barbour was locked up in the county jail yesterday on a court order obtained by Lee F. Osborn, who said he has been hunting her for 16 years to ask her what became of his $6,000.

Mrs. Mary Barbour.

Osborn is 38 years old, an employé of the city bureau of maintenance and repair, living at 2753 North Fairfield avenue. Mrs. Barbour, who is 58, was formerly his guardian. He told Judge Robert Jerome Dunne that she turned his estate over to him in 1924 and persuaded him shortly afterward to place $6,000 in a joint checking account. She checked out all the money, he said, and fled.

Mrs. Barbour denied the charge. She said that altho she had been traveling, she has often been in Chicago in recent years. Recently she has been staying at the Brevoort hotel. Osborn met her by accident and filed suit for the money thru his attorneys, Harold Levy and Lawrence Jacobson. A court order forbidding her to leave the state was issued and she was locked up until bond can be arranged.

PLOW CONTEST VICTOR MAKES IT TWO IN WEEK

The annual Lily Lake plowing match, held yesterday at Lily Lake, 22 miles northwest of Aurora, was won by Orvis Schroyer of Elburn. He made a score of 93.

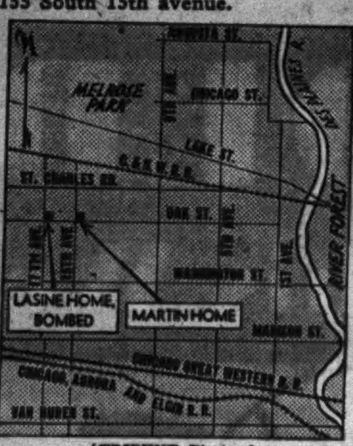
Schroyer won the Wheatland plowing match last week. Second place yesterday went to Carl Hageman of Wheatland, score 92⅓, and third to Paul Stiefbold of Naperville, score 92.

A roan team driven by Otto Bartelt of Elgin took the heavy weight horse pulling contest, moving a sledge loaded with cement weighing 5,000 pounds a distance of 27½ feet. In the light weight pulling contest a team driven by Oliver Anderson of Wasco moved 4,500 pounds 24 feet.

Suspect Bomb Error

Home of Leo Lasine, 157 South 17th avenue, Maywood, which was bombed yesterday.

Police believe the bomb was intended for this house, the home of James Martin, Negro policy boss, at 155 South 15th avenue.



[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Map locates the bombed house and that for which it is believed the bomb was intended.

2D BOMB BLAST BELIEVED AIMED AT POLICY BOSS

Link Maywood Case to Bartels Attack.

Police said last night that the bombing which rocked Maywood early yesterday was a bomber's mistake. The bomb, they explained, evidently was intended for James [Big Jim] Martin, colored policy game boss, and leader of the colored Democratic voters in Chicago's 28th ward.

Terrorists have been trying to extort $20,000 from him. The police suspect that the bombing on Sept. 4 at the home of his political associate, Charles Bartels, was an outgrowth of the extortion plot.

Bartels a Nash Lieutenant.

Bartels is private secretary and lieutenant of Patrick A. Nash, 28th ward committeeman and chairman of the Democratic county committee. The home of the 28th ward alderman, George D. Kells of 3146 Franklin boulevard, is under guard as a result of the plot.

The Maywood bomb endangered the family of Leo Lasine, an upholstery manufacturer living at 157 South 17th avenue, in the suburb, and damaged the Lasine home.

The Lasine residence is two blocks from Martin's home at 155 South 15th avenue, Maywood. Both homes are on northeast corners of Oak street, and they are strikingly similar in appearance. The police believe the bombers confused the houses.

Enjoys Police Protection.

Martin is now enjoying the protection of two colored city policemen, Julius Tilman and William Hall, at his Airplane Inn tavern, 1900 Lake street. Gunmen raked the interior of the tavern with bullets several weeks ago.

Martin fled the city after the terrorists began their demands. He returned shortly before the bombing of Bartels' home at 35 North Mayfield avenue, and hurried to the home after the bombing. The police say they are investigating the possibility that Bartels' home was bombed because he refused to act as go-between for the extortionists.

CARLSON GIVES SCIENCE LIBRARY TO U. OF CHICAGO

The board of trustees of the University of Chicago announced yesterday that Dr. Anton J. Carlson has presented the university with his library of 16,000 classified reprints of scientific articles, 1,200 books and research monographs, and complete files of 15 scientific journals.

Dr. Carlson, who will complete 36 years on the university's faculty when he retires Oct. 1 at the age of 65, is chairman of the department of physiology. He was born in Sweden and came to the United States at the age of 16 as a steerage immigrant.

He has been president of the American Association of University Professors and of the American Physiological society. He will become professor emeritus upon retirement.

"SOLAR HOUSE" ON GLENVIEW RD. HAS GLASS SIDE

"House of Tomorrow," Keck Is Architect.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

George Fred Keck, Chicago architect, discovered during the erection of his "House of Tomorrow" at A Century of Progress world's fair in Chicago that rays from the sun will heat a residence. This discovery was made one biting cold day when he found workmen inside the "House of Tomorrow," which was built almost entirely of glass, working in their shirtsleeves and complaining of the heat. There was no artificial heat at that time in the building.

George Fred Keck. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Keck pondered this discovery and studied statistics on solar heat. The result of his studies is now in concrete form in what he calls a "Solar House," built for and owned by Howard M. Sloan, of the H. M. Sloan Realty company, Evanston.

Permits Visitors.

Sloan, an enthusiast over the solar heating system in his new house [which is supplemented by a warm air gas fired heating unit], is permitting visitors to go thru and will continue to do so until he decides to move in. If the house is as satisfactory as he anticipates, he said yesterday, he will build nine more residences of similar character—all sun heated.

Sloan's "solar house" is at 825 Glenview road, in Glenview, on a one acre site. He owns nine additional acre lots adjoining on which he may build the other sun warmed homes.

The Solar House is over 100 feet long, with all rooms on one floor. The building faces south and practically all of the south elevation is plate glass. There are only a few windows on the north. The big living room, dining room, kitchen, study, and three bedrooms all face south.

23 Years of Investigation.

The eave line projection is worked out so that the summer sun high in the heavens, doesn't enter the house, but the winter sun, nearer the horizon, does. Thus solar heat is taken advantage of to an unusual degree.

"According to 23 years of investigation by the solar radiation investigations committee of the department of commerce, the sun heat entering this house will be sufficient to heat it during the hours the sun shines in winter," Keck said. "Over 50 per cent of our winter days are sunny."

The house is oriented to take advantage of the prevailing winds during summer months, which are from the southwest. With practically no windows on the north side of the house the prevailing cold currents of air from the north and northeast are avoided.

Basement Recreation Room.

There is a basement under half of the house, containing a large recreation room, with a fireplace, a utility room, and a dark room for photography. A two car garage and a bedroom are located on the north side of the building. There are two baths. The study is so placed that it can be used as an extra bedroom.

The living room has a large stone fireplace. The walls are of Philippino bayott plywood. The study is paneled in mahogany. Both bathrooms have glass lined walls. Walls of the bedrooms are painted. The recreation room is of fir. The living and dining rooms have sound absorbent ceilings.

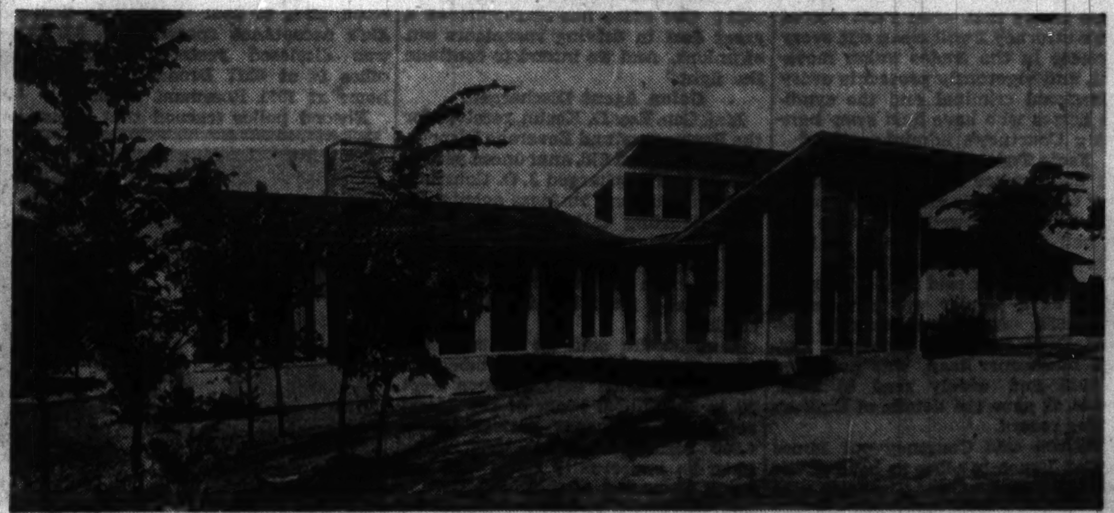
The exterior finish is of tongue and grooved fir, painted white. The cedar shingles are stained brown. The house and its one acre site is said to have cost a total of $22,000.

New Factory Announced for Montrose District

Work will be started soon on a one story factory building at 4227 North Knox avenue in the new Montrose Manufacturing district, a subsidiary of the Clearing Industrial district. The 163 by 418 foot building will be leased to the Metropolitan Picture Frame company, now at 2025 North Austin avenue.

Heated Without Cost—Part of the Winter

(Story in adjoining column.)



George Fred Keck got the idea for this "solar house" from his "House of Tomorrow" at A Century of Progress. Practically all of the windows face south. The wide eaves shut off the sun's rays during summer months when not needed. During sunny winter days the house will need little if any artificial heat, Keck says.

Home in Connecticut Village

This nine room southern colonial house is being erected for Judge Warren H. Orr at 1415 Ashland lane, in the Connecticut village development, Wilmette.

BLIETZ BUILDS 25 CONNECTICUT VILLAGE HOMES

Irvin A. Blietz yesterday reported that 25 homes have been completed in his Connecticut village development in Wilmette. Of these 21 have been sold. Ground is now being broken for five more new homes to be completed next spring, Blietz said. They will range in size from seven to ten rooms. He also is erecting two residences, one of which is for Judge Warren H. Orr, at 1415 Ashland lane. The nine room house and site will cost $30,000, Blietz said.

Judge Orr served as chief justice of the Supreme court of Illinois from 1930 to 1939 and is now senior member of the law firm of Orr, Sullivan, and Ricks. An enthusiastic hunter, Judge Orr will use for the decorative background of his library photo murals of hunting scenes taken on his hunting preserves in southern Illinois.

MORTGAGE AND REAL ESTATE HEADS NAMED IN COMMUNITY DRIVE

Ward Farnsworth, general chairman of the real estate and mortgage division of the Chicago 1940 community fund drive, yesterday announced that its quota would be $126,000. Following are the seven divisions and their chairmen: Downtown real estate, William H. Doughty; mortgage bankers, Steve Cohn; insurance companies, Martin Culhane; building and loan associations, Herman Walther, south side real estate, Gerald P. Hanlon; north side real estate, Byron Cain, and west side real estate, John F. Butler. The campaign officially opens Oct. 7 and is expected to be completed within three weeks, Farnsworth said.

BUYS WEST SIDE HOTEL.

B. Greenbaum bought the five story stone front building at 704 West Madison street, containing a 32 room hotel and store, for $9,500 cash according to Marks & Co., broker for the buyer and manager of the property. Winston & Co. represented the seller.

State Realtors Planning Week of "Education"

Illinois realtors will hold their second annual "real estate week" Oct. 6 to 12. The objectives of the seven day campaign of education were outlined yesterday by Jules F. Fisher, of Evanston, chairman of the Real Estate Week committee of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards. They are:

"1. To call the attention of all of our citizens to the innumerable opportunities which the real estate of Illinois offers.

"2. To emphasize the desirability, importance, and unmistakable soundness of home ownership.

"3. To create a better understanding of the diversified utility value of real estate.

"4. Effectively to broadcast the advantages of real estate investment, security and safety with a reasonable return."

Urges Coöperation.

Fisher recently communicated with the presidents of member boards, urging their coöperation.

"I also appeal to all organizations interested in the field of real estate, including the architect, home builder, contractor, mortgage banker, building and savings loan institution, and trust company, for the active support of our program in which we are all so vitally interested," he said.

Public to be Invited.

Special meetings are being planned, Fisher said, thruout the state to which the public will be invited.

Ornamental Iron Concern Buys One Story Factory

The Chicago Ornamental Iron company, now at 4314 North California avenue, yesterday bought from the Chicago Title and Trust company the one story manufacturing plant at 4227 West Diversey avenue, containing 48,000 square feet of manufacturing space. The price was not disclosed. The building, idle for several years, will be modernized and occupied shortly by the buyer. Elmer E. Stults, Inc., represented the buyer, and James I. Minteer, of the Grove Hill Real Estate company, the seller. The Monogram Manufacturing company, maker of underwear, bought the Chicago Ornamental Iron company's former plant.

REALTORS WILL HOLD ALL DAY OUTING TUESDAY

The annual fall outing of the Chicago Real Estate board will be held Tuesday at the Medinah Country club. It is limited to 400 members and guests. Special entertainment will include a swimming and diving exhibition. In addition to golf, there will be indoor baseball, putting contests, horseshoes, and other games. Over 150 prizes are now on exhibit at the Chicago Real Estate board rooms, 32 West Randolph street.

MILWAUKEE AVENUE LEASE.

Louis Weinberg leased the store at 1333 Milwaukee avenue from Mrs. Beatrice Rothschild, of Winnetka, for five years, for the sale of women's wear. Joseph G. Sackheim was broker.

$200,000 RENT FOR 10 YEARS IS GUARANTEED

New Bowling Corporation to Spend $80,000.

The Marshall Field estate yesterday closed a lease for the entire basement space and part of the street level in the new one story taxpayer under construction on the site of the recently razed Great Northern hotel, at Dearborn, Jackson, and Quincy. The space will be used for bowling alleys. The lease is for 10 years, with a minimum guaranteed rental of $200,000 for the term. The Field estate will get a percentage of any gross profits over the guarantee as additional rental.

Three of Chicago's leading figures in the bowling field, operating an aggregate of 11 recreational units, with a total of 188 bowling lanes, recently formed Dearborn Recreation, Inc. The new corporation as lessee will spend $80,000 in outfitting the new downtown recreational center in the Great Northern building, according to Ward Farnsworth of the Field estate, who negotiated the lease.

Will Have 24 Lanes.

In addition the Field estate, Farnsworth said, will spend $40,000 in preliminary work, such as soundproofing and air conditioning the space.

When completed it will have 24 streamlined regulation bowling alleys in the basement section, which contains 21,000 square feet of floor space.

Steps will lead down a few feet from the basement floor level to a subway pedestrian corridor to extend under Quincy street from State to Dearborn. Stairs also will lead up to a street level entrance on Dearborn street and to a cocktail lounge, 40 by 40, at the southeast corner of Dearborn and Quincy, to be operated by Dearborn Recreation, Inc.

The leasing corporation is composed of three former presidents of the Chicago Bowling Proprietors' association. They are: William Goldammer of Goldammer Brothers, who operate six recreational centers on the northwest side, with a total of 92 lanes; James P. Flynn Jr., president of Schueneman-Flynn's Recreational enterprises, comprising four bowling centers, with 84 lanes in all; John Quan, who has 12 lanes at his Highland Recreation center at 1310 West 79th street.

Will Cost $250,000.

When plans were first announced last January for wrecking the 15 story Great Northern hotel and replacing it with a taxpayer, it was estimated the new 1 story building would cost $175,000. The lowest bid, however, was $250,000, by the B. W. Handler Construction company, which was awarded the contract.

Shaw, Naess & Murphy are architects of the building and also for the bowling corporation in its new recreational center.

Farnsworth said the building practically is all rented, negotiations being under way for the space not used for bowling. All of the roof and part of the first floor fronting on Quincy street are to be used for garage purposes.

WHEATON LANDMARK MAKES WAY FOR NEW MEDICAL BUILDING

One of Wheaton's oldest residences, the home of the late Dr. Elias C. Guild, built 71 years ago, at the northwest corner of Main street and Wesley avenue, is being torn down. A gasoline station will occupy the corner section of the site. A one story medical office building will be built on the rest of the property, with a frontage of 60 feet on Wesley, Bertram E. Rathje, attorney for a group of Wheaton men who will build it, disclosed.

Robert H. Salisbury, Wheaton architect, designed the modern one story brick and stone building. It will contain offices for seven doctors and dentists.

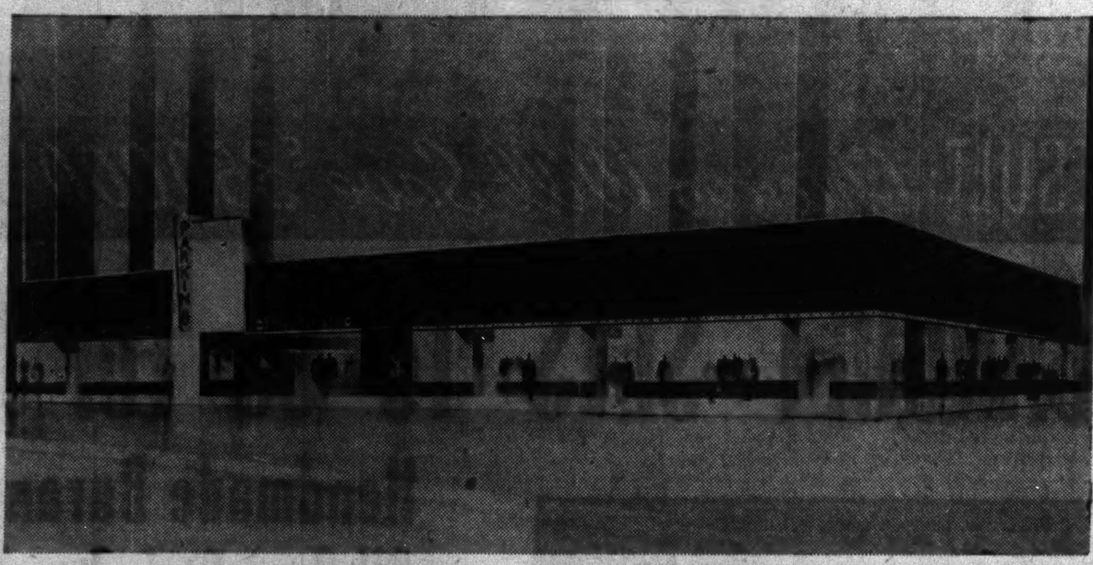
This will be the third medical office building to be erected in Wheaton, all within a radius of two blocks. The Kelly Medical clinic is at the southwest corner of Seminary and Hale. Another medical building is a few doors south of the proposed unit.

The house now being wrecked has been in the Guild family since Dr. Elias C. Guild bought it. His family included a son, Dr. William L. Guild, who died four years ago, Mrs. Charles W. Hadley, Mrs. F. D. L. Squires, and Mrs. Alice Loveless.

The elder Dr. Guild maintained a station of the "underground railway"—an aid to Negro slaves escaping from the south to Canada—at Wayne Center, northwest of Wheaton. According to his daughter, Mrs. Squires, he never had a "station" at the Wheaton house, as has been rumored.

Loop's New Black and White Taxpayer

(Story in adjoining column.)



Exterior walls of this one story taxpayer being built on the site of the Great Northern hotel will be of brick painted with black enamel, and aluminum trim. The entrance to the parking section will be white painted brick. Several changes have been made in the design since it was first published last January.

Fourth Terminal in Two Blocks

Motor Cargo, Inc., of Akron, O., is building a trucking terminal at the northwest corner of State and 29th streets. This is the fourth terminal on the west side of State, between 27th and 29th streets.

Build Annex to Altenheim

Maxwell Kunin, vice president of Sprague, Warner & Co., yesterday reported plans under way for construction of one of Chicago's largest bowling centers at 828 Grace street. Work will be started on Oct. 1 remodeling the Marigold garage at that location at a reported cost of $150,000 for construction and equipment.

The property, owned by Kunin since 1926, has been leased for 20 years to a syndicate formed by Chicago men and known as Marigold Bowling, Inc. The term rental will be $450,000, Fred M. Fagenholz of Fagenholz & Steiner, attorney for the lessee, stated. Edward Morse of Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautmann, Levinson & Morse was attorney for Kunin.

Kunin said the garage building, 140 by 200, will be completely rebuilt from plans by A. L. Ruttenberg. A new front will be installed, 32 streamlined bowling lanes will be built, and the entire building air conditioned.

There will be open bowling for 24 hours daily, he said, with no leagues taken on until next year. It is planned to open the new recreation center about Christmas.

News of the Architects

The Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects and the Illinois chapter of the American Institute of Decorators will unite in operating a shop at 615 North Michigan avenue, to aid the British War Relief society. It will be open for two weeks beginning tomorrow and continuing until Oct. 5. The shop was donated by the Cook estate. The furniture and decorators' accessories to be sold were given by shops and individuals.

BUILD ADDITION TO GERMAN OLD PEOPLE'S HOME

Work is under way on an $80,000 four story, fireproof addition to the German Old People's home [Altenheim] in Forest Park, to be used as an infirmary. Designed by George H. Buckley and Robert Hookhan, the new unit will have 50 individual bedrooms, a modern kitchen, dining room, housekeeper's room, and nurses' rooms. Completion is set for May 1, 1941. This is the fourth addition to the home. The original building was erected in 1885. An addition was built in 1909; another in 1914, and a third in 1932. Mrs. Marie Kuehle is president.

The 12 apartment building at 8014-20 Paxton avenue was sold by Ode D. Jennings to Sam Svalina for $39,000 according to Robert E. L. Brooks, Inc. It occupies a 100 by 125 foot lot.

ALUMNI OF SIGMA CHI BUY HOUSE IN WOODLAWN AV.

The Alumni association of Omicron Omicron chapter of Sigma Chi fraternity purchased from Mrs. Bertram W. Sippy the three story 17 room residence at 5615 Woodlawn avenue. The price was reported as $24,000. Victor Mingers, of Hogan & Farwell Inc., was broker. The house will be occupied by members of the local chapter of Sigma Chi. It was built for the late Dr. Bertram W. Sippy, who occupied it until his death some years ago.

WALTON PLACE LEASE.

Frank Schoonmaker & Co., Inc., of New York, importers and retailers of liquors, has leased space at 66 East Walton place, thru Ross, Browne & Fleming. The company is now at 120 East Oak street.

TRUCK TERMINAL WORK STARTED AT STATE-29TH

Motor Cargo, Inc., of Akron, Ohio, which operates 60 freight trucks between Chicago and eastern points, has started work on a one story terminal building at the northwest corner of State and 29th streets. It was designed and is being erected by Chicago Industrial Builders, Inc. It will be 140 feet long and 37 feet wide; and will cost a reported $30,000. It will contain 20 loading doors, ten on each side, so that 20 trucks can be handled at one time.

The building will contain a drivers' recreation room, with showers and storage space in the basement. The first floor will be divided into offices, including a special office for dispatcher and cashier.

Motor Cargo, Inc., is now at 1235 West 21st street. H. W. Busbee is the regional manager of the western division, in charge of operations. Chicago sales are handled by William P. Whalen, manager of sales; W. E. Felton, and William M. Daly. Owen O. Orr is president of the company with offices in Akron, O.

This will be the fourth motor trucking terminal on the west side of State street between 27th and 29th streets. The other three are Interstate Dispatch, Inc., at 2700 South State; Great Central Transport corporation, at 2800 South State, and Indianapolis Forwarding company, 2840 South State.

Completion of the Motor Cargo, Inc., terminal is set for Oct. 15.

BUYS SHERIDAN ROAD HOUSE.

Celia Leland bought the residence at 820 Sheridan road from the Cardwell Security company. V. J. Curto & Co. was the broker.

ROWE'S HURLING PUTS DETROIT 2 GAMES AHEAD

Cleveland Gets Only Five Hits.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 21.—The Tigers marched on again today just as if there was nothing between them and an October world series date in Cincinnati. With amazing ease, Del Baker's boys did some more bat swinging, knocked off a feeble looking Cleveland Indian outfit, and triumphed, 5 to 0, to pad themselves with a two game first place lead in the American league's pennant race. And 42,320 spectators had a lot of fun needling the Indians who seem to think it's the fault of their manager, Oscar Vitt, that they can't hit.

The Indians, who collapsed yesterday in the eighth inning of a battle that appeared to be safely in their custody, didn't collapse today. They didn't even start anything. They went thru nine innings of work in which their purpose was to damage the pitching of Lynwood [Schoolboy] Rowe, who only last Tuesday had to retire because of a sore arm. If the Schoolboy's arm was sore today the Indians didn't know about it. They reached him for a grand total of five hits, only three more than the Schoolboy's own bat registered in behalf of his season's 16th victory. He has lost only three.

Tigers' Attack Slow to Start.

The Tigers were remiss only in one way. They were a bit slow about relieving the suspense for the assembled multitude. They fiddled around for four innings with Al Milnar's southpawing. During that stretch they let loose only three hits, one of them a triple which Pinky Higgins attempted to stretch into a home run. He failed, but he gave Rollie Hemsley, the Indian catcher and candidate for Manager Vitt's job, such a jolt that the catcher had to retire for repairs. Higgins' 200 pounds crashed into Rollie's chest. The catcher was taken to a hospital for examination, where it was said tonight he will be out of action for several days, suffering from rib bruises.

Once under way, however, the Tigers didn't tarry. They broke the scoreless deadlock with a pair of runs in the fifth when outside assistance came from Ken Keltner, the Indians' third baseman, who not only erred mechanically, but was napping when Dick Bartell bunted. The Tigers gave Milnar another two run jolt in the sixth, the left hander's concluding inning. Then they nicked Rookie Millard Howell for a run in the seventh.

Fox, Rowe Lead Attack.

Messrs. Hank Greenberg and Rudy York, the two lads who usually take a hand in Detroit's run production, weren't very potent today, but it made no difference. A couple other fellows took up the slack. Most important was Pete Fox, who refused to become discouraged over the fact that his single in the second inning went to waste. Pete merely put distance into subsequent efforts. He launched the decisive fifth with a two bagger. He doubled again in the sixth to assist in another pair. Then there was Rowe with his two singles.

The Indians, seemingly down, will come back tomorrow under the pitching guidance of their ace, Bob Feller. The great Iowan, lacking rest and not at all happy by the way in which the Tigers blasted him from the premises when he attempted a rescue job yesterday, may not have what it takes. If Feller is beaten it may prove to be the Indians' final pennant gesture. The Tigers will start Tommy Bridges, the little cagey fellow with the deceptive curve ball.

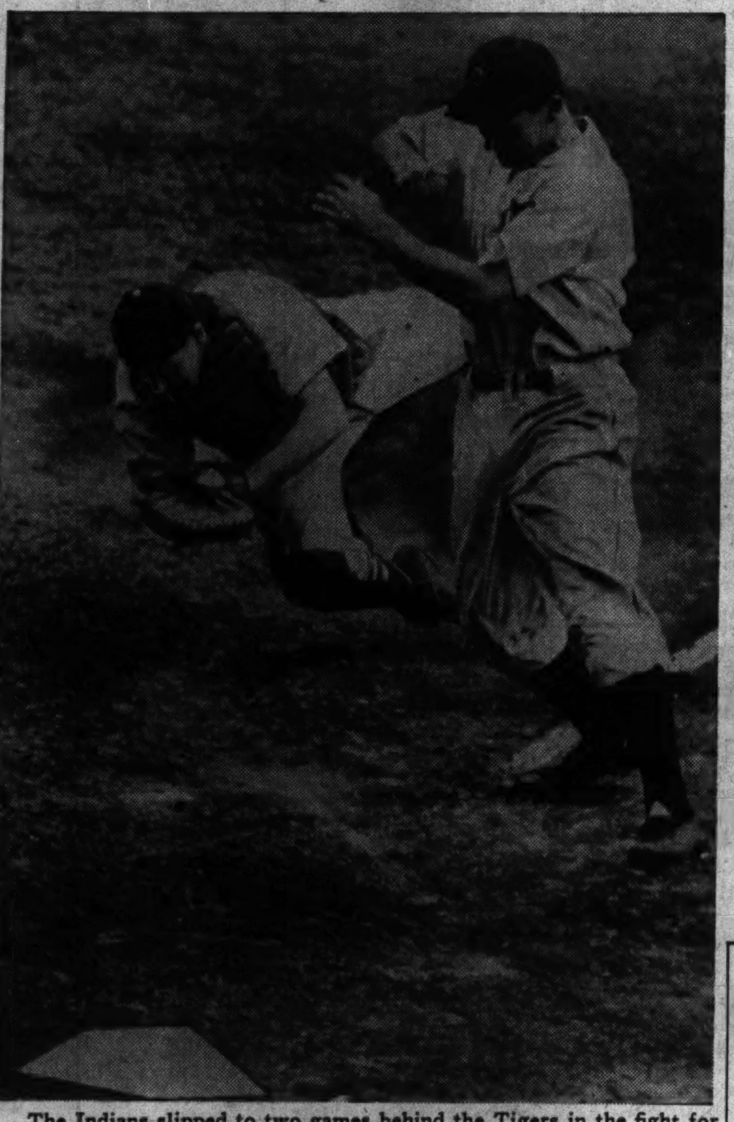
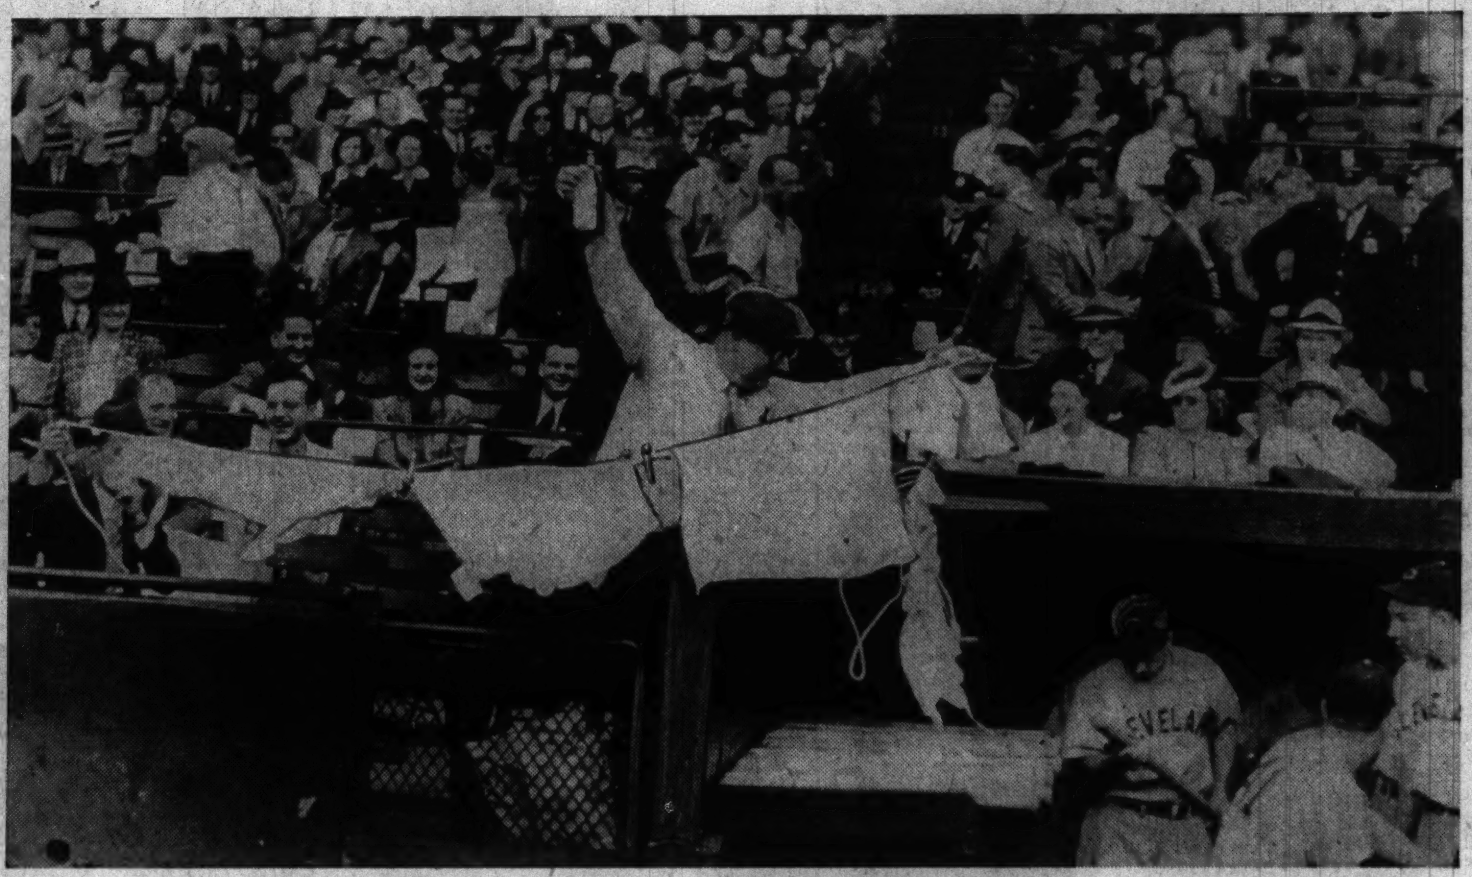
IT'S A SAD DAY FOR INDIANS ON SCOREBOARD AND ELSEWHERE!



The Indians slipped to two games behind the Tigers in the fight for the American league lead yesterday as they lost to Detroit, 5 to 0. They also temporarily lost Catcher Rollie Hemsley who was injured on this play in the fourth inning as Pinky Higgins, Tiger infielder, tried to stretch a triple into a homer. Higgins was out, but Hemsley suffered a bruised rib in collision at plate. Last night Hemsley said he expected to play again before the season's end. [Associated Press Wirephotos.]



An enthusiastic Tiger fan hangs a line of baby clothes on the Indians' dugout before the start of the game in Detroit. A policeman spoiled his gag in a few seconds. The clothes and line were confiscated and the fan led away. Note the baby bottle in the fan's right hand.

CUBS AND OLSEN DEFEAT CARDS AND WARNEKE IN 11 INNINGS, 4-3

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Vern Olsen, Al Todd, Glen Russell, Hank Leiber, and assorted Cub associates yesterday touched off their quest for a first division role in the National league by defeating the St. Louis Cardinals, 4 to 3, in 11 innings in Wrigley field. Olsen, the rookie southpaw, who was seeking his 12th victory of the season, obtained same by restricting the Cards to eight hits. Meanwhile, Leiber, with four singles in five times at bat, was leading the Chicagoans' 13 hit assault against their erstwhile colleague, Lon Warneke.

The game winning hits were produced by Russell and Todd. After Jim Gleeson had struck out at the outset of the 11th, Russell smacked a single to left. He stole second and came home on Todd's single to right center. It was the second hit for each.

The Cubs gained a half game on the fourth place Pirates, who were dividing a double header with the champion Cincinnati Reds. The Pirates, who follow the Cardinals into the north siders' park for a three game series opening next Tuesday, now hold only a two game advantage over the fifth place Cubs.

Stan Hack Suffers.

While the team was making progress, Third Baseman Stanley Hack was having a highly unprofitable afternoon in his personal search for the league batting championship. Five times at bat produced nary a point for Stan. He was called out on strikes in his first appearance, and thereafter flied out three times and was tossed out once.

Warneke, from whom the Cubs could extract no more than a bunt by Leiber in the third for the first four innings, was the author of the first Cardinal run, his double driving home Mickey Owen, who had preceded him with a hit of similar proportions with one out in the third. Hack tossed out Jimmy Brown, and after Terry Moore had walked, Pepper Martin ended the inning by popping out to Warstler.

It's That Owen Again.

The Cardinals made it 2 to 0 in the fifth, Owen again setting up the score. Mickey opened the inning by singling off Hack's glove, and after Warneke had struck out, Brown came thru with the double that sent Owen home. The Cubs responded to this in their half by scoring three runs for the lead. Leiber started it with a single to left. Gleeson then tripled to the left field corner, scoring Hank. Brown tossed out Russell, but Todd beat out a hit to second, sending Gleeson home with the tying run. Todd went to second on Owen's bad throw to Mize in an attempt to catch the Cub catcher off first. Mattick then came up with a single, advancing Todd to third. The latter scored on Olsen's sacrifice bunt, the rookie Cub being tagged out by Owen after tripping as he started for first.

And the Score Is Tied.

The visitors waited no longer than the sixth to tie the score. With one out, Koy smashed a double to right,

White Sox Accept Cub Challenge to City Series

The 23d duel for the city baseball championship became a certainty yesterday when the White Sox, who won last fall, accepted a challenge from the Cubs. Details will be arranged at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning when officials of the rival clubs meet in the offices of Commissioner K. M. Landis.

The custom has been to start the city series on the same day the world series opens, but this year the White Sox would like to begin play Tuesday, Oct. 1, which would be a day ahead of the big series between the Reds and whichever club wins the American league title.

As the first two games were played in Comiskey park last fall, it is probable that Wrigley field will be the site of the opening battles this year. The action then will shift to the south side, where three games would be played unless one of the rivals is fortunate enough to win four in a row.

If—

If the Tigers win two of their remaining four games with the Indians, and one of their two with the White Sox, they will eliminate Cleveland and clinch a tie for first place at the finish of the American league race. The tie possibility is based on the Yankees winning all their nine remaining games.

If Detroit follows this pattern, Cleveland wins its two games with St. Louis after the Detroit series, and New York wins its nine games, the final standing would be:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Detroit	90	64	.584
New York	90	64	.584
Cleveland	89	65	.578

REMAINING GAMES.

Detroit—Sept. 22, 27, 28, 29, with Cleveland; Sept. 24, 25, with Chicago.

RIGGS TURNS ON McNEILL TO WIN IN LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 21 (AP).—Bobby Riggs of Chicago won the Pacific southwest men's singles tennis championship today by defeating Don McNeill of Oklahoma City, who bested the Chicagoan in the battle for the national title at Forest Hills. The scores were 5-7, 2-6, 6-0, 12-10, 6-3. Originally scheduled for Sunday, the match was shifted for an expected capacity Saturday afternoon turnout.

Sarah Palfrey of Boston and Mrs. Gracyn Wheeler Kelleher of Santa Monica, Cal., took the women's doubles. They defeated Margaret Osborne of San Francisco and Barbara Bradley, Los Angeles, 7-5, 6-4.

BROWNS DEFEAT SOX, 3 TO 2; 4TH STRAIGHT LOSS

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 21.—The White Sox, somewhat faded American league dark horses, ran their current losing streak to four straight here this afternoon. Vern Kennedy held them to two hits—a homer by Joe Kuhel and a triple by Larry Rosenthal—in a 3 to 2 victory for the St. Louis Browns.

Kuhel's homer led off the fourth and then Rosenthal's triple drove in Luke Appling, who had walked, to give Eddie Smith a 2 to 0 lead. In the sixth Smith and his lead melted in the tropical heat. The tie prevailed until the ninth, when the Browns put over a victory splurge against Reliever Clint Brown before a putout was accomplished. Johnny Berardino opened the ninth with a single and went to second on Mike Tresh's passed ball. Joe Grace batted for Bob Swift and walked. Walter Judnich batted for Vern Kennedy and singled to right, scoring Berardino with the winning run. It was the ninth victory in 10 starts for the awakened Brownies.

Dykes' Protest Disallowed.

The socking today was not the only grief in the life of Manager Jimmie Dykes. His protest on last night's game was tossed out by President Will Harridge of the American league. In a telegram to Dykes, Prexy Harridge admitted that Lou Kolls, another of his and Superviser Tom Connolly's problem children, had displayed "poor workmanship," but that it hadn't been bad enough to order a replay.

Umpire Cal Hubbard reversed Kolls on a decision when the Sox were batting in the ninth last night. With Taft Wright on second and Larry Rosenthal on first, and none out, Bob Kennedy grounded to Second Baseman Lucadello, who ran toward second, then threw to first too late to get Kennedy. Kolls' first decision was that the bases were full and none out. After a signal from Hubbard, Kolls declared Rosenthal was out at second. The Sox lost, 7 to 6.

Mr. Dykes Has a Suggestion.

The helping hand Hubbard tendered to Kolls was a contrast to the behavior of three umpires who stood

HINT RUTH WOULD MANAGE ST. PAUL CLUB NEXT YEAR

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 21 (AP).—Representations have been made to the St. Paul club of the American association indicating that Babe Ruth, former New York Yankees home run slugger, would consider managing the Saints next season if a reasonable offer were made.

Lou McKenna, business manager of the St. Paul team, said today he had received a letter from Ray Doan, friend of Ruth, saying the Babe was open to an offer. McKenna added that he might contact Ruth, who has been in retirement from active baseball affairs since 1935.

Babe Ganzel, manager of the Saints for three seasons, retired last week.

MARINES TAKE SERVICE RIFLE CHAMPIONSHIP

Camp Perry, O., Sept. 21 (AP).—The United States Marines captured the national 10 man service rifle championship today with a score of 2,833, defeating the defending infantry squad by 32 points for one of the most decisive victories in years.

The marines went into today's 1,000 yard final stage with a 13 point lead and picked up 19 more at the long range.

BUSY MORN AND MON REVE CAPTURE HAWTHORNE'S TWO $2,500 RACES

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Busy Morn demonstrated once again that she is a fast, game little mare and Mon Reve proved that he can run a long, long way without getting tired. This pair divided yesterday's main events at Hawthorne, Busy Morn winning the Illinois Owners' handicap and Mon Reve scoring in the Endurance claiming stakes. Both races carried an added money value of $2,500.

The winners used opposite tactics in fulfilling their purposes. Jockey Bill Thompson sent Busy Morn away with a rush and kept her in front from start to finish of the mile and a sixteenth dash. It was a chase all the way, however, with Kings Blue and Endy forcing the early pace and Shot Put coming up with his characteristic rush thru the stretch. But the little mare was equal to all of her challengers. She got home a length in advance of Shot Put, while Kings Blue, Endy, and Colorado Ore were engaging in a head and head struggle for third place. The camera placed them in that order, Kings Blue being a length behind Shot Put.

Works Forward Gradually.

Mon Reve, on the other hand, came from last place to first in winning his two and a quarter mile engagement. Jockey George South, judging the pace well, allowed this 8 year old campaigner to settle into last place during the preliminary running. He worked his mount up gradually after going a mile and a half, landed him in front in midstretch, and had him running easily, three lengths in the lead, as they crossed the finish line. Sure Swift was second and Our Teddy third.

This race was marked by the downfall of the 9 to 5 favorite, Winning Mark, hero of the marathon series at Washington Park. He had won the three and three-eighths and the four mile races at the Homewood course. Yesterday he was in a contending position going into the last turn. Half way around he stumbled and his jockey, Johnny Greene, lost a stirrup. With the rider thus handicapped, Winning Mark was unable to challenge the leaders during the stretch run. Getaway Jack, the 2 to 1 second choice, didn't do well, either. After racing well up for two miles, he tired at the head of the stretch and finished sixth.

Busy Morn Justifies Backing.

Busy Morn, which won the $5,000 Beverly handicap at Washington Park and ran second to Court Dance, Burning Star, and Advocator in three successive starts at Hawthorne, was the favorite, returning $4.60, $3.20, and $2.80 across the board. Shot Put, which went to the post at 9 to 1 odds because many of the fans thought the distance was too short for him, paid $6.40 and $4 for place and show. Kings Blue, second choice at 4 to 1, rewarded his backers with $3.40 to show.

Mon Reve was lightly regarded in the betting. A victory by a nose over horses of the $1,000 class was his only previous successful effort of the sea-

Chicago Bears vs. Chicago Cardinals, in Comiskey park [night].

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 21.—Michigan, Minnesota, and Illinois license tags in jammed parking lots signaled the arrival today of the vanguard of 19,300 visitors who will gather in this little northwoods town tomorrow for the National Football league game between the Chicago Bears and the Green Bay Packers, defending world champions.

Green Bay was completely gaga by nightfall. Scalpers' prices are being asked on tickets which were sold out at the Packer box offices three days ago. Some $3.30 seats are being held as high as $25 and the Packers are warning fans to stay away from Green Bay unless they have tickets in hand. Early arrivals, who overlooked the necessity of making reservations, are scurrying around for lodging and speculatively inclined gentlemen are asking 6 against their 5 on the Packers. Restaurants have packed their storerooms to the ceilings.

Special trains from the north and from Chicago will bring additional thousands tomorrow, building up the crowd in Municipal stadium to 24,000, several hundred of whom will be accommodated on park benches lined around the gridiron to see this thirty-

There's always room at the top —and your country pays you well to learn

THE day has gone when a man could become a good soldier simply by carrying a gun. Today's Regular Army requires skill in as many trades as does industry. Never before did it offer the variety of specialized training to men between 18 and 35 that it does today! And, while you are learning, you will be paid by your country.

What interests you? Airplane engines? Learn about them in the army! Motor mechanics? Today's Armored Force, and Mechanized or Motorized Artillery, Cavalry, Infantry and Engineers have a place for you! Radio, telephony, electricity, surveying, sheet metal work are possible careers. Choose your branch of the service!

Do you like to travel? The professional soldier sees many parts of this nation and possessions overseas. He leads a life of adventure, has time for sport and play as well as work. He is well-clothed, well-fed, fit in mind and body. In army posts or in the field, his health is guarded.

There's room at the top in the Regular Army today. If you can qualify for advancement, you may find yourself instructing other men who will join the colors tomorrow. And, if you follow the army as your permanent career, you can be sure of generous retirement income.

Learn about the Regular Army for yourself. Don't hesitate to ask questions. At the recruiting office, or by mail, your questions will be answered cheerfully.

SOPHOMORES AID BADGERS, CAUSE COACH TO SMILE

Stuhldreher Is Confident of Improvement.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 21.—Since the University of Chicago, which served as a buffer to keep Wisconsin from touching bottom in the Western conference football race last fall, has abandoned the sport, it is a pleasant duty to report that the Badgers will be improved for this coming gridiron campaign.

This generalization, however, may not mean much. Indeed, Wisconsin could improve several per cent and still have trouble escaping last place, for with the exception of Purdue, which now lacks experience, all of Wisconsin's opponents are cheerful over 1940 prospects. The Badgers lost six games last year, tied Purdue, and defeated Marquette, 14 to 13. Minnesota, however, was the only eleven which demonstrated superiority beyond question. And injuries and so-called breaks in luck haltered the Badgers every time they started.

Harry Stuhldreher, who had Wisconsin in the unusual position of challenger for the conference championship in his third season in Madison, begins his fifth year actually happy over sophomore material.

No Claim of Title Hope.

Perhaps Stuhldreher is deluding himself by making the wish father to the thought, but he has some reasons for his enthusiasm. Moreover, Stuhldreher is not predicting the Badgers will win the Big Nine championship. He is only certain they will be better.

George Paskvan, 200 pound full back from La Grange, Ill., is a mighty fine reason for Wisconsin's hopes. Paskvan has only one competitor for all-conference ranking, Capt. Jim Langhurst of Ohio State. He was the only back field man last year who could gain consistently for the Badgers, and mind you, he gained when opponents knew he was Wisconsin's only threat. Give George a half back to take the secondary defense back a couple of steps and spread 'em out, and he would pile up yardage comparable to any full back.

Paskvan, Dick Embick, right guard, and Al Lorenz, right end, are the senior trio Stuhldreher lists as his nucleus. There are other veterans. They will have opportunity to prove their claims to first team ranking, but the gang of sophomores fighting for employment will break into the lineup in several positions. The third scrimmage test of the two-a-day training period was held this afternoon. It will dictate practice schedules for next week until classes start Wednesday.

Lose York, Kolbusz, Rooney.

Wisconsin has had serious losses in material. Chief in the group is Claude York, senior right half back, recovering from illness and definitely out this season. Don Kolbusz was the second loss, while Ed Halamka, Milwaukee sophomore back, didn't return to the university. Harold Rooney of Madison, No. 2 right half, is lost for the season due to a knee injury. He will undergo on operation Tuesday.

Paul Bronson, reserve quarter back from Milwaukee, suffered a cracked collar bone in scrimmage this afternoon and will be out for at least three weeks.

The turnover in material also is indicated by the shifting of some of last year's players. Gordon Gile, who started his varsity career as an end and played tackle last season, now is at left guard. Fred Gage, burly quarter back of last year's team, has been sent to guard.

When Stuhldreher shifted Gile he gave evidence of complete confidence in the group of tackles. Five of the first six are sophomores and if tackle play, defensively and offensively, is as important as most coaches believe, then Wisconsin's renaissance rests on untried shoulders.

An Increase in Speed.

Stuhldreher is jubilant when he talks about the ends. "Wisconsin has end speed for the first time since I have been here," he said unhesitatingly. "The team is faster all the way thru. The backs are faster and our line now won't have to sit on its opponents as well as block them while waiting for the ball carrier to get by the given spot.

"The kicking and passing will be better, also," Stuhldreher said as he ticked off the assets. "Robert Baumann, 200 pound end from Harvey, Ill., is easily the best kicker on the squad. Others are Mark Hoskins, Leonard Seelinger, Don Miller, and Gage."

It should be noted that the first three Wisconsin kickers are sophomores.

"Don Miller is our best passer [right half back]. All the left half backs pass," Stuhldreher concluded, "but we'll be able to pass either way we shift."

Lyons Good Pass Receiver.

Three newcomers broke into the first teams in final signal drill today. The current ratings, including these men [with asterisks indicating sophomores] follow:

Center—Fred Ladewig, *Bob Henry, Fred Ellis, *Bob McKay.
Right guard—Richard Embick, *John Roberts, *George Makris.
Right tackle—Elmer Tornow, *Harry Harter, *Lloyd Wasserbach.
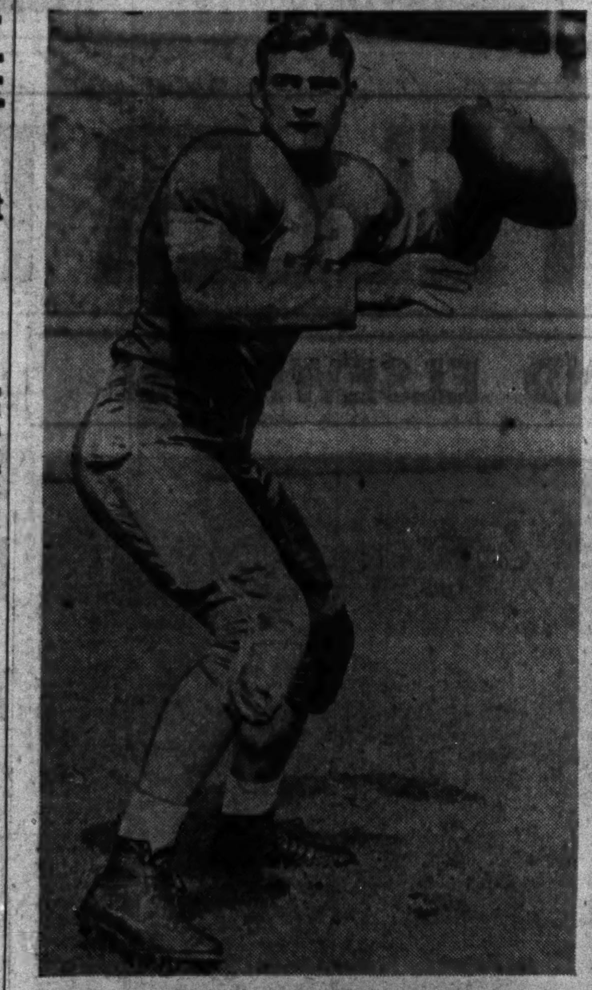
Quarter back—John Tennant, Tom Farris, Don Peterson.
Left half—*Leonard Seelinger, *Mark Hoskins, Bob Willding.
Right half—Don Miller, *Leonard Calligaro, *Howard Schrack.
Fullback—George Paskvan, *Robert Ray, *James McFadzean.

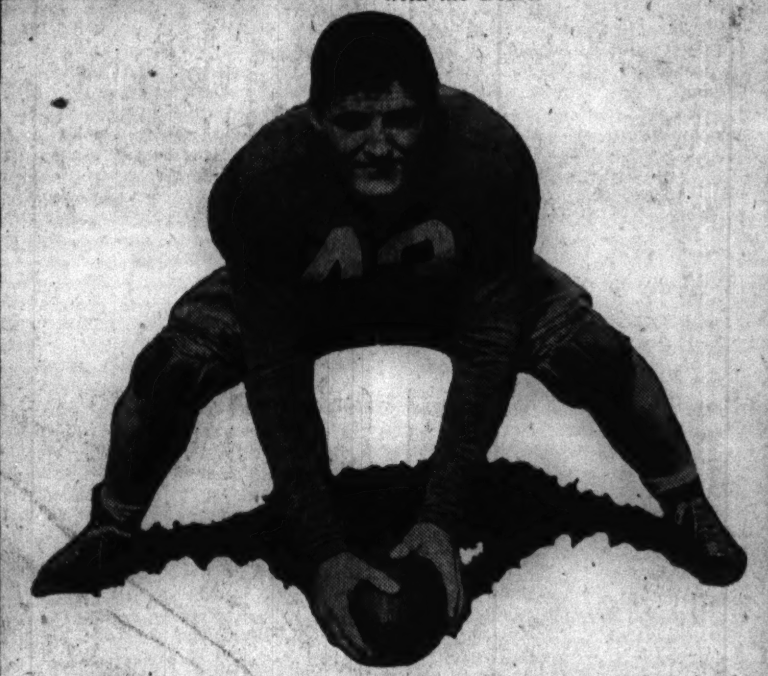


The Chicago Bears face two National league games in four days. They play the Packers in Green Bay today and the Chicago Cardinals in Comiskey park Wednesday night. George McAfee (above), rookie half back star from Duke university, is one of the Bears slated for action in both games.

Joe Maniaci (above), formerly of Fordham, shares the Bears' full back job with Bill Osmanski, rookie sensation of 1939. This is Joe's third year with the team.

Ed Kolman of Temple university, member of the 1940 College All-American squad, is a rookie tackle with the Bears.

One of the star pass throwers of the Bears is Sid Luckman, recently of Columbia, playing his second season of professional football.



Charles (Ki) Aldrich of Texas Christian, in his second year in the league, is captain of the Cardinals. He plays center, weighs 200 pounds.

Ed Beinor of Notre Dame, former prep star at Thornton Township High, will make his first Chicago appearance in the National league against the Bears Wednesday. He's a Cardinal tackle.

Marshall Goldberg, former University of Pittsburgh half back, has helped the Cardinals gain two ties in their first two games of the 1940 season.

ninth meeting between professional football's bitterest rivals.

The Bears, who are the cause of it all, arrived here late this afternoon from their Delafield, Wis., training camp. They were a grim aggregation as they shouldered their way thru the crowded Northland hotel lobby.

Take Turns Scoffing.

Green Bay fans are sneering at Coach George Halas' declaration that the Bears, held back by bad weather and the presence of 11 rookies, have reached only 50 per cent of their efficiency. Likewise Bear rooters among early arrivals are scoffing at reports of indifference in the camp of the Packers, who have won their last 10 starts. As a matter of fact, the Bears are behind in development and the Packers' attitude is not what the coaches want for a contest of such importance. Neither team, however, is so far off form that tomorrow's encounter is likely to fall below par in the spectacular and vigorous play which always has marked Bear-Packer clashes.

Coach Curley Lambeau indicated after practice this morning that he would start the same team of veterans that kicked off in the Chicago All-Star game. Cecil Isbell and Joe Laws will be at the half backs with Clarke Hinkle at full back and Larry Craig doing the blocking.

Halas was undecided about his lineup on his arrival, but at Delafield where the Bears took their last workout this morning before going to Milwaukee to catch a noon train, the favorite alignment in signal drill had rookies at center, tackle, right end, and right half back. Two of these rookies, Center Clyde [Bull Dog] Turner and Tackle Ed Kolman, both members of the Chicago All-Star squad, have been named definitely as starters. The other two, Hampton Pool, a giant guard from Stanford who has been switched to right end, and George McAfee, the Duke university southpaw who is being drilled at right half, can be expected to see considerable action even if Halas elects to open with more experienced men.

Both Depend on Passes.

Passing figures to be the chief offensive weapon of both teams, altho the Bears offense essentially is a powerhouse attack. Green Bay will rely heavily on its Isbell to Don Hutson passing combination. The presence of such passers as Sid Luckman, McAfee, Bob Snyder, and Bernie Masterson and such receivers as Ken Kavanaugh, the All-Star rookie from Louisiana State, Dick Plasman, George Wilson, and Ray Nolting, gives the Bears an opportunity to indulge in the same long gaining aerial tactics. Kavanaugh, incidentally will have another chance to out-Hutson Hutson. His first attempt, in the Chicago All-Star game, ended rather disappointingly.

President Carl Storck of the National league, will come to Green Bay tomorrow morning to hold a conference with the officials before the game. This conference is being held at the suggestion of Coach Lambeau.

Newton, Mass., Sept. 21 (AP).—Boston college's Eagles launched their campaign today by overwhelming Centre's Colonels, 40 to 0, before 19,000.

The Eagles rolled up 16 first downs against two while playing in terrific heat, much to the delight of Coach Frank Leahy, who regarded this opener as the finest possible method of preparing his squad for next week's game with Tulane in New Orleans.

The Colonels' running attack stalled when Zeke Czekala suffered a pelvic injury early in the second period. He was removed to St. Elizabeth's hospital in Boston.

Oak Park High school's football team, champion of the Suburban league, and Loyola and St. Rita, members of the Catholic league, yesterday triumphed in the feature games of the Chicago district practice schedule. Ten thousand watched Oak Park rout Austin, its Public School league neighborhood rival, 23 to 0, in Oak Park stadium for the champions' 34th consecutive victory. It also was Oak Park's 12th triumph in the series with Austin.

Loyola academy won the 23d renewal of its rivalry with Senn of the Public School league, 20 to 0, before 4,000 in Loyola stadium, and St. Rita defeated Lindblom, also of the City league, 19 to 6, in St. Rita field.

Jim Dewar, left half back, starred in Oak Park's victory over Austin, scoring two touchdowns and tossing a 10 yard pass to Bob Nussbaumer for another. One of Dewar's scores was made on an 85 yard punt return. Left Half Back Foehrenger registered one of Loyola's touchdowns against Senn on a ten yard run and also figured in another score when he threw a 30 yard pass to Right Half Back Madden. The triumph gave Loyola a 17 to 3 edge in their series. Touchdowns by Bill Ivers and Bill Ruby gave St. Rita a 13 to 0 advantage over Lindblom at the end of the first half. Lineups:

SPENCER COALS, MILLS MEET IN SERIES FINAL

The Mills will close their semipro baseball season this afternoon in a double header with the Spencer Coals in Spencer field, 4200 North Central avenue. The games will be the last of their series for the city championship. Each team has won four games.

Ed Linke will pitch the first game for the Mills. The former Washington Senators right hander will be after his fourth triumph in as many starts. Howard Berg will work the second.

The Coals have been strengthened by the addition of their former pitching ace, Dick Hearn, who has just returned from the Florida State league, where he won 22 games and a trial with the New York Giants next spring. He'll probably share assignments today with either Slim De Lion or Herb Chmiel.

FORMER MAROONS TO HONOR STAGG AT SOUTH BEND

A. A. Stagg, former football coach at the University of Chicago, will be honored by the order of the "C," composed of men who have won Maroon major sports letters, when he brings the College of Pacific football team to South Bend to open Notre Dame's season on Oct. 6.

The "C" men, headed by their president, Judge Hugo M. Friend, are planning special exercises between halves of the game.

Stagg has a speaking rôle in "Knute Rockne All-American," which will have its simultaneous world première in three South Bend theaters on Friday night, Oct. 4. He will participate in the elaborate program which brings Pat O'Brien, who plays the part of Rockne in the picture, and other movie stars to South Bend.

Reservations for tickets for "C" men, their wives, and friends, are being handled by the order's secretary, Jay Berwanger, 340 West Huron street.

PAIGE, MONARCHS BATTLE ILLINOIS CHAMPS TODAY

Satchel Paige takes the mound in the American Giants' park this afternoon for the Kansas City Monarchs against the Chicago Palmer House Stars, Illinois state semipro champions. The game will start at 2:30.

Paige will be opposed by Roosevelt Davis, Palmer House ace who whipped him, 3 to 1, on Decoration day while pitching for the Brooklyn Royal Giants. In that game Davis fanned 17, Paige 15.

The Palmer House team includes such former American Giants stars as Alec Radcliffe, Jack Marshall, Dick Byas, Norm Cross, Johnny Bissant, and Norm Lloyd. They recently won fourth place in the national semipro tournament in Wichita. The Monarchs won the Negro American league crown for the second consecutive season.

Mount Carmel Coaches Sing Football Blues

Games Today

Mount Carmel vs. St. George, Evanston, 2 p. m.
St. Philip vs. Marmion, Aurora, 2:15 p. m.

The scene was a large banquet room in a loop hotel and the speaker was Elmer Layden, Notre Dame's football coach. The crowd of 3,000 which had gathered to honor Mount Carmel High school's Catholic league championship football team became silent as Layden moved toward a microphone.

"We at Notre Dame annually have watched the splendid high school players developed in the Chicago Catholic league and we know they always will distinguish themselves in any section of the United States," Layden said.

To Wally Fromhart and Fred Mundee, Mount Carmel's coaches, and Notre Dame graduates, the affair was a grand climax to a successful 1939 season. The squad had won the Catholic league title and later tied Fenger, Public School champion, 13 to 13, for the city championship. But it's a different setting now. Coaches Fromhart and Mundee will predict no titles for Mount Carmel this year. The fleet ball carrying stars of 1939 have graduated and so have several hard charging linemen.

Johnny Andretich and Frankie Meakim, the Touchdown Twins who led the Chicagoans to an overwhelming victory against West Palm Beach, Fla., in a post season game, have enrolled at Purdue. The lone backfield hope for 1940, Bob David, full back, has been declared ineligible.

A trip to the wailing wall will find the unhappy figures of three other former Notre Dame players who now serve as coaches in the league. This trio which fails to locate a silver lining in the 1940 dark clouds includes Andy Pilney of Weber; Al McGuff of St. Mel, and Emmett Murphy of De La Salle. Another occupant of a seat on this bench is Leonard Sachs, Loyola academy's veteran coach.

Loyola's first opponent on Oct. 6 will be Mount Carmel. Other opening south division contests will bring together Leo and De La Salle and St Rita and Catholic High of Joliet. Fenwick, a perennial contender for the sectional title, drew a bye. In the north section St. Ignatius, defending champion, will start the season against De Paul; St. Patrick will oppose Weber and St. Philip will meet St. George of Evanston. McGuff's St. Mel eleven will not open until the following week.

The sectional alignment with the schools and coaches follows:

SOUTH SECTION.
Loyola—Leonard Sachs; Mt. Carmel—Wally Fromhart; St. Rita—Dan Lamont; Leo—A. L. Cronin; Joliet—Rev. James Gilbert; Fenwick—Tony Lawless; De La Salle—Emmett Murphy.

NORTH SECTION.

GLENBARD WINS 1ST GAME FROM GLEN ELLYN, 13-0

West Suburban Champs Open Title Defense.

Glenbard High school, football champion of the West Suburban conference, yesterday made an auspicious start in defense of its title by defeating Hinsdale, 13 to 0, in Glen Ellyn. The game originally was scheduled for Nov. 2, but was moved up. Left Half Back Bruning scored both touchdowns in the second period, the first on a one yard plunge and the second on a sixty-five yard run after intercepting a Hinsdale pass. Lineup:

MIOLAND WINS BY 5 LENGTHS AT HAVRE DE GRACE

Beats Roncat in $10,000 Potomac Handicap.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 21 (AP).—Mioland, making his first appearance in Maryland since running second to Bimelech in the Preakness, breezed to an easy victory in the Potomac handicap before 15,000 sweltering fans today at Havre de Grace.

Guerrilla Finishes Third.

Roncat and the Tower stable's Guerrilla, which finished third, were the only horses in the field of eight 3 year olds which made a fight of it, and their best efforts were unavailing once Mioland turned on his speed in the homestretch.

Made the 4 to 5 favorite, Mioland returned $3.90 for $2 win tickets, while Roncat paid $14.30 for place. Mioland's victory in the $10,000 added feature enriched Howard by $8,175.

Roman Flag, Arnold Hanger's speedy horse, wound up a poor seventh.

It's No Contest.

Turning into the homestretch, Jockey Carroll Bierman began to let Mioland out and the son of Mio D'Arezzo-Islanda ran over everything in sight, disposing of all opposition but that of Roncat and Guerrilla in one move. It wasn't even a contest in the stretch. Mioland was increasing his lead with every stride, putting so much ground between himself and Roncat and Guerrilla that they couldn't have reached him by long distance telephone.

FAIRY CHANT WINS

New York, Sept. 21 [Special].—The chestnut filly Fairy Chant, bred and owned by William du Pont Jr., today captured the $19,550 Beldame handicap before 18,934 as Aqueduct's most successful meeting ended. Fairy Chant came from behind in thrilling fashion to score by a length at the end of a mile and a furlong run in 1:50 4-5.

Half way thru the race Fairy Chant appeared thoroly beaten. She was back in the ruck in the field of 16 as a dozen or more led her around the oval. Jockey Irving Anderson, however, brought her on to win going away.

Dotted Swiss Is Second.

Second, after leading from the break until the final eighth, was Arnold Hanger's Dotted Swiss, which got the place by a length over Jim Emery's Dolly Val.

The payoff across the board was $9, $5, and $3.80. The winner's share of the purse was $14,050.

Of additional interest was the running of the $12,950 Junior Champion stake, which went to Ogden Phipp's King Cole. King Cole led practically from the start to finish to earn a three lengths margin at the end of 6½ furlongs, run in 1:17. Level Best, top juvenile filly, was second, leading Nasca, another filly, by a length and a half.

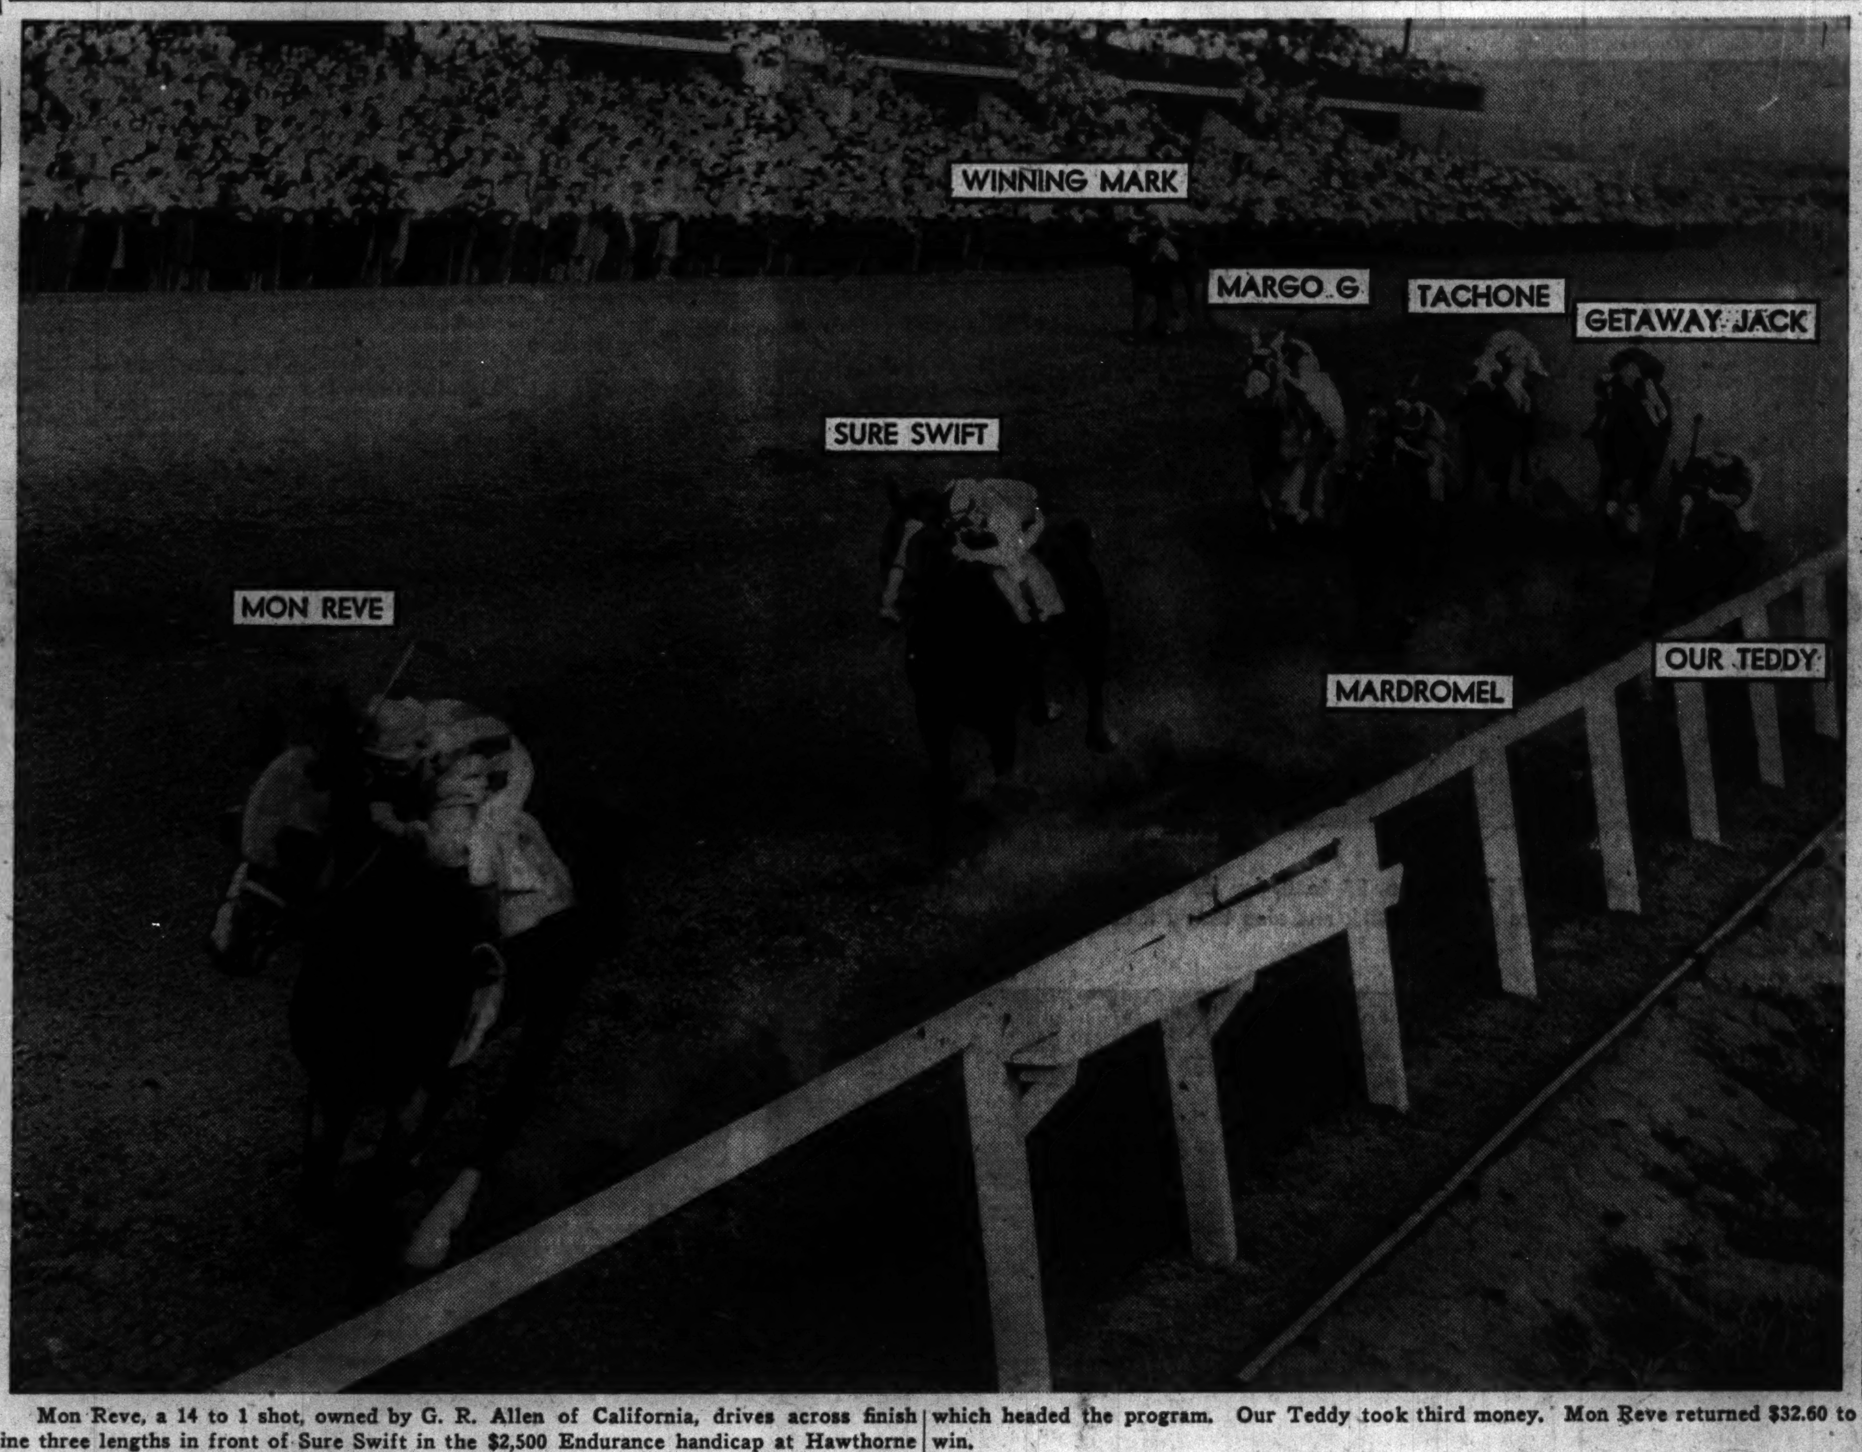
MON REVE SURPRISES IN HAWTHORNE DISTANCE RACE



Mon Reve, a 14 to 1 shot, owned by G. R. Allen of California, drives across finish line three lengths in front of Sure Swift in the $2,500 Endurance handicap at Hawthorne yesterday. The race was at two miles and a quarter and was one of two stake events which headed the program. Our Teddy took third money. Mon Reve returned $32.60 to win.

son. He had had considerable experience at a mile and a half, usually finishing fairly close to the winner. His prices yesterday were $32.60, $18.20, and $9.60. Place and show tickets on Sure Swift were worth $17.20 and $8.40. Our Teddy returned $14 to show.

Kandahar Takes Lead.

The start for the two mile and a quarter was made from the head of the home stretch. Immediately after the break, Kandahar forged to the front with Tacheone just behind. Our Teddy crossed over from No. 8 post position, and joined the first flight, side by side with Getaway Jack. Mon Reve settled back into last place on the clubhouse turn. Kandahar led the way for a complete circuit of the track, and came on to the finish line two lengths in the lead. Mardromel had moved up, and was running with Our Teddy, Getaway Jack, and Tacheone in close pursuit of the pacemaker.

Kandahar retained his lead on the last run down the back stretch, but they began closing on him approaching the far turn. Mardromel went to the front on the bend. Winning Mark was improving his position until the stirrup incident occurred. Meanwhile, Mon Reve was beginning to go places. He had worked his way up to sixth position as they headed into the stretch.

South shook him up and sent him right down the middle of the track. Mardromel was now beginning to tire. So was Sure Swift, Getaway Jack, and Our Teddy. Mon Reve overhauled them all, and was going in easy style as they crossed the finish. His time of 3:57 4-5 was a track record inasmuch as it was the first time that distance had been run at Hawthorne.

Hash Winner Over Challedon by Half Length

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 21 (AP).—The Greentree stable's Hash, winner of the Edgemere handicap at Aqueduct last Saturday, defeated the odds on favorite, Challedon, today in the seventh running of the $25,000 added Narragansett special at Narragansett Park.

Challedon, owned by W. L. Brann, finished half a length back in second position and the Valdina farm's Viscounty came home third. Burning Star, from the Shandon farm's stable, was fourth. Hash's time for the mile and three-sixteenths was 1:57.

It was the second time in two months that Challedon disappointed his New England followers. Last July, in the Massachusetts handicap at Suffolk Downs, he finished third behind Eight Thirty and Hash. Today he carried top weight of 130 pounds, eight more than Hash and 14 more than Viscounty.

Comes from Far Back.

Hash came from far back to score a triumph worth $24,600. Viscounty, a half length behind Challedon, was five lengths in front of the Shandon stable's Burning Star. Breaking at the rail, Challedon was taken back by Jockey George Woolf as Viscounty was pinched off between him and Arnold Hanger's Dit.

Mrs. A. J. Abel's Honey Cloud sprinted to the fore as they passed the grandstand and opened up a wide lead on W. F. Mannagh's Counterpoise.

The Wheatley stable's Gilded Knight was third down the back stretch, with Challedon fourth. Passing the nine-sixteenths pole, Challedon started up on the outside and closed ground on Gilded Knight, which went along with him to pass the other two in the far turn.

Challedon Slips Back.

Challedon had the rail as they passed the quarter pole and forged ahead of Gilded Knight. But from far back came Hash and Viscounty, both on the outside, with Hash further to the rear as they reached the head of the home stretch.

Eddie Arcaro, riding the Greentree horse, had a strong going colt under him in the home stretch and Challedon appeared defeated at the sixteenth pole.

The Brann colt added $4,000 to his earnings, however, and became the seventh American thorobred to earn more than $300,000 in his life time.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 21 [Special].—The three Clatt brothers of East Peoria High school probably top state prep circles for size in a family group. Wendell and Marvin, linemen, weigh 269 and 185, respectively. Corwin, a back, scales 205.

Flanery Entry Scores Twice in Horse Show

Horses owned by R. C. Flanery of Maple Grove, Ill., captured two events yesterday in the Town and Country Horse show in Harms Woods to head the list of prize winners. The two day event will close today. After Flanery's Harmony had carried off the blue ribbon in the open hackney pony class, his Spring Gale won the event for trotting horses under saddle.

Mrs. A. C. Thompson of Justice Park was Flanery's chief rival for honors. Her big gelding, Grey Wolf, defeated Black Top farm's Gay Don after a hard battle in the open jumper class. Her entries also won a second in the hackney pony competition, and a third in the event for hunter hacks.

Royal Crown Scores.

Royal Crown, owned by John Perring of Champaign and ridden by Lloyd Teeter, gained a close decision over Royal Fancy, owned and ridden by Frances McGuire of Chicago, in the open three gaited saddle horse class.

Place winners loomed as chief contenders for the stake championships on today's program. Nineteen events are scheduled, starting at 9 a. m.

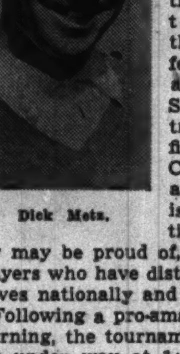
Illinois P. G. A. Opens 54 Hole Battle Today

Chicago golfers who like to traipse after the stars, and who think the local season for gallery trudging is over, are hereby advised that such is not the case, for this afternoon and tomorrow they are invited to attend the annual state tournament of the Illinois Professional Golfers' association at the St. Charles Country club. This field, from the Chicago district and downstate, is one any section of the country may be proud of, for it contains players who have distinguished themselves nationally and internationally.



Dick Metz.

Following a pro-amateur event this morning, the tournament proper will get under way at 1:30 o'clock with 18 holes of stroke competition. Thirty-six more of the same tomorrow will conclude the 54 hole battle.

Tough Job for Champion.

Richard Metz of Oak Park will attempt to defend the crown he won in Champaign a year ago last June. Dick has been having one of his best years this season, taking the Chicago Open and winning the medal in the difficult national professional tournament. He will have to be on his game all the way today and tomorrow if he would retain his Illinois crown, for this field includes lads who swing a golf stick or two themselves.

Among Metz's rivals are Johnny Revolta of Evanston, who until last year exercised a three year reign over all Illinois pros; Harry Cooper of Northmoor; Lloyd Mangrum and Horton Smith, Metz's assistant and predecessor, respectively, at Oak Park; Tommy Armour, Charley Penna, and Harry Adams of Medinah; Jimmy Foulis of Ruth Lake; Willie Goggin, unattached, and George Smith of Onwentsia.

Pairings, Starting Times.

Pairings and starting times for this afternoon's round:

1:30—Lloyd Mangrum, Oak Park; Johnny Gibson, Ridgemoor; Jock Hutchison Sr., Glen View.
1:35—Charles Tanis, Olympia Fields; Bill Brown, Olympia Fields; Bruce Herd, Flossmoor.
1:40—Tommy Armour, Medinah; Eddie Gayer, Twin Orchards; Eddie Williams, Bryn Mawr.
1:45—Harry Adams, Medinah; Johnny Bird, South Shore; Maurie White, La Grange.
1:50—Dick Metz, Oak Park; Walter Carberry, St. Charles; Al Huske, De Kalb.
1:55—George Smith, Onwentsia; Willie Goggin, Chicago; Gunnar Nelson, Rockford.
2:00—Jock Hutchison Jr., Rockford; Bob MacDonald, Chicago; Gene Battistoni, Big Oaks.
2:05—Harry Cooper, Northmoor; Dave Tosh, Sunset Ridge; Harley Greenamyre, Acacia.
2:10—Bill Rhodes, Sunset Ridge; Herb Johnson, Butterfield; Tommy Meehan, Illinois.
2:15—Willie Leith, Elgin; Steve Grady, Evanston; Willis Foland, North Shore.
2:20—Walter Keller, Addison Fairways; Frank Garrity, Chicago; Howard Attia, Edgewater.
2:25—Sam Bernardi, Old Elm; Louis Strong, Urbana; Bob Stupple, Skokie.
2:35—Jim Foulis, Ruth Lake; Charles Penna, Medinah; Jim Carberry, Aurora.

Cruising Cutter Is First Across Finish Line.

Katinka, Otto Schoenwerk's cruising cutter, and Ardelle, the Waltman-Udell syndicate sloop, were major winners in the Chicago Yacht club's annual eight mile buoy race yesterday. The race was sailed from Belmont harbor eastward eight miles and return. It was the only race of the season in which all boats were started at different times, according to their time allowances, instead of the usual one gun signal for each class.

Ardelle Wins by a Second.

Ardelle the universal division winner, defeated a fleet of other R class sloops, as well as Eagles and Tumlarens and the 10 meter cutter Revenge. Ardelle beat Romany, Ernest Heinemann's entry, to the finish line by only one second. Ardelle finished at 4:40:20, Hexa, third to finish, was first to start—at 2:15 p. m. It is a Tumlaren class sloop owned by Gordon T. Brummel.

Osprey II., Dr. Jay Webb Lowell's cruising cutter, won the Columbia Yacht club's light canvas handicap series race yesterday, as well as the club's second commodore's cup cruising race of the season. The 12 mile race sailed off Chicago harbor was timed according to two separate standards for the prize classifications. Hope, William Wachsman's 8 meter class sloop, won the commodore's cup universal division honors, with a corrected time of 1:15:26. Bee, Sid Tozer's Star, defeated three other stars of the club's fleet. Summaries:

Motor Yachts Hold Annual Cruise Today

Thirty motor yachts of the Southern Shore Yacht club are scheduled to take part in the club's annual cruise to Blue Island, Ill., on the Calumet river today. The fleet will start at 10 a. m. from the inner Jackson Park harbor.

Awards for the 1940 season's races were presented to winning skippers last week at the club's first meeting since last spring. Jason Smith, the winner, and Jack Pearce and R. R. Roland, owners of Pearce's Aro, runner-up, were awarded the Blake trophy prizes.

Cruising and racing craft of the Columbia Yacht club's sailing fleet will race today off Chicago harbor in one of the last events for large yachts before the Frostbite dinghy season opens.

At least three more high schools are inquiring about crew rowing at the Lincoln Park Boat club, according to Capt. Charles Miner of the club. This is in addition to the youths who already represent four city schools on the club's schoolboy rowing program.

22 TEAMS OPEN PLAY TODAY IN SOFTBALL MEET

With the Mayor Edward J. Kelly trophy and individual awards at stake, 22 teams will meet today in international softball tourney competition in Weber park, Wellington and Ashland avenues. Other trophies have been donated by Frank J. Lyman, Coroner Al Brodie, Clayton Smith, and Joseph H. Donahue.

The Sculls and O'Boyles will play in the opener, scheduled for 12:45 p. m. Play will continue thruout the afternoon and evening. 11 GAME LOSING STREAK ENDS AS GIANTS WIN, 3-1

Beat Bees to Gain First Victory Since Sept. 9.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 21 (AP).—For the first time since Sept. 9 the New York Giants today won a ball game. Their 3 to 1 victory over the Boston Bees put to an end the longest losing streak of the National league season—11 straight games.

In a duel between Bill Posedel and Harry Gumbert the Giants broke the scoreless spell in the seventh when Joe Moore doubled, took third on Babe Young's single and scored on Mel Ott's long fly. Frank Demaree singled in the ninth, scoring Ott who had walked, and Harry Danning who had doubled, for a 3 to 0 lead.

Gumbert had a three hit shutout until the ninth when Priebisch walked, took second on an infield out and scored on West's double. When Ross walked, Lynn replaced Gumbert and walked Miller, filling the bases, but Gene Moore flied to Joe Moore to end the game. Score:

REDS, 8-7; PIRATES, 1-8.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 21 (AP).—The Pirates halted an 11 game winning streak of the National league champion Cincinnati Reds today by batting to an 8 to 7 triumph in the 10 inning second game of a double header. The Reds won the opener, 8 to 1.

Bucky Walters yielded five hits in the first game to score his 21st victory against nine defeats.

Debs Garms, almost certain to claim the 1940 National league batting crown, singled in the 10th of the second game with the bases loaded to give the Pirates their third victory over the Reds this year. It was Garms' fifth hit of the game. Score:

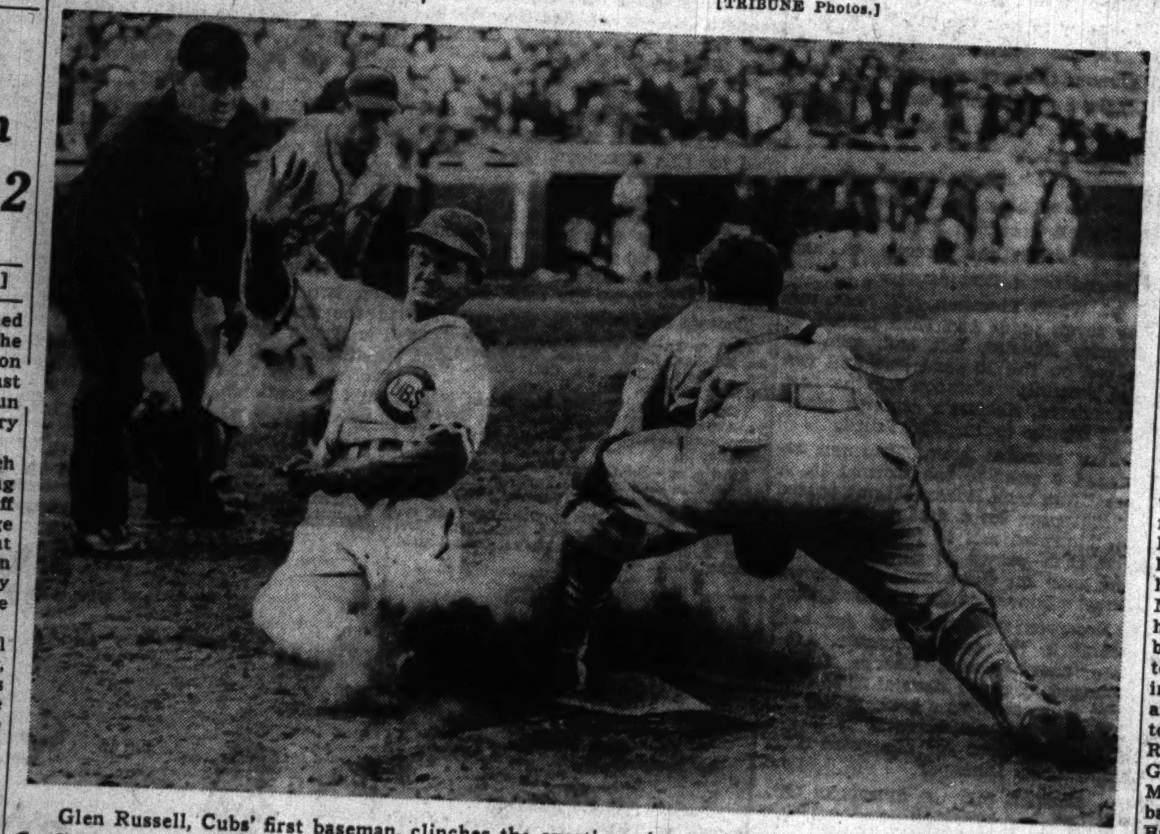
Walther League Nines Meet for Title Today

The Walther league baseball finals will be played this afternoon, at Concordia college, River Forest. Ebenezer, champion of the north side division, meeting St. Andrew's, champion of the south division, for the championship. Messiah church of the north side will meet Hope church of the south side for third and fourth places, respectively, in the district.

BIG MOMENTS IN CUBS' OVERTIME VICTORY

Jim Gleeson, Cubs' left fielder, slides into third base in the fifth inning of yesterday's battle with the Cardinals in Wrigley field after pounding out a triple which scored Hank Leiber. The Cubs made three runs in the inning and went on to win, 4 to 3, in 11 innings. No. 4 is Martin Marion, Cardinals' shortstop, and No. 17, Joe Orengo, St. Louis third baseman. Manager Gabby Hartnett (No. 2) of Cubs watches the play. George Magerkurth is the umpire.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]



Glen Russell, Cubs' first baseman, clinches the overtime victory as he slides safely under Mickey Owen, Cardinal catcher, with winning run in the 11th on Catcher Al Todd's single. Russell scored from second. The Umpire is Ziggy Sears. Bobby Mattick, Chicago shortstop, looks on.

by while Umpire John Quinn gummed up the Sox 1 to 0 victory over the Yanks on June 20, which was won on a replay by the champions last Wednesday in the equally famous sun eclipse decision of Umpire Harry Geisel.

Dykes has suggested that much trouble might be saved by sending the American league umpiring staff to George Barr's Blue Serge college in Florida during the off season, but he probably won't get any action on the suggestion. Superviser Connolly is too proud to go for anything like that, it is believed by observers.

The Sox lost all mathematical chance of winning the pennant today, even with sweet dream cancelations of the remaining games involving the three teams ahead of them in the league standings. They fell 3½ games behind the third place Yankees, but remained 2½ games ahead of the fifth place Red Sox, who also continued to choke.

Kuhel's homer ended three innings of hitless endeavor, the Sox attack in the first three innings having consisted of walks by Kuhel in the first inning and Appling in the second inning. Neither Joe nor Luke advanced.

Kuhel, Rosenthal Deliver.

Kuhel's 26th maximum smack hit a screen beyond the roof of the right field pavilion. Julius Solters followed with a strikeout, but Appling got his second pass. Rosenthal tripled to right center, scoring Appling, but was left on third when Rip Radcliff pulled down Bob Kennedy's long fly.

The Browns tied the score in the sixth. Roy Cullenbine opened with the fourth hit off Smith and Johnny Lucadello walked. The runners advanced while Radcliff was bouncing out to Kuhel and scored on Chet Laabs' single to center. Laabs took second on a throw to the plate. Harlond Clift struck out, George McQuinn walked and Berardino struck out.

Smith had to bear down as the result of Appling's error in the seventh. Bob Swift walked, but was forced on Vern Kennedy's attempted sacrifice. Cullenbine's cinch double play grounder went between Appling's heels and both runners were safe. Lucadello flied to Rosenthal and Radcliff was thrown out by Smith, tho Eddie fell and threw while teetering on his rotund subchassis.

Sox Threats Fail.

After Dave Short had fanned for Smith and Don Kolloway had bounced out in the eighth, Tresh and Kuhel walked. Solters ran the count to three balls and two strikes, then flied to Laabs.

Brown took over the Chicago pitching burden at the start of the ninth and Laabs, Clift, and McQuinn were retired on the infield.

Appling drew his third pass at the start of the ninth after which Taft Wright popped to Clift. Rosenthal walked then Bob Kennedy grounded into a double play.

LYONS PITCHES TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 21.—Ted Lyons will pitch against the Browns tomorrow in what may be his last appearance of the American league season. Manager Jimmy Dykes wants to have Ted well rested for the city series opener on Oct. 1. Bob Harris is slated to pitch for the Browns in the series final.

The Sox will leave for Detroit at 6:28 o'clock tomorrow evening. On Tuesday and Wednesday the Sox will seek to carry out their unwilling rôles as the Indians' assistant pennant winners by taking their ninth and tenth straight victories over the Tigers. The Browns will be in Cleveland Tuesday and Wednesday.

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—The New York Yankees stayed within shouting distance of the Detroit Tigers and the Cleveland Indians today by nosing out the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 4, behind the 12 hit pitching of Ernie Bonham, their rookie pitcher.

Bonham's seventh victory wasn't won until the ninth when Red Rolfe tripled and went home on Buddy Rosar's single. Stan Spence, pinch hitting with two out in the Sox half of the ninth, hit a homer to tie the score.

Two of the biggest Yankee hits were homers by George Selkirk—his 17th—and Joe Gordon—his 28th. A crowd of 13,388 saw the game. Score:

TIGERS AND ROWE WHIP INDIANS; LEAD BY 2 GAMES

Schoolboy's 16th Victory a 5-0 Shutout.

chance in the first inning, but they couldn't capitalize on it. Against Chapman, the leadoff man, Rowe's aim was bad, but he finally got rid of Ben on a fly to McCosky. Weatherly walked and Rowe sweetened the gift by letting go with a wild pitch, sending Weatherly to second. Boudreau then flied to Greenberg and Trosky brought more boos down on his well booed ear drums by popping to Gehringer.

The Tigers stumbled onto a quantity of run making ingredients in the second, but a double play stopped them. Greenberg led off with a pass and York, expecting Milnar's first pitch would be a cripple, swung hard and sent a sharp bounder to Boudreau for the twin killing. Then Higgins walked and Fox slashed a single into left field, but Tebbetts flied to Weatherly.

The next outbreak was the Indians' first hit. Chapman doubled to left with two gone in the third, but Weatherly fouled to Tebbetts. The Tigers also picked up a hit in the same inning. It was a single by Rowe with none out and a passed ball sent him to second. But Bartell and McCosky fanned and Boudreau threw out Gehringer.

Higgins' Bid for Homer Fails.

After York had fanned for the second out in the fourth Higgins cracked a low liner into center. Weatherly attempted a diving catch, but the ball moved on its way and was finally captured by Chapman. Higgins raced to third, and his manager wigwagged him to keep going. He did, but the relay from Boudreau was in Hemsley's hands by the time Higgins arrived. Higgins ran savagely into the one time rollicking Rollie inflicting the bruises that forced Hemsley's retirement an inning later.

The Indians, held to one hit for four innings, notched a pair against Rowe in the fifth and there would have been a third if it hadn't been for York. Keltner opened with a slow bounding single to Higgins. Mack turned loose a real drive and, while Mr. York is no fielding genius, he somehow managed to reach the blow with his gloved hand. He simply stepped on first and Keltner was doubled. Then Hemsley singled to left, but was forced by Milnar.

The first bit of the Tiger power that cracked down on Milnar for two runs in the fifth was Fox's double to left. This was where Hemsley decided he'd have to quit, Pytlak replacing him. Tebbetts was thrown out by Mack, and Rowe singled to center for his second hit, Fox scoring. Bartell beat out a bunt to Keltner, who added to the confusion by heaving the ball into right field, Rowe going to third and Bartell to second. Weatherly had to travel so far for McCosky's fly that Rowe walked home after the catch. Gehringer sneaked a single past Mack, but Boudreau recovered the ball and whipped it to Keltner to get Bartell, who had overrun third.

Fox Hits Another Double.

The sixth inning assault on Milnar developed after two were out. By that time Higgins was on first, having forced York, who had walked. Fox again rifled a two bagger into left center and Higgins galloped home. Tebbetts singled to left to score Fox. Chapman, in his rush to get the ball back to the infield, let it roll thru his hands, Tebbetts taking second. Rowe fanned for the third out.

Rowe had a little trouble in the seventh, but it didn't get beyond the full house stage. Bell and Mack singled and Pytlak walked with two out and Hale was sent up to swing for Milnar. The pinch batter fanned after working the count to 3 and 2. In the home half of the inning, Gehringer doubled and scored the Tigers' fifth run when Greenberg singled.

Cubs Score in 11th to Defeat Cards, 4 to 3

and continued to third on Nicholson's faulty throw to second base. Orengo then sent Koy home with the tying run on a single, after which Olsen fanned Marion, and Hack threw out Owen.

Singles by Warstler and Leiber in the sixth failed to aid the Cub cause, and Olsen extricated himself from a peck of trouble in the St. Louis seventh. After Warneke had flied to Nicholson, Brown lined a single to center. Hack tossed out Moore, but Martin walked, and the bases were filled when Mattick's bad throw on Mize's grounder pulled Russell off the bag. Olsen put an end to all this by striking out Koy.

FELLERS MOVE INTO NEW HOME THAT BOB BUILT

Van Meter, Ia., Sept. 21 (AP).—The Feller family today moved into its new $25,000 Norman-style brick home, built out of the earnings of the strong right arm of son Bob, Cleveland Indians' pitching star.

Located on the 360 acre Feller farm near here, the place contains 10 rooms and such unusual rural luxuries as musical door chimes and a foot pressure switch under the dining room table to summon the maid.

Dean and French Face Cardinals for Cubs Today

Dizzy Dean, who marked his return to the Cubs by winning his only two starts on the recent and successful eastern trip, will pitch the first game of today's double header against the Cards. Larry French is Gabby Hartnett's candidate for the second game. They will be opposed by Max Lanier and Morton Cooper.

Pat Pieper, who has been announcing batteries and lineups in Wrigley field for the last 25 years, will be honored by his friends with a "day" this afternoon. The plans include presentation of the customary gifts and oratory between games of the double header.

SOPHOMORE GETS ONLY SCORE IN ILLINOIS GAME

Dick Good Leads Orange to 7 to 0 Victory.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 21 [Special]. —Dick Good, sophomore half back from South Bend, Ind., went around right end from the 3 yard line in the second quarter to give the Orange team a 7 to 0 victory over the Blues in an Illinois intrasquad game in Memorial stadium today.

Good's run came shortly after Laverne Astroth, Orange quarter back, had taken an intercepted pass to the Blue 25 yard line. A penalty and a series of line plunges by Cliff Peterson, who showed well at full back, set up the touchdown. Good place-kicked the extra point.

Fifty men took part. Coach Bob Zuppke said that the teams showed sharpness, and clean tackling, but lacked power.

The Orange team capitalized on Blue errors altho outmatched, 9 to 2, on first downs. Lineups:

IRISH REGULARS LOSE.

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 21 [Special].—Steve Juzwik, junior right half back from Chicago, led the Notre Dame second team to a 14 to 0 victory over the regulars in today's half hour regulation scrimmage, scoring both touchdowns. The third and fourth teams played scoreless ties, as did the fifth and sixth units.

The shock troops scored a safety early in the game when a bad pass from Center Bob Osterman shot past Capt. Milt Piepul into the end zone where Steve Bagarus of the regulars recovered. The seconds soon after that launched a fifty-three yard march, ending when Don Hogan passed to Juzwik for eighteen yards and a touchdown. Johnny O'Brien, right end, blocked Juzwik's placement for the extra point. Juzwik skirted right end for thirteen yards and the shock troops' second touchdown. His placement was low.

The regulars, featuring Bob Saggaus and Steve Bagarus' passing, immediately launched a sixty-nine yard march which ended on the 1 yard line.

FINAL MICHIGAN TEST.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 21 [Special]. —With only a week remaining before the Michigan team steps into the University of California stadium, Coach Fritz Crisler today took his squad into the Michigan stadium for the final preseason test under game conditions. The results of today's scrimmage were to determine the personnel of the team that will leave by plane Wednesday for the west coast. About 35 players will make the trip. Crisler spent the morning running the team thru light workouts during which passes were emphasized.

STRAUSBAUGH INJURED.

Columbus, O., Sept. 21 [Special].— Jim Strausbaugh, left half back, and counted upon to do most of the ball carrying this season for Ohio State suffered a sprained ankle during an intra-squad game today which saw the regulars beat the reserves, 18 to 3. Strausbaugh is not expected to play against Pittsburgh here Saturday. He was carried from the field and taken to a hospital. Dr. Walter Duffee ordered him confined to the hospital until the middle of next week.

Strausbaugh's place was taken by Nichols, others in the back field were Don Scott at quarter back, Capt. Jimmy Langhurst at full back and Tom Kinkaid at right half back. The Buckeyes stressed passing today.

GOPHERS TEST SOPHOMORE.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 21 [Special].—Possibility that a sophomore— Bill Daly—may get the call over veteran Bob Sweiger at full back in the Minnesota starting lineup against Washington next Saturday developed today after what may be the last stiff scrimmage before the game. Daly, who is exceptionally fast, saw considerably more service with the varsity this afternoon than Sweiger.

Most of the squad of 60 got into today's scrimmage. Coach Bernie Bierman changed lineups so often that little hint was given on what players stood the best chances of starting against Washington. George Franck, Joe Mernik, and Bruce Smith scored touchdowns.

DRISCOLL DISSATISFIED.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 21 [Special]. —Altho his varsity and second teams scored 11 touchdowns in a practice game with the freshmen today, Coach Paddy Driscoll of Marquette university was far from satisfied with the blocking and timing. The varsity held the freshmen without a first down.

PURDUE BEATS FROSH.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 21 [Special]. —Purdue's varsity was given all it could handle in the first half, but finally gained enough momentum in the third and fourth quarters this afternoon to defeat the freshman squad, 34 to 0. The varsity was held to a 7 to 0 lead in the first half.

In the third quarter, Red Carter, sophomore, brother of Jim Carter, who earned gridiron fame as one of Purdue's "touchdown twins" some years ago, scored on a pass from Mike Byelene. Carter scored the first one on an end run. Other scorers were Hal Schumacher, full back, on a line plunge; Forest Sprowl, on a pass from John Galvin; Bill Lindsay on a lateral.

Michigan's Air Hostesses Are Football Minded

Because they have been assigned to the Mainliners which will carry Michigan's football team to Berkeley, Cal., for the Wolverines' opening game with California Saturday, these United States Air Lines hostesses have been brushing up on football. Left to right: Vera Vogle, Billie Naylor, and Margaret Finney. The Michigan team will arrive in Chicago Wednesday aboard three chartered planes for a 15 minute stop at the city airport en route west.

DeCorrevont Carries the Ball as of Old

Bill de Correvont demonstrated that he will be ready to take his turn in Northwestern's backfield this fall by playing about eight minutes in yesterday's intrasquad scrimmage.

Altho it was Bill's first contact work of the two week old season, he ran, kicked and passed well. He carried the ball a half dozen times for gains rainging from four to twelve yards. De Correvont was operated on in July for appendicitis and had confined his previous workouts to limbering up exercises.

Red Hahnenstein, Don Clawson, and Ike Kepford shared ball carrying honors as the first team scored twice against the reserves. Kepford scored on a seven yard off-tackle smash after the varsity recovered a fumble. Hahnenstein opened the next drive with a forty yard run followed by runs of twelve and fifteen yards each by Clawson and Kepford. Clawson scored on a fifteen yard plunge.

In the second half, Erwin Madsen, senior half back, and Jack Funderburg, sophomore full back, sparkled as the second team overpowered the third team. Madsen scored two touchdowns, his second being on a thirty yard run. Funderburg, who was shifted from guard to full back in spring practice, also scored two touchdowns. Funderburg's showing was a source of satisfaction to the coaching staff since Paul Soper and George Benson, veteran fullbacks, are both on the injured list. Soper will return to action Monday but Benson will be out indefinitely.

MRS. E. T. GERNON, FORMER GOLF CHAMPION, DIES

Madison, Wis., Sept. 21 [Special].— Mrs. Edward T. Gernon, 41, one of the middlewest's outstanding golfers a decade and a half ago, died in a hospital early today from infantile paralysis. Formerly Miss Dorothy Page, she won the 1926 Women's Western golf championship over the Olympia Fields course in Chicago. She was women's champion of her home club here, Maple Bluff, at the age of 14 years; won the Western Junior association championship the next year, and won state titles in 1927, 1930, and 1931.

Mrs. Gernon was graduated from the University of Wisconsin with Phi Beta Kappa honors in 1930 and was affiliated with Delta Gamma sorority. Surviving are her husband, a Madison broker; a daughter, Nancy, 2 years old; her parents, Prof. and Mrs. W. H. Page; two brothers, Gilman of Madison and Robert Page of New York, and a sister, Mrs. Ruth Schorer of Cambridge, Mass. Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon, with burial in Forest Hill cemetery.

FIVE CHAMPIONS ENTER 70 MILE BICYCLE RACE

Five newly crowned champions will go into action next Sunday in quest of the fourteenth annual George Barrett Elgin to Chicago bicycle road championship over a course of more than 70 miles. Since the event is a handicap, this quintet will start from scratch.

John Crowder of New York, winner of the national two and 10 mile titles, will match pedaling with Bob Stauffacher of San Jose, Cal., 1939 national champion, and such local stars as Ed Carfagnini, national and state title holder; Marvin Thompson, quarter mile record holder and winner of a recent 50 mile grind, and Earl Kelly of the C. Y. O., who holds the A. A. U. state road racing crown.

A record field of nearly 200 starters is expected. Entries close Tuesday night at the Barrett A. C., 21st place and Damen avenue, when the handicap committee gathers to allot the time limits to the contestants.

BEG YOUR PARDON

Due to error from the source of information, THE TRIBUNE of last Sunday inadvertently stated that Richard B. Woy, athletic director at Reddick [Ill.] High school is a Chinese. Woy is of English ancestry.

Stop En Route

Michigan's football squad will have just time enough for a short workout at the city airport Wednesday when it arrives aboard three United Air Lines Mainliners, en route to Berkeley, Cal., for its game with California.

Fifty-six players, trainers, coaches, and newspapermen will make the flight, representing the largest athletic airplane charter trip on record. The planes will arrive in Chicago from Detroit at 2:45 p. m. and will leave 15 minutes later. An overnight stop will be made at Denver and a halt at Salt Lake City for practice. The team will land at Oakland, Cal., Thursday evening. The Wolverines will leave on their return flight Sunday morning, arriving in Detroit before midnight the same day.

Tygh Proves He's Ready to Meet Lander

Jimmy Tygh, rugged lightweight of Philadelphia, is ready for his Chicago debut—a 10 round bout with Eddie Lander of the west side in Marigold gardens tomorrow.

Jimmy Tygh.

Tygh, who was born in Philadelphia 23 years ago of Irish stock, ended sparring in Trafton's gymnasium yesterday in impressive fashion. He is a hard right hand hitter, giving a sample of the potency carried in this weapon by flooring a mate in his opening drill on Friday.

Despite his aggressive style during a three year campaign against the best men in his division, Tygh remains unmarked. He walks with a swagger, perhaps because he has a record of 43 victories in 55 fights. Jim has suffered 8 setbacks. Four other matches ended in draw decisions.

Tygh won 29 contests and fought one deadlock decision before suffering his first setback at the hands of Billy Maher on Dec. 12, 1938. Among his victims are Chico Romo, Tony Canzoneri, Billy Marquart, and Leo Rodak. One of the black marks against his record is a 12 round defeat by Nick Camarata in New Orleans last year.

Lander conquered Camarata in a 10 round encounter in Marigold arena last summer, but there is a suspicion that he may have boxed over his head on that occasion. Since then he has not equaled the form he displayed that night. In his last appearance Eddie beat Phil Saeli June 17. Supporting matches tomorrow:

Chico Romo vs. Gene Ward, [8], 140.
Sammy Secreet vs. Babe Thompson, [4], 147.
Mickey Hayes vs. Frank Green, [4], heavyweights.
Don Goldberg vs. Bob O'Brien, [4], 175.

Karol Krauser, Polish heavyweight wrestler, will meet Pete Baltran in White City tomorrow. . . . Wendell White and George [Old Folks] Johnson, popular local amateur lightweights, will appear in a five round fight in Legion stadium Tuesday. . . . There also will be an amateur program in the Johnny Coulon club on Wednesday. Ernie Deriho and John Winter will meet in a featured engagement in the show, which is sponsored by Cook county council, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Midget Auto Racers Meet in Matinee Next Sunday

With the discontinuance of Saturday night midget racing for the season, a series of weekly afternoon competitions will be inaugurated next Sunday at Raceway Park, 129th street and Ashland avenue. The change will not disturb the point standing in the season championship. Ted Duncan will defend the lead in the inaugural matinée card. He has an edge of less than 10 points over Wally Zale.

PLAY THIRD OF SERIES.

Match Corporation of America, Chicago, will meet the Joliet Rivals tonight in Parichy stadium, Harlem and Harrison, in the third and deciding game of the Illinois Major Softball league championships.

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 21 [Special.] —Inability to halt the passing attack of Eastern Kentucky Teachers of Richmond during the first half caused Illinois State Normal university to lose its opening game of the season, 20 to 0, today.

Eastern Kentucky scored shortly after the opening kickoff. Bert Smith, half back, returned a punt twenty-five yards to the Normal 48, and plunged for a first down on the 36. Capt. Wyatt Thurman, half back, ran for seven yards and then passed to Charles Shuster, left end, who received on the 10 yard line and ran the remaining distance for the first touchdown. Shuster's attempt place-kick for the extra point failed.

Five minutes later, Thurman returned a punt to the Normal 45. A substitute back, Robert Mawot, passed to Thurman for a first down on the 28. Thurman ran to the Normal 15, and then passed to Shuster in the end zone for the second touchdown. Shuster converted for the extra point.

Reserves took the field for both teams in the second quarter. After two short passes, George Ordich plunged from the Normal 22 to the 9 and then ran around his own left end for the third touchdown. He kicked from placement for the point after touchdown. Lineups:

NORMAL [0].		E. KENTUCKY [20].

TILDEN, RICHARDS EASY WINNERS IN 1ST PRO MATCHES

Overwhelm Younger Rivals Before 2,000.

Bill Tilden and Vincent Richards, two tennis veterans, outstripped their younger rivals yesterday in the opening round of the national professional tennis tournament at the Chicago Town and Tennis club before 2,000.

Tilden, who is 47 years old, took only 34 minutes to defeat Louis Volpe Jr., pro at Exmoor Country club, Highland Park, 6-0, 6-2, 6-1. Richards, 38, and considerably plumper than he was as a star Davis cup player, duplicated this act with a 6-0, 6-0, 6-1 victory over Jack Macy, Saddle and Cycle club professional.

Tilden swept thru the first set in 10 minutes with the loss of eight points. In the second set, Volpe managed to score enough points to make a slightly better showing, but Tilden won the final set almost as quickly as the first.

George O'Connell Wins.

Richards routed Macy, 10 years his junior, just as easily. He swept thru the first two sets in little less than 20 minutes. Macy managed to win only the opening game of the third set.

George J. O'Connell, pro at the Chicago Town and Tennis club, won in four sets from Igor Dennisoff of Gibson Island, Md., in the opening match of the day. The scores were 6-2, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2.

Art Hendrix, coach at the United States naval academy, Annapolis, Md., needed only 55 minutes to whip George Gaudet, pro at the Country Club of Evanston, 6-0, 6-1, 6-1. Hendrix' brother John of Coral Gagles, Fla., was defeated by George Jennings of the Northmoor Country club, Highland Park, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2, 6-3. In the first final first round match, Kenneth Napier of Seattle, Wash., beat Loring Fiske, Skokie Country club, Glencoe, 6-1, 6-4, 6-1.

Continue Play Today.

Five more first round matches and one second round meeting are scheduled for this afternoon. Fred Perry, former world's amateur champion, and Karel Kozeluh, one of the craftiest players in the game, are among those playing first round matches. Don Budge, who drew a first round bye, will play George Jennings for the right to enter the third round.

Today's schedule:

2:30 p. m.—Joe Whalen, Larchmont, N. Y., vs. Alan Wylie, Winnetka, Ill.; Karl Kozeluh, Greenwich, Conn., vs. Ray White, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

4:30 p. m.—Don Budge, Oakland, Cal., vs. George Jennings, Highland Park, Ill.; William E. Insman, New York, vs. John Lamb, Denver, Colo.

The Calumet Shops Bowling league of the Pullman company, a circuit recruited from among messenger boys, company officials, clerks, inspectors, mechanics, foremen, and safety supervisors, will open its 1940-'41 season tomorrow night, bowling at Turner's recreation, 7939 South Chicago avenue.

Evidence of the increasing popularity of the sport in the Pullman organization is seen in the growth of the league from 12 teams last year to 16 this season—with indications that it will increase to 20 teams in 1941-'42. The concern's management is actively interested in the sport, as Second Assistant Manager L. F. Munson is anchor on the Managers' team. First Assistant Manager Duane M. Cohee will roll out the first ball tomorrow night.

Teams and their captains are:

Joiners, A. Faltus; Safety, H. J. Ericsson, Iron, F. Gentzle; Welders, J. Kubilius; Brass, C. Timmano; Cabinet, K. Essig; Trimming, V. Nolan; Paint, J. Rumshus; Inspectors, J. Griz; Store No. 112, H. Berg; Tin, F. Osborn; Managers, A. J. Dlusak; Accounting, S. Olson; Store No. 105, L. Hillstrom; Steam, B. Zanon; Electric, B. Hobson.

About the Women.

Bee Hochstadter rolled high total, 571, in Bruck's women's major league Monday night. Other scores:

Lillian Koehler turned in 212 and 221 games in a 604 series to top the scoring in the Crest women's Monday league. Other scores:

Maud Konen, 551; Esther Salkin, 201, 545; Mae Katt, 545; Amelia Rice, 527; Eliza Reich, 508.

Nina Van Camp was high in Schalk's Tuesday afternoon women's league with a 213 game and 580 series. Other scores:

Spotting the Pins.

The Stanoll and Iso-Vis pin men swept their series to take the lead on the opening night of the Stanolind league's 28th season. The organization, made up within Standard Oil company, consists of 12 teams and bowls at Congress recreation.

Bud McClintock bowled 685, including a 279 game, to pile up top series of the week at Hyde Park recreation. Warf Brewer was second with 222-205-225—652; Ray Hultquist third with 208-221-222—651, and Walter Wendt fourth with 612, including a 236 game. . . . Harold Grogan shot 685, the league's high series for the evening as the Walter C. Eden insurance team won two games from the Carltons in the Beverly Major Friday night. The Smith Candies won a set from the Strachan Coals and the Summers Florist shop took three from Wiesner's recreation.

The Bireley Beverages, who rolled as the Whitecaps last season, won all of the honors in the Windy City league Monday night, and wound up the evening's competition by having won three games and gone into a tie for the league lead with the Quality Laundrys, each with five won and one lost.

Tomorrow night's schedule:

Budweiser vs. O'Keefe Coals; J. M. Kralovec & Son vs. None Better Ice Cream; Reichman Jewelers vs. Blue Rock Beverages; Furman Funerals vs. Mineralites; Nemecek Tailors vs. Burlington Zephyrs; Quality Laundries vs. Gills; Bireley Beverages vs. Houcek Senators; Vogel Brothers vs. Betinis Boosters.

Samuelson's Kids shattered the Budweisers' string of six straight games by sweeping a set with the Buds, thereby taking the Samuelson's Major league lead with seven games won and two lost, and dropping the Buds into a second place tie with the Butler Papers at six won and three lost.

Mohawks Win Three.

Mohawk Recreation won three games from Schlitz to take the lead in the Greater Chicago Traveling league. Just behind them, each with two games won, are the Avondale Recreations, Kruse Service Stations, Merit Cigars, and Goranson's Alleys.

The Merchandise Mart, defending champion, and Mart Tower teams went into the lead in the Merchandise Mart league Thursday night, each with five games won and one lost, by sweeping their series with Luster's Express and Johns-Manville, respectively. Merchandise Mart piled up a total of 2,859 pins for its triumph.

Barrett Conway, vice president and secretary of the Chicago and North Western railway, threw out the first ball to open the road's 400 Bowling league at Schueneman-Flynn's, 4421 Milwaukee avenue, Tuesday, after which his team, known as Conway's Minutemen, won a pair from Faricy's Firemen.

Left handed Joe Gruenes was the individual star as Jack Samuelson's Kids went into a tie for the North End Traveling league lead by winning two games from the defending champions, Schamberger Schlitz, Gruenes shot at 641 series.

Tomorrow's schedule:

Pepsi-Cola at De Luxe recreation, 7 p. m.; Samuelson's Kids vs. Fox De Luxe at Kaadland, 7 p. m.; Chapin & Gore vs. Schambergers at North Town, 7 p. m.; Jolly Jacks vs. Birk Trophy Beers at Willow, 7 p. m.; Budweisers vs. Koenig Brau at Stack & Ryan, 9 p. m.

Keeleys Take Lead.

The Keeley Beers took over the Northwest Traveling league lead by sweeping a set with the defending champions, the Budweisers, at Milford recreation. The Keeleys turned in a 3,011 series to accomplish their triumph. Jack Sampayo of Schamberger Schlitz rolled a 268 game and 664 series, submitted a 646 total, including a 266 game. Mel Clark of the Keeleys leads the league with a 214 average. The Sunday division of the Classic league will bowl at 8 o'clock tonight at North Center recreation, 4017 Lincoln avenue. The leading Michelobs —with six games won of six rolled— will oppose the Pabst Blue Ribbons; Schlitz meets the Monarch Beers; Koenig Brau faces Ambrosia, and Blatz Beer is paired with the Ruppert Knickerbockers.

DUCK SHOOTERS AWAIT START OF SEASON ON OCT. 1

Hunters Also Prepare to Bag Pheasants.

BY BOB BECKER.

At this time of the year the sportsmen who like hunting may be heard saying, "It won't be long now," which in hunters' language means that it's only a few weeks until the shotguns go boom.

In the northern zone of states duck hunters already have picked their spots for the big shooting party that attends the opening day of the season on Oct. 1. Hundreds of Illinois hunters already have made reservations in South Dakota for a combination duck, partridge, and pheasant hunting starting Oct. 1. The first ruffed and sharp tailed grouse hunters to burn powder already are in the hunting fields, for this weekend marks the opening of the September season in some Wisconsin counties. And to add to the excitement of the waterfowl hunters flocks of early ducks are beginning to come down from the north to join the local birds which were raised in the middle west.

Fees Remain Same.

Our survey of Illinois river hunting spots which take hunters for a daily fee, and the wild goose hunting country near Cairo, shows that there are few changes in the fees which will be charged this fall. It will cost anywhere from $10 to $21 to rent a blind, boat, and decoys for a day, with most accommodations averaging $10 per person per day. This is the same rate that prevailed last season along the Illinois. The Cairo, Cache, and Miller City goose hunting region has maintained a daily fee rate of $10 per day per person for many years. According to letters received from some of the boys down there, it will be $10 per day again this season.

With the duck season due to open in Illinois on Oct. 16th, sportsmen desiring to rent blinds and decoys should not lose any time making their reservations. This admonition also holds good for the goose hunting pits around Miller City. Already some of the waterfowl shooters have reserved their blinds for opening day and also for dates later in the season.

Invade South Dakota.

Illinois is going to send a real upland game army into South Dakota for the opening of the duck, pheasant, and partridge season, Oct. 1. More inquiries on South Dakota have slid across our desk this fall than in any season during the last five years.

Our recommendation to hunters to use Huron, Mitchell, Madison, Sioux Falls, Webster, Watertown, Aberdeen, or Redfield as bases for their shooting trips still holds good.

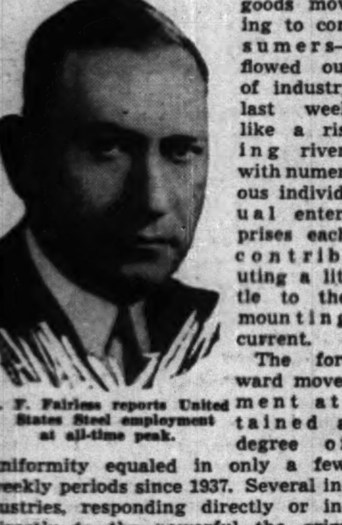
MOUNTING TIDE OF ORDERS AND JOBS CONTINUES

Industry Responds to Defense Push.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Cheering news for workers and business men—more jobs, more orders more goods moving to consumers—flowed out of industry last week like a rising river, with numerous individual enterprises each contributing a little to the mounting current.



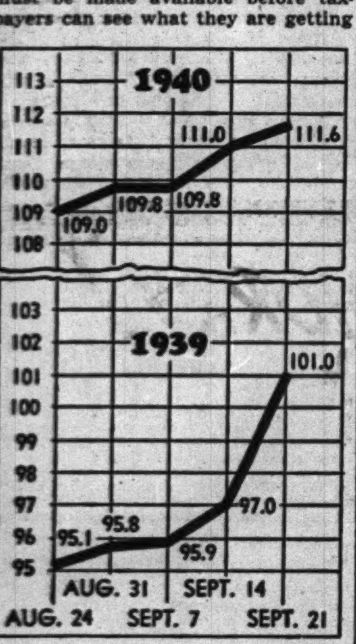
B. F. Fairless reports United States Steel employment at all-time peak.

The forward movement attained a degree of uniformity equaled in only a few weekly periods since 1937. Several industries, responding directly or indirectly to the powerful tho grim stimulus of preparation for arms production, hovered at 10 year peak levels or established new 1940 high marks.

The most spectacular developments of the week were the daily announcements of national defense orders and construction contracts which ranged into the hundreds of millions of dollars. Many of these, however, were in the paper stage.

Normal Upturn Underway.

The real stimulants to business were the less colorful normal autumn influences and the steps being taken by industry to convert the nation's defense efforts into such tangible things as factory buildings, machinery, tools and raw materials which must be made available before taxpayers can see what they are getting



The course of industrial activity in recent weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, which is based on 1929-'30 activity as 100.

Indicating the breadth of the business improvement were reports issued during the week showing upturns in the following indices of activity: Steel production [1940 peak], automobile manufacturing, engineering construction, textile making, machine tool making [nearing the world war peak], metal working, electric power production [near 1939 all-time high], railroad freight movement [1940 peak], retail trade, wholesale orders and bank clearings.

Securities and commodities markets on the whole improved. Federal reserve system member banks reported one of the largest weekly increases in commercial, industrial and agricultural loans in years for the week ended Sept. 11.

"Avalanche" in Prospect.

A journal which speaks for the metal working trade said that thousands of plants are assured of their busiest winter in history and that an "avalanche" of defense orders in the next 30 days is in prospect.

Reporting retail trade averaged 9 to 15 per cent better last week than in the corresponding 1939 period, compared with a year to year gain of 5 to 10 per cent indicated for the preceding week, Dun & Bradstreet said activity in some lines is at the year's highest level. Inventories are generally low, the mercantile agency said.

While steel mills were raising operations to a national average of 92.9 per cent of capacity, compared with 91.9 a week earlier and 79.3 a year ago, company executives were considering the possibility that the government might establish priorities in deliveries, and there was talk of possible extension of shipping dates.

Report Employment Gains.

Benjamin F. Fairless, president of United States Steel corporation, said on a visit to Chicago that the company and its subsidiaries now employ 255,918 persons; more than ever before.

The Associated Press index of industrial activity last week climbed to the highest mark for the season since 1929. The index, adjusted for seasonal influences, compared as follows:

	This wk.	Prev. wk.	Yr. ago

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Three more 1941 model automobiles are being introduced by their manufacturers to the public today. They are the Chrysler, the new Nash entry in the so-called low price field, and the Oldsmobile. Each car has numerous improvements and refinements.

All three cars are splendid examples of what American manufacturers have been able to do in giving car buyers more value for their dollars while at the same time holding increasing costs to a minimum. The three new models are described here in the order of their senority, with Oldsmobile first for having entered the automobile scene in 1897. Nash has been on the market since 1917 and Chrysler since 1925.

Presents Six New Series.

The Oldsmobile division of General Motors presents six new series, consisting of three sixes and three eights. It again is emphasizing its hydramatic drive, a combination of the fluid coupling with automatic gear shifting which does away with clutch and gear shifting by the driver. Enlarged facilities will permit the company to provide more cars with the equipment. Last year it was possible to build only enough of the new transmission for about 25,000 cars.

Oldsmobile officials say that after wide service in the hands of these 25,000 owners last year not a single change of importance was found to be necessary. A minor safety improvement, they said, is the inclusion of an interlock control which automatically places the control lever in neutral position when the starter pedal is depressed.

6 and 8 Cylinders.

The various 1941 Oldsmobiles may be had with either six or eight cylinders. Power of the six has been stepped up to 100 horsepower and the eight generates 110. The Special series in the low priced field replaces the "60" model. New is the Dynamic Cruiser series which replaces the 70. The Dynamic Cruiser is highly streamlined and is of the "tear-drop" design. The Custom Cruiser, in the popular torpedo design, is retained, but has numerous refinements and improvements.

Altho resembling the 1940 cars, front ends in the 1941 models show changes thru the use of heavier chrome bars and grille work. A new fender design, termed "wing type," is included in all models. These defenders are described as "blending into the body itself like the folded wings of a bird." New massive bumpers are said to give a maximum of protection against traffic mishaps.

Wheelbase is Increased.

Wheelbase of the Special has been increased to 119 inches and that of the two senior lines is 125 inches. All doors are hinged at the front for safety. An automatic switch lights the dome light when doors are opened. More attention has been paid to interior trim and colors. New cylinder type shock absorbers help the ride.

Improvements have been made in the six cylinder engines increasing the horsepower. Both sixes and eights have been given added cooling facilities. The customary tangle of wires beneath the dash has been replaced with a neat group plug type connection. A new air conditioning and heating system is included on some models. All cars come in a wide range of colors.

Among the many features of the new Nash car, which was three years in the designing, are the following: An economy in fuel consumption said to give 25 to 30 miles to the gallon, new type steel bodies for strength, seats nearly 5 feet wide giving fully enough room for three passengers in both front and rear, coil springs on all four wheels.

Body Is Torpedo Type.

The body styling is of the torpedo type. The six cylinder engine is newly designed. It develops 75 horsepower. A new type of two way, ball bearing steering is said to make it possible to make a U-turn in 33 feet. Running boards are concealed. The Nash "weather eye" system of air conditioning will be available at moderate extra cost.

W. A. Blees, general sales manager for the Nash division of the Nash-Kelvinator corporation, says one of the most important elements in the efficiency of the new engine is "its perfect balance." This has been achieved by the use of intricate new radio machines. Between 400 and 500

Huge Pumps Ordered

Here is part of a centrifugal pump of the type ordered by the sanitary district of Chicago for the Racine avenue pumping station. Men working on it indicate its size.

Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company, Milwaukee, Wis., yesterday announced that it had received from the sanitary district of Chicago a $90,000 contract for two large centrifugal pumps and motors for the Racine avenue pumping station in Chicago.

The pumps, with a rated capacity of 375 cubic feet a second, will be driven by 1,100 horse power motors. Max W. Babb, president of Allis-Chalmers, said the pumps are among the largest of the centrifugal type ever built. They will be used primarily for handling storm sewage.

MANY LAKE SHIPS TO BE USED FOR GRAIN STORAGE

With elevator space jammed virtually to capacity in some areas, one of the largest fleets of lake vessels on record will be used to store grain this winter, it was indicated yesterday by reports from various centers. Owners of the grain may find it necessary to pay a higher storage rate because some fleet operator are expected to keep their ships in operation later than usual.

At Cleveland, O., brokers were reported bidding vessel owners as much as 8 cents a bushel for use of the ships for storage purposes, with some operators holding out for 10 and 11 cents a bushel.

Pressed for storage room, Minneapolis, Minn., elevator operators asked country elevator men thruout the northwest to hold up the shipment of grain for a week or 10 days to permit grain now on railroad tracks to be unloaded.

At Buffalo, N. Y., vessels dumped 4,979,687 bushels of grain into elevators in the last week, and only 823,535 bushels were shipped out by rail and water. Elevators there are holding 17,775,231 bushels, or about the limit of their capacity.

SALT PRODUCERS NAMED ON PRICE FIXING CHARGES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21 (AP).—The federal trade commission announced today it had issued a complaint against the Salt Producers association, Detroit, 20 salt companies and a New York business management firm charging "combinations and conspiracies for prevention of price competition."

The commission charged that beginning about October, 1935, the salt companies "fixed and maintained" uniform prices and the association collected and distributed information used in carrying out the agreements. The business management firm, the commission said, supervised the companies' activities "in furtherance of the alleged combinations and conspiracies."

Cuban Export Item Takes a Big Hop—It's Frog Legs

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21 [Special].—Frog leg exports from Cuba to the United States increased in value from $1,627 in 1938 to $18,188 in the first half of this year, the department of commerce reported today. Current prices F. O. B. Havana range from 20 to 25 cents a pound for chilled frog legs to 30 to 40 cents a pound for frozen legs.

Report Canada's Second War Loan Oversubscribed

OTTAWA, Sept. 21 (AP).—Bank of Canada officials said Canada's $300,000,000 war loan, the second since the war started, apparently had been well over-subscribed before the closing of subscription books today.

New Rail Truck Tested for Use in Fast Freight

Tests are being made with a new type of railroad freight car truck, which, if successful, are expected to result in important advances in American railroading, it was disclosed yesterday in Milwaukee. The purpose of the tests is to make possible the transportation of freight at the high speeds now demanded by the public while reducing possibility of damage to shipments.

American Steel Foundries, Chicago railroad equipment manufacturer, is conducting the tests on the Milwaukee railroad between Milwaukee and Portage, Wis. A Hiawatha type steam locomotive capable of speeds in excess of 100 miles an hour is pulling the equipment used in the tests to insure studies at high speed.

Truck Must Absorb Shock.

It is the truck that supports the weight of the car on the wheels and on it rests the duty of absorbing shocks while the train is in motion. The faster the train moves the greater the shocks. Many types of freight may be damaged by shock. With freight trains now moving at speeds at which only passenger trains traveled a few years ago, the car truck has assumed increased importance.

Various combinations of springs, stabilizers, and other devices are being used in the trucks studied in the Milwaukee road tests. Use of rubber as a medium for reducing road shock which might damage freight is also under the scrutiny of the American Steel Foundries engineers carrying out the tests.

A special train of five cars is being used. The first car is a coach, then a special test freight car equipped with the trucks under study, in the middle a baggage car, fourth another special freight car, and fifth another coach. The makeup of the train is such that it need not be turned around at Milwaukee or Portage.

Instruments Record Sway.

The two freight cars are equipped with various instruments for registering oscillation, side sway, and the jiggling up and down motion which damages freight. The trial and error method is being used in conducting the tests, which have been in progress for about a month. It is expected several months will elapse before they are completed. In the meantime, it is said that no conclusions have been reached.

Besides the speed and safety qualities sought, the engineers are seeking a low cost truck that the railroads will buy.

BOND MARKET ACTIVE AS RAIL LIENS ADVANCE

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—Activity in the bond market today was best for a Saturday since May 18, as traders sent some rail loans up a point or more, and advanced many others fractionally.

Turnover aggregated $3,643,700, face value. A week ago the total was $1,809,600.

United States government loans were almost wholly ignored. Of the four issues traded, two were unchanged, two a little ahead. Corporate liens were narrow either way.

In the foreign sector, Argentine "February 4s" gained 3 points at 66 and the "April 4s" nearly as much at 66⅝ following announcement dollar payments for imports into that country had been temporarily suspended, presumably leaving more exchange to service the external debt. German Agricultural Mortgage bank 7s of 1950 advanced 2⅝ on a small sale.

Chicago Bank Clearings Last Week Top Year Ago

The Chicago Clearing House association yesterday reported bank clearings of $318,700,000 for last week, against $309,400,000 in the corresponding 1939 week. The figures, with the last three zeroes omitted:

	Clearings.	Balances.
Monday	$49,400	$2,900
Tuesday	53,900	4,500
Wednesday	60,700	4,200
Thursday	51,800	3,400
Friday	52,100	4,500
Saturday	50,800	3,000
Week total	318,100	22,500
Year ago	309,400	24,200

ARMY AND NAVY ORDERS CLOSE TO 7 BILLIONS

Place Vast Awards in Last Few Days.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21 (AP).—The army and navy, working at top speed to translate congressional appropriations into battleships, tanks, and airplanes, estimated today that they had awarded defense contracts totaling close to 7 billion dollars.

The bulk of the vast armament program—designed to give the United States the world's mightiest navy, a combined army-navy air force greater than any in existence, and essential equipment for a 2,000,000 man army—is now on order. Actual work on many items, however, has yet to be started. Prospective delivery dates are a military secret.

Army Buying Leads.

Huge army orders for tanks, airplanes, and other munitions have been placed in the last few days, taking the spotlight away from the navy's big purchases. Nevertheless, by far the largest expenditure under the contracts thus far awarded will go for 287 new warships of all categories, most of which are to be completed within the next four years and which the navy high command says will give this country a "two ocean" navy. The new warships ordered, together with a few auxiliary vessels, will cost approximately $5,010,000,000.

Army officials announced that contracts awarded under appopriations for the current fiscal year amounted to $1,102,737,930 on Sept. 14. Since that time, new awards amounting to $616,380,695 have been made public.

Number of Planes Ordered.

In the drive to build up the nation's military air strength, the army has ordered about 9,400 of the 18,641 planes for which congress recently provided the funds. The navy, with 2,200 planes on hand on Sept. 1, ordered an additional 2,533 planes two days later. Its total authorized air strength is 15,000 planes, but the army's is limited only by the funds congress provides for that purpose.

Orders for most of the 6,000 tanks, now the army's goal, already have been placed with private industry. Up to Aug. 1, the army had awarded contracts for 1,515 light tanks and 1,290 of medium size. Subsequently, it ordered another 1,000 medium tanks from the Chrysler Motor company and yesterday it placed contracts for approximately 3,000 more medium and light tanks in three separate orders. In addition, it previously had ordered 1,921 scout and combat cars—the cavalry's tanks.

Ammunition Orders Vast.

Enormous orders for powder, shells, and small arms ammunition have also been placed together with those for all sorts of clothing and other equipment which the rapidly expanding army will need.

Large contracts still remain to be placed, however, for congress has made more than 10 billion dollars available for defense at this session, and another Presidential request for approximately $1,900,000,000 in cash and contract authorizations, chiefly to pay, feed, clothe, and house the new conscript army, is pending before congress.

Mostly Aircraft Licenses.

The licenses covered principally aircraft, and engines and parts for planes, and brought total British licenses for the eight months ended with August to $372,280,560.

The state department's monthly report of licenses showed that altogether 438 were issued covering arms exports valued at $115,685,066. The eight months' total was 3,153 licenses for shipments worth $530,614,605. Actual exports of arms in August were valued at $38,837,513.

Licenses issued in August, other than those to Britain, included $9,940,701 in machine guns, aircraft engines, and ammunition to the Netherlands Indies; $2,074,414, mostly in planes and parts, to Canada, and $2,037,157, mostly in guns of all calibers, to Brazil.

RITHOLZ FILES APPEAL IN NLRB CONTEMPT CASE

Benjamin D. Ritholz, Chicago optical store chain operator, has appealed an order of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson that Ritholz be jailed for contempt of court in a labor case, Clarence T. Morse, Ritholz's attorney, said yesterday.

Ritholz has provided bond and is not subject to commitment to jail until the appeal is disposed of, Morse said. If the ruling on the appeal is adverse, action will be stayed until the case can be carried to the United States Supreme court, the attorney said.

Judge Wilkerson issued the order on the ground that Ritholz failed to produce documents for a hearing on a charge of violating the labor relations law by locking out 65 employés in 1937.

London Hears N. Y. Bankers Plan Big Loan

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 21—In the intervals between bombardments London financial operators this week were eagerly discussing reports said to emanate from Wall street of a possible loan totaling around 500,000,000 pounds [about $2,000,000,000] by American banks to Canada. Such a loan, according to gossip here, would be made against British owned stocks now deposited in Canada.

Discussion centered mainly on the various obstacles to be negotiated before the loan would become practicable, including the necessity of obtaining the consent of the American government and finding ways to circumvent the neutrality laws.

Financial writers made it clear Britain would welcome such a loan and point out it would obviate the necessity of having to dispose of British owned stocks on the New York market where conditions might be unfavorable.

Expect New War Loan.

Another measure of war finance absorbing market interest is the growing belief the government is paving the way for flotation of a new war loan. It is generally admitted the present methods of covering the budget deficit, already around 1 billion pounds [about $4,000,000,000], mainly by short term borrowing, are open to grave objection and tend toward inflation.

Except for the first war loan of 300,000,000 pounds [about $1,200,000,000] issued at 3 per cent interest, the government to date has relied chiefly on national savings certificates, 3 per cent defense bonds and ½ per cent war bonds of 5 to 7 years' duration. Subscriptions for these recently have shown signs of declining from the original high levels.

Altho movements of the financial markets since Hitler launched his aerial blitzkrieg against London have been small, many observers say there are indications that the treasury is preparing the market for a new loan issue.

Some quarters are convinced, however, a loan flotation would be delayed until after the new purchase tax comes into operation early next month.

Utilities Plan Loss Pool.

Despite government claims the damage done by German bombs to date has been less than was expected, methods of covering the costs and avoiding financial dislocation have not yet ben completed.

Public utility companies thruout the country were reported this week to be negotiating an agreement between themselves to share the cost of war damages suffered by individual undertakings.

The scheme as presently envisaged, it is understood, involves the formation of a pool to which both the companies concerned and the government would contribute. The pool would help the companies hit by the evacuation of civilian populations to maintain essential services, compensate those whose plants or mains had been damaged, and contribute toward the cost of equipment such as meters, cooking appliances and stoves which are now buried under the wreckages of houses and buildings.

BARS COLLECTION OF SALES TAXES ON INDIANA COAL

Court Enjoins State Temporarily.

Circuit Judge L. E. Stone at Springfield, Ill., yesterday granted two temporary injunctions restraining the collection of the Illinois 3 per cent occupational [sales] tax on coal produced in Indiana and sold thru agents in this state.

Judge L. E. Stone.

Samuel L. Nudelman, state director of finance, against whom the actions were brought by two Indiana producers—Knox Consolidated Coal and Ayrshire Patoka Collieries corporations—was directed to file an answer to the complaint by Oct. 15.

Judge Stone indicated that after that date he will set a hearing on the corporations' plea for a permanent injunction. The corporations have not paid taxes on shipments made from Indiana to Illinois on sales arranged by representatives in this state.

Samuel M. Rinaker of Gallagher, Rinaker, Wilkinson and Hall, Chicago, contended on behalf of the corporations that sales as arranged by their representatives did not constitute doing business in Illinois within the meaning of the occupational tax law and therefore were not taxable.

Because orders were solicited in Illinois and sales made f. o. b. Indiana mines, the buyers became the owners in Indiana and the sale therefore was an Indiana and interstate, and not an Illinois transaction, he contended.

BUILDERS URGE CAUTION IN USE OF MATERIALS

Coördination in the use of building materials to prevent price dislocation, and the construction of defense housing by private industry were urged upon the national defense advisory commission yesterday by the Chicago Building congress.

Paul D. Angell, secretary of the congress, made public a letter by Elmer C. Jensen, president of the builders' group, asserting:

"Lumber, steel, plywood, and many other materials essential to the building industry are beginning to be subjected to the competitive demands of our national defense preparedness program to such an extent as to cause apprehension regarding their future availability at fair and reasonable prices."

Jensen expressed the association's opinion that current and future housing demands of workers and their families employed in the armament program "should be provided by private enterprise, with such assistance coming from the government as may be found essential."

FIND 2 NEW OIL POOLS IN STATE WITHIN A WEEK

Centralia, Ill., Sept. 21 (AP).—Two new oil producing areas were opened in Illinois this week. One in Gallatin county, seven miles north of Shawneetown, started producing from the McClosky lime at 2,730 feet to give the county its second pool. Several persons were burned, one fatally, in an explosion of gas at the well Wednesday night, and it has been shut down temporarily.

The second area was opened to exploration in White county, one and a half miles south of Carmi in the McClosky lime, at 3,155 feet.

Production last week exceeded 364,000 barrels daily against the June peak of 518,224 barrels, but operations continued widespread, totaling 567 this week. They included 148 wildcat tests and 83 completions of which 59 were oil wells.

"JEEP" TRACTOR SURPRISES U. S. ARMY IN TESTS

Pulls Big Gun Thru Rough Terrain.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 21.—The army is considering adoption of a new tractor especially designed for military purposes, it was learned today.

Negotiations are under way with the manufacturers of the tractor, which has been thoroly tested at Fort Bragg, N. C., Camp Ripley, Minn., and the Aberdeen, Md., proving ground and found to be superior in many respects to machines now used for artillery hauls.

It is intended particularly to pull 155 mm. howitzers, which weigh nearly five tons, over rough terrain as encountered in actual warfare. There is nothing to compare with the new tractor in the present equipment of the army.

Travels 45 Miles Per Hour.

Army tests showed it capable of pulling an 8,900 pound howitzer at an average speed of 45 miles an hour on roads and nearly 13 miles an hour over rough terrain. The army has been at a loss to describe appropriately the machine, which combines the characteristics of a tractor and a tank. Soldiers at Camp Ripley, where it participated in the recent maneuvers of the 4th army, nicknamed it the "jeep."

The tractor was reported able to climb a 40 per cent grade with its load, push over trees 4 or 5 inches thick, clearing a path for scout cars or light tanks, and ford a stream up to 40 inches in depth. In one test it climbed 70 inches up the side of a white oak tree 28 inches in girth before the tree gave way and the tractor rode rough shod over the oak. Thru deep mud it also hauled the howitzer better than the present prime movers used by the army.

Only a few of the tractors are now in use by the army and then only for testing purposes. Only 4 are in the field, all at Camp Ripley.

May Cost Less Than Trucks.

The manufacturer, Minneapolis-Moline Power Implement company of Minneapolis, Minn., could go into production on them immediately, with a capacity of 40 tractors per day. Official sources also believe that they might be obtained for less than trucks now used by the army for similar purposes.

The army has mounted machine guns on the test models, a hole in the roof of the cab permitting a gunner to cover a wide range while the machine is in motion. Other guns could be mounted on the sides, officials said. It could be equipped completely with bulletproof tires, protective armor and a bulletproof turret for the machine gunner, if necessary, altho this would increase the present weight of 12,900 pounds.

The tractor has a 4 wheel drive and is powered by a 90 horsepower, 6 cylinder motor. The rear wheels are equipped with huge rubber, heavy treaded tires, 54 inches in the outside diameter.

Has Five Speeds Forward.

The engine has 5 speeds forward and one in reverse. Instead of a bumper the tractor is equipped with several free moving rollers in front which enables it to roll over obstacles or mud instead of digging in.

In the rear it is equipped with a pneumatic pindle lift which enables the driver singlehanded to hitch on a howitzer which ordinarily would require 6 to 8 artillerymen for the hitching. Its short wheel base—98½ inches—permits turns within a radius of 22 feet, increasing maneuverability. Another advantage that the army has accentuated is the low silhouette of 66 inches. This is no higher than the howitzer and makes concealment easier than in the case of trucks used as prime movers. A heavier tractor of the same type is also being developed for hauling bigger guns than the 155s.

STATE STREET SALES RISE IN FASHION WEEK

During State Street Fall Fashion week, sales rose approximately 25 per cent over those of the same period last year, David Mayer Jr., president of the State Street council, estimated yesterday at the close of the week. Fashion Week, which coincided with National Retail Demonstration week, was sponsored by the council to publicize Chicago as the leading style center of the world.

"In spite of unseasonably hot weather, interest in fall fashions and merchandise has been maintained at a high level thruout the week, indicating that the public has welcomed our extensive merchandising program to bring them the latest and best of the season's offerings," Mayer stated. "It was a welcome surprise to find that the majority of Fashion Week customers purchased merchandise in the luxury brackets."

STOCKS FINISH STRONG WEEK WITH NEW RISE

Preferred Issues Make Biggest Gains.

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—Financial markets today ended a generally strong week on the rising side. Buying interest centered mainly in the heavy industrial stocks and a wide assortment of preferred issues. A number of the latter, traded in lots of 10 shares, pushed up 1 to around 7 points to new 1940 highs. Gains elsewhere ranged from fractions to about a point.

The turnover of 258,880 shares was the largest for any Saturday so far this month and compared with 166,390 a week ago. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks, after holding unchanged in the two preceding sessions, posted an advance of 0.3 point at 44.4. The composite showed a net gain on the week of 1.3 points. A month ago it stood at 42.3 and a year ago at 52.8.

War Situation an Influence.

Stronger fighting resistance displayed by the British, combined with the thought that Hitler's plans for the invasion of England may have gone awry, did much to prop speculative sentiment, brokers said. Brightening business and industrial indicators at home continued as a bolstering market influence.

Favorable interpretations of war and business news aided stocks to edge upward on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, making it four straight rising sessions. The list then marked time Thursday and Friday as some thought was given to the chance of a technical reaction after the lengthy recovery. Profit taking handicapped the advance in the final two full sessions.

CHICAGO LIST HIGHER.

Prices advanced yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Transactions totaled 9,000 shares, compared with 7,000 on the preceding Saturday.

The exchange reported that the week's turnover totaled 93,000 shares, compared with 88,000 in the preceding week and 252,000 in the corresponding 1939 period.

SEPTEMBER CORN SWEPT HIGHER BY SHORT COVERING

Late short covering in September corn, in which trading ceased at the close yesterday swept the expiring delivery up about 2 cents from Friday's close and the finish was at the top of 62¾ to 63 cents a bushel.

The situation in September wheat was the reverse of that in corn. Shorts covered early and lifted the current month to a fractional premium over December. In the last few minutes of trading, however, selling orders predominated and the finish was at 77 cents, a loss of ⅞ cent for the day.

Deferred deliveries of corn held within narrow limits and closed ⅛ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower. Country offerings of old corn for later shipment were small. Oats futures finished ⅛ to ¼ cent higher. The visible supply of oats, about 9,000,000 bushels is the smallest at this season in more than 25 years. Rye finished ¼ to ⅝ cent lower and soy beans declined ¼ to ½ cent.

A Board of Trade membership was sold at $750, lowest price in more than 40 years. That price, was $25 lower than a sale about a week ago. In 1929 a seat on the exchange sold for $62,000.

COPPER FUTURES LEAD ACTIVITY IN STAPLE MARKETS

Prices Rise as Broader Demand Develops.

Copper led commodity market action last week as demand for the metal climbed to exceptional levels and futures pushed ahead for substantial gains. Wool tops also made a strong showing and set a new yearly high, while Santas coffee, sides, rubber, and domestic sugar futures joined in the general advance.

September copper contracts ended the week at 10.59 cents a pound bid for a net gain of 0.63 cent. December deliveries were quoted at 10.55 cents, or within 0.01 cent of the season's high. In the cash market, the price was kept at the 11½ cents level set Sept. 5 by the big producers, but some smaller dealers raised quotations to 11⅝ cents a pound as supplies became scarce.

Sales Believed a Record.

Altho Friday and week-end copper turnover totals are not yet available, traders said the volume added to September's already huge tonnage will exceed the all-time record of 183,877 tons disposed of in February, 1939. Under the stimulus of this activity, turnover in copper futures reached the highest level in nearly three months in addition to their sharp price gains. Other metals were steady.

Wool top futures climbed 5½ cents a pound during the week, October delieveries closing $1.03, a new high, as large government orders increased market activity. Cash wool tops also advanced, reaching $1.14½ in midweek, but received a setback and closed unchanged at $1.12.

Coffee Futures Higher.

Aided by the belief among traders that coffee producers will be aided thru Export-Import bank loans, Santos coffee futures gained 0.19 cent a pound in September deliveries, which finished at 5.59 cents bid. In the domestic sugar market, trading also was stimulated by reports of action in the near future on sugar legislation, but profit taking slowed advances. Final prices for September deliveries were 0.04 cent a pound higher at 1.78 cents.

UNIONS, FIRMS ARE INDICTED IN RESTRAINT CASE

Use of Prefabricated Materials Involved.

East St. Louis, Ill., Sept. 21 [Special].—Indictments charging five trades unions, four business firms, a labor council, and a manufacturers' association with conspiracy to keep prefabricated building materials out of three Illinois counties were returned by a federal grand jury here today. Nineteen individuals, including Chief of Police Thomas Lonie of Belleville, were named defendants.

The case was said to be the first involving restraint of such materials prosecuted by the government under antimonopoly laws. The grand jury, in presenting the indictments to Judge Fred L. Wham, said that the conditions in the building industry prevailing in St. Clair, Madison, and Monroe counties "should never be countenanced in a free society."

Many Assaults Alleged.

"Men going about their daily affairs have been assaulted and beaten, and their families have been threatened bodily harm; workmen have been driven out of the district; houses under construction have been bombed; plumbing fixtures have been destroyed," the jury said.

"New building costs are from 20 to 25 per cent higher than those prevailing in similar communities in Missouri; material costs, especially in the case of millwork, are disproportionately high, and many prefabricated materials, tho cheaper and better than old fashioned products, are kept out of the East St. Louis area."

The grand jurors declared that many reputable contractors who employ union labor refuse to bid on jobs in the area and that as a result there has been little building here, and that little poor in quality. Police and local officials were declared negligent and "decent law abiding citizens afraid to bear witness."

Important to Defense.

Roscoe T. Steffen, special assistant attorney general, said that prefabricated houses might become important in the national defense program, and that he hoped this case would clear away restraints against such buildings.

The defendant unions are three locals of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and two locals of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers [all American Federation of Labor]. The carpenters district council of the tri-counties was named.

The Southern Illinois Finish club, an association of planing mills and kitchen cabinet makers, is the trade association involved. The business firms are B. Goedde & Co., Community Planing Mill, Illinois Lumber company, and Mechanics Planing Mill.

Investors' Guide

Sunday, Sept. 22, 1940.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SEC'S NEW ROLE.

The long drawn inquiry into the five billion dollar investment company industry by the Securities and Exchange commission has culminated in a new law which becomes effective generally on Nov. 1 this year.

The law, known as the investment company act of 1940, extends the authority of the SEC to regulate companies engaged in investing funds and trading in securities for the investing public. Exempt are banks, brokers, insurance companies, utility holding companies, and others.

Other provisions of the act place investment counselors under the supervision of the SEC and authorize it to fix the period in which registration of new security issues become effective at less than the 20 days formerly required.

Written by the SEC in collaboration with representatives of the investment company industry who had objected to an earlier draft, the law is intended to achieve the following objectives:

1. Insure that "adequate" information about the finances, practices, policies, and management personnel of investment companies be made available to investors.

2. Provide safeguards against practices that would permit the management to handle the assets for its own benefit at the expense of the investors.

3. Insure that control of the companies be vested in the stockholders, providing protection against manipulation by a minority.

Investment companies which use the mails or other channels of interstate commerce are required to register with the SEC, file annual reports, and comply with certain accounting standards. Their financial practices, capital structures, investment policies, reorganizations, and management are subject to SEC scrutiny.

Margin trading, short sales of certain securities, intercompany control, borrowing, and the issuance of senior securities are prohibited or restricted. Contracts for management of investment company portfolios and for distribution of their securities must be made public. Investment companies must have private subscriptions of at least $100,000 each before they can issue their securities to the public.

Provisions affecting companies selling instalment savings contracts, in which the face amount of the security is paid after completion of a specified number of payments by the holder, become effective next Jan. 1.

Investment advisers using the mails or other means of interstate commerce are required to register with the SEC and make annual reports to it. They are prohibited from basing their fees on capital gains of the funds of their clients.

Three More 1941 Autos Introduced

Other cars in the 1941 series include the Ambassador Eights and Sixes, both equipped with twin-ignition valve in head power plants. They will be marketed in the medium price fields.

Have "Air Flow Design."

The Chrysler cars, which first made their bow in 1925, will again emphasize the "air-flow" design which has had an important effect on all automobile designs in the last few years. The original "air-flow" was first brought out in 1934. The present version has been modernized along 1941 lines.

Chrysler will feature again its "fluid drive," first brought out late in 1938, which eliminates the necessity for gear shifting except under special circumstances. It is standard equipment on the senior cars in the Chrysler line.

The 1941 Chryslers are being offered in four lines in 26 models. The Royal, the lowest price car in the group, measures 210 inches overall, and is powered by a six cylinder 'spitfire" 112 horsepower engine. The Windsor is next. It is built on the same chassis as the Royal but includes various interior refinements. Next is the New Yorker, measuring 216 inches overall. It is powered by a 137 horsepower engine. The most luxurious is the Crown Imperial, measuring 229⅝ inches, and powered by a 143 horsepower engine.

Reports Engine Improvements.

Numerous refinements are included in the engines, one of which is a multiple-jet carburetor which increases horsepower and promotes economy. The frame is the strongest ever built by Chrysler. The bumper is much sturdier.

Windshield slant has been increased. Lines of the air-flow body are long and sweeping. The hood is longer. The radiator grille is wider. Visibility is increased thru enlarged glass area. Direction signalers are standard equipment on some models and optional on others.

Charles L. Jacobson, vice president and general sales manager, has set the Chrysler sales goal for 1941 at 150,000 cars.

COTTON

Cotton trading was fairly active yesterday, with mills and commission houses on the buying side. Hedging pressure increased later, however, and the finish was easy. Closing trades were .01 cent higher to .06 cent a pound lower.

Russia is reported to have purchased 18,000 to 20,000 bales of cotton at gulf ports for shipment to Vladivostock, Siberia.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to .07 cent lower, with New York, 9.70 cents; New Orleans, 9.50 cents; Galveston, 9.14 cents, and Houston at 9.13 cents a pound. Prices follow:

AVERAGE FAMILY EATING ½ STEER, 2 HOGS THIS YEAR

Most Will Add Half a Lamb for Good Measure.

The housewife in an average family of four people will have purchased and prepared the meat from half a steer, more than two hogs and more than half a lamb by the end of 1940. That, according to the statisticians at the Chicago stock yards, will be the average family meat consumption for the entire year.

Meat eating this year is exceeding all of the last six years. Due to the loss of export outlet and the greater meat output, domestic consumption in the United States has approached the records of other big years. Meat production during the first eight months of 1940 was the largest since 1934.

Production Up 15 Per Cent.

By the end of 1940 the average family of four people will have consumed slightly more than 300 pounds of beef and veal, about 380 pounds of pork and lard, and 26 pounds of lamb and mutton.

The latest official figures on meat production in packing plants under federal inspection are for the period January to July, inclusive. During this period plants turned out a total of 8,491,169,000 pounds of beef, veal, pork, lard, and lamb, compared with 7,394,271,000 pounds during the same period last year. This supply was 15 per cent more than a year ago and 27 per cent above the average of the last five years.

The greatest increases were in pork and lard.

Meat Costs Dip in Week.

Meat bills of consumers as well as live costs of animals to packers declined during last week. Dressed beef carcasses were wholesaled mostly 50 cents a hundred pounds less than a week earlier.

Declines in pork prices shaved $1 a hundred pounds from the wholesale price of fresh loins. Some cuts of lamb meat sold higher.

The downturn in live stock markets was broad. All except a few topnotch steers finished lower. The top for steers, at $13.90 a hundred pounds, established a new 1940 peak. The six day average, at $11.40 was down 10 cents.

Beef cows ran counter to the general trend and closed unevenly 15 to 50 cents higher for the week. Hog prices for the week averaged 10 cents lower, at $6.35, the lowest in four weeks.

Final lamb prices were mostly 25 cents under the week before.

HUGE EXPANSION OF CHICAGO AREA PLANTS PLANNED

30 Days' Total Arranged for Is 18 Millions.

Arrangements for industrial expansion in the Chicago area that will cost $18,284,000 have been made in the last 30 days, the largest amount for any similar period since August, 1938, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday. The 30 day total was nearly as large as was reported for all of 1939.

Accounting for the bulk of the projected expenditures were the $14,000,000 powder plant to be built near Wilmington, Ill., a $500,000 chemical plant which Sherwin Williams company will build near Lake Calumet, and an $800,000 warehouse for the same company.

List Three New Companies.

The powder plant project will involve an expediture of nearly $11,000,000 for the buildings, with equipment raising the cost to $14,000,000.

Three companies entered the Chicago area for the first time during the 30 day period, the chamber's report showed, and 32 already in this district announced expansions. These projects raised to 16 the number of companies that have established plants in the area since the first of the year and increased the list of expansions to 234, according to the chamber's records.

Interlake Iron Expands.

Interlake Iron corporation undertook a $200,000 expansion program in connection with facilities for production of coke and coal tar products.

Among other projects was one costing $175,000, announced by the Union Drawn Steel division of Republic Steel corporation. Sprague Warner & Co., food processor and wholesaler, was listed for a $250,000 expansion, and a $175,000 program by Diamond T Motor Car company will increase that company's facilities for meeting the demand in connection with national defense orders.

CURB INFANTILE PARALYSIS, WITH 350 IOWA CASES

Rate of New Cases Halted, Says Health Official.

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 21. [Special]. —The peak is believed to have been reached in the spread of infantile paralysis thru Iowa, where 400 persons were stricken, entailing about a dozen deaths, State Health Commissioner Walter Bierring disclosed today.

"There is no cause for general alarm," the official said. "Altho we have had many cases, their number hasn't assumed the proportions of an epidemic and it now appears that the disease has reached its peak in Iowa. At least the rate of new cases hasn't increased during the last week."

80 Counties Affected.

While the total of 400 cases developed over a period extending back to last spring, most of them were reported during the last two months, Dr. Bierring said. Doctors recorded 176 cases in August and 200 so far this month. The health commissioner estimated that 350 cases still are active.

He noted that the disease has been spread fairly evenly over the state, 80 of the 99 counties having one or more cases. However, there were a few definite centers, the city of Waterloo being the hardest hit. Other concentrations were at Sioux City and in the counties of Appanoose and Bremer.

All public social activities in Waterloo have been discouraged for several weeks. The opening of schools was delayed three weeks, but is expected to take place Monday. Children were refused admission to theaters. Such gathering places as swimming pools and clubs were closed.

Rush Another "Iron Lung."

An "iron lung" was being rushed to Waterloo from Chicago today to supplement the city's lone respirator in the treatment of infantile paralysis cases.

The respirator was sent by the North Western railroad post of the American Legion in Chicago.

Arrangements for sending the respirator to Waterloo were expedited by Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of Northwestern university medical school and health editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

POLICEMAN WINS $1 AT THEATER; SEIZES MANAGER

Last night was gift night at the Rex theater, 6848 South Racine avenue, and at the end of the feature picture a five year old patron drew the names of lucky customers from a revolving drum. There were 13 awards in all, and on the 10th Olaf Gustafson, who is employed in the neighborhood, came up and took his prize, a dollar bill.

After the final award Peter Nichols, the theater manager, bumped into Gustafson backstage and went with him to the Englewood police station, where Gustafson is a detective, to be charged with operating a lottery. Gustafson, a bit embarrassed at arresting his benefactor, was also troubled about something else.

"I wonder," he said thoughtfully, "if the judge will let me keep that buck."

CARETAKER HELD IN DEATH OF AGED LODGER IN ROW

William Hopkins, caretaker in an apartment building at 319 Concord place, was charged with manslaughter yesterday as a result of the death of Robert Cox, 68 years old. The charge was filed by Cox's son, Robert Jr., 3301 Madison street, altho a coroner's jury was unable to determine the cause of Cox's death.

Cox, a proofreader, was a lodger in the apartment of Mrs. Mabel Putnam, above the Hopkins apartment. Mrs. Putnam told the coroner's jury that Hopkins, who is 46, struck and choked Cox and pushed him downstairs Friday in an argument over the four cats which Cox and Mrs. Putnam kept. Cox died a short time later of a cerebral hemorrhage.

LEADING A DOG'S LIFE WON'T BE SO BAD THIS WEEK

This should be a good week to lead a dog's life.

The National Dog Week association, which has set the week aside in honor of the nation's 13,000,000 dogs, has chosen a slogan ["Every Dog Needs a Good Home"] and has several suggestions for owners. They include:

Don't exercise your dog for at least half an hour after mealtime.

Don't pour gasoline or kerosene on him to kill fleas.

Don't shout at him.

ROB VICTIM, BREAK HIS JAW.

William Fitzpatrick, 31, of 4131 Carroll avenue, suffered a broken jaw early yesterday when he was slugged by three strong-arm robbers between Lake street and Carroll avenue in Keeler avenue. He was robbed of $15 and a ring valued at $300.

5TH GENERATION CHICAGOAN BORN TO THE SHUBARTS

A fifth generation Chicagoan was born in Lying-In hospital last Wednesday. He is Richard Wald Shubart, son of Eugene Jr., and Edna Wald Shubart, 7526 Paxton avenue.

His great-great-grandfather, Benedict Shubart, came to Chicago in 1838 —five years after the city got its charter—and opened a merchant tailoring business on Lake street. Benedict had a son, Aaron. Aaron had a son, Eugene, the baby's proud grandfather, who practices law at 35 South Dearborn street. The baby's father, Eugene Jr., is in the credit adjustment business.

The arrival of Richard credits the Shubarts with 102 years of direct male descendants here.

START CAMPAIGN TODAY TO AID HOMELESS MEN

The Chicago Christian Industrial league's annual "bundle campaign" for the aid of homeless men begins today and will continue thru Oct. 6.

Contributions of clothes, furniture, paper, or other items are sought. The league also seeks work for needy men and sells books of tickets which may be given instead of money to men found begging on the streets. The tickets entitle the holder to bed and meals at the league's home at 847 Monroe street.

Trucks will call for any items to be contributed. Information and food and lodging tickets are available at league headquarters.

FROM A Hundred Fathoms Deep

The SECRET KNOWLEDGE of a LOST RACE

Majestic structures once stood where now is naught but the ocean's roar. Legends relate a mysterious people survived to reach Egypt's shore. Did they impart a magnificent wisdom to secret brotherhoods? Is the Great Pyramid a silent testimony to their presence?

From the land of the Nile there has descended a strange knowledge, truths that have guided men to the mastery of life. For centuries a religious organization has aided in perpetuating these teachings and extended them to all who would be dominant over environment.

POLISH COUNT'S DEATH IN NAZI CAMP REVEALED

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—Countess Helene Chlapowski, arriving from Lisbon aboard the Atlantic Clipper today, said her husband, Count Alfred Chlapowksi, former Polish ambassador to France, died of pneumonia in a German prison camp last Feb. 19. The countess said she and her husband were seized in their castle near Posen when the Germans invaded Poland a year ago. Ten days after her husband died, she was released from the prison, which she said was run by the German secret police.

WOMEN TO OPEN EIGHT HOUR LAW REVISION DRIVE

A campaign to exempt business and professional women from Illinois' eight hour day will be launched by the Illinois Women's Concord at a luncheon Thursday in the Palmer House.

Mrs. Anna Zinser.

The meeting will be the first of a series the Concord plans to hold thruout the state in support of a proposed amendment to the eight hour day law. Advocates say the amendment affects no one but persons now being harmed by the law.

"We are anxious to preserve the law's protective features," said Mrs. Anna V. Zinser, president of the Concord and past president of the Alliance of Business and Professional Women.

LANDMARK CHURCH TO CELEBRATE

CONGRESS RACE SPEEDED UP IN TWO DISTRICTS

G.O.P. Pushes Fight in 1st and 9th.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Congressional battles of northern and northwestern Chicagoland warmed up in several districts last week. Chief activity was furnished by the Republican nominees, the Democrats as usual remaining inactive until just before the election.

Lively G. O. P. campaigns are already well along in the 1st district, which includes not only a large share of the south side's colored population but also the loop, and in the 9th district on the near north side.

In the 1st the fight is being forced by former State Senator William E. King, who seeks to dislodge Congressman Arthur W. Mitchell from the seat he has occupied since 1934, when he defeated Oscar De Priest. Both nominees are Negroes, for it has become an accepted political principle that the predominant colored electorate in the 1st shall be represented by a member of its own race.

Mitchell is the first Democrat to represent the district since Martin Emerich was beaten by the Republican, Martin B. Madden, in 1904. Madden was reëlected for eleven more terms before he died, and was succeeded in 1908 by De Priest.

Raps Mitchell's Record.

King has launched an attack on Mitchell's record in congress. He charges that his opponent has slavishly followed the will of the New Deal and has been at best a dispirited representative of his own people. He declared that Mitchell could, by a more vigorous course, have obtained more benefits for his district, particularly more low cost housing projects, which on the south side have made slow progress.

Another early campaigner is Charles S. Dewey, Republican nominee for the 9th district seat now occupied by James McAndrews, who has been called the roving congressman because he has represented four districts in congress.

Dewey, who was an assistant secretary of the treasury under President Coolidge, came within 4,552 votes of a majority when he ran against McAndrews two years ago. This plurality was less than one-fourth the margin McAndrews rolled up in 1936 against Mrs. Bertha Baur.

Sees National Disaster.

The challenger, in frequent appearances before neighborhood and precinct meetings, charges that the present administration's fiscal practices are heading the nation toward disaster. He also stresses the danger of American involvement in the European war unless a saner foreign policy is followed.

He promises when elected to fight in congress for a sensible spending program, and against any proposal to launch the country into a war of offense. Dewey stands for adequate national defense.

In the sprawling 7th district on the northwest side it appears that Congressman Leonard W. Schuetz, who has the reputation of being a lackadaisical candidate, must exert himself to meet the challenge of his G. O. P. rival, James C. Moreland.

Moreland, former alderman of the 41st ward, has tried three times previously to defeat Schuetz. Two years ago he reduced the congressman's 1934 plurality by nearly two-thirds, losing by a total of only 30,681 out of a total of 354,819 votes.

Dissatisfaction Is Seen.

There is growing evidence of dissatisfaction among 7th district voters with Schuetz's record in congress. Some of his constituents have complained of discourtesy shown them on visits to the congressman's office in Washington. This factor, plus the estrangement of numerous voters on the third term question, will give Moreland the edge he has long waited for, his supporters say.

In the 10th district, which takes in all of Lake county as well as the north shore and the far north side of Chicago, George A. Paddock of Evanston, Republican nominee, declared that the district's traditional Republican majority will be "greatly increased" on Nov. 5.

Paddock was picked by his party for the post from which Congressman Ralph E. Church of Evanston retired to run for United States senator. The Republican nomination in the 10th is tantamount to election, for the district has never sent a Democrat to congress.

NEW EVANSTON TOWN HALL TO OPEN LECTURES

Formation of the Evanston Town hall, at which 10 famous personalities will lecture this fall and winter, was announced last week. Mrs. Wesley W. Polk, 715 Forest avenue, is founder and director.

Meetings will be held at the Evanston Woman's club. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator in 1933-'34, will open the series Friday evening, Oct. 11.

Other speakers to appear include Mai-MaiSze, Chinese writer and artist; Henry C. Wolfe, foreign affairs writer; Dr. Franz J. Polgar, Hungarian telepathist, and Mme. Suzanne Silercruys, sculptress. George V. Denny Jr., president of New York Town Hall, will close the series March 26.

What Young People Wear on North Side Riding Trails

Eight young devotees of the fast growing sport of horseback riding demonstrate the variety available to the shopper bent on assembling a wardrobe for the bridle path and horse trail. In the picture at the left, Lucille Lorber, Glenview, is in a tailored gray gabardine habit. Sherle Sass, 1302 North Monitor street, Chicago, wears black cavalry twill jodhpurs and fitted gray tweed coat. Hugo Delmar, 935 Edgemere court, Evanston, is shown in a hooded jacket of cravenette and brown Bedford cord jodhpurs. The group in the picture to the right illustrate the dude ranch or western influence that has lately seized the imagination of many riders. Standing, left to right, are Louise Ford, 2949 Payne street, Evanston; Elaine Victor, Wilmette; Janet Skillen, 2200 Forestview road, Evanston, and Don Peebles, 1446 Asbury avenue, Winnetka. Sue Finney, Wilmette, in oiled silk riding slicker, looks down from Miss Ford's horse, Tex. Miss Victor is wearing black gabardine frontier pants, rose satin shirt, white woven Indian jacket, and black felt hat. The others are clad for service in levis or jeans and figured shirts.

Stores Ready with New Ideas on Furniture

Every color scheme, decorating note or new idea has been drafted by merchants and manufacturers for National Furniture week which opened yesterday. Model rooms, combinations in textiles and woods, window displays and floral patterns promise a festive autumn, not by the handiwork of nature alone, but by the housewife's ingenuity.

Trained salesmen, who know whether a pink bedspread will blend with a rosy shade drape or how red a red would go with green, are ready to answer questions. Charts and diagrams have been compiled and drawn to help the buyer, whether she is seeking a drum table for a bare corner or furniture for her whole house. No neighborhood store has failed to brush up on 1941 homemaking hints or has neglected to show "things that go together."

Ready to Help Family.

Neighborhood furniture stores this week are more than places to buy furniture. They are your staff of private decorators, the men and women who will worry over your sunparlor sofa with the same personal attention as the family who will sit on it. Young moderns, the 1940 brides, have added to their homemaking vocabulary such terms as color harmony, period furniture or modern, two toned and pastel mixtures. They ask these things in addition to "Is it comfortable?" and "Will it wear well?"

Show Modern Rooms.

Six completely furnished rooms from pictures on the walls to rugs on the floors provide idea and inspiration at a west side store. All the rooms are modern, some have dark and some bleached wood furniture.

There is a blue room with canary colored Venetian blinds and rose drapes. The furniture is modern walnut, a 1941 treatment for this wood. The gray room is a bedroom with blue rug. The gold room has blue rugs, gold walls, gold drapes and mirror, and the furniture is two toned American walnut. Green drapes give a contrasting color note to the rose room, a bedroom that boasts a vanity table with inlaid markings. A living room that would wear well is in dubonnet with mahogany desk and drapes of all over floral design.

A west side rug company is offering a new line of high grade broadlooms this fall called the nu-luster. This rug has a sheen that gives it the silky appearance of expensive orientals.

Streamlined Furnishings.

One northwest side store has two model rooms in Swedish modern. The furniture from these rooms can be purchased piece by piece or as a whole. Another store in this district shows a model five room house called the modern streamlined house. The idea in this was to not only have everything in one room match its fellow furniture but to have rooms lead into each other.

A department store that has branches south, west and north is featuring a line of inexpensive modern furniture in the natural wood tones and the pastel colored, modern textured upholstery. This was designed and is combined during furniture week for the home manager who has a small or moderate budget.

One south side store has redecorated and enlarged its display space and opened yesterday on the first day of National Furniture week. The new floor plan consists of a number of rooms in which furniture can be displayed in groups. The second floor of this store, which was formerly occupied by the upholstery and repair department, is now display space.

The new approach to furniture buying in neighborhood stores is "Come over to our house, madam, you can copy the whole thing or part."

ST. SEBASTIAN PARISH SPONSORS CARNIVAL DINNER WEDNESDAY

As a feature of its annual carnival, St. Sebastian's church will sponsor a dinner Wednesday night in the school auditorium, Wellington avenue, and Halsted street. The Rev. 2 Couples Wed 60 Years Live on Same Street

On North Campbell avenue last Monday two couples, each 80 years old or more, observed their 60th wedding anniversaries. Altho they both live on the same street, neither knew of the other's existence.

One couple, Mr. and Mrs. John Straus, reside at 5444 and the other, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Malwitz, live at 6651 North Campbell avenue. They held open house for their relatives and friends.

The Strauses, each 80 years old, have lived for 60 years on the north side. Mr. Straus, who has the general appearance of a man in his sixties, has been a street car motorman for 47 years and is still working every day. He is on the Devon avenue line.

Lincoln Was Father's Lawyer.

They have three daughters, Mrs. Laura Sorenson of Philadelphia; Mrs. Anna Frownfelter, 1221 Jarvis avenue, and Mrs. Henrietta Phillips, 6207 North Talman avenue, and one son, John Jr., who resides with his parents. There are five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The Strauses first met when they were nine years old. It was at a party on the near northwest side. As Mr. Straus tells it, "We began to go together in our 'teens. It wasn't long after that one of those cupid arrows got me and we were married." Mr. Straus was born in Chicago and Mrs. Straus was born near Springfield. Abraham Lincoln once represented her father in a lawsuit.

Farther north on Campbell avenue the Malwitzes recalled last Monday how they first met. More than 60 years ago they met between hymns in the choir at the First German Baptist church, Superior and Paulina streets. He was a bass and she a soprano. Both sang in the choir years after they were married. They are still members of the church. Mr. Malwitz has the title of deacon emeritus.

Have 21 Descendants.

The Malwitzes have three sons, Herbert, 3505 Armitage avenue; Charles Jr. of Ashville, North Carolina, and Fred, 900 Lawrence avenue, and two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Wallin, 1232 Jarvis avenue, and Mrs. Mildred Schepler, 946 Forest avenue, Evanston.

Mr. Malwitz was born in Germany and his wife in Milwaukee. He is 83 years old and Mrs. Malwitz is 81. Mr. Malwitz, a former tinsmith, worked for 30 years as foreman of the tin department of the Mills Novelty company. When he was retired in 1932 he was presented with an engraved watch for his 30 years' service. The couple have 14 grandchildren and 2 great-grandchildren.

North Shore B'nai B'rith Plans First Fall Meeting

North Shore lodge B'nai B'rith will hold its first fall meeting Wednesday evening at Temple Mizpah, 1615 Morse avenue. An a cappella choir of 60 mixed voices will sing. Officers of the lodge include Barney L. Hollowick, monitor; Morton L. Abram, assistant monitor; David B. Lippman, warden; Louis L. Karton, guardian, and Sidney D. Komie, outer guardian.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BLOND Belladonna Villines, who tried out for the movies last year, will do her acting in a courtroom this year. She recently passed the Illinois State Bar examination. Belladonna, who resides at 3758 Fremont street, is a graduate of De Paul university law school. She is one of four 1940 De Paul women graduates who passed the bar examination. Among others who passed the bar exam recently are the Our Town twins, Edward and Willard Meier, 910 Elmwood avenue, Wilmette. Both were graduated in June and both received equal grades. Since grammar school their studies have been alike and their grades rarely varied.

Belladonna Villines.

Five Our Town boys last week were registered at Hamilton college, Clinton, N. Y. They are James P. Soper III, 1220 Elm Tree road, Lake Forest; John A. Smothers, 1803 Chicago avenue, Evanston; Goddard H. Binkley, 805 Grove street, Glencoe; Thomas H. Meredith, 16 Abbotsford road, Kenilworth, and Jay K. Esler Jr., 1270 Asbury avenue, Winnetka.

THE next time you eat a candy or an ice cream bar look for the words, "Please throw wrapper in refuse container." Four large candy and ice cream companies will print that request on their wrappers as a result of the anti-litter campaign launched by the park district. The idea was suggested by Jert Jannes, Lincoln park maintenance foreman. Noticing that much of the litter collected in one day in the park were candy wrappers he suggested that manufacturers print anti-litter slogans on their wares. Four of the companies responded favorably almost immediately.

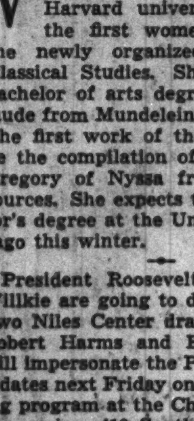
MOSES J. SILVERMAN, who represents the fourth generation of cantors in his family, recently was appointed cantor at Anshe Emet synagogue, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street. When he was 9 years old he began singing in a choir and at the age of 12 he conducted his first service as a cantor. He was cantor for five years in Newark, N. J., and for one year at Beth El synagogue in Waterbury, Conn., before coming to Anshe Emet.



Moses J. Silverman.

Eleanor Jerner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geron Jerner, Lake Forest, recently received a scholarship to Cornell college. She is a graduate of the Lake Forest high school where she was a member of the honor society.

VIRGINIA WOODS, 650 Roscoe street, returned recently to Harvard university as one of the first women members of the newly organized Institute of Classical Studies. She received her bachelor of arts degree summa cum laude from Mundelein college in 1935. The first work of the institute will be the compilation of the life of St. Gregory of Nyssa from manuscript sources. She expects to take her doctor's degree at the University of Chicago this winter.

President Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie are going to debate after all! Two Niles Center dramatic students, Robert Harms and Barney Brauch, will impersonate the Presidential candidates next Friday on a public speaking program at the Chicago School of Expression, 410 South Michigan avenue. Adolph Olsansky, the school's makeup artist, will make Robert resemble Roosevelt as much as possible, and Barney will appear as Willkie. Letitia V. Barnum, director, announces that the subject to be debated is "Resolved: that a third term is a step toward dictatorship." After the debate, the students will take a straw vote for President.

Evanston Collegiate Inst. Classes Start Tomorrow

One hundred seventy-five students will begin classes tomorrow morning at Evanston Collegiate institute, junior college at 2408 Orrington avenue. Three new faculty appointments are announced. They are Miss Ardel Janson, head of the North Shore Clinical laboratory, who will introduce a new course in the training of medical hygienists; Miss Mary Louise Holding, voice instructor, and Phillip Marshall Harris, geology instructor. The school is in its seventh year.

OLD ST. PETER'S DATES BACK TO CIVIL WAR DAYS

But Has No Member on Parish List.

Old St. Peter's downtown Catholic church without a single member on its official parish list but which yearly hears 300,000 confessions, will celebrate its 75th anniversary next Sunday.

The three story church and school at Polk and Clark streets whose yellow brick is smudged with streaks of gray and blackened from three-quarters of a century of smoke and soot from nearby railroad yards, is one of the city's few pre-Chicago fire landmarks.

Solemn high mass will be said at noon in the presence of Bishop Sheil. In the evening, 75 years of history going back to Mrs. O'Leary and her cow, will be enacted in a tableaux to be given by Father Pat's auxiliary, under the direction of the Rev. Pat Maloney.

Will Be Diamond Jubilee.

The program will be the diamond jubilee celebration of the dedication of the church and school built in 1865. The church itself, however, was founded 94 years ago and was housed in a little frame structure on Washington street between Franklin and Wells streets. The Order of the Franciscan Fathers is in charge of the church.

Altho the city's population spread north, south and west after the fire of 1871, the church didn't budge. It stood where it was built despite the growth of the loop skyscrapers and the factories and terminals in the neighborhood. It serves as a place of worship for thousands of loop workers, out-of-towners stopping off between trains, hobos and the floating population from the cage hotels of South State street.

One reason why the church has never moved is told by the browncassocked friars who have dug thru Old St. Peter's records and brought them up to date. While the Chicago fire raged all around it, Father Peter Fischer assembled his parishioners and prayed. The red flames outside lit up the altar as Father Fischer asked St. Anthony to spare the structure. He promised a perpetual novena to the saint if the church remained standing.

Church Is Spared.

The wind changed and Old St. Peter's was untouched by the flames. Father Fischer began the novena. In 1873 he petitioned his bishop to turn the church over to the Franciscan fathers. In 1875 the order accepted the invitation.

Since that time the Franciscans have carried out the novena without missing a single week. Thru the years the number of parishioners has dwindled. The high spot was in 1870 when the church listed on its records 1,200 families. Today it has no parish list, yet hundreds — on some days thousands—hear mass daily from 5 o'clock in the morning to noon.

On the tableaux program Sunday evening famous loop characters of bygone years are to be depicted by the auxiliary. They will include Mrs. Potter Palmer, Lillian Russell, Bathouse John Coughlin, late alderman of the 1st ward; the Floradora sextette, Mme. Schumann-Heink and a bevy of 1890 bathing beauties.

Banquet in Afternoon.

A banquet will be held at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon in the auditorium. The Rev. Leander Conley, pastor, will deliver the address of welcome. Other speakers are to include Mayor Kelly and Judge Francis Allegretti of the Superior court.

The celebration will mark the 75th anniversary of the establishment of the school by the Sisters of Notre Dame. The school is free and has a student body of 60 pupils made up of Greek, Indian, Irish, German, and Chinese children in the area.

The Rev. Mr. Conley is general director of the anniversary celebration. Mrs. Mollie Fitzsimmons is chairman and Miss Rose Schackman is co-chairman. Other members of the committee include Mrs. Robert Casey, Mrs. Margaret Hulkins, Miss Anne Schackman, Robert O'Neil, Frank Schaeffer, Catherine Paully, Anna Sieberts, Miss Nellie Mackey, Mrs. Elsie Kennedy, Mrs. Harriet Bell, Mrs. Rosina Powers, B. A. Fernandez, Walter Roe, Anne Fardy, and Mary Murphy.

Union Printers Celebrate 25th Bowling Season

The Union Printers' league, who for years have been very prominent in the bowling world, will open their 25th year, on Sept. 25. This year being their silver jubilee year, the committee has arranged several gala evenings at Bensinger's Randolph alleys. President Tom Canty of Chicago Typographical union No. 16 will welcome the bowlers and roll the first ball. A large attendance is anticipated for the opening night.

WANTS LIGHT PLANT LIGHTED.

Ten years have elapsed since the fine residential area of the 31st ward, the area on Western avenue from Cortez street to Haddon avenue, was demolished to make room for obstructive structures erected by an electric company to encase huge dynamos, transformers, and generators.

The erection of these obstructive structures was very detrimental to the business progress of the immediate neighborhood as well as to the valuation of real estate. The surrounding area was darkened, strange to say, by a firm generating electricity.

The situation can be amended only by proper adornment and electrification of the large structures. This would not only be an asset to the power plant, but to the community as well.

LIKES TOWN HALL IDEA.

Many communities are doing a good job in organizing Town Hall meetings at which any one can air his opinions on current topics. The civic minded citizens responsible for the Town Halls are to be congratulated on their Americanism. These meetings are in the American tradition and all citizens should attend to use their democratic rights in expressing themselves. I believe more of these forums should be organized, particularly on the north side. These meetings will insure our retaining free speech in America.

POLITICS TAKES ON NEW SPIRIT IN COMMUNITIES

Willkie Boosters Await Wilmette Rally.

The 1940 political campaign will take on a neighborhood cast next week when community Republican and Democratic organizations open their vote drive.

In Wilmette tomorrow evening more than 100 Willkie supporters will gather at the home of C. P. Dubbs, 1004 Michigan avenue, to discuss the suburban campaign. The organization, known as the Wilmette Willkie Workers, has planned to make a house to house canvass for the Republican party.

Officers of the group are Harry C. Kinne, president; James J. O'Grady, Mrs. Franklin Rogers, Mrs. Howard White, and Mrs. N. C. Smith, vice presidents; Robert E. Ricksen, secretary, and M. J. Phillips, treasurer.

The 48th Ward Regular Democratic organization will open a series of campaign meetings tomorrow evening at 4206 Broadway. Five hundred Roosevelt workers are expected to attend.

Several hundred members of the 42d Ward Regular Republican organization will meet Tuesday evening at 1023 North State street to hear candidates of the county ticket. Samuel L. Workman is ward committeeman.

Five Republican candidates will speak tomorrow evening at Belmont hall, Belmont avenue and Clark street, before a gathering of several hundred members of the 46th Ward Regular Republican organization. The speakers are Victor B. Listug, candidate for trustee of the sanitary district; A. W. Komarek, candidate for recorder of deeds, and three Municipal court judge candidates—Edward B. Casey, Edgar A. Jones, and William Grace.

Two opposing candidates for the office of state senator of the 6th district will appear on the same platform Tuesday evening at a meeting of the North Town Improvement association at the Kiwanis Scout clubhouse, 2207 Devon avenue.

The candidates are John J. Meyers, present state senator, Democrat, and William C. Knox, Republican candidate. They will speak on "Prospects for Reduced Appropriations in the 1941 General Assembly."

Wright, Mrs. Roy Schuessler, and Mrs. G. Norman Taylor.

Sings Today.

Mrs. Henry Haven Windsor Jr., former opera singer, will be guest soloist this morning at homecoming services of the First Presbyterian church of Evanston.

DAHLIA PRIZES GO TO GROWERS IN NORTH AREA

Capture 11 Awards in Annual Contest.

Northbrook dahlia gardens took four awards at the annual flower show sponsored by the Central States Dahlia society of Chicago which was held Sept. 14 and 15 in the Garfield park conservatory. Seven more of the 22 awards were won by residents in the north metropolitan area.

The Northbrook gardens received a silver cup from the sponsoring club for the best plants raised in the open by a commercial grower, the Northeastern Pennsylvania Dahlia society medal for the best commercial displays and the Ohio Valley Dahlia association silver medal as first prize for the entry of 25 Madame Pierre Lundin dahlias. The gardens also won the gold medal in the House Beautiful futurity class.

Racine Gardeners Win.

Two Racine, Wis., gardeners won awards. W. A. Hackler received a silver cup as first prize for the amateur who grows dahlias in cloth houses and Theodore Simon had the most outstanding entry of the Mrs. Robert R. McCormick variety of dahlias. The award was the Mrs. Robert R. McCormick Memorial trophy from the Central States society.

Joseph Heineman of Milwaukee won a silver cup for commercial growers who raise dahlias under cloth and Mrs. J. G. Sample of Lake Forest received the American Dahlia society bronze medal for a professional grower raising the six most perfect blooms in the show. Andrew Eide is Mrs. Sample's gardener.

Captures Two Firsts.

E. A. Schoenlau, 841 Bradley place, won two firsts, one for the best amateur arrangement of dahlias and the other for the most outstanding entry in this class. The awards are the Rose Schampel Memorial trophy and the North Shore Dahlia society medal.

ARNOLD SCHOOL PUPILS EXHIBIT GARDEN TALENTS

Inspire Neighborhood to Improve Appearance.

Good gardens are making good neighbors in the Arnold school community, 718 Armitage avenue. This is the second year that the youngsters have worked on their gardens thru the summer, then exhibited their flowers and vegetables at a school flower show. At an assembly soon, Principal Fred M. Mabrey, will present awards to the winners in eight exhibit classes and a composition contest held on Sept. 12.

An American flag for a garden flag pole will be awarded to Henry Schulthesz, who had the largest total in points. Horticultural achievement medals will be presented to Evelyn Cokinos, with the second largest total; Nels Holmquist, third, and Delores Lederer and Lorraine Peroni, honorable mentions.

List Ribbon Awards.

Ribbons will go to the following who are listed in the order of their award under the various classes.

Zinnias: Fred Peth, Henry Schulthesz, Virginia Sottile and Gordon Schmieder. Marigolds: Hanry Lieuta, Henry Schulthesz, Rolf Holmquist, and Christula Sarant. Four o'Clocks: Henry Schulthesz, Michael Sottile, Robert Porter, and Jim Tilton. Asters: Nels Holmquist, Henry Schulthesz, Frank Baugartner, and Burton Cohen. Bouquets: Estelle Johnston, Joseph Fehniger, Fred Wind, and Margaret Schmidt.

Vegetables: Eugene Gasperini, Lorraine Peroni, Delores Ledered, and Mary Castiglia. Boxes or containers of plants: class project of Mrs. Cora D. Mitchell's room placed first, Sam Massano, Evelyn Cokinos, and Stella Olfanos. Gardens showing the most progress under hard conditions: Evelyn Cokinos, Nels Holmquist, Lorraine Peroni, and Mike and Virginia Sottile. Best compositions on gardening under difficulties: Richard Hawkins, Dolores Lederer, Claire Patterson, and Lucile Maniscalia.

Tranform Vacant Lots.

The Garden club, which started with 20 pupils in Mrs. Mitchell's room less than two years ago, now has about 300 members. The movement spread thru the school, interested the parents and even aroused the community pride of neighbors without children. Little plots of ground thruout this congested near-the-loop community have been transformed from junk heaps to grassy spots blooming with hardy flowers.

When Mrs. Mitchell and her committee of 12 pupils visited some of the gardens, neighbors called to the group, asking them to look at their plants and flowers. One youngster in the second grade proudly led the group up four flights of wooden back stairs to his garden of cheese boxes, home made window boxes and pots full of flowers and plants.

Two old ladies on a nearby porch beckoned the group over and when Mrs. Mitchell asked a boy if they had school children, he replied "No, but they give us some of their seeds and we give them some of ours."

Mrs. Mitchell discovered that the adults could not speak English, but they smiled over their flowers and pointed to the children as if to indicate that the youngsters had inspired the planting.

Visit More Homes..

The garden inspectors went on to the Holmquists who had planted their parkway and back yard. Mrs. Holmquist, who lives in the basement of a large building, said 20 children lived in the building and that it was a struggle to keep flowers blooming, but she sent them to the Fehnigers, two yards away, who had a lovelier garden. Mrs. Fehniger had been waiting all morning for the committee and she promised to send some flowers to the school for winter window boxes.

Lorraine Peroni in the second grade grows only tomatoes in ther 10 foot square garden, but the plants are loaded with fruit. The yard used to be a junk pile.

Evelyn Cokinos' garden showed the most ingenuity, hard work and family coöperation. Evelyn lives on the first floor of a small building set in the rear of a larger building and there is no place for flowers. But her father made a shelf at the top of the attic stairs outside the house and filled boxes with soil which he brought several miles. All summer Evelyn and her smaller brother carried sprinkling cans of water up the stairs to the plants and now flowers and mint are growing profusely along the attic railing.

Niles Center to Study Own Part in Nation's Defense

What part Niles Center will play in the nation's defense program will be discussed Monday evening, Sept. 30, in a town hall meeting at the Niles Township High school in the suburb. Maj. Harold A. Meyer, Fort Sheridan staff officer, will be the principal speaker. The meeting will be the first of a series to be held by the suburb's Civic league. Phil T. Brooks is program chairman.

League to Meet.

Temple Sholom's Senior league will open the fall season this afternoon with a meeting in the synagogue community rooms, 3480 Lake Shore drive. Robert Brook is president.

TWO BUSINESS WOMEN'S CLUBS TO OPEN SEASON

Church Group Has Its Yearbook on Press.

Two business and professional women's clubs, one at the Peoples church, 941 Lawrence avenue, and the other in Evanston, are planning extensive activities this season. The club at the Peoples church was organized last fall by Miss Ethel E. Smalley, secretary to the pastor.

Eighty women of various ages and from every field of work enthusiastically supported Miss Smalley's idea and before the club season was over in the spring, 70 others had joined the group. Now the club is ready to enter the season in the approved fashion. A yearbook is on the press and a full program has been outlined for the semimonthly meetings on the second and fourth Mondays.

Open House Oct. 14.

Miss Smalley will preside at the first meeting and open house Oct. 14. The program, "What's My Name?" will be conducted by Helen Hardin, writer, radio commentator and speaker. J. Bradley-Griffin, recitalist and dramatic coach ,will be featured at the second October meeting, accompanied by Philip Jorgenson on the organ.

An Armistice program on Nov. 11 will offer a debate on "Is Peace Possible?" and drills by the Boy and Girl Scout troops. In December, one act plays by the Little Theater group will be presented on the 9th and a Christmas party is scheduled for the 23d.

Members will hear a discussion of best sellers by Kenneth Horan on Jan. 27. Honorary presidents' night, Feb. 9, will feature music by Clyde Bassler and characterizations in costume by Lenore Brown. Guy Colby will be master of ceremonies for a square dance party on March 9.

Sam Campbell will give an illustrated lecture on March 23, Elda Hutton and the Abernathy ensemble will offer drama and music on April 13 and Louise K. Appel will picture California in an illustrated talk on April 27. The annual dinner party will close the season on May 12.

Program Is Arranged.

The membership and emblem committees of the Evanston group have planned the program for tomorrow night in the First Methodist church house. Katharine S. Lord of Evanston will speak on "The Layman Looks at Modern Art." As a teacher, she feels that if people knew more about the modern movement they would not be so antagonistic to it. Mrs. Lord is a graduate of the Chicago Art institute and passed the summer in Sante Fe studying special branches of art.

Clara Lawrence, president, will preside with these officers: Frances D. McNair, first vice president; Ruth Semmes, second vice president; Anne M. Eldridge, recording secretary; Bertha Holcomb, treasurer, and Mrs. Ruby L. Harrington, corresponding secretary.

Committee chairmen include Mrs. Margaret Nelson, dinners and admissions; Irene E. Flesner, education; M. Estelle Nash, finance; Bertha Bennett, health and welfare; Maude E. Lee, insurance; Mary Slack, international relations; Myrtle Cash, legislation; Kathryn Foucht, membership; Mabel Vollmer, public affairs; Esther Vincent, broadcaster; Etta L. Traub, press; Florence R. Stewart, research; Ethel M. Miller, social; Ada D. Miller, transportation, and Jeannette E. Nichols, yearbook.

POLICE DIVISION OF NORTH SHORE WILL PLAY GOLF

The north shore division of the Illinois Police association will have its first fall meeting Tuesday at the Glencoe Golf club, just west of the suburb. The program will include golf matches in the morning and afternoon and a buffet supper in the evening. Lieut. Col. Chester L. Fourtney, head of the marines' Chicago recruiting office, will be guest speaker. Membership in the north shore division of the association is made up of suburban policemen from Evanston to Waukegan who meet monthly. Lieut. William McGriffin of the Niles Center police department is chairman of the arrangements committee.

PRIMARY BALLOT ANALYSIS LIFTS HOPE OF G. O. P.

Slump by Democrats Is Pointed Out.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Republican hopes leaped last week as the result of an analysis of the April primary figures for the office of state representative in the 31st district [Edgewater-Uptown-Belmont Harbor]. George A. Williston, one of the two G. O. P. candidates, predicted Republican victory.

William B. Greene.

This would reverse the present lineup of two Democrats and one Republican representing the district at Springfield. The 31st is among eight districts in the Chicago area where Republicans are attempting to gain house seats to build a working majority. The G. O. P. has a slight edge now, but is nullified by a few disloyal party members.

Last April's figures give the Democarts a lead of 47,000 in the total votes cast for the office. The count was 127,634 Democratic votes and 80,788 Republican votes. Each citizen has three votes on this office, to be given to one candidate or divided among two or three.

Figures Change Picture.

"At first glance there appears to be nothing to cheer about in this layout," said Williston, former 49th ward alderman and now ward commit teeman. "But the pitcure changes entirely when ge get out the figures for the last election in this office, in 1938. We don't intend to let the public—all potential Republicans—be fooled by the primary showing of the payroll machine.

"The significant thing is that in 1938 the Democratic primary margin was 111,000 votes, well over twice as great as this year's lead. The score for this office then was Democrats 155,969, Republicans 44,412.

"But look back at how the 111,000 vote lead shrank to 16,000 in the November finals! Losing some 95,000 votes between April and November, the Democrats had 161,389 to 144,002 for Republicans."

Only half such a shrinkage between primary and election day this year will give victory to the Republicans, Williston said. He declared the shrinkage was inevitable because of the methods used by the Democrats in rolling up the big primary vote.

Fear Grips Voters.

"Little does the public realize the extent of the fear which grips many voters and causes them to ask for Democratic primary ballots in this land of freedom," Williston said. "However, the machine cannot control these voters in November under the protection of secret ballots, except by the illegal system of chain voting."

Among those April Democrats who will be free to vote Republican on Nov. 5 he classed the following:

1—Public payrollers and members of their families.

2—WPA workers and members of their families.

3—Persons receiving relief and old age assistance.

4—Business men dealing with government agencies.

In addition, he said, there is the factor of the Democratic machine having the power to marshall its voters in the primary while the Republican vote is composed of "volunteers" under no compulsion to go to the polls. More G. O. P. "volunteers" will take part in the final voting in November, he said.

Williston was a member of the house for six years before he was elected alderman in 1930. Of his service at Springfield the Legislative Voters league said: "Is finishing third term. Has shown unusual independence and has voted consistently to prevent waste in appropriations and to keep down taxation. He has served the public faithfully and has made a very good record."

Williston is a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, Kiwanis Club of Rogers Park, and the Howard District Business association. His home is at 1245 Early avenue.

Representative Edward P. Saltiel, whose home is at 3318 Lake Shore drive, is well known as the author of the state law requiring pre-marital examinations. He is seeking his fourth consecutive term in the house where he is chairman of the important judiciary committee.

Busy Frist Termer.

A busy first termer who introduced a score of bills in the legislature is the junior Democratic candidate, William B. Greene, 37 years old, 1802 Lincoln Park West. When interviewed he was in the 43d ward regular Democratic headquarters at 333 West North avenue, hearing the troubles of WPA workers, reliefers, and old age assistance recipients.

"I am relying upon personal contact rather than talking at political meetings," Greene said. "Seeing these under privileged people on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday evenings or in the daytime at my own office, enables me to help them and perhaps build up good will."

Literature will be mailed to the voters about two weeks before election, and this will do a better job of explaining the legislative issues than can candidates speaking in ward halls, he said.

Representative Pierce L. Shannon, of 915 Buena avenue, has been a member of the house for 10 years. He has handled much important legislation. An auditor and accountant employed by the county government, he was formerly secretary of the Lake Zurich Dairy company.

Seriously wounded when a captain of field artillery in the world war, Shannon recently resigned from the Illinois National Guard because of poor health.

Masonic Lodge Will Hear an Address on Democracy

"The Price of Democracy Is Going Up" will be the title of a speech to be made by Dr. Stanley B. Crosland, pastor of the Rogers Park Congregational church, Wednesday evening before Crescent lodge, No. 895, A. F. & A. M., at 32 West Randolph street.

HIGHLAND PARK WOMEN ARRANGE VARIED PROGRAM

Mrs. P. M. Murray Begins 2d Presidential Term.

Four hundred members of the Highland Park Woman's club will be entertained by recognized talent and enlightened on subjects from Americanism to general semantics by speakers who will be heard this season. Mrs. David T. Sanders, program chairman, has assembled the artists and lecturers for the general meetings.

Mrs. David T. Sanders.

Mrs. Poyntz M. Murray, beginning her second year as president, will conduct the business sessions with the assistance of the other officers, Mrs. Harry G. Pertz, first vice president; Mrs. C. Eugene Pfister, second vice president; Mrs. James A. Davis, recording secretary; Mrs. Deforrest S. Colburn, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Carl E. Wagner, treasurer, and Mrs. Lyle W. Maley, financial secretary.

Ruth Page Will Dance.

Miss Ruth Page, danseuse, assisted by Bently Stone, will be featured on the opening program Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 15, in the clubhouse. In November, Donald Scott Morrison, American pianist, will offer "Conversational Concerts" on the 6th and Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., journalist, world traveler and commentator, will describe "The 12 Most Interesting People I Have Ever Interviewed," on the 19th.

For the first evening meeting on Dec. 13, John Metcalfe, American reporter turned spy hunter, will discuss "Uncovering Un-Americanism." The Christmas party is scheduled for Dec. 17. On Jan. 7 Emily Taft Douglas, chairman of government and foreign policy in the League of Women Voters, will lecture on "Protesting Women," and on the 21st of the month Edmund Giesbert, artist, teacher, and lecturer, will discuss "Painting a Portrait."

The speaker for Feb. 5 will be Edward Tomlinson, interpreter of South American affairs, and a musical will be given on Feb. 18. On March 4 Mrs. Sanders will introduce Earl G. Wright, naturalist and photographer, and Dr. Irving J. Lee of Northwestern university on the 18th. The latter will discuss "A Way with Words—an Introduction to General Semantics." For the final program on April 1, Mrs. John T. Byrne will describe "Small Household Madonnas."

Plans of Chairmen.

Within the departments chairmen plan activities centering around a specific interest, which also are open to the membership. These chairmen, who are classed as directors on the board, include Mrs. Sanders, Mrs. Thomas Leeming, social; Mrs. Benedict K. Goodman, fine arts; Mrs. Baker A. Hamilton, home and education; Mrs. Grover Q. Grady, social service; Mrs. A. L. Berg, hospitality.

Mrs. Frederick Olmsted Toof, press and publicity; Mrs. Carl T. Anderson, house and grounds; Mrs. Arthur H. Swanson, finance; Mrs. Edwin T. Richardson Murphy, budget; Mrs. George B. Dana, furnishings, and Mrs. Herbert R. Smith, immediate past president.

The collector's study group, Mrs. Wilford C. Shipnes, chairman, is one of the most popular divisions under fine arts. The group will sponsor lectures on historical Staffordshire, early Pennsylvania handicraft, early American weaving and old lace.

Some Other Divisions.

Other divisions are drama, Mrs. Robert M. Jeffries, chairman; book reviews, Mrs. Herman A. Zischke, chairman; music, Mrs. Eugene F. Englehard, chairman, and art, Mrs. Clarence C. Bassler, chairman. The music group will present programs on Feb. 18 and April 14 and the art division will arrange for a monthly exhibit.

The home and education department is planning a trip to the Oriental instittue at the University of Chicago, a demonstration on making Christmas decorations and a Kensington tea at which members will exhibit hand work. Mrs. O. Laurence Olesen is chairman of the garden class.

Members of Mrs. Toof's press department are Mrs. W. H. Blessing, monthly bulletin chairman; Mrs. Jess Halsted, advertising, and Mrs. Ben Buckmaster, mailing. Mrs. Leeming and her assistant social chairman, Mrs. George O. Strecker, are planning several bridge luncheons after the first of the year.

The finance committee will give a benefit bridge on Nov. 12 to reduce the small indebtedness on the building.

September Bride

Mrs. Charles F. McWilliams, the former Janice Bilger, was married Sept. 7 at St. Clement's church to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McWilliams, 2548 North Burling street. She is the daughter of George W. Bilger, 1611 Thome avenue, and Mrs. Preston N. Miller, 3609 North Bosworth avenue. A reception in the Svithiod club followed the ceremony. [Allan Photo.]

EVANSTON GUILD THEATER READY FOR 2D SEASON

List of First 4 Plays Is Announced.

The Evanston Guild theater, 616 Church street, has survived successfully its experimental first season, according to Hope Summers, producer and director. Brochures already are out announcing the first four plays for the winter season which will begin Oct. 2.

"Petrified Forest," by Robert Sherwood, has been chosen for the première. This comedy drama will be followed on Oct. 30 by Randolph Carter's "The Texas Steer" which is listed among 10 most popular American plays. This revival deals with election foibles and the adventures of a political novice in Washington in the '90s.

Thriller on Nov. 27.

A thriller, "Double Door" by Elizabeth McFadden, will open on Nov. 27. Eugene O'Neill's popular comedy about an American family, "Ah, Wilderness," will be the Guild's Christmas gift to its public, opening Dec. 26.

In its brochure the Guild also announces a season subscription plan. A ticket in the subscription book will be honored any night of the month's run for which it has been issued, but it will be necessary to make reservations in advance.

Rehearsals for "Petrified Forest" started last week. Althea Murphy has been cast in the feminine lead of Gabby and Don Brockell will play opposite her as Allan Squire. Others in the cast are Jack Culbertson, Dale Edmonds, Ted Mills, Bill Waterman, Alan Hokanson, Ted Lee, James Dexter, John Merrill, Doris Hargis, Walter Atkinson, Peter Kreer, and Charles Troy. Hope Summers is directing the play.

Have Had Experience.

In addition to her work with the Guild, Miss Summers appears on several radio shows. Other radio actors who have had previous legitimate stage experience are interested in the project and are taking time to appear in Guild plays this fall. Bill Waterman is one of that group.

The company is working every day and well into the night rehabilitating the little theater, installing permanent tiered seats and painting scenery.

EVANSTON AGAIN SEES NEED FOR A DAY NURSERY

Plan May Be Backed by Community Chest.

One of the 12 organizations supported by the Evanston Community chest is the Evanston Day nursery, 1515 Wesley avenue. Since February, 1933, the organization has served lunches to needy school children instead of fulfilling its original function as a nursery which was not needed in the community at that time.

This year the group again will receive $3,000 from the chest drive which opens Oct. 1. A returning need for a day nursery has brought up the question of financing both enterprizes. The board estimates that an additional $4,000 would be needed to maintain a nursery group of 25 children and a lunch service for 20 pupils.

Serve Balanced Lunches.

At present the nursery is serving balanced lunches to 32 youngsters. Sometimes it is the only good meal they get a day. Mrs. Jessie Welsh, the slender Scotch matron who has been at the nursery for 10 years, sees to it that every child gets all he wants.

At the peak of the season in the winter, the nursery has served 60 lunches a day, five days a week, and 50 was a daily average last winter. The service is continued thru the year, except in August. A member of the board assists Mrs. Welsh and she has two young helpers. All holidays are celebrated and there is a picnic in the summer.

Come from Schools.

The children come from Dewey school across the street and Bethlehem Lutheran and St. Mary's schools in the neighborhood. Dewey has special help classes in which pupils from all parts of Evanston are enrolled. According to statistics from 1937, six out of nine children from one of these special classes, after attending the nursery a year and working in school, were able to go back to their normal group.

No case is accepted, according to Mrs. George Packard, president, until it has been investigated by the Family Welfare association, the Visiting Nurse association or some other agency.

The nursery was founded by the Catholic Woman's club in 1912, with Mrs. P. V. E. B. Ward as president. Mrs. Alfred E. Gross loaned the home on Wesley avenue for many years and in 1936 deeded it to the organization.

List of Officers.

Mrs. Packard, who served as treasurer for four years, is entering her term as president with the following officers: Mrs. John Breytspraak, first vice president; Miss Helen Chapman, second vice president; Mrs. Charles G. Bennet, third vice president; Mrs. Manley Mumford, recording secretary; Miss Isabel Phillips, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Donald Bradford, treasurer, and Mrs. Donald Miller, assistant treasurer.

Committee chairman include Mrs. Bayless French, admissions; Mrs. Vernon David, membership; Mrs. Henry Huxley, house and grounds; Miss Marion Carpenter, Community Chest; Mrs. Robert Milligan, Thrift house; Mrs. Augustus Knight, diet; Mrs. Ward Huston, entertainment; Mrs. George Pearson, future policy; Mrs. Henry Roney, social agency; Mrs. Roswell Whidden, publicity, and Miss Chapman, finance.

Bride at Home

BOOK AND PLAY TEMPLE CIRCLE OUTLINES PLANS

Eight programs will be offered this season by the Book and Play circle of Temple Emanuel sisterhood in the temple 701 Buckingham place. Arrangements for the series have been made by Mrs. Sidney A. Myer, Mrs. Hugo Munzer, and Mrs. Rudolph Munzer, co-chairmen; Mrs. Sylvan Kohn, ticket chairman, and their committee.

A group of radio figures will be presented on the first program Wednesday, Oct. 16, with Rene Gekiere as master of ceremonies. The cast will offer "Behind the Scenes in Radio" with individual numbers by Sunda Love, Donna Reade, Olga Rosenova, and Annette Harper, all dramatic artists; Win Stracke, basso, and Lou Terkel, comedian.

Ann Birk Kuper will give a monodrama on Oct. 30. This summer Mrs. Kuper appeared with the Michianna Shores theater players.

Members of the general committee are Mrs. Paul Abrahamson, Mrs. Francis Ascher, Mrs. Harry Altschuler, Mrs. Edwin Brown, Mrs. Arthur Dettelbach, Mrs. Albert Fader, Mrs. Alfred Decker, Mrs. Otto Herman, Mrs. Albert Hirsch, Mrs. Ruth Levy, Mrs. Fred Lowy, Mrs. George Goldstein, Mrs. Elmer Mills, Mrs. Casper Nathan, Mrs. M. Sherry, Mrs. Richard Sonnenschein, Mrs. Rene Wahl, Mrs. Walter Ehrman, Mrs. Sol Ziven, Mrs. Harold Selz, Mrs. Sol Bendheim, Mrs. Lee Slott, Mrs. Arnold Lederer, and Mrs. Leo Ovson.

Bride in West

Mrs. Wilton Rosenthal is the former Miss Anita Stone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Stone of New York City. She was married to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rosenthal of the Edgewater Beach hotel on Sept. 2 in Colorado Springs. After a honeymoon in California the newlyweds will reside in Chicago. WILMETTE CLUB PARTY TO HELP BENEFIT FUNDS

The Economy shop, sponsored by the Wilmette Woman's club, does double duty as a charity project. In addition to offering articles at a low cost to persons with limited budgets it provides profits which help to support charitable organizations in Wilmette and Chicago. Since December, 1918, it has upheld successfully its motto: "Help people to help themselves."

Mrs. Frank Adams.

Club members, shop workers and friends of the shop are expected to attend the annual benefit card party to be held at 1 o'clock Wednesday in the clubhouse. Chairmen of the salad bridge are Mrs. Frank Adams, past president of the woman's club, and Mrs. E. J. Matot, chairman of the economy shop. Besides the table prizes, there will be the special awards expected at Economy shop parties, dozens and dozens of large, homemade frosted cakes made by friends of the shop.

Members Aid in Shop.

Workers from the shop will assist as hostesses. Members serve in the shop at 1135 Greenleaf avenue a half a day at a time, under the direction of the manager, Mrs. F. Z. Favor.

Among the Wilmette organizations which receive some of the profits are the Community Chest, Family welfare, the Health center, Arden Shore, and New Trier High school aid. Other funds go to the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial hospital and to church groups for their individual charity projects.

Tickets for the benefit party may be obtained at the shop, from the chairmen or the committee members including Mrs. A. E. Klunder, Mrs. C. A. Willis, Mrs. H. C. Toeppen, Mrs. George Hendrickson, Mrs. Arthur J. Dixon, Mrs. H. S. Davidson, Mrs. C. F. Kremer, Mrs. F. L. McGrath, Mrs. William T. Morgan, Mrs. A. L. Newcomb.

TWO LECTURERS ARE ON PROGRAM OF SISTERHOOD

Anshe Emet Group Will Meet Wednesday.

Two well known women lecturers, Mrs. Paul H. Douglas and Miss Lillian Herstein, will hold the attention of the Anshe Emet sisterhood membership of 1,200 at the opening meeting of the season Wednesday afternoon in the Community hall, Pine Grove avenue and Grace street.

Mrs. Milton C. Lippitz.

Mrs. Douglas, who will discuss the American woman's rôle in the present crisis, is the daughter of the late Lorado Taft, sculptor, and the wife of Paul Douglas, professor of economics at the University of Chicago. In addition to her lecture career, Mrs. Douglas appeared on the stage for several seasons in "The Cat and the Canary."

Miss Herstein, director of lectures of the Chicago City colleges, is the only woman member on the executive board of the American Federation of Labor and was appointed by the government as its representative to the international conference at Geneva, Switzerland, in 1937 on the problem of child labor. That year she was also delegate of the American Federation of Teachers to its international conference in Paris.

President to Preside.

Mrs. Milton C. Lippitz, president, will preside. Mrs. Harry S. Aberman is chairman of the day and Mrs. E. H. White, hostess, will be assisted by Mrs. Barney Aberg, Mrs. Jack Ablin, Mrs. Nathan Balas, Mrs. Sam Ballis, Mrs. A. H. Davidson, Mrs. Morris Edenson, Mrs. Henry Jacobs, Mrs. Leo Carlin, Mrs. Dan E. Kahn, Mrs. Max Karasik, Mrs. Henry Langendorf, and Mrs. Edward Lapkoff.

Two special events on the fall program are a musical tea for new members and their sponsors on Oct. 16 in the new home of Rabbi and Mrs. Solomon Goldman at 3800 Lake Shore drive, and the merchandise market days scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 26 and 27.

Mrs. Max Arkin, membership chairman, Mrs. David W. Williams, co-chairman, and a committee will start a membership drive immediately. The committee includes Mrs. Samuel Baer, Mrs. Milton Block, Mrs. Max Carp, Mrs. Sylvan Chase, Mrs. Leonard Cohen, Mrs. Adolph Crown, Mrs. Maurice Edelman, Mrs. T. C. Eder, Mrs. S. M. Wins Art Scholarship

Adele Koeninger, 2421 Morse avenue, who was graduated from Senn High school last June, has been awarded a scholarship paying half her tuition for 1940-'41 at the Evanston Academy of Fine Arts. She was recommended for the award by Miss Rosa E. Dooley, head of the Senn art department.

A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Two months or more of weekly riding lessons have convinced me I liked the sport more than casually, so I determined to invest in a regular riding outfit. I looked over the field and sought advice before I bought.

It became apparent to me that bridle path riders are less bound by tradition than, say, the hunting and jumping crowd, for whom dame fashion has laid down fairly rigid rules.

Horse trail clothing combinations are nearly as various as riders. True, most outfits consist of breeches, stout boots, and negligee shirts or sweaters, but in materials, color, and cut the variety is limitless.

I wondered whether to get the old favorite combination of high topped boots and regulation breeches, or the increasingly popular jodhpur outfit of ankle length boots with breeches that terminate in close fitting trouser legs.

Matter of Preference.

My instructor, Elmer J. Holdorf, and other veterans told me it was largely a matter of my own taste and requirements. They said the high boot combination offered such advantages as maximum warmth and leg protection, while jods were less confining and were easier to carry for short notice rides because they took up less storage room. I chose jods.

On advice of my more experienced friends, I also bought a windbreaker—an unlimited, loose fitting belted jacket with plenty of pockets. This can be carried handily in case of sudden cold or rains, and it isn't so much in the way in case one wants to shed it during a ride.

I found riding an ideal consumer of my outworn white shirts that seemed too good to discard entirely. They come to an honorable and useful end on horseback.

So, too, do last season's unlined leather gloves, which serve admirably as hand protection against rein blisters, and the dirt that clings inevitably to harness leather.

Advises Heavy Sox.

For wear next to the feet, sweat sox are the thing. The soft, thick fabric absorbs perspiration and at the same time cushions the feet. Sweat sox are suitable for either warm or cold weather. When buying boots it is well to get them large enough to accommodate heavy sox.

Generally speaking, these clothing tips are applicable to either sex, for woman riders on the bridle paths and horse trails no longer swath themselves in skirts, but copy the men sartorially.

Head covering is optional. Most riders in summer go bareheaded. The exceptions go in for considerable variety. Men, of course, cling slavishly to the fedora. Women are partial to the peasant kerchief, or the small, close fitting felt hat known, I believe, as the bowler.

The cost of an outfit is just about what the purchaser makes it. One can acquire all the necessary wearables for as little as $10 or less, or he can shoot the works and spend as much as a good horse would cost.

I hold that it is best to invest in better quality garments and footgear that will stand up well under the frequent cleanings to which their use exposes them.

Styles Remain Same.

It is well to bear in mind when outfitting that your riding attire, unlike street clothing, does not go out of style quickly. If it is chosen judiciously it will deliver perhaps several years of service.

As freakish as riding clothes may seem to some persons, each peculiarity is grounded in sound reason, I learned.

Take breeches, for example. The peg tops give ample seat room. The close fitting legs eliminate clothing folds that might cause chafing.

Boots are of heavy leather and extend above the ankles because they protect against the stirrup irons. High boot tops insulate the rider's legs from harsh stirrup straps and possible thorns and branches of the trail. They also help to keep cleaning bills down, by standing between trouser legs and the saddle straps and the horse's sides, which unfortunately are not always clean, particularly in the cheaper stables.

DEATH TOLL IS 4 AT THREE NORTH DANGER CORNERS

'Enemy' Crossings 12, 13, 14 Analyzed.

Four persons were killed and 24 injured from January, 1939, thru May, 1940, at accident corners Nos. 12, 13, and 14 on the list of the north side's 20 most dangerous intersections. The corners are Clark street and Foster avenue, Berteau and Western avenues, and Ashland and Montrose avenues.

The most dangerous of the three corners is No. 12, Foster avenue and Clark street. Ten of the total of 15 accidents there involved cars eastbound on Foster. Two persons were killed, both in one accident at 3 o'clock in the morning. All the accidents involving eastbound traffic occurred at night.

Wants Parking Banned.

The North Area council of the Chicago Motor club recently recommended that all parking on Foster avenue between Clark street and Ashland avenue be eliminated. Motor club engineers say this would not only aid in cutting the traffic jam during rush hours but would serve as a continuous help to pedestrians. Many of the pedestrian accidents have been the result of persons stepping into the traffic stream from behind parked cars.

Two persons also were killed in the same period at Berteau and Western avenues, No. 13 danger corner. Berteau is not a thru street and ends just three blocks west of Western avenue. All but one of the 11 reported accidents on this corner involved cars traveling on Western avenue. Four pedestrians were injured. One person was hurt in a rear-end collision and three were injured in head-on crashes.

As a means of cutting the accident toll, engineers recommend that crosswalk lines be maintained at the corner for pedestrian protection and that speed laws in the vicinity be rigidly enforced.

List 22 Accidents.

"Public enemy" corner No. 14, Ashland and Montrose avenues, has been the scene of 22 accidents in the 17 month period. Forty-one per cent of the accidents occurred after dark and 78 per cent of these after 11 o'clock.

The majority of the mishaps involved cars on Ashland avenue. The intersection has a high percentage of right angle turns resulting from cars running the traffic lights. Nine accidents occurred in 1939 and 13 in the first five months of this year.

To cut the accident toll, engineers recommend the strict enforcement of traffic rules.

[An analysis of "public enemy" corners, Nos. 15, 16, and 17, will be printed in an early issue of the Metropolitan Section.]

SAX MEMORIAL, RESTHAVEN AID, PLANS MEETING

The Sax Memorial Aid of Resthaven will hold its opening meeting at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow in the Sheridan Beach hotel, 7301 Sheridan road. After a business session members will play cards and mah-jongh.

G. Finnerman, treasurer.

Mrs. Walter J. Bloch, Mrs. Neumon Katz, Mrs. Benjamin Twery, and Mrs. Robert Lapin are past presidents, and Mrs. Herman Sax is the founder of the society.

Her Name Given Lilies

[Park District Photo.]

Mrs. Virginia Felt Koch, 325 White Oak lane, Winnetka, is holding three blooms of a new variety of water lilies named for her by the Chicago park district. A water lily pool forms the center of interest in Mrs. Koch's own garden. She is an active amateur gardener and clubwoman and is associated with the Winnetka Garden club, the garden department of the Winnetka Woman's club, the Chicago Wellesly College club, and the D. A. R.

ARMY RESERVE OFFICERS WILL MEET THURSDAY

The first fall meeting of the Cook county chapter of the Reserve Officers association will be held on Thursday evening at the Hotel La Salle. Capt. Charles H. Blumenfeld, president of the chapter, will preside.

The chapter is one of the largest in the country, claiming more than 1,000 members, and is planning an extensive training program for the year. Many officers of the chapter are on extended active duty with the army now, and many more are expected to be called for duty soon.

Col. Fred L. Walker, of the Second army, with headquarters here, will be the principal speaker of the evening. He will discuss the army maneuvers held recently in Wisconsin. Col. John B. Johnson, U. S. A., chief of staff of the Illinois military area, and other regular army officers will be among the 800 officers expected at the meeting. Maj. Marvin Dixon, past president of the chapter, will be presented with a key.

Ravenswood Church Holds Women's Jubilee Services

Ravenswood Christian church, 1507 Sunnyside avenue, which is in the midst of a series of events celebrating its golden jubilee, has turned today's program over to the women of the church. Mrs. Edwin E. Jester, president of the Missionary society, and Mrs. Harry A. Gould, president of the Ladies' Aid society, are in charge of arrangements. The Rev. William Price is pastor.

"YOU OUGHT TO GET MORE SUNSHINE!"

"Why don't you and Bill buy that place you were thinking of? It would be good for all of you."

Puttering around your own garden is just about the pleasantest way to get your quota of sunshine. And only one of the enjoyable advantages of home ownership.

Are you waiting for the right opportunity to buy a home? If so, the Real Estate columns in the Tribune want ad section can help you find what you want.

Because the Tribune prints more real estate want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined, you have a choice of the largest number of attractive home properties on the market when you consult these columns.

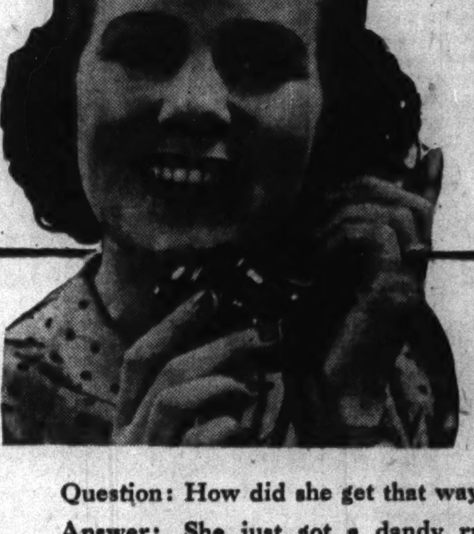
HAVE YOUR CHILDREN A PLAYROOM?

If there is no place for your children to play when the weather gets bad, why not remodel your attic or basement as a playroom?

Remodeling need not be expensive, especially if you take advantage of the offers of lumber, wallboard, glass, paints and other building materials described in the Building Materials column in the Tribune want ad section.

Why not estimate your material and millwork needs today, and follow the Tribune want ad section for values?



THE LADY IS HAPPY

Question: How did she get that way?

Answer: She just got a dandy rug without spending a cent.

Q.: For nothing—how come?

A.: Up in her attic she found Junior's old saxophone which he never plays any more. It was just what an advertiser in the Tribune Barter and Exchange column wanted. So they made a trade.

Q.: Do you suppose . . . ?

A.: You'll never know till you look. Watch the Barter and Exchange column in the Tribune want ad section.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

OLD TOWN HALL NOW LIVING ROOM IN MODERN HOME

Industrial Artist Revamps Aged Structure.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Have you ever felt the urge to buy an abandoned farm and do with it what you wish? Have you ever thought you would love to live with deep woods of your own as a background for your skies, a few hundred acres of gently rolling hills and rich meadow lands, a tiny rushing river, a little lake, and a real waterfall?

If so, you'll be interested in the adventure of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Pellegrin—who did just this.

Four years ago they bought an abandoned farm seven miles northwest of Woodstock, on United States highway 14. It was land rich in possibilities, but its buildings were windswept and stark when they first saw them.

Only Old Hall Remains.

On their grounds had been the thrilling little village of Brookdale a hundred years ago. Only the town hall was left.

But now all that has been changed. What was left of the old town hall is a quite enchanting living room in the new Pellegrin home; a room which retains the original beams and studs and century old timbers. It was Mrs. Pellegrin's idea to keep as much of the original structure as possible. In doing so she has captured the atmosphere of 200 years ago and built the first floor of the house in the same spirit.

Mr. Pellegrin is an industrial artist, and he also is an artist in the use of fine woods. Thruout the house are examples of his work; in the early American chairs and tables which he designed and made, in the hardware and lighting which he also fashioned in his spare time, over a period of four years.

After the little village of Brookdale vanished, its land became known for a great many years as the Lawler farm.

Bunks in Guest Cabin.

Beside the main house and barns, the studio of Mr. Pellegrin and the cottage farm house occupied by young Mr. and Mrs. George Pellegrin, there also is a little cabin guest house.

You reach this by way of a winding drive thru deep woods and across a rustic bridge. It has bunks and pine walls, a small lavatory, and heater, and a great kettle on a hearth for noon or night snacks.

The exterior of the new main house is carried out in skintled brick. The colors are tan and brown and various shades of red, and the bricks are laid with great irregularity, which contributes to the informality of the home. Awnings blend in colors with the brick, and you enter directly into the living room thru an old Dutch door, the natural finish of its aged oak weathered to a grayish hue.

Here the original beams have been kept, and spaces between studding roughly bricked in. There is a large picture window on the front wall of the room to afford abundance of light, and opposite the entrance is a mammoth stone fireplace which reaches to the ceiling. Its fireplace shelf is of hand hewn oak and its stones gathered from the farm.

The kitchen is a gem. An artist's kitchen. It is both modern and as beautifully storied with the past as some kitchen from the coast of the Pilgrim fathers.

The pine walls are mellow colored and rich, the dining table and chairs are honey shade. There also is a second range wall, and here is a modern sink with linoleum work surfaces. There is an overhead indirect lighting fixture, and the door jamb of kitchen is painted a quiet blue with white flowers—the sort of flowers one finds growing in the meadow lands and woods.

CHURCH REBUILT AFTER FIRE WILL BE DEDICATED

The new First Congregational church of Waukegan will be dedicated today. The old building was destroyed by a firebug ten months ago. A personal service of dedication will be held at 11 o'clock this morning and the public dedication is scheduled for 4 o'clock. The Rev. J. W. Frederic Davies, pastor, will conduct the first service.

This afternoon the Rev. Oswald W. S. McCall of the New First Congregational church of Chicago will deliver the sermon and the Rev. Niel E. Hansen of the Chicago Congregational union will offer the dedicatory prayer. There will be special music for both services.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Sept. 23.

Never allow weeds to go to seed. Pull or burn those on the vacant lot next door and if possible start a civic campaign by organizing all garden lovers to see to it that no weeds can exist in the community. Plow vacant lots and seed the ground so weeds cannot spread to the gardens. Take the initiative in this important activity and the entire community will be benefited.

Keep the garden area free from pieces of wire, broken branches, and all obnoxious things; mow the lawn so the heavy growth will not mat down and injure the standing grass; keep the beds trimmed or edged; prepare for bulb planting; order all bulbs for delivery as soon as possible.

Tuesday, Sept. 24.

Many of the wild flowers may be transplanted at this time and they will bloom next year.

This is about the last week that evergreens can be transplanted with assurance that they will not be injured, altho under all conditions they succeed best when moved with a ball of earth and burlaped. They will not do well in the congested, smoky areas of the city, hence other plants should be used.

Evergreens are excellent for windbreaks on the farm; they are unexcelled as screens and beautiful as specimens. The white pine is a rapid grower. Hemlock is a good hedge plant. Douglas fir and concolor fir grow large.

Wednesday, Sept. 25.

Disbud the chrysanthemums if large sized blooms are wanted. Remove the smaller burs with the fingers, leaving one or more buds to develop. If any plants are growing in the garden, dig and pot them before frost, put in a shady place for a few days and then remove to the enclosed porch or house.

Small bulbils from the stems of lilies should be removed and planted, preferably in a coldframe. Day lilies do well when fall transplanted. They are among the finest of hardy plants, doing well in sun or partial shade. Dig old lily-of-valley plants, enrich the soil, divide, and replant.

Thursday, Sept. 26.

Plant madonna lilies. Imbed them in sand if the soil is heavy. Plant narcissi as soon as possible for they should become established before severe weather arrives. Start another batch of freesias and oxalis bulbs. It is unnecessary to bury them or place them in darkness for rooting.

Friday, Sept. 27.

Fall is an excellent time to plant lilacs, but do not use too many or plant them closer than five to seven feet apart for they are strong growers. Some of the French varieties are very desirable. Buy 3 to 4 foot stock in preference to smaller sizes.

Water newly planted stock and mulch the ground with strawy manure after the ground freezes.

Saturday, Sept. 28.

Hardy annuals sown now will wait until spring to germinate, but they will start so much earlier than spring sown stock that flowers can be enjoyed very early. Suggested kinds to sow include cosmos, petunia, shirley poppy, calendula, nigella, portulaca, and snapdragon.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

PETER QUILL TO RETURN OCT. 6 TO W-G-N—MBS

Peter Quill, mysterious inventive wizard, is coming back to W-G-N. Starting Sunday Oct. 6 Peter Quill will be heard in a new series of dramatic broadcasts providing glimpses of possible weapons of the future for the defense of America. The adventure stories will deal with espionage, sabotage, and America's first line of defense with particular reference to science.

The new Peter Quill series, written and produced by Blair Walliser, will be broadcast from 3 to 3:30 p. m. Sundays. They will be sponsored.

Fantastic and daring inventions for the defense of the nation form the focal point of Peter Quill's new adventures. Gail Carson, who is engaged in counterespionage work, and Capt. Roger Dorn, a government antisabotage trouble shooter, protect Quill's inventions against the destructive efforts of saboteurs. Pitted against them is the Red Circle, sinister spy ring, headed by Michael Raclov and Sonya Danilo.

Alice Hill and Ken Griffin of last year's cast, which played for 40 weeks, again will have lead rôles as Gail Carson and Capt. Dorn. The part of Peter Quill, brilliant, enigmatic scientist and inventor, will be played by Marvin Mueller.

THEATER OF AIR WILL RETURN TO W-G-N ON OCT. 5

The Chicago Theater of the Air will reopen its doors on Saturday, Oct. 5, with "The Vagabond King" as the opening operetta. Marion Claire, W-G-N's prima donna, again will be starred in this series of hour long operetta productions, under the direction of William A. Bacher.

These streamlined versions of favorite operettas and light operas will run from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturdays over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system. The Chicago Theater of the Air again will be sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

A notable group of operatic, concert, and radio headliners has already been engaged to sing the male rôles in the operetta series. Conrad Thibault, well known to radio listeners and concertgoers, will be heard opposite Miss Claire in "The Vagabond King."

List of Male Stars.

Others who will be featured are James Melton, Jan Peerce, Richard Bonelli, John Carter, and Charles Kullman.

James Melton, who starred in "Bittersweet" last spring, will return to the Theater of the Air in "Chocolate Soldier" and "Eileen." Jan Peerce, Radio City Music Hall tenor, who played the male lead in "Student Prince," will be back again in the same rôle.

John Carter, Metropolitan Opera star, altho new to the Theater of the Air, is an old favorite with Chicagoans who heard him at the 1939 Chicagoland Music Festival and Grant park concerts. Carter's lyric tenor voice will be heard in the lead of "Robin Hood."

Bonelli to Be Starred.

Richard Bonelli, famous American operatic baritone, will sing the lead in "Desert Song."

Charles Kullman, Metropolitan Opera tenor who has sung leading rôles in Vienna, Salzburg, Berlin, and London, will support Miss Claire in the leading masculine rôle of "Madame Butterfly."

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and artistic director of the Chicago Opera company, will direct the W-G-N orchestra and chorus. Double casts again will be featured in these productions.

Mr. Bacher is in charge of all programs and production at W-G-N.

Besides "Vagabond King," seven other popular operettas have been scheduled and plans are being made for more to follow.

Those already scheduled are: "Chocolate Soldier," Oct. 12; "Madame Butterfly," Oct. 19; "Student Prince," Oct. 26; "Naughty Marietta" or the "Great Waltz," Nov. 2; "Desert Song," Nov. 9; "Robin Hood," Nov. 16, and "Eileen" on Nov. 23.

Plane Maker to Speak.

Flivver planes, skyrocketing member of the airplane family, will be discussed by William T. Piper, well known plane manufacturer, of Bradford, Pa., during Wings Over America, at 11:30 a. m. today over WMAQ.

HIRSCH DOES IT AGAIN

Your Money Back If You Are Conscripted!

THE policy of the Hirsch Clothing Company is to meet unusual conditions with unusual action!

When unemployment was the country's most urgent problem, the Hirsch Clothing Company played a leading role in finding jobs for unemployed men and women through their unique radio program, "I Want a Job." Through this unusual service, widely acclaimed by employers and public alike, thousands of deserving men and women were returned to gainful occupations, and again knew the security of steady employment and regular pay checks.

Now . . . at another critical time, when the country is preparing for National Defense . . . the Hirsch Clothing Company again meets the situation with prompt action!

In the spirit of fullest co-operation with the defense plans of the United States government, the Hirsch Clothing Company offers a co-operative money-back purchase plan to men within the conscription ages of 21 to 35 inclusive.

Under this plan, the Hirsch Clothing Company will issue a Special Defense Co-operation Money-back Certificate to all men of military age, on the purchase of SUITS, TOPCOATS and OVERCOATS for personal use, made before November 15th, 1940. If the purchaser is conscripted and actually enters military service on or before January 31, 1941, this certificate, with notice of call, will entitle you to the privilege of returning your entire purchase for cash or full credit, REGARDLESS OF WEAR.

The Hirsch Clothing Company is proud to offer this special service. It is made to solve an important IMMEDIATE problem of you men who will register on October 16th. It means you need not postpone buying the clothes you require now. For under the Hirsch plan, regardless of whether you pay cash or use our 12-week Budget plan, you may buy with the assurance that no unnecessary expense has been incurred in case you are conscripted.

You have the privilege of returning your entire purchase for CASH or FULL CREDIT. Remember, you are protected by the Hirsch Money-Back Certificate.

NOTICE—The Hirsch Clothing Co. will donate merchandise returned under this plan to recognized charities.

W-G-N to Keep Frequency of 720 Kilocycles.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Wave lengths of 777 of the 862 radio stations operating in the standard broadcast band between 550 and 1,600 kilocycles in the United States are to be shifted on March 29, 1941. These shifts are to be made in accordance with the provisions of the North American regional broadcasting agreement, concluded at Havana, Cuba, in 1937.

The Federal Communications commission last week filed with the state department the proposed reallocations of frequencies [wave lengths] in the standard broadcast band. The signatory governments—the United States, Canada, Cuba, and Mexico—are now exchanging their tentative assignments before making them finally operative.

Clear Channels for Mexico.

The reallocation also provides for changes in wave lengths of many stations in Canada, Cuba, and Mexico. Mexico will receive five clear channels which prior to this agreement had no frequencies reserved for high power stations in the standard broadcast band. Cuba gets an additional clear channel from Canada.

This is how the reallocation of channels is to be accomplished, according to present plans:

Stations now operating on channels from 550 to 720 kilocycles, inclusive, will retain their present assignments. Thus W-G-N, assigned to 720 kilocycles, will continue there.

Stations operating from 740 to 780 will move up 10 kilocycles, or one channel. Thus WBBM will move from 770 to 780.

Stations from 790 to 870 will move up 20 kilocycles. WENR-WLS will move, thus, from 870 to 890.

Stations between 880 and 1,450 kilocycles will advance 30 kilocycles.

Clear channel stations from 1,460-1,490 kilocycles will move to 1,500-1,530.

Local stations now on the 1,500 channel will move to 1,490.

Listeners to Change Habits.

These shifts will force listeners to change their listening habits with regard to most stations. All push-button radio receivers will require adjustments for all stations higher in frequencies than W-G-N.

The correlated shifting of Canadian, Mexican, and Cuban stations is expected to eliminate interference with United States stations and improve reception. Interference from Mexican and Cuban stations has plagued particularly rural listeners. Certain broadcast stations on the Mexican border, largely run by interests denied the use of radio in the United States, are to be eliminated. The Havana pact contains no provisions for their continued operation.

Any broadcaster has until Oct. 15 to register his views with the FCC if he takes exception to his assignment.

WISHING WELL WILL MAKE DREAMS COME TRUE FOR LISTENERS

W-G-N listeners will find their dreams coming true beginning tomorrow when a new program entitled "The Wishing Well" will make its bow. "The Wishing Well" will be sponsored by a loop department store over W-G-N at 8:45 a. m., each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and at 9:00 a. m. each Tuesday and Thursday. Mary Paxton, mistress of ceremonies, will invite listeners to "make a wish" for anything they would like from the store, and in turn the store will make some one's wish come true each week.

Mary Paxton.

Listeners are asked to write a letter of 40 words or less telling what they would like to have. To make the letter eligible, those who write in must state the day of the year on which their birthday falls—not their age, however, and also the date of their wedding anniversary if they are married. The writer of the week's best letter will be granted the thing wished for in the winning letter.

Star of "In Chicago Tonight"

Joan Bennett, who will be joined by her husband, Producer Walter Wanger, in next Thursday's presentation of "In Chicago Tonight." Miss Bennett will take one of the starring roles in a radio adaptation of the motion picture "Foreign Correspondent." The picture, soon to open in Chicago, is a Wanger production and released thru United Artists. The broadcast will be aired over W-G-N and Mutual from 7:30 to 8 p. m.

JOAN BENNETT, WANGER ON 'IN CHICAGO' SHOW

Actress Stars in Film of War Reporters.

Joan Bennett and Walter Wanger—noted actress and great Hollywood producer—will be "In Chicago Tonight" for W-G-N and the Mutual network from 7:30 to 8 p. m. next Thursday night.

Walter Wanger.

Miss Bennett will have the lead rôle in a radio adaptation of "Foreign Correspondent," recently released by the Walter Wanger studios. Wanger will talk on the movie industry.

Under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs at W-G-N, this "In Chicago Tonight" production will be one of the "movie night" preformances of the variety entertainment show. Presenting previews of important motion pictures opening in Chicago, movie night is a monthly feature of the "In Chicago Tonight" program.

Miss Bennett, youngest daughter of a noted theatrical family, made her stage debut with her father, Richard Bennett, in the Broadway production of "Jarnegan."

Joan Bennett has had notable rôles in "Private Worlds," "Disraeli," "The Pursuit of Happiness," "Two Is a Crowd," and Wild Girl." Her latest film is "House Across the Bay." In private life, Miss Bennett is the wife of Walter Wanger.

Wanger's production of "Foreign Correspondent," is rated by critics as one of the year's finest pictures. Wanger spent well over a million in money and a year in time in filming the production. The picture will open here soon.

Joan Bennett's rôle in the adaptation of "Foreign Correspondent" will mark the second appearance of a member of the famed Bennett family on W-G-N this year. Last January Constance Bennett played the lead in Noel Coward's "Shadow Play," presented over W-G-N.

Musical accompaniment for the show will be presented by the W-G-N dance orchestra under the direction of Harold Stokes.

Conscription of Wealth Is Subject of Round Table

"Shall We Conscript Wealth, Too?" a discussion of the factors surrounding this phase of national mobilization, will be the University of Chicago Round Table topic, at 1:30 p. m. today over WMAQ. Participants include Leo Cherne, executive secretary of the Research Institute of America; Josh Lee, United States Senator from Oklahoma, and Dean William H. Spencer, head of the University of Chicago school of business.

Feminine Comedy Team on Eddie Cantor's Show

Nan Rae and Maude Davis will add titters, giggles and guffaws to Eddie Cantor's Time to Smile program which bows in over WMAQ at 8:00 p. m. Wednesday, Oct. 2. One of the few feminine comedy teams ever to hit the airwaves, Rae and Davis will be a regular feature of the half hour program which includes Dinah Shore, songstress; Bobby Sherwood's orchestra, and Harry von Zell, as announcer.

BLEND CLASSIC—OLD AND NEW ON SYMPHONIC HOUR

Marion Claire Will Be Soloist on W-G-N.

Music from the pens of modern classicists as well as older masterworks will be presented on the Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour from 9 to 10 o'clock tomorrow night. With Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, as speaker of the evening, the program will be broadcast over W-G-N, the Mutual network, and the entire network of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation.

Modern classical numbers by Pierne, Debussy, and Korngold will be blended with the works of Beethoven and Tschaikowsky on the program. Marion Claire, lyric soprano, will be featured soloist. The W-G-N Symphonic orchestra will be directed by Henry Weber.

The orchestra will open the program with the first movement from the Beethoven's Third Symphony. Entitled "Eroica," this symphony originally was written as a tribute to Napoleon, but the title was changed when the Corsican seized the imperial throne.

"Barcarolle" to Be Feature.

Other presentations from the older classics and operas include the "Hungarian Dance" and "Czardas" from Tschaikowsky's "Swan Lake Ballet," played by the orchestra.

"Barcarolle," from "The Tales of Hoffmann," by Jacques Offenbach, will be presented by Marion Claire and Helen Bartush, member of the augmented chorus. Miss Bartush is a young Chicago mezzo-contralto.

Featured among the three numbers from modern classicists will be themes from Debussy, presented by Miss Claire and the orchestra.

Marietta's aria from "The Dead City," by Erich Korngold, sung by Miss Claire, and Gabriel Pierne's "Entrance of the Little Fauns," played by the orchestra, complete the numbers by the more modern composers.

The complete program:

First Movement from "Eroica" [Third Symphony] .... Beethoven
Orchestra.
Aria from Mignon .... Thomas
Miss Claire and orchestra.
Hungarian Dance and Czardas from Barcarolle from the "Tales of Hoffman" .... Offenbach
Marion Claire, Helen Bartush and orchestra.
Swan Lake Ballet .... Tschaikowsky
Orchestra.
Speech ....
Col. Robert R. McCormick.
Marietta's aria, "The Dead City" ... Korngold
Miss Claire and orchestra.
Entrance of the Little Fauns .... Pierne
Orchestra.
Themes from Debussy .... Debussy
Miss Claire, chorus and orchestra.

The duet with Miss Claire will mark Miss Bartush's first featured appearance on the Symphonic hour. Miss Bartush has appeared with the Chicago opera for three seasons. She made her operatic debut with the Chicago opera three years ago.

William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N, is producer of the Symphonic Hour. Musical commentary for the program is written by Cecil Smith of the music and drama department of THE TRIBUNE.

WARD AND ELSON TO JOIN ON NEW SPORTS PROGRAM

Arch Ward, sports editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and Bob Elson, popular W-G-N sportscaster, will collaborate on a new sports program—"At the Sports Desk with Bob Elson," which will be presented for the first time from 7:30 to 7:45 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N. The program will be heard on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at the same hour.

Ward's entire staff will assist in gathering facts and unearthing features for the broadcasts. The Tribune experts will cover every phase of sports from football to ping pong. Among these contributing writers will be Irving Vaughan, Edward Burns, Wilfrid Smith, Bob Becker, Howard Barry, George Strickler, Charles Bartlett, and Frank Mastro.

Elson will be at the microphone, sitting at the radio sports desk and giving fans a survey of the sports news.

Eleven years' experience in all types of sports announcing qualify Elson as eminently fitted for his sports desk rôle. He has covered every world series since 1929—a distinction held by no other broadcaster.

Monkey on the Air

Cartune-O Jack, a monkey, picks a winner for pretty guest vocalist, Gayle Robbins, while Harold Stokes, director of the W-G-N Dance orchestra, looks on. Cartune-O Jack, regular member of the Cartune-O cast, heard from 8:30 to 9 p. m. each Friday over W-G-N, holds the distinction of being the only monkey on a radio program.

STOKES TO AIR MUSICAL TOUR OF BROADWAY

Harold Stokes will conduct a gala musical tour of Broadway on his Friday Night Show from 7 to 7:30 p. m. next Friday over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Musical scores from shows now on Broadway will be presented by Patti Clayton, young songstress, Curt Massey, romantic baritone, the Four Shades of Blue, and the W-G-N Dance orchestra under Stokes' baton.

From Jolson's "Hold On to Your Hats," the orchestra and vocal artists will present "There's a Great Day Comin', Manana," "Don't Let It Get You Down," "The World Is in My Arms," and "Would You Be So Kindly." Offerings from the "Louisiana Purchase" musicale will include the title number and "You Can't Brush Me Off."

Legion Chief to Speak.

Raymond J. Kelly, national commander of the American Legion, will sum up the major achievements of the organization during the year during a broadcast in connection with the American Legion convention, meeting in Boston, at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow over the NBC Red network.

Lone Ranger on Trail of Cattle Rustlers on W-G-N

A brush with cattle thieves and the rescue of an innocent man about to hang for another's crime will be depicted in this week's episodes of "The Lone Ranger" western drama. The adventures of the masked agent of justice are heard from 7:30 to 8 p. m., Mondays and Wednesdays, over W-G-N.

Dotty Messmer Weds.

Dotty Messmer, member of the Music Maids heard on the Bing Crosby Music Hall, was married Monday in Reno, to her high school sweetheart, Beverely Pendleton.

FAMILY'S 'NO' FAILS TO CHECK YOUNG SINGER

So Bettylou Now Is in New Opera Chorus.

Bettylou Scandling, 5722 Winthrop avenue, wanted to be an opera singer from the time she was in eighth grade. However, Bettylou was the only one who wanted her to do it. Her father was a singer but he thought a career of singing was unstable, so he said no. Her mother was a graduate pianist and knew music —and she said no. As a crowning blow, the man who taught her singing in high school said she didn't have a chance in the world of doing anything with her voice.

They all wasted their time, however, for what Bettylou decides to do, she has the habit of doing. As proof, she is now a member of the new Chicago Opera company chorus.

Chorus to Number 85.

When the opera season opens Nov. 2, the regular chorus will number 85, the largest ever to be assembled by a Chicago opera company. The new members have an unusual opportunity to study voice and stage technique, and hope eventually to sing minor rôles and understudy leading parts.

Bettylou rose to her position with the chorus the hard way. With a parental "no" before her all the time, she took only a regular college course and did not major in music. However, she managed to get in one voice lesson a week all during college, and she joined the school a cappella choir.

After college she decided to risk everything to satisfy her urge to sing. With little money, she spent days seeking a job that would give her enough to live on and finance a few voice lessons.

Worked for Room, Board.

She worked at a girl's club for her board and room, and became a member of the Sunday Evening club choir. Then she worked in the clinic of a large hospital and managed to get a scholarship at a musical conservatory.

Thus Bettylou studied her music and made a success of it. She tried out for the opera chorus without any great hope of being chosen from among the 350 who were auditioned. However, the time and energy she had put into her training came to the fore, and she was accepted as a member. This for her was one of the happiest days in her life for she had proven herself right in her own eyes, and in the eyes of her friends.

Of her appointment she says: "I felt I had scored a real victory against my discouragers when I was accepted for the chorus. Chicago is the first place I have ever received encouragement in my work, and I will always love it for that reason."

8,500 EXPECTED TO ATTEND N. U. EVENING SCHOOL

Thousands of Chicagoans believe they can never learn too much or attend school too long. One of the proofs, based on past registration figures, is the expected enrollment of more than 8,500 Chicagoans for evening classes on the Chicago campus of Northwestern university. Classes will begin on Wednesday.

Evening study is offered in commerce, journalism, liberal arts, speech, education, and social work, on both the undergraduate and graduate levels. Men students will be eligible to live in Abbott hall, a 20 story, $1,750,000 dormitory which will open today.

Members of the Evanston campus student body will begin regular classes tomorrow.

Tentatively planned for the Evanston campus are three courses in flight training, to be given in coöperation with the Civil Aeronautics bureau, and a course in military intelligence to be presented thru the Medill school of journalism by the United States army.

Faculties of the 12 schools in the university will include 42 new teachers. Among them will be M. Rene Weiller, French consul in Chicago until his country capitulated to Germany, who will act as honorary lecturer in French civilization and literature.

One of the 16 new courses will be "Astronomy of Navigation" which will be taught by Dr. Oliver J. Lee.

On the Chicago campus, the school of commerce will offer 160 courses, including six new ones, and four types of short courses for businessmen. The university college will add 13 courses, among them "The Development of the American Interior," which will discuss the influence of American decorative ideas on European interiors.

TEMPLE MIZPAH MEN TO SPONSOR LECTURE SERIES

Five current history lectures will be given at forum this fall and winter at Temple Mizpah, 1615 Morse avenue. The lectures are sponsored by the temple men's club.

The first speaker, Eva Lips, author of "Savage Symphony," will appear Tuesday evening Oct. 22. Other speakers and their dates are Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland, O., Nov. 20; Dr. Abram L. Sachar, historian, Dec. 5; Dr. Frederick L. Schuman, political science professor, Jan. 23, and Dr. Harry D. Gideonse, president of Brooklyn college, Feb. 12.

Members of the men's club forum committee include Arthur G. Laufman, Nathan Gilbert, and David B. Pierce.

PARKS READY WITH FALL PROGRAMS

CONGRESS RACE SPEEDED UP IN TWO DISTRICTS

G.O.P. Pushes Fight in 1st and 9th.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Congressional battles of northern and northwestern Chicagoland warmed up in several districts last week. Chief activity was furnished by the Republican nominees, the Democrats as usual remaining inactive until just before the election.

Lively G. O. P. campaigns are already well along in the 1st district, which includes not only a large share of the south side's colored population but also the loop, and in the 9th district on the near north side.

In the 1st the fight is being forced by former State Senator William E. King, who seeks to dislodge Congressman Arthur W. Mitchell from the seat he has occupied since 1934, when he defeated Oscar De Priest. Both nominees are Negroes, for it has become an accepted political principle that the predominant colored electorate in the 1st shall be represented by a member of its own race.

Mitchell is the first Democrat to represent the district since Martin Emerich was beaten by the Republican, Martin B. Madden, in 1904. Madden was reëlected for eleven more terms before he died, and was succeeded in 1908 by De Priest.

Raps Mitchell's Record.

King has launched an attack on Mitchell's record in congress. He charges that his opponent has slavishly followed the will of the New Deal and has been at best a dispirited representative of his own people. He declared that Mitchell could, by a more vigorous course, have obtained more benefits for his district, particularly more low cost housing projects, which on the south side have made slow progress.

Another early campaigner is Charles S. Dewey, Republican nominee for the 9th district seat now occupied by James McAndrews, who has been called the roving congressman because he has represented four districts in congress.

Dewey, who was an assistant secretary of the treasury under President Coolidge, came within 4,552 votes of a majority when he ran against McAndrews two years ago. This plurality was less than one-fourth the margin McAndrews rolled up in 1936 against Mrs. Bertha Baur.

Sees National Disaster.

The challenger, in frequent appearances before neighborhood and precinct meetings, charges that the present administration's fiscal practices are heading the nation toward disaster. He also stresses the danger of American involvement in the European war unless a saner foreign policy is followed.

He promises when elected to fight in congress for a sensible spending program, and against any proposal to launch the country into a war of offense. Dewey stands for adequate national defense.

In the sprawling 7th district on the northwest side it appears that Congressman Leonard W. Schuetz, who has the reputation of being a lackadaisical candidate, must exert himself to meet the challenge of his G. O. P. rival, James C. Moreland.

Moreland, former alderman of the 41st ward, has tried three times previously to defeat Schuetz. Two years ago he reduced the congressman's 1934 plurality by nearly two-thirds, losing by a total of only 30,681 out of a total of 354,819 votes.

Dissatisfaction Is Seen.

There is growing evidence of dissatisfaction among 7th district voters with Schuetz's record in congress. Some of his constituents have complained of discourtesy shown them on visits to the congressman's office in Washington. This factor, plus the estrangement of numerous voters on the third term question, will give Moreland the edge he has long waited for, his supporters say.

In the 10th district, which takes in all of Lake county as well as the north shore and the far north side of Chicago, George A. Paddock of Evanston, Republican nominee, declared that the district's traditional Republican majority will be "greatly increased" on Nov. 5.

Paddock was picked by his party for the post from which Congressman Ralph E. Church of Evanston retired to run for United States senator. The Republican nomination in the 10th is tantamount to election, for the district has never sent a Democrat to congress.

Park Ridge Willkie Club Is Sponsoring 'Town Hall'

Tomorrow night will be the first of a series of "Town Hall" programs at the South park fieldhouse in Park Ridge, sponsored by the Park Ridge Willkie club. It will begin at 8:30 o'clock. Fred Ward and Charles F. Meroni, a former lecturer at De Paul university, both of Park Ridge, will discuss the topic: "President Roosevelt is Leading This Country into War."

Republican Woman's Study Club to Meet Wednesday

The Republican Woman's Study club will meet at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at 4616 Lincoln avenue. The purpose is to promote Republican interests. Mrs. Lottie Brown will review the book "Country Squire in the White House."

Plays Church Organ Daily for 68 Years

In 1870 the choir director and the organist at the Church of the Annunciation, 1650 North Paulina street, quarreled. It isn't unusual for such quarrels to take place, but this time, a 9 year old girl, Mary Sullivan, who was a member of the choir, was asked to play the organ. For two years she played for the children and in 1872, when she was 11 years old, she became the regular organist and has been playing the same organ for the 68 years since.

Mary Sullivan.

Tomorrow night a testimonial dinner is being given for Miss Sullivan, who resides at 1957 Schiller street. More than 400 friends plan to attend the party which is being held at the Edgewater Beach hotel, under the direction of the Rev. P. J. Molloy, pastor of the church.

Life Centers in Church.

Mary Sullivan thinks that people are doing too much for her and wishes they wouldn't go to so much trouble. "I don't deserve it at all," she says. A tiny lady with a sweet smile, her whole life is centered about the church. Most of her friends are dead and she now leads a secluded life with the exception of her church work.

Since the church was founded there have been only two organists. Mrs. Fannie Molloy Corcoran played the first four and a half years. Miss Sullivan has played every day since then with the exception of a month last winter when she was ill. In all those 68 years she has never had any trouble with her choirs. The sisters taught her at first; later she took advanced lessons, and eventually gave music lessons herself. At first the church had both a choir director and an organist but Miss Sullivan soon combined both positions.

Third Generation in Choir.

Miss Sullivan plays at the early mass at 6:45 o'clock and again at the 7:30 mass each morning, and at any other church function requiring organ music. She also plays at all Sunday services. At one time she had a chorus of 50 members and she recalls, "I had a good choir then, and I have a nice one now, too." She has had several third generationers in her group, and many times she has had two generations represented in the choirs.

When she first began to play, the church had a tremendous congregation, for it was the only Catholic church northwest of Holy Name cathedral within the city limits. The church was a frame building and that structure was later used as a school. Most of the land was either swamp or prairie. Milwaukee avenue was very low and a plank sidewalk made passage possible. Wabansia avenue, which bounds the northern side of the church grounds, was a cinder road.

Mary Sullivan helped in her father's wholesale grocery store which was located at Elston and Wabansia avenues when she was a little girl. That section of the city then housed the steel mills which have since been moved to the south side.

Was Irish Neighborhood.

Most of Mr. Sullivan's business was of the credit variety, for workers in the mills were paid once a month. The area was mainly Irish, with a few Germans and no Polish people at all. That was a long time ago. Today, the area is predominantly Polish, the streets are wide and paved, the mills are gone, and only Mary Sullivan and the organ remain the same.

Father Molloy felt that Miss Sullivan's long years of service, many of those years without pay, deserved some formal recognition and so he and some of her friends have planned tomorrow's celebration. Mrs. Lillian Fulton, 2033 St. Paul avenue and Mrs. James Zwisle, 2027 Wabansia avenue, are assisting with the arrangements.

COUPLE TO MARK 60TH WEDDING NEXT TUESDAY

Mr. and Mrs. John Abrahamsen of 1711 North Karlov avenue will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary Tuesday, Sept. 24. Both are 78 years of age and have been residents on the northwest side for 35 years. There will be open house starting at 2 o'clock at the home of their youngest daughter, Mrs. Carl Edstrom, of 5117 Wrightwood avenue. Among those who will help them celebrate are their two sons and two daughters, nine grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

Union Printers Celebrate 25th Bowling Season

The Union Printers' league, who for years have been very prominent in the bowling world, will open their 25th year, on Sept. 25. This year being their silver jubilee year, the committee has arranged several gala evenings at Bensinger's Randolph alleys. President Tom Canty of Chicago Typographical union No. 16 will welcome the bowlers and roll the first ball. A large attendance is anticipated for the opening night.

Children Have Part in Garden Show

Harvest time is at hand and by the expression on Kenneth Carlson's face one might judge that he is enjoying a very fruitful one. Kenneth poses with some of the vegetables that he exhibited at the Edison Park Garden show. He is the 12 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carlson of Park Ridge. The garden show was held at the Edison Park Methodist Episcopal church.

Four year old Sherry Pemberton strolls thru her garden at 6635 Ottawa street with her basket slung over her shoulders and carrying some of the blossoms that she picked to exhibit at the Edison Park Garden show. Macolm Unseth and Tom Croft work on their lawn mower as they learned to do while preparing their yards for the contest. Betty Shultz strikes a very familiar pose with some of the flowers that she exhibited in the show. All are children of members of the Edison Park Home and Garden club and had their own exhibits in the club's fall garden show.

SIGRID UNDSET WILL LECTURE IN ORCHESTRA HALL

A lecture by Mme. Sigrid Undset, noted Norwegian novelist and Nobel Prize winner in 1928, will be given Oct. 1 in Orchestra hall under auspices of North Park college, it has been announced by Algoth Ohlson, president of the college.

The lecture was arranged by Karl A. Olsson, chairman of the college's committee on cultural activities. It will deal with "Scandinavia and the war," with special emphasis on the war's effect on literature.

Mme. Undset fled from her home in Lillehammer, Norway, following the German invasion, and spent the summer in Stockholm, Sweden. Her eldest son was killed resisting the Germans.

28th Convention Planned by Knights of Lithuania

One hundred members of the Knights of Lithuania are expected to attend the 28th annual convention of the district organization next Sunday at St. Anthony's parish hall, 15th street and 49th court, Cicero. The session will open with church services at 9 o'clock in the morning. Dancing will follow a dinner to be held in the evening.

Chapter of Purple Heart to Hold Monthly Meeting

Members of Ray Workman chapter, No. 50, of the Military Order of the the Purple Heart will hold their regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening at the Hotel Sherman. All wearers of the Purple Heart medal are invited to attend.

CHURCH TO PAY TRIBUTE TODAY TO CONSTITUTION

The Church of the Holy Apostles, Drake and Leland avenues, will hold a constitution day service this morning at 11 o'clock with the Rev. George A. Ray in charge. Members of the Military Order of the World War will be guests. Col. Harold G. Sperling, commander of the order, will give an address on the constitution. Members of patriotic organizations and all patriotic citizens of the community have been invited to attend.

Auxiliary to Meet.

The Women's Auxiliary of St. Elizabeth hospital will have a homecoming luncheon and card party on Thursday at 12:30 o'clock in the hospital auditorium, 1430 North Oakley boulevard. Anna Gaul is president of the auxiliary.

G. O. P. AIMING AT CLEAN SWEEP IN 14TH DIST.

Already Holds 2 of 3 Assembly Seats.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Republicans aiming for a clean sweep of all three house seats in the 14th [Kane-Kendall counties] legislative district are making an attempt unparalelled in the remaining 50 districts of Illinois.

Warren L. Wood.

The G. O. P. now holds two of the seats while the Democrats have one. Signs of Republican resurgence were so strong before the April primary that the party set out to capture the minority's seat as well as its own.

Stung by the inference that their power was waning, the Democrats made the amazing decision to try to get two seats and not merely recapture the one. The nomination of two Democrats made the Republicans gleeful because it increased their chances by threatening to divide the vote of the minority party.

But on Friday, shaky about the results of the gamble, Democrats changed their strategy. They announced that one candidate, Francis R. Dalton, had withdrawn to help the other, Representative Leon M. Schuler. This makes it safe for Schuler unless the G. O. P. polls an overwhelming vote.

This is the first time in 10 years that the Republicans have felt strong enough to try for a clean sweep. The Kendall county precinct committee organization urged this course upon the G. O. P. senatorial committee, which decides the number of nominees. In 1928 and 1930 the Republicans nominated three candidates for the house but elected only two.

Gain in Primary Votes.

Evidence that the Republicans will succeed this time was seen by them in the big gain in G. O. P. primary votes. In 1938 the Republican primary vote for legislature almost doubled the Democratic, 70,000 to 37,000, while last April the G. O. P. vote was more than three times the Democratic tally for the office, 87,000 to 24,000.

The 1938 November election gave Republican candidates for the Illinois house of representatives 94,974 votes to 44,456 for the single Democratic candidate.

On the basis of the G. O. P. primary gain, all three candidates can be elected Nov. 5.

Seeking Third Term.

Representative Friedland of Elgin is a former assistant state's attorney who has a "fine" voting record in Springfield according to the Legislative Voters league. He seeks his third term.

Mrs. Peffers of Aurora is the widow of Representative John M. Peffers. The L. V. L. reported that her first term was deserving of another. Her first grandchild was born during the primary campaign.

Galvin, also of Aurora, has a law office there. After serving in the world war as a private, he was a postoffice clerk for four years while gaining his education in law. He has been a justice of the peace and a member of the Aurora town board from 1910 to 1917 and from 1929 to the present. He is commander of the Disabled American Veterans organization in Aurora.

Active in the 41st.

Democrats are taking the offensive in the strongly Republican 41st district comprising Will and Du Page counties. They are running two candidates for the house in an effort to take away one of the two seats now held by the G. O. P.

The entry standing under a question mark is Martin K. Miller, Joliet lawyer who is trying to bring off a reversal stunt. Now charging into the fray with a Democratic banner, he ran for the same office as a Republican in the 1934 primary.

Miller counts upon receiving Republican votes to offset his handicap of being the only candidate in the race who is not experienced in the office sought. In the April primary he got 9,679 votes compared with 25,947 for the top Democrat and 66,822 for the top Republican.

Running mate of Miller is Representative Joseph Sam Perry of Wheaton, leader in the fight to investigate Circuit Judge Edwin L. Wilson of Joliet who had protected slot machines with an injunction for a year. Wilson is no longer on the bench.

Representative Perry, a one time coal miner, farmer, and school teacher, is a lawyer who has served two terms as an outspoken member of the house. He has been Du Page county

Mr. and Mrs. John Abrahamsen will be celebrating the 60th anniversary of their wedding on Tuesday. They reside at 1711 North Karlov avenue and an open house is being held at the home of their youngest daughter, Mrs. Carl Edstrom, 5117 Wrightwood avenue, Helping the 78 year old couple will be their two sons and two daughters, nine grandchildren, and four great grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Abrahamsen have been residents of the Northwest side for 35 years.

TWO Northwest siders were among the winners of the Central States Dahlia society contest at the annual Chicago flower show which was recently held at Garfield park conservatory. Frank J. Clifford of Park Ridge won first prize for the largest number of points in the amateur division for a section of over 200 plants, and was awarded the August Koch trophy, the Central States Dahlia society award. J. H. Boylin, Fox Lake, received the first prize, the Racine Dahlia society medal, for miniature dahlias raised by an amateur.

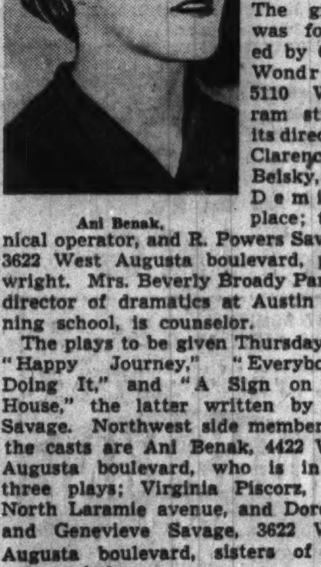
Mr. and Mrs. William Landmesser, 2419 North Drake avenue will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary next Saturday evening by holding open house for their friends. Mrs. Landmesser was born in Chicago and Mrs. Landmesser came from Germany. They met here and have resided at the same address for 33 years. There are two children, Elmer Landmesser and Mrs. Amanda Currie, and one grandson.

PRIVATE THOMAS A. BRUNS, the son of A. C. Bruns, 4463 Ainslie street, recently received praise for his ability as a student when he completed the practical electrician's course as taught by the Marine Corps institute in Washington, D. C. Accompanying his diploma was a commendatory letter from Maj. Gen. Holcomb, commandant of the corps. Private Bruns entered the Marine corps in February, 1938.

President Roosevelt and Wendell Willkie are going to debate after all! Two Niles Center dramatic students, Robert Harms and Barney Brauch, will impersonate the Presidential candidates next Friday on a public speaking program at the Chicago School of Expression, 410 South Michigan avenue. Adolph Olsansky, the school's makeup artist, will make Robert resemble Roosevelt as much as possible, and Barney will appear as Willkie. Letitia V. Barnum, director, announces that the subject to be debated is "Resolved: that a third term is a step toward dictatorship." After the debate, the students will take a straw vote for President.

KEY PLAYERS TO OFFER THREE 1 ACT DRAMAS IN AUSTIN THURSDAY

The Key Players, an actors' group organized last May, will open their first season Thursday evening with the presentation of three one-act plays at the Austin Town hall. The group was founded by C. J. Wondreis, 5110 Wolfram street, its director; Clarence J. Belsky, 5328 Deming place; technical operator, and R. Powers Savage, 3622 West Augusta boulevard, playwright. Mrs. Beverly Broady Parsch, director of dramatics at Austin evening school, is counselor.



Ani Benak.

The plays to be given Thursday are "Happy Journey," "Everybody's Doing It," and "A Sign on the House," the latter written by Mr. Savage. Northwest side members of the casts are Ani Benak, 4422 West Augusta boulevard, who is in all three plays; Virginia Piscorz, 2137 North Laramie avenue, and Dorothy and Genevieve Savage, 3622 West Augusta boulevard, sisters of the writer of the group.

LIST PASTIMES FOR CHICAGOANS OF VARIED AGES

Games, Instruction Are Offered.

The opening of fall and winter activities in 33 northwest side parks this week will bring thousands of school children thronging to the parks after school hours. With activities ranging from barn dancing and gymnasium games to jewelry making and costume designing, pastimes are offered to older groups as well, according to the announcement by George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of the park district.

International events are reflected in the establishment of first aid classes in all parks, for which purpose men and women physical instructors have been attending courses in first aid given by the American Red Cross at Gage and Hamlin parks.

Men instructors, in addition, will complete a course at Douglas park this week in infantry drill regulations given under the auspices of the marine reserve. As yet no plans for general drill classes have been made, however, it was stated by Vernon Hernlund, director of physical education.

New Features Offered.

Other new features to be found in the programs of nearly all the parks include nature study groups conducted by the artcraft division in which boys and girls will study plant and animal life in the parks during the fall. They will gather brightly colored fallen leaves and twigs, acorns, cocoons, and other materials for making ornaments for Christmas parties in the various fieldhouses.

Both adults and young people will be afforded an opportunity to study the use and application of the international Morse code.

Three plays will be produced at the Goodman theater during the winter by the central group of the community playhouses, which is made up of the outstanding actors and actresses, generally adults, from each park. Of the 33 northwest side parks, there are dramatic classes at 22.

"The Last Warning," a mystery-comedy by Thomas Fallon, has been picked as the first play to be given, William S. Shepherd, assistant drama supervisor in charge of the central group, said. It will be given Nov. 24.

50 Types of Recreation.

A combined total of about 50 different types of recreation are provided for. Some parks only have four or five, others have nearly all of them. They can be divided into the categories of indoor and outdoor sports, art, dramatics, handicraft, boating, nature, photography, weaving, music, and various types of dancing.

Certain parks, thru the initiative of their supervisor or physical instructors, have developed distinctive or original forms of recreation, or will this year adopt those developed earlier at other parks. Many northwest side play spots are adding to their individual programs beyond the general additions announced from the park district administration building.

At Avondale park, 3516 School street, Supervisor George Smith announces the inauguration of so-called social and drill teams thru the coöperation of the Logan-Avondale post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. These will be hobby clubs containing about 60 boys and girls over 16 years of age.

Junior Water Ballet.

Frederick Degenhardt, supervisor at Blackhawk park, Belden and Lavergne avenue, announces that the park's water ballet, which has achieved a reputation at the indoor pool there, will be augmented by a junior group, also directed by Miss Jeanne Hoch, the women's physical instructor. About 50 children under 16 have already become interested in this idea.

At Chopin park, 3420 North Long avenue, a series of excursions to factories, museums, and other places of interest, to take place each Saturday, has been planned by Lewis Harvey, the supervisor.

C. Myers Bardine, supervisor of Eckhart park, Chicago avenue and Noble street, will launch "leadership" classes. For each class he will pick from 18 to 20 boys and girls who demonstrate qualities of leadership in the various activities. They will be provided with sweaters or some other special insignia and will help in the instruction of other classes.

One hour of dancing instruction will precede the 8 o'clock social dancing at Gompers park, Foster and Tripp avenues, Supervisor Emil Meier said. The class will be instructed by William Frank.

Transriver Chess.

A trans-Chicago river correspondence chess match will be carried on between chess experts of Brands park, 3259 Elston avenue, and Paul Revere park, east of the river. Each move will be sent by mail and recorded on chess boards at each park. Players will inspect each move, have a conference, and send back the next move. Joseph Gaffney directs the operations from the west bank and John Asp from the east bank.

Humboldt park continues to lead the city parks in boat construction, Supervisor Orrin Wais said. Howard

Voice of the Northwest Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the Northwest Side, The Tribune.

WANTS LIGHT PLANT LIGHTED.

Ten years have elapsed since the fine residential area of the 31st ward, the area on Western avenue from Cortez street to Haddon avenue, was demolished to make room for obstructive structures erected by an electric company to encase huge dynamos, transformers, and generators.

The erection of these obstructive structures was very detrimental to the business progress of the immediate neighborhood as well as to the valuation of real estate. The surrounding area was darkened, strange to say, by a firm generating electricity.

The situation can be amended only by proper adornment and electrification of the large structures. This would not only be an asset to the power plant, but to the community as well.

CHESTER J. TRAWINSKI.

WANTS SPEED REDUCED.

More than 1,000 children must cross Logan boulevard between California and Western avenues four times a day to get to St. John Berchman's parochial school and the Brentano public school. Yet the two side drives of this boulevard have been made into virtual speedways, and I have yet to see the motor coach or private car driver who has not stepped on the gas the minute he crosses one street and then slammed on his grakes when he sees that persons crossing the side drives do not jump quickly enough. May I suggest that so long as the center drive is under construction, traffic on the side drives be limited to a speed of 15 miles an hour between Kedzie and Western avenues.

CHARLES V. FALKENBERG.

LIKES TOWN HALL IDEA.

Many communities are doing a good job in organizing Town Hall meetings at which any one can air his opinions on current topics. The civic minded citizens responsible for the Town Halls are to be congratulated on their Americanism. These meetings are in the American tradition and all citizens should attend to use their democratic rights in expressing themselves. I believe more of these forums should be organized, particularly on the north side. These meetings will insure our retaining free speech in America.

JUNIOR MUSIC UNIT PREPARES FOR 4TH SEASON

Northwest Group Busy with Rehearsals.

The Northwest Junior Symphony orchestra has resumed rehearsals at the Norwood park fieldhouse for the fourth year. The group was organized and is directed by John Andersen. In the beginning there were 26 members and there are now 67, all between the ages of 9 and 17.

Members come from various parts of the northwest side, including Norwood Park, Edison Park, Park Ridge, and Jefferson Park. The only limitation is that members must not be more than 17 years old.

Each year the orchestra gives four concerts, featuring young artists and soloists. Some of the members have won honors in city and national music contests. Hubert Anderson, a former member, received the 1940 award of national champion in marimba playing.

Must Start at Bottom.

Each new member must start in the last chair in his or her section, and advance in the section as work warrants. It is entirely a matter of ability and initiative as to how fast a player may advance.

The organization has been self-supporting and has no parents' club or sponsor behind it. Players elect their officers, edit and print their weekly paper, select their music, and assist in arranging the programs.

Players Also Conduct.

Each year one member is appointed student conductor and conducts the orchestra at one of the concerts. Mr. Andersen says the grade of music played by the orchestra is usually higher than that of the normal high school orchestra.

Officers of the group are: William Schneider, president; Edith Bukowski, vice president; Margaret McVeigh, secretary; Roger Thake, treasurer, and John Peters, chairman. Membership is open to all young musicians irrespective of where they live, and any one interested in joining may contact Mr. Andersen at 6108 Northwest highway.

History of Fraternalism Is Lodge Meeting Theme

Attorney Samuel A. Hoffman will speak Wednesday evening at the opening fall meeting of James A. Garfield lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. His subject will be the history of fraternalism in this country. The meeting will be at 4658 North Kedzie avenue.

NEIGHBORHOOD STORES PROVIDE FURNITURE TIPS

Devote Special Displays to Helping Buyer.

Every color scheme, decorating note or new idea has been drafted by merchants and manufacturers for National Furniture week which opened yesterday. Model rooms, combinations in textiles and woods, window displays and floral patterns promise a festive autumn, not by the handiwork of nature alone, but by the housewife's ingenuity.

Trained salesmen, who know whether a pink bedspread will blend with a rosy shade drape or how red a red would go with green, are ready to answer questions. Charts and diagrams have been compiled and drawn to help the buyer, whether she is seeking a drum table for a bare corner or furniture for her whole house. No neighborhood store has failed to brush up on 1941 homemaking hints or has neglected to show "things that go together."

Ready to Help Family.

Neighborhood furniture stores this week are more than places to buy furniture. They are your staff of private decorators, the men and women who will worry over your sunparlor sofa with the same personal attention as the family who will sit on it. Young moderns, the 1940 brides, have added to their homemaking vocabulary such terms as color harmony, period furniture or modern, two toned and pastel mixtures. They ask these things in addition to "Is it comfortable?" and "Will it wear well?"

A north side store dedicates two of its seven window displays to "Young America." This store believes, from experience that young America wants modern. To contrast with a sky blue in this window room of bleached mahogany, the store shows a yellow wing chair that a visiting grandfather would admit beats his old one. The room features a circular sectional sofa and the second "young America" room has a sectional sofa divided by a table. This store dedicates another window to 18th century Duncan Phyfe and Sheraton dining room furniture. The other windows are given over to moderately priced furniture in pieces that go together.

Show Modern Rooms.

Six completely furnished rooms from pictures on the walls to rugs on the floors provide idea and inspiration at a west side store. All the rooms are modern, some have dark and some bleached wood furniture.

There is a blue room with canary colored Venetian blinds and rose drapes. The furniture is modern walnut, a 1941 treatment for this wood. The gray room is a bedroom with blue rug. The gold room has blue rugs, gold walls, gold drapes and mirror, and the furniture is two toned American walnut. Green drapes give a contrasting color note to the rose room, a bedroom that boasts a vanity table with inlaid markings. A living room that would wear well is in dubonnet with mahogany desk and drapes of all over floral design.

A west side rug company is offering a new line of high grade broadlooms this fall called the nu-luster. This rug has a sheen that gives it the silky appearance of expensive orientals.

Streamlined Furnishings.

One northwest side store has two model rooms in Swedish modern. The furniture from these rooms can be purchased piece by piece or as a whole. Another store in this district shows a model five room house called the modern streamlined house. The idea in this was to not only have everything in one room match its fellow furniture but to have rooms lead into each other.

A department store that has branches south, west and north is featuring a line of inexpensive modern furniture in the natural wood tones and the pastel colored, modern textured upholstery. This was designed and is combined during furniture week for the home manager who has a small or moderate budget.

One south side store has redecorated and enlarged its display space and opened yesterday on the first day of National Furniture week. The new floor plan consists of a number of rooms in which furniture can be displayed in groups. The second floor of this store, which was formerly occupied by the upholstery and repair department, is now display space.

The new approach to furniture buying in neighborhood stores is "Come over to our house, madam, you can copy the whole thing or part."

Scouts of Suburban Area Visit Camp Near Wheeling

Week-end training camps for Boy Scouts of the northwest suburbs are being held this fall at Camp Dan Beard, near Wheeling. H. P. Dunsmore of Park Ridge is director of the course, and W. A. Miles, of Arlington Heights is scoutmaster. Patrol leaders are Charles Webber, scoutmaster of Troop 1 of Park Ridge; C. J. Taylor, scoutmaster of Troop 6, and Richard Vandy, scoutmaster of Troop 14, both of Des Plaines, and E. L. Koebelin, scoutmaster of Troop 26 of Niles Center.

Six Brothers at Dolan-Fahey Wedding

The Dolans and the Faheys took over St. Sabina church, 7800 South Racine avenue, recently when Peter J. Dolan of 8116 South Wood street, married Elizabeth Fahey, daughter of Mrs. Marie Fahey of 8026 South Loomis street. The wedding party consisted of Dolan's six brothers (one is not in the picture) and Miss Fahey's two sisters. They are, from left to right, Michael V. Dolan, 7925 South Wood street; Eileen Fahey; the Rev. James A. Dolan, 4821 Ellis avenue; the bridegroom; the Rev. Francis J. Dolan, 6060 North Kirkwood avenue; the bride; the Rev. Walter E. Dolan, Woodstock; Marie Fahey, and Thomas J. Dolan, 8116 South Wood street.

SUBURB TO BORE 900 FEET FOR WATER SUPPLY

Arlington Heights Is to Spend $20,000.

Bids for a new well in Arlington Heights, 900 feet deep, will be invited about the first of November, Arthur Consoer, village engineer, said last week. The well is to be drilled on land donated to the village by Herman Weiss, a real estate dealer. The plot is 37½ feet by 132 feet in size and is near Kennicott avenue and Wing street.

The new well, Consoer said, would cost approximately $20,000. Of this $5,000 is available in water department funds, and $15,000 will be obtained by issuing bonds. An ordinance for issuing the bonds will be presented to the village board by village attorney Hugo Thal.

Scarcity in Supply.

Mr. Consoer also revealed, now that an additional source of water is certain, that during the hottest weeks of the summer, with the pumps working 24 hours a day, it was impossible to get the elevated tank full at night.

There are at present three wells having a total capacity of about 1,000 gallons per minute. The new well is expected to have the largest capacity of all, producing nearly 600 gallons per minute. This will assure an adequate water supply even if one pump should be out of order for a while.

90 Days for Drilling.

Drilling the well, Consoer said, would take about 90 days, and installing the pump about 30 days. The work will be made considerably easier by the fact that one of the village's new ten inch water mains passes by the newly acquired property.

Consoer called the attention of the village board to the danger of water shortage last spring after one pump went out of commission temporarily. He also pointed out the danger which would result from lack of sufficient water to fight a large fire.

NORWOOD PARK CITIZENS GROUP NAMES OFFICERS

The Norwood Park Citizens' association, the oldest in Cook county, has opened its fall season with the election of officers. The organization plans to stress safety in Norwood Park and is working toward installation stop signs. The crossing at Raven street and the Northwest highway is felt to be the one most in need of a stop sign.

One of the projects the group worked for last year, the equipping of the Taft High school underpass with drains and walks, has been completed.

The officers of the organization, which numbers about 750 members, are F. Russell Lyon, president; Arthur E. Rex, first vice president; W. G. Burroughs, second vice president; Conrad P. Born, secretary; Edward G. Wolford, treasurer. The meetings are held the second Tuesday of each month at 6044 Avondale avenue.

Bride at Home

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bechler are residing at 6808 Wayne avenue. The bride is the former Frances Kovin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kovin, 2714 Peterson avenue, and her husband is the son of Mrs. Charles Bechler, 4656 North Monticello avenue.

AMATEURS WILL GIVE 3 PLAYS IN GOMPERS PARK

Three one act plays will be presented by amateur actors under the direction of Miss Hazel Hedges of the park district drama staff at Gompers park fieldhouse, 4224 Foster avenue, at 8:15 o'clock Wednesday evening. The opening play, "Ten Pretty Girls," will be given by the Gompers Park Glee club.

The second play, "Unhappy Princess," will be presented by the Gompers Park Children players, and the third will be "An Uninvited Member," in which the park's intermediate dramatic group will take part. The program will close with the singing of "My Own United States" and "God Bless America" by the glee club.

Members in the glee club in the program are Joyce Toleson, Dorothy Angstmann, Patricia Lannert, Dolores Toleson, Frances O'Brien, Marie Olson, Delores Rizek, Dolores Guercia, Elaine Shuxteau, and Barbara Prost. Those in the dramatic groups taking part in the plays are Margie Corey, Marylin Danikue, Shirley Dove, Avis Freedlund, Shirley Johnson, Marion Luebbing, Barbara Marquart, Jewel Okon, Lillian Puccinelli, Alice Okon, Lorraine Quick, Alice Samuelson, Dolores Wenk, Martha Pshaka, Hertha Erickson, Janet True, Mabel Sanderson, Joan Terase, and Esther Bagley.

FALL PROGRAMS DUE TO START IN CHICAGO PARKS

Play and Instruction Is Offered to All.

Hufford, the artcraft instructor, will conduct a lapidary, or jewelry making class, for the second year and expects an attendance of 25 or 30. Jewelry is made of old silver and gold, with semiprecious stones or merely decorative stones found on the beach set in.

A similar lapidary class will be inaugurated at Independence park, 3945 North Springfield avenue, by John Slocum, craft instructor, it was stated by John Murphy, the supervisor. Thirty-two girls, many of them probably from the nearby Schurz High school girls' drill team, will make up a new park girls' drill team to take part in various park and community ceremonies. They will be between 15 and 17 years of age.

Extend Drama Classes.

Miss Zarah Kanief, drama instructor, will extend her activities to Kilbourn park, 3501 North Kilbourn avenue. It will be the first year this park will have had dramatic classes. Lawrence Bol is park supervisor.

At Kosciuszko park, 2732 North Avers avenue, Supervisor John Maloskie announces the formation of an adult forum group which will meet the first Tuesday of each month under the direction of Miss Virginia Reps to discuss topics of current interest. There will also be a new adult dramatic group instructed by Aage Larsen.

Three new instructors have been appointed at Norwood Park, creating practically a new staff, except for Herb Wordell, the supervisor. They are Ludwig Kusch, new craft instructor; Mrs. Mary Ackerman, women's physical instructor, and Miss Dorothea Burch, artcraft instructor. Mrs. Frances Finn will return as drama instructor.

WRIGHT COLLEGE OFFERS FLIGHT TRAINING COURSE

Wright Junior college has been authorized as a site for the new civilian pilot training program by the Civil Aeronautics authority officials, Dean William H. Conley has announced. The course will offer a private pilot's license upon completion of the 26 hour flying program.

The course is open to sophomore students passing the physical examination and the minimum age requirement is 19 years. All candidates under 21 years must have parents' permission. Those who do not pass the physical examinations may enroll in a three hour course of ground training in navigation and meteorology. Students interested only in the ground course are exempt from the examination and also the fees, which include an insurance fee, and a charge for the medical examination.

DRIVE STARTED FOR ADDITIONS TO STEINMETZ HIGH

School Built for 2,300 Now Serves 3,800.

Resolutions by more than a dozen local organizations asking that the Steinmetz High school building be enlarged will be announced at a meeting Wednesday night sponsored by Gen. George Bell and Hilmar J. Behrentz Jr. posts of the American Legion.

John Schimel, 4933 Dakin street, commander of Behrentz post and chairman of a joint community service committee of the two posts, asked representatives of the various groups to put the resolution before their respective clubs.

Late Classes Necessary.

Schimel pointed out at the meeting that altho the high school district had been cut down twice, sending children to Taft and Foreman High schools, attendance is still far above capacity, making it necessary for classes to extend so late into the afternoon that students had to face the rush of evening traffic to get home.

Daniel F. O'Hearn, principal of the school, also attended the meeting and said that this fall there are 3,800 students in the building, planned to accommodate 2,300. Besides the lengthening of the school day, he said, this means an overcrowded lunch room. Facilities are inadequate also in the technical shops, he said.

William O. Schultz, 3515 Osceola avenue, secretary of the joint committee, pointed out that tentative appropriations of $600,000 in the 1940 budget for two wings to the building, which were not acted upon, indicated that the school board recognized the need for additional space.

Will Petition Board.

Schimel said that resolutions of the various clubs would be embodied in a petition to the school board asking that the additions be built.

The clubs which are expected to have passed resolutions by Wednesday and to report them to the joint committee meeting that day include the Grand-Harlem Chamber of Commerce, Mont Clare Improvement club, Northwest Women's Improvement and Social club, Addison Heights Improvement club, Dunning Park Improvement club, Mont Clare Consumer's club, Galewood Improvement association, Gen. Abel Davis post of the Legion, and the parent-teacher associations of Thorp, Mary Lyon, Dever, and Reinberg schools.

Wednesday's meeting will be at the Bell post headquarters, 6945 West Grand avenue.

ARMY RESERVE OFFICERS WILL MEET THURSDAY

The first fall meeting of the Cook county chapter of the Reserve Officers association will be held on Thursday evening at the Hotel La Salle. Capt. Charles H. Blumenfeld, president of the chapter, will preside.

The chapter is one of the largest in the country, claiming more than 1,000 members, and is planning an extensive training program for the year. Many officers of the chapter are on extended active duty with the army now, and many more are expected to be called for duty soon.

Col. Fred L. Walker, of the Second army, with headquarters here, will be the principal speaker of the evening. He will discuss the army maneuvers held recently in Wisconsin. Col. John B. Johnson, U. S. A., chief of staff of the Illinois military area, and other regular army officers will be among the 800 officers expected at the meeting. Maj. Marvin Dixon, past president of the chapter, will be presented with a key.

Autumn Bride

Miss Beatrice Kwiat, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kwiat, 4811 North St. Louis avenue, will become the bride of Bernard Barry Rubenstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Rubenstein, 5009 Sheridan road, on Oct. 6. The ceremony is planned for noon in the Copeland hotel. The couple will tour the south on their honeymoon.

MAINE TO TEACH FLIGHT STUDIES AND GEM CUTTING

Several new classes will be added to those usually on the schedule at the Maine Adult evening school this fall. An aviation ground course, a course in ballroom dancing, and a course in lapidary art are new innovations.

The aviation course will be a 72 hour training program given for two semesters which will qualify students for private pilot's written examinations. There are no age or physical restrictions for admission to the course, which will cover civil air regulations, navigation, meteorology, theory of flight, and instrument training. Jeffrey Shafer will be the instructor.

Dancing lessons will be given Thursday evenings. The lapidary art course will emphasize the cutting and polishing of semiprecious stones for brooches, ring sets and cabinet specimens. Registration will be Oct. 1 and classes will be held that evening.

P.-T. COUNCIL TO HOLD ANNUAL TEA THURSDAY

Head of Farragut Unit to Be Hostess.

The high school council of districts 23 and 24 of Parent-Teacher associations will hold its annual fall tea at the Farragut High school on Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Mrs. Frank Kocek, president of the Farragut unit will be hostess. Peter Ritzma, principal of Farragut school, will speak, and there will be orchestra music directed by Sylvan D. Ward. Girls of the domestic science classes will serve.

The regular council meeting of presidents and council chairmen will be held at 10 o'clock Sept. 30 at the Y. W. C. A., 59 East Monroe street. Plans for the fall conference will be completed and committees will explain their year's plans. This year's project is student aid.

Falconer P.-T. A. will have a board meeting on Tuesday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock in the teacher's lunch room. The president, Mrs. R. A. Casperson, urges that all chairmen be present.

Belding group is having a rummage sale on Wednesday. The program includes a "galloping breakfast" for the members in the near future.

Kelvyn Park High school unit will hold its first meeting Tuesday at 1:45 o'clock in the civics room of the school. Mrs. J. A. Hart, social hygiene chairman, and Mrs. Trygve Kwerneland, student aid chairman, are in charge. The speaker will be Samuel Barth, placement counselor, and Mrs. Andrew Gartner, president of the unit, will introduce the new officers and chairmen.

Ebinger P.-T. A. will hold its first meeting of the year on Wednesday at 1:15 o'clock. Mrs. Robert Kaey, the president, will preside. A "Man on the Street" radio skit will be directed by Mrs. Ray Kaage, radio chairman, and Mrs. John Erickson, magazine chairman, will talk on the Parent-Teacher magazine.

The Grover Cleveland P.-T. A. will tour a coffee company plant on Wednesday. Busses will leave the school corner, Byron and Albany avenue, at 12:30 o'clock.

On Friday the Barry unit will sponsor an evening of entertainment in the school auditorium. The Mundy Jubilee Singers, a chorus of 35 voices, will appear. Two movies will be shown, "Screwdrivers of 1940" and "Oil from the Earth." There will also be several specialty numbers. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. John Obermaier and Mrs. L. D. Sparks.

The Mozart school group will hold a rummage sale on Saturday. All who wish to donate to the sale should contact Mrs. Edmund Harper. The new officers of the unit are Mrs. George Piehl, president; Mrs. Robert Nelson, first vice president; Mrs. Elizabeth Wild, second vice president; Mrs. Victor Quigley, recording secretary; Mrs. Anton Lakness, corresponding secretary; Mrs. William Guse, treasurer; Mrs. Charles Berndt, historian; Mrs. Donald Watson, Mrs. Robert Nelson, Mrs. Edmund Harper, and Mrs. Norman Anderson, directors.

The Chicago Parental school P.-T. A. will hold its September meeting on Friday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock in the school assembly. There will be a speaker from the Juvenile court who will talk on "Establishing Securities Thru Probation." This talk is in keeping with the theme of the year's work of the association, which is "Juvenile Security for Social Stability." Miss Ava Marston, dietician at the school, will speak on "Balancing the Diet as Well as the Budget." The group singing by the pupils at the opening of the meeting will be directed by Mrs. J. B. Raub, assistant principal.

The meeting will be followed by a social hour with the board members acting as hostesses.

Mrs. W. D. Nappe is president of the association; Mrs. John W. Prassas, Mrs. W. E. Holsinger, and Mrs. Otto W. Schroeder, vice presidents; Mrs. W. F. Scranton, recording secretary; Mrs. Ben C. Stenn, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. B. Lewis, treasurer; Mrs. W. J. Page, Mrs. George Ives, Mrs. Louis Brookman Jr., Mrs. C. B. Woolsey, Mrs. W. H. Baasch, directors.

NEW CIVIC GROUP SEEKS BUS LINE ON GUNNISON

Northwest League to Aid Home Ownership.

Individual home ownership, broader educational facilities, and the installation of a bus line on Gunnison street from Austin to Harlem avenues constitute the initial three-point program of the newly organized Greater Northwest league.

The new club met for the first time last month to elect officers. Stanley S. Piotrowski, 5542 Leland avenue, an attorney, is president. George A. Kyros is vice president, John V. Rekus, secretary; Arthur A. Gladwin, treasurer; Peter Yactor, sergeant at arms, and Barney Wozny, librarian.

Mr. Piotrowski explained that the league was to represent the entire northwest side, north of Armitage avenue and west of the north branch of the river.

Explains League Status.

"Until now there have been only two clubs which represent more than a very localized area," he said; "and even in them the southern part of the northwest side is neglected."

The organization already has 130 members, and has established headquarters at 5613 West Lawrence avenue.

With regard to the home ownership program, Piotrowski said that it was the feeling of the organization that a person who owned his own home took more pride and interest in his community than a person who rented it. One way in which home ownership could be promoted, he said, was to encourage people to move farther from congested areas of the city, to regions where land could be obtained for less.

The Gunnison street bus line is sought, Mr. Piotrowski said, because of complaints that transportation was difficult for those living west of the Lawrence avenue car line terminal at Austin avenue.

Will Aid Aliens.

A unique committee which has been appointed is devoted to citizenship problems. Composed of Mr. Piotrowski, Mr. Kyros, Joseph Rekus, and Walter Walcezk, it is for the benefit of aliens who wish to obtain information regarding their particular case in relation to citizenship, alien registration, and other problems.

Other committees and their chairmen for this year are Joseph Rekus, social; John Yactor, membership; Sidney Spakowski, citizenship; Daniel Ryan, education; Charles Holmes, publicity; Luke Karnowski and Frank Trochowski, transportation; Piotrowski and Kyros, legislation and law; Joseph Rekus and Walter Stasch, housing.

8 N. WEST SIDERS WIN AWARDS TO TECH INSTITUTE

Of the 24 incoming freshmen at the Illinois Institute of Technology who have won scholarships for their first year, eight are from the northwest side. Seven of these will enter the Armour College of Engineering, one of the branches of the institute.

They are Joseph E. Hind Jr., 2613 North Fairfield avenue, from Lane Technical High school; Francis T. Kleber, 5661 North Neva avenue, Taft High; Robert E. Kraft, 2230 North Lowell avenue, Kelvyn Park High; Gerald L. Landsman, 4828 North Avers avenue, Lane Technical; Edward M. Lisowski, 2610 Evergreen street, Crane Technical; Arnold J. Thompson, 2231 North La Crosse avenue, Kelvyn Park High, and Joseph Zywicki, 1628 North Ada street, Wells High.

Raymond Wickboldt, 5843 Wilson avenue, a graduate of Schurz High school, will enter Lewis Institute of Arts and Sciences on the west side, the other branch of the Illinois institute.

A four year scholarship in fire protection engineering was awarded to Eldred Koenig of Itasca, Ill.

Go Western, Young Rider

This group of young horse trail riders show how the western or dude ranch influence has lately taken hold in the Chicago area. Miss Elaine Victor, in the center, is all dressed up in black gabardine frontier pants, rose satin shirt, white woven Indian jacket, and black felt hat. Miss Louise Ford, holding her horse, Tex, is in blue and red plaid shirt, and levis pulled on over her riding boots. The hatless girl standing beside Miss Victor is Janet Skillen, whose jeans are topped by masculine shirt and gabardine windbreaker. From Tex's back Miss Sue Finney looks down, clad in oiled silk slicker that is handy to carry on a ride because it compresses into so little space. Donald Pebbles, at the right, wears jeans, green shirt, and maroon pullover sweater.

A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Two months or more of weekly riding lessons have convinced me I liked the sport more than casually, so I determined to invest in a regular riding outfit. I looked over the field and sought advice before I bought.

It became apparent to me that bridle path riders are less bound by tradition than, say, the hunting and jumping crowd, for whom dame fashion has laid down fairly rigid rules.

Horse trail clothing combinations are nearly as various as riders. True, most outfits consist of breeches, stout boots, and negligee shirts or sweaters, but in materials, color, and cut the variety is limitless.

I wondered whether to get the old favorite combination of high topped boots and regulation breeches, or the increasingly popular jodhpur outfit of ankle length boots with breeches that terminate in close fitting trouser legs.

Matter of Preference.

My instructor, Elmer J. Holdorf, and other veterans told me it was largely a matter of my own taste and requirements. They said the high boot combination offered such advantages as maximum warmth and leg protection, while jods were less confining and were easier to carry for short notice rides because they took up less storage room. I chose jods.

On advice of my more experienced friends, I also bought a windbreaker —an unlimited, loose fitting belted jacket with plenty of pockets. This can be carried handily in case of sudden cold or rains, and it isn't so much in the way in case one wants to shed it during a ride.

I found riding an ideal consumer of my outworn white shirts that seemed too good to discard entirely. They come to an honorable and useful end on horseback.

So, too, do last season's unlined leather gloves, which serve admirably as hand protection against rein blisters, and the dirt that clings inevitably to harness leather.

Advises Heavy Sox.

For wear next to the feet, sweat sox are the thing. The soft, thick fabric absorbs perspiration and at the same time cushions the feet. Sweat sox are suitable for either warm or cold weather. When buying boots it is well to get them large enough to accommodate heavy sox.

Generally speaking, these clothing tips are applicable to either sex, for woman riders on the bridle paths and horse trails no longer swath themselves in skirts, but copy the men sartorially.

Head covering is optional. Most riders in summer go bareheaded. The exceptions go in for considerable variety. Men, of course, cling slavishly to the fedora. Women are partial to the peasant kerchief, or the small, close fitting felt hat known, I believe, as the bowler.

The cost of an outfit is just about what the purchaser makes it. One can acquire all the necessary wearables for as little as $10 or less, or he can shoot the works and spend as much as a good horse would cost.

I hold that it is best to invest in better quality garments and footgear that will stand up well under the frequent cleanings to which their use exposes them.

Styles Remain Same.

It is well to bear in mind when outfitting that your riding attire, unlike street clothing, does not go out of style quickly. If it is chosen judiciously it will deliver perhaps several years of service.

As freakish as riding clothes may seem to some persons, each peculiarity is grounded in sound reason, I learned.

Take breeches, for example. The peg tops give ample seat room. The close fitting legs eliminate clothing folds that might cause chafing.

Boots are of heavy leather and extend above the ankles because they protect against the stirrup irons. High boot tops insulate the rider's legs from harsh stirrup straps and possible thorns and branches of the trail. They also help to keep cleaning bills down, by standing between trouser legs and the saddle straps and the horse's sides, which unfortunately are not always clean, particularly in the cheaper stables.

chairman of the Democratic party since 1934.

Nothing other than an overwhelming victory can be seen for the Republicans in the April primary figures, on the basis of what occurred in 1938. Two years ago the Republicans merely topped the Democrats in primary house votes, 94,.00 to 84,000, but in the election the count was 163,000 to 88,000. In this year's primary the G. O. P. ran up a lead of almost 3 to 1—135,000 to 52,000.

Representative Warren L. Wood of Joliet, running for his fourth term, sees cause for Republican optimism on every hand. The G. O. P. house membership of 79 [compared with 74 Democrats] will be increased to between 82 and 86, he predicted.

The agricultural vote is in good shape for the G. O. P. for the first time in eight years, he said. He told of straw votes taken at the recent plowing contests near Plainfield and Peotone, which showed the farmers for Willkie by from 2 or 3 to 1.

Wendell Willkie found 20,000 persons turning out to see him when he passed thru Joliet on Sept. 14 altho no special effort was made to get a large crowd, Woods said. He added that he had noted the presence of many Democrats in the crowd.

Representative Lottie Holman O'Neill, Wood's running mate, has been working hard repairing fences shaken by the Republican primary battle. A seasoned campaigner with a large personal following, she was the first women ever elected to the Illinois legislature. She is completing her eighth term [16 years]. Mrs. O'Neill is a widowed homemaker residing in Downers Grove.

"Taxes and broken promises are arguments which are valid but may be laid aside during the present campaign," said Representative Wood. "My main point is that this is the last real American political campaign unless Willkie is elected. There is not much use in electing Republicans to other offices unless Roosevelt is defeated."

Albany Park Junior Moose Ready to Hold Induction

Amelia Witt, 2026 Giddings street, will be installed as president of the Albany Park Junior Moose Friday evening. Richard Zacharias, 3024 Medill avenue, will be vice president; Elaine Collier, 3533 North Kolmar avenue, chaplain; while Marge Collier, of the same address; Anna Witt, 2026 Giddings street; Marge Langbauer, 3736 Berteau avenue, and Rosalie Jakoby, 3141 Linder avenue, will assist.

HURRY BLAMED FOR CRASHES AT DANGER CORNER

Diversey-Central No. 5 on 'Bad' List.

Amber light running by hurrying motorists and carelessness by pedestrians join to make the intersection of Central and Diversey avenues the fifth most dangerous on the northwest side.

This is pointed out by engineers of the Chicago Motor club, who have completed a survey of northwest side crossings and report that there have been 45 accidents at this corner between Jan. 1, 1939, and June 21, 1940, of which one resulted in death and 19 in personal injuries.

Club engineers found that a large amount of turning traffic, coupled with fairly rapid speeds, added to the dangers of the crossing.

Find Traffic Heavy.

"Both of these streets carry a heavy volume of thru traffic," Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club, pointed out. "This concentration of traffic, combined with a tendency on the part of mortorists to exceed the speed limit and to slide thru the intersection are the chief cause of accidents at this point. It is one of dozens of intersections in the city which have a high accident count simply because motorists have formed the habit of cheating a little."

Right-angle and rear-end collisions predominate among the various types of accidents. These are caused in the majority of cases by impatience on the part of motorists, Mr. Hayes explained. This fault causes indecision on the part of other motorists entering the intersection. When they observe others running the amber light, many of them do likewise; others hesitate, decide not to cross, stop suddenly, and thus cause rear-end collisions.

Peril for Walkers.

The intersection also has had 14 pedestrian mishaps during the period studied. This proportion, 31 per cent of the total, is abnormally high. One death is numbered among these.

Altho motorists who drive too fast are partly to blame for these accidents, Mr. Hayes pointed out that pedestrians are frequently responsible for their own injuries.

"Many pedestrians," he said, "are careless about waiting for the green light. They attempt to cross in what they think is an adequate opening in traffic, then discover that it wasn't, become confused, and are injured.

"They are prone to forget that at night drivers cannot see them as plainly as they can see the car," he said.

For reduction of accidents, the motor club urges rigid adherence to traffic signals and obedience to speed regulations on the part of motorists, and enforcement by the police of the regulations.

SHAARE ZEDEK YOUTH LEAGUE TO GIVE PARTY

The Shaare Zedek Young People's league of Logan Square congregation will hold a membership party at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the social hall, 3135 Fullerton avenue. There will be entertainment, dancing, and refreshments. Miss Mildred Harris and Morvy Ribzek are co-chairmen, and members of their committee are Miss Alice Laibowitz, Irving Simons, Mac Bernstein, Miss Sylvia Shadrow, Miss Lorraine Levey, and Sam Pollakov.

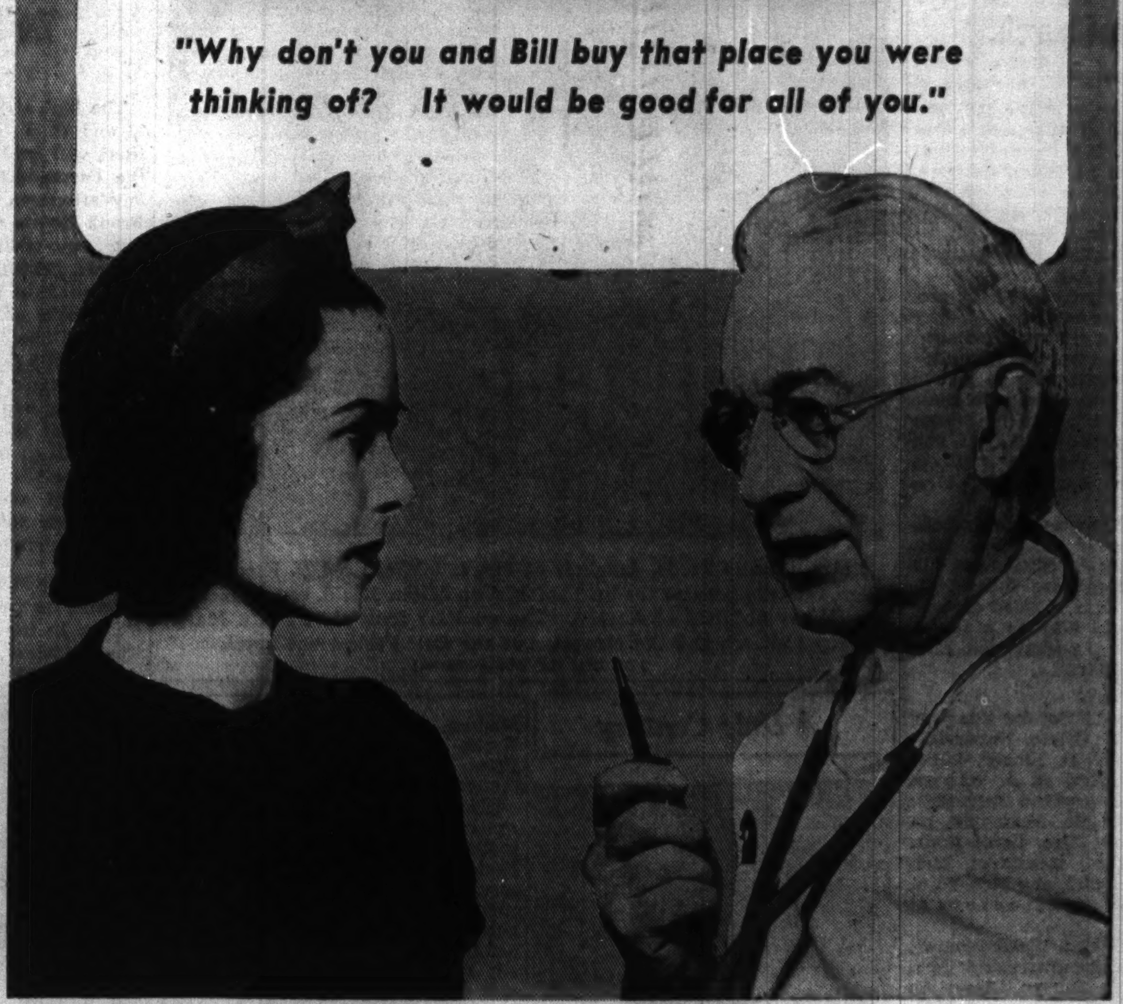
"YOU OUGHT TO GET MORE SUNSHINE!"
"Why don't you and Bill buy that place you were thinking of? It would be good for all of you."



Puttering around your own garden is just about the pleasantest way to get your quota of sunshine. And only one of the enjoyable advantages of home ownership.

Are you waiting for the right opportunity to buy a home? If so, the Real Estate columns in the Tribune want ad section can help you find what you want.

Because the Tribune prints more real estate want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined, you have a choice of the largest number of attractive home properties on the market when you consult these columns.

Review the Real Estate columns in the want ad section of today's Tribune.

HAVE YOUR CHILDREN A PLAYROOM?

If there is no place for your children to play when the weather gets bad, why not remodel your attic or basement as a playroom?

Remodeling need not be expensive, especially if you take advantage of the offers of lumber, wallboard, glass, paints and other building materials described in the Building Materials column in the Tribune want ad section.

Why not estimate your material and millwork needs today, and follow the Tribune want ad section for values?

THE LADY IS HAPPY

Question: How did she get that way?

Answer: She just got a dandy rug without spending a cent.

Q.: For nothing—how come?

A.: Up in her attic she found Junior's old saxophone which he never plays any more. It was just what an advertiser in the Tribune Barter and Exchange column wanted. So they made a trade.

Q.: Do you suppose . . . ?

A.: You'll never know till you look. Watch the Barter and Exchange column in the Tribune want ad section.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

SERVING CHICAGO FOR 93 YEARS
CHICAGO TRIBUNE

OLD TOWN HALL NOW LIVING ROOM IN MODERN HOME

Industrial Artist Revamps Aged Structure.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Have you ever felt the urge to buy an abandoned farm and do with it what you wish? Have you ever thought you would love to live with deep woods of your own as a background for your skies, a few hundred acres of gently rolling hills and rich meadow lands, a tiny rushing river, a little lake, and a real waterfall?

If so, you'll be interested in the adventure of Mr and Mrs. Elmer Pellegrin—who did just this.

Four years ago they bought an abandoned farm seven miles northwest of Woodstock, on United States highway 14. It was land rich in possibilities, but its buildings were windswept and stark when they first saw them. Of necessity they viewed the farm with that "inward eye" of which Wordsworth thought so much, in order to appraise it and picture what it might become.

Only Old Hall Remains.

On their grounds had been the thrilling little village of Brookdale a hundred years ago. Only the town hall was left.

But now all that has been changed. What was left of the old town hall is a quite enchanting living room in the new Pellegrin home; a room which retains the original beams and studs and century old timbers. It was Mrs. Pellegrin's idea to keep as much of the original structure as possible. In doing so she has captured the atmosphere of 200 years ago and built the first floor of the house in the same spirit.

Makes Own Furniture.

Indeed the first floor thruout reflects the very early Colonial tradition in faithful detail, from the warming ovens in the living room fireplace, and hand hewn oak mantel, to the barbecue built in a kitchen wall and the great copper hood over the coal and wood range.

Mr. Pellegrin is an industrial artist, and he also is an artist in the use of fine woods. Thruout the house are examples of his work; in the early American chairs and tables which he designed and made, in the hardware and lighting which he also fashioned in his spare time, over a period of four years.

This stark and windswept structure was once part of a town hall. Now it is the "living room" in the Pellegrin home.

After the little village of Brookdale vanished, its land became known for a great many years as the Lawler farm.

Chicken Coop Now Studio.

What was once the chicken coop of that farm which was later abandoned is now Mr. Pellegrin's studio with adjoining work rooms for his artists and draftsmen. It is no less a captivating spot than the house itself, with its walls carried out in mellow finished pine, its mammoth stone fireplace, its brick floor, and furnishings and hardware, all the work of Mr. Pellegrin.

Here in this studio are shelves of colorful blankets—from the wool of sheep on the farm. For George Pellegrin, the son, is manager of the farm. He already has one of the few certified barley fields in Illinois, and raises Jersey cows and Shropshire sheep as well as grain.

Beside the main house and barns, the studio of Mr. Pellegrin and the cottage farm house occupied by young Mr. and Mrs. George Pellegrin, there also is a little cabin guest house.

Bunks in Guest Cabin.

You reach this by way of a winding drive thru deep woods and across a rustic bridge. It has bunks and pine walls, a small lavatory, and heater, and a great kettle on a hearth for noon or night snacks.

The exterior of the new main house is carried out in skintled brick. The colors are tan and brown and various shades of red, and the bricks are laid with great irregularity, which contributes to the informality of the home. Awnings blend in colors with the brick, and you enter directly into the living room thru an old Dutch door, the natural finish of its aged oak weathered to a grayish hue.

Here the original beams have been kept, and spaces between studding roughly bricked in. There is a large picture window on the front wall of the room to afford abundance of light, and opposite the entrance is a mammoth stone fireplace which reaches to the ceiling. Its fireplace shelf is of hand hewn oak and its stones gathered from the farm.

For Outdoor Dining.

Beyond this living room is the large, screened outdoor living room, with a second great fireplace of stone. Here, Mrs. Pellegrin says, the family can eat until late in the fall. The floor is of brick and large table and benches and chairs were all designed and made by Mr. Pellegrin in the same early American spirit.

The kitchen is a gem. An artist's kitchen. It is both modern and as beautifully storied with the past as some kitchen from the coast of the Pilgrim fathers.

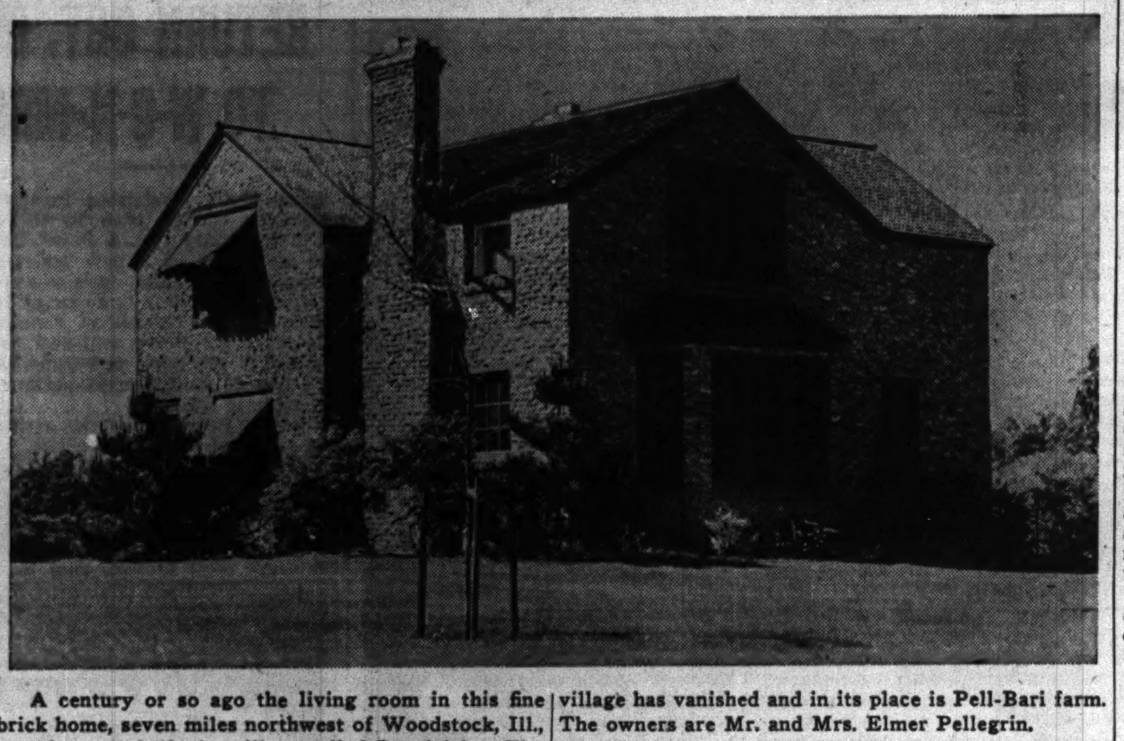
The room divides itself into two parts. In one there is the coal and wood range, with copper hood over it, and a wood surface table close. At the left of this is a deep closet, and on the adjacent wall a built-in barbecue fireplace. There is a brick floor on this utility wall and corner of the kitchen, and the color in the brick floor blends with the color of the linoleum used for the floor on the dining side of the kitchen.

Has Pine Walls.

The pine walls are mellow colored and rich, the dining table and chairs are honey shade. There also is a second range wall, and here is a modern sink with linoleum work surfaces. There is an overhead indirect lighting fixture, and the door jamb of kitchen is painted a quiet blue with white flowers—the sort of flowers one finds growing in the meadow lands and woods.

The second floor, with its bedrooms and large roof deck opening from hall at the head of stairs, is treated with simple, modern simplicity. The floors are carpeted and besides the bedrooms and bath there is a very useful little sewing room.

Village Hall Gets Modern Dress



A century or so ago the living room in this fine brick home, seven miles northwest of Woodstock, Ill., was the town hall of a village called Brookdale. The village has vanished and in its place is Pell-Bari farm. The owners are Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Pellegrin.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 23.

Never allow weeds to go to seed. Pull or burn those on the vacant lot next door and if possible start a civic campaign by organizing all garden lovers to see to it that no weeds can exist in the community. Plow vacant lots and seed the ground so weeds cannot spread to the gardens. Take the initiative in this important activity and the entire community will be benefited.

Keep the garden area free from pieces of wire, broken branches, and all obnoxious things; mow the lawn so the heavy growth will not mat down and injure the standing grass; keep the beds trimmed or edged; prepare for bulb planting; order all bulbs for delivery as soon as possible.

Tuesday, Sept. 24.

Many of the wild flowers may be transplanted at this time and they will bloom next year.

This is about the last week that evergreens can be transplanted with assurance that they will not be injured, altho under all conditions they succeed best when moved with a ball of earth and burlaped. They will not do well in the congested, smoky areas of the city, hence other plants should be used.

Evergreens are excellent for windbreaks on the farm; they are unexcelled as screens and beautiful as specimens. The white pine is a rapid grower. Hemlock is a good hedge plant. Douglas fir and concolor fir grow large. Junipers are better adapted to the smaller place. If the evergreen becomes brown it is best to replace it with another. They should not enter winter with dry soil at the roots.

Wednesday, Sept. 25.

Disbud the chrysanthemums if large sized blooms are wanted. Remove the smaller burs with the fingers, leaving one or more buds to develop. If any plants are growing in the garden, dig and pot them before frost, put in a shady place for a few days and then remove to the enclosed porch or house.

Small bulbils from the stems of lilies should be removed and planted, preferably in a coldframe. Day lilies do well when fall transplanted. They are among the finest of hardy plants, doing well in sun or partial shade. Dig old lily-of-valley plants, enrich the soil, divide, and replant.

Thursday, Sept. 26.

Plant madonna lilies. Imbed them in sand if the soil is heavy. Plant narcissi as soon as possible for they should become established before severe weather arrives. Start another batch of freesias and oxalis bulbs. It is unnecessary to bury them or place them in darkness for rooting.

Friday, Sept. 27.

Fall is an excellent time to plant lilacs, but do not use too many or plant them closer than five to seven feet apart for they are strong growers. Some of the French varieties are very desirable. Buy 3 to 4 foot stock in preference to smaller sizes.

Water newly planted stock and mulch the ground with strawy manure after the ground freezes.

Saturday, Sept. 28.

Hardy annuals sown now will wait until spring to germinate, but they will start so much earlier than spring sown stock that flowers can be enjoyed very early. Suggested kinds to sow include cosmos, petunia, shirley poppy, calendula, nigella, portulaca, and snapdragon. The bachelor's button is a favorite and excellent for cutting. Sweet peas sown late and protected will come much earlier than spring sown seed.

READY TO JUDGE BEST GARDENS IN SCHOOL CONTEST

Tomorrow, the final judging of the community garden contest, sponsored by two biology classes at Wells High school will take place. The judges are Rudolph J. Mohr and Arthur Jackson from the Garfield park conservatory, and Eldred Green and C. E. Herwitt from the Lincoln park conservatory.

The contest is part of a program planned by the classes to stimulate interest in improving the community and promoting greater community welfare. Students made their own plans for the project and spent last week visiting gardens in the section. The 30 best gardens will be judged tomorrow.

The students active in arranging the contest are Charles Slater, Patricia Onofrio, Lorraine Stenzel, Munro Shintani, Adeline Lytek, Dolores Glowinski, Jane Martinowski, Josephine Fedele, Irene Lewandowski, Erwin Gruper, and Sophie Sharb, Betty Chubin, Tony Noe, Carmen Gonzales, Mary Sandor, Shirley Engel, George Bravieri, Hillard Krajecki, Patrick Boegio, Antoinette Melillo, Evelyn Prawdjik, and Elsburne Badger.

Some of the 30 gardens selected by the children's judging committee are owned by Mrs. Alvina Behnke, 1714 Julian street; Miss Helen Cinkus, 1937 Evergreen avenue; Mrs. William H. Goehrke, 1103 North Hermitage avenue; Gerry Greco, 1932 West Ohio street; Mrs. Elizabeth Krajci, 1516 Chestnut street.

THEATER OF AIR WILL RETURN TO W-G-N ON OCT. 5

Marion Claire to Star in 'Vagabond King.'

The Chicago Theater of the Air will reopen its doors on Saturday, Oct. 5, with "The Vagabond King" as the opening operetta. Marion Claire, W-G-N's prima donna, again will be starred in this series of hour long operetta productions, under the direction of William A. Bacher.

These streamlined versions of favorite operettas and light operas will run from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturdays over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system. The Chicago Theater of the Air again will be sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

A notable group of operatic, concert, and radio headliners has already been engaged to sing the male rôles in the operetta series. Conrad Thibault, well known to radio listeners and concertgoers, will be heard opposite Miss Claire in "The Vagabond King."

List of Male Stars.

Others who will be featured are James Melton, Jan Peerce, Richard Bonelli, John Carter, and Charles Kullman.

James Melton, who starred in "Bittersweet" last spring, will return to the Theater of the Air in "Chocolate Soldier" and "Eileen." Jan Peerce, Radio City Music Hall tenor, who played the male lead in "Student Prince," will be back again in the same rôle.

John Carter, Metropolitan Operà star, altho new to the Theater of the Air, is an old favorite with Chicagoans who heard him at the 1939 Chicagoland Music Festival and Grant park concerts. Carter's lyric tenor voice will be heard in the lead of "Robin Hood."

Bonelli to Be Starred.

Richard Bonelli, famous American operatic baritone, will sing the lead in "Desert Song."

Charles Kullman, Metropolitan Opera tenor who has sung leading rôles in Vienna, Salzburg, Berlin, and London, will support Miss Claire in the leading masculine rôle of "Madame Butterfly."

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and artistic director of the Chicago Opera company, will direct the W-G-N orchestra and chorus. Double casts again will be featured in these productions. A company of outstanding radio actors will enact the spoken parts of the characters with musical headliners doing the song.

Mr. Bacher is in charge of all programs and production at W-G-N.

Besides "Vagabond King," seven other popular operettas have been scheduled and plans are being made for more to follow.

Those already scheduled are: "Chocolate Soldier," Oct. 12; "Madame Butterfly," Oct. 19; "Student Prince," Oct. 26; "Naughty Marietta" or the "Great Waltz," Nov. 2; "Desert Song," Nov. 9; "Robin Hood," Nov. 16, and "Eileen" on Nov. 23.

Bears-Packers on WIND.

The professional football broadcast season begins today when the Chicago Bears meet the Green Bay Packers at Green Bay. WIND will broadcast the game starting at 3 p. m. with Jack Drees at the microphone.

ARTISTS' LEAGUE TO OPEN SHOW IN PARK TOMORROW

Display at Independence Includes 350 Works.

The Independence Park Artists' league will open its fourth annual art exhibit tomorrow in the women's community building, 3800 Byron street. The exhibit is under the direction of A. W. May and Park Supervisor John Murphy. There will be 350 paintings, water colors, etchings, and drawings on exhibit in the salon from 1 o'clock to 10 o'clock each day thru Saturday.

The exhibit is the work of amateur artists ranging from 12 to 70 years old. Some are professional students and others merely draw and paint as a hobby. Most of the work was done under the guidance of Lawrence Porth and Max Decker.

Three Win Scholarships.

Three members of the league, Miss Dagney Petersen, Edmund Arendt, and Ted Newylowski, were recently awarded art scholarships for work displayed in a contest held at the artists' hall. Some of the paintings on exhibit are "The First Kindergarten," painted by Carl Kramer, after the original kindergarten founded in Germany in 1840. "The Bathers," by O. H. Verburg; "Norwegian Landscape," by Ebba Hanshus; "Winter Sports," by Barbara Bach; "Meditation," by Matie Ebert; "Persian Tabbie," by Marion Nielsen, and "Garden Setting," by Kay Tapp.

Some of the other northwest siders contributing to the exhibit are Robert Adalfson, Isabel Anderson, Edmund Arendt, Evelyn Bachman, Bernice Barnett, Elsie Banderrob, Marie Berg, Harry Chadek, Mrs. Alfred J. Bosse, Blanche Cloonan, Mrs. Irene Culotta, Henry Dreyer, Pearl d'Zur, Vernon Erber, Henry Gardner, Francis Gray, Claire Mary Gotow, Mrs. Lulu Hammer, Howard R. Hansen.

More Show Work.

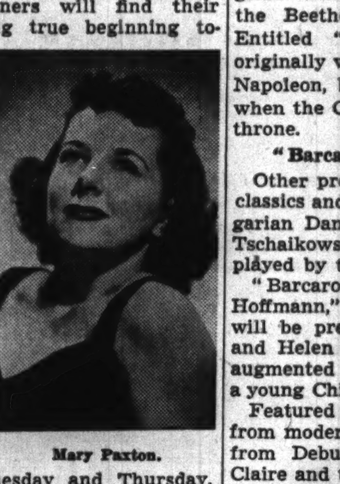
Artists Open Show Tomorrow

Miss Erma Koberling inspects the painting that Mrs. Ray Rappel is working on for the Independence Park Artists' league exhibition which will open tomorrow at the park. There are more than 350 exhibitors contributing to the show.

WISHING WELL WILL MAKE DREAMS COME TRUE FOR LISTENERS

W-G-N listeners will find their dreams coming true beginning tomorrow when a new program entitled "The Wishing Well" will make its bow. "The Wishing Well" will be sponsored by a loop department store over W-G-N at 8:45 a. m., each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and at 9:00 a. m. each Tuesday and Thursday. Mary Paxton, mistress of ceremonies, will invite listeners to "make a wish" for anything they would like from the store, and in turn the store will make some one's wish come true each week.



Mary Paxton.

Listeners are asked to write a letter of 40 words or less telling what they would like to have. To make the letter eligible, those who write in must state the day of the year on which their birthday falls—not their age, however, and also the date of their wedding anniversary if they are married. The writer of the week's best letter will be granted the thing wished for in the winning letter.

BLEND CLASSICS—OLD AND NEW ON SYMPHONIC HOUR

Marion Claire Will Be Soloist Tonight.

Music from the pens of modern classicists as well as older masterworks will be presented on the Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour from 9 to 10 o'clock tomorrow night. With Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, as speaker of the evening, the program will be broadcast over W-G-N, the Mutual network, and the entire network of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation.

Modern classical numbers by Pierne, Debussy, and Korngold will be blended with the works of Beethoven and Tschaikowsky on the program. Marion Claire, lyric soprano, will be featured soloist. The W-G-N. Symphonic orchestra will be directed by Henry Weber.

The orchestra will open the program with the first movement from the Beethoven's Third Symphony. Entitled "Eroica," this symphony originally was written as a tribute to Napoleon, but the title was changed when the Corsican seized the imperial throne.

"Barcarolle" to Be Feature.

Other presentations from the older classics and operas include the "Hungarian Dance" and "Czardas" from Tschaikowsky's "Swan Lake Ballet," played by the orchestra.

"Barcarolle," from "The Tales of Hoffmann," by Jacques Offenbach, will be presented by Marion Claire and Helen Bartush, member of the augmented chorus. Miss Bartush is a young Chicago mezzo-contralto.

Featured among the three numbers from modern classicists will be themes from Debussy, presented by Miss Claire and the orchestra.

Marietta's aria from "The Dead City," by Erich Korngold, sung by Miss Claire, and Gabriel Pierne's "Entrance of the Little Fauns," played by the orchestra, complete the numbers by the more modern composers.

The complete program:

First Movement from "Eroica" [Third Symphony] .... Beethoven
Orchestra.
Aria from Mignon .... Thomas
Miss Claire and orchestra.
Hungarian Dance and Czardas from
Barcarolle from the "Tales of Hoffman" .... Offenbach
Marion Claire, Helen Bartush and orchestra.
Swan Lake Ballet .... Tschaikowsky
Orchestra.
Speech ....
Col. Robert R. McCormick.
Marietta's aria, "The Dead City" ... Korngold
Miss Claire and orchestra.
Entrance of the Little Fauns .... Pierne
Orchestra.
Themes from Debussy .... Debussy
Miss Claire, chorus and orchestra.

The duet with Miss Claire will mark Miss Bartush's first featured appearance on the Symphonic hour. Miss Bartush has appeared with the Chicago opera for three seasons. She made her operatic debut with the Chicago opera three years ago.

William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N, is producer of the Symphonic Hour. Musical commentary for the program is written by Cecil Smith of the music and drama department of THE TRIBUNE.

Stratosphere Broadcast Will Be Recreated Today

The story of man's conquest of the stratosphere will be the subject of "Reaching the Upper Air," the World Is Yours drama, at 3:30 p. m. over WMAQ. A highlight will be a reenactment of the history making broadcast of Nov. 11, 1935—the venture of Albert W. Stevens and Orvil A. Anderson in the United States army balloon, Explorer II., 14 miles into the stratosphere.

W-G-N to Keep Frequency of 720 Kilocycles.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Wave lengths of 777 of the 862 radio stations operating in the standard broadcast band between 550 and 1,600 kilocycles in the United States are to be shifted on March 29, 1941. These shifts are to be made in accordance with the provisions of the North American regional broadcasting agreement, concluded at Havana, Cuba, in 1937.

The Federal Communications commission last week filed with the state department the proposed reallocations of frequencies [wave lengths] in the standard broadcast band. The signatory governments—the United States, Canada, Cuba, and Mexico—are now exchanging their tentative assignments before making them finally operative.

Clear Channels for Mexico.

The reallocation also provides for changes in wave lengths of many stations in Canada, Cuba, and Mexico. Mexico will receive five clear channels which prior to this agreement had no frequencies reserved for high power stations in the standard broadcast band. Cuba gets an additional clear channel from Canada.

This is how the reallocation of channels is to be accomplished, according to present plans:

Stations now operating on channels from 550 to 720 kilocycles, inclusive, will retain their present assignments. Thus W-G-N, assigned to 720 kilocycles, will continue there.

Stations operating from 740 to 780 will move up 10 kilocycles, or one channel. Thus WBBM will move from 770 to 780.

Stations from 790 to 870 will move up 20 kilocycles. WENR-WLS will move, thus, from 870 to 890.

Stations between 880 and 1,450 kilocycles will advance 30 kilocycles.

Clear channel stations from 1,460-1,490 kilocycles will move to 1,500-1,530.

Local stations now on the 1,500 channel will move to 1,490.

Listeners to Change Habits.

These shifts will force listeners to change their listening habits with regard to most stations. All push-button radio receivers will require adjustments for all stations higher in frequencies than W-G-N.

The correlated shifting of Canadian, Mexican, and Cuban stations is expected to eliminate interference with United States stations and improve reception. Interference from Mexican and Cuban stations has plagued particularly rural listeners. Certain broadcast stations on the Mexican border, largely run by interests denied the use of radio in the United States, are to be eliminated. The Havana pact contains no provisions for their continued operation.

Any broadcaster has until Oct. 15 to register his views with the FCC if he takes exception to his assignment.

WARD AND ELSON TO JOIN ON NEW SPORTS PROGRAM

Arch Ward, sports editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and Bob Elson, popular W-G-N sportscaster, will collaborate on a new sports program—"At the Sports Desk with Bob Elson," which will be presented for the first time from 7:30 to 7:45 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N. The program will be heard on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at the same hour.

Ward's entire staff will assist in gathering facts and unearthing features for the broadcasts. The Tribune experts will cover ever phase of sports from football to ping pong. Among these contributing writers will be Irving Vaughan, Edward Burns, Wilfrid Smith, Bob Becker, Howard Barry, George Strickler, Charles Bartlett, and Frank Mastro. Elson will be at the microphone, sitting at the radio sports desk and giving fans a survey of the sports news.

Eleven years' experience in all types of sports announcing qualify Elson as eminently fitted for his sports desk rôle. He has covered every world series since 1929—a distinction held by no other broadcaster.

He has missed only one All-Star baseball game, and that thru sickness.

More Troubles for Linda.

The penniless condition of her fiancé after his exoneration from fraud charges brings a new batch of troubles to Linda Crockett, heroine of "Linda's First Love," daytime serial broadcast over W-G-N, Monday thru Friday, from 10:45 to 11 a. m.

HUMAN VALUE OF RELIGION TO BE MIDDAY THEME

An inspirational theme, "The Human Life Value of Religion—has been selected for this week's W-G-N Midday service by Dr. John L. Dickson, director of the program. The noon hour talks are broadcast daily, except Saturday and Sunday, from 12:35 to 1 p. m.

Representative churchmen on the series, in order of their appearance, are:

Rev. Harold M. "ingsley, pastor, Church of the Good Shepherd.

Rev. Albert Buckner Coe, minister, First Congreg :onal church, Oak Park.

Rev. Emerson Bradshaw, the Chicago Church federation.

Rev. John Thompson, pastor, the Chicago Temple church.

Harold Molter, Christian Science Committee on Publication for Illinois.

JOAN BENNETT, WANGER ON 'IN CHICAGO TONIGHT'

Actress to Play in 'Foreign Correspondent.'

Joan Bennett and Walter Wanger—noted actress and great Hollywood producer—will be "In Chicago Tonight" for W-G-N and the Mutual network from 7:30 to 8 p. m. next Thursday night.

Walter Wanger.

Miss Bennett will have the lead rôle in a radio adaptation of "Foreign Correspondent," recently released by the Walter Wanger studios. Wanger will talk on the movie industry.

Under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs at W-G-N, this "In Chicago Tonight" production will be one of the "movie night" preformances of the variety entertainment show. Presenting previews of important motion pictures opening in Chicago, movie night is a monthly feature of the "In Chicago Tonight" program.

Miss Bennett, youngest daughter of a noted theatrical family, made her stage debut with her father, Richard Bennett, in the Broadway production of "Jarnegan."

Joan Bennett has had notable rôles in "Private Worlds," "Disraeli," "The Pursuit of Happiness," "Two Is a Crowd," and Wild Girl." Her latest film is "House Across the Bay." In private life, Miss Bennett is the wife of Walter Wanger.

Wanger's production of "Foreign Correspondent," is rated by critics as one of the year's finest pictures. Wanger spent well over a million in money and a year in time in filming the production. The picture will open here soon.

Joan Bennett's rôle in the adaptation of "Foreign Correspondent" will mark the second appearance of a member of the famed Bennett family on W-G-N this year. Last January Constance Bennett played the lead in Noel Coward's "Shadow Play," presented over W-G-N.

Musical accompaniment for the show will be presented by the W-G-N dance orchestra under the direction of Harold Stokes.

Star of "In Chicago Tonight"

Joan Bennett, who will be joined by her husband, Producer Walter Wanger, in next Thursday's presentation of "In Chicago Tonight." Miss Bennett will take one of the starring roles in a radio adaptation of the motion picture "Foreign Correspondent." The picture, soon to open in Chicago, is a Wanger production and released thru United Artists. The broadcast will be aired over W-G-N and Mutual from 7:30 to 8 p. m.

Lone Ranger on Trail of Cattle Rustlers on W-G-N

A brush with cattle thieves and the rescue of an innocent man about to hang for another's crime will be depicted in this week's episodes of "The Lone Ranger" western drama. The adventures of the masked agent of justice are heard from 7:30 to 8 p. m., Mondays and Wednesdays, over W-G-N.

PETER QUILL TO RETURN OCT. 6 TO W-G-N-MBS

Peter Quill, mysterious inventive wizard, is coming back to W-G-N. Starting Sunday Oct. 6 Peter Quill will be heard in a new series of dramatic broadcasts providing glimpses of possible weapons of the future for the defense of America. The adventure stories will deal with espionage, sabotage, and America's first line of defense with particular reference to science.

The new Peter Quill series, written and produced by Blair Walliser, will be broadcast from 3 to 3:30 p. m. Sundays. They will be sponsored.

Fantastic and daring inventions for the defense of the nation form the focal point of Peter Quill's new adventures. Gail Carson, who is engaged in counterespionage work, and Capt. Roger Dorn, a government antisabotage trouble shooter, protect Quill's inventions against the destructive efforts of saboteurs. Pitted against them is the Red Circle, sinister spy ring, headed by Michael Raclov and Sonya Danilo.

Mueller Plays Quill.

Alice Hil' and Ken Griffin of last year's cast, which played for 40 weeks, again will have lead rôles as Gail Carson and Capt. Dorn. The part of Peter Quill, brilliant, enigmatic scientist and inventor, will be played by Marvin Mueller.

The inventions projected on the show, while bizarre and fantastic, are not beyond the realm of possibility, according to Pr ducer Walliser. In fact, many are now on the borderline of perfection in scientific laboratories. Last year the Peter Quill show projected several inventions that since have come into use, among them the magnetic mine.

Plan Weird Sound Effects.

Among the inventions projected on the series this year is a powder which when placed in water will make a combustible fuel suitable for running gasoline engines.

48,440 RATS DIE AS CITY OPENS POISON CAMPAIGN

239 Men Spread Death in Three Wards.

Chicago began its long-awaited war on rats last week.

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt, who has 3,000,000 rats on his list to be purged, directed the first operations, which, he said, are only a dress rehearsal of what is to come. Two hundred and thirty nine men, all of them on relief, invaded three wards on the west and northwest sides.

The men were armed with red squill and rat bait. For two days they roamed the alleys, empty lots and areaways of the 22nd, 26th and 37th wards. In that time they found, by actual count, 12,110 rat holes. Down into the holes they shoved 23,738 pieces of poisoned bait.

48,440 Dead Rats.

Result: 48,440 dead rats. Expert exterminators figure for each rat hole an average of four rats.

The box score for each ward follows:

22nd ward—1,585 rat holes, 2,887 pieces of bait; 24 exterminators; total 6,340 dead rats.

26th ward—7,725 rat holes; 15,451 pieces of bait; 83 exterminators; grand total, 30,900 dead rats.

Sample of Total War.

The rat killing last week in these three wards was only a sample of the total war to come against the city's rodent hordes, which Mr. Hewitt says, is about equal to the human population. These wards are 100 per cent equipped with garbage cans. The rat war will begin in earnest when every building in the city is adequately fitted with a metal garbage container.

No extermination of rats can be successful, the commissioner declared, until all garbage is placed in proper containers. In the last five weeks he has received 518 complaints from householders about rats.

HAUGE LUTHERAN CHURCH TO HAVE 40TH BIRTHDAY

Hauge Evangelical Lutheran church, Central Park and Wabansia avenues, will celebrate its 40th anniversary this week. It was 40 years ago next Sunday that 11 families, members of Trinity Lutheran church, united to form Hauge church. The Rev. Samuel Carlsen has been pastor of the church for the last two years.

Each night this week the congregation will meet for special services. The Rev. H. A. Hanson, who was pastor of Trinity Lutheran church 40 years ago, will preach at the evangelistic service this evening. Tomorrow night A. F. Hammesfahr will address the meeting dedicated to the men of the church.

Tuesday night will be historic fellowship night when members of the mother church and of Immanuel church, Maplewood and Shakespeare avenues will join in the celebration. The Rev. T. W. Tysdal, pastor of Trinity and the Rev. S. R. Olson, pastor of Immanuel church, will speak. At the confirmation reunion Wednesday evening the Rev. Peder Ljostveit, who was pastor of Hauge church from 1932 to 1938, will speak.

Foreign missions will be stressed on Thursday and Friday evenings, and the Rev. J. N. Otte, missionary from South Africa, is the speaker. Three festival services and a Sunday school rally will wind up the celebration next Sunday. The speakers will be the Rev. Peder Ljostveit, and the Rev. Joseph B. Shefveland, president of the Chicago circuit of the Norwegian Lutheran church of America.

COMPLETE WORK ON FIELDHOUSE IN KELVYN PARK

Remodeling work on Kelvyn park fieldhouse is completed and the building is open to the public. The gymnasium has been remodeled, a new office and game room for the boys and girls have been added, four new tennis courts have been completed, and the art craft room and the stage and assembly hall have been enlarged.

Walter Scheider, park supervisor, has announced that class registration for fall and winter recreational activities will begin on Oct. 1 and will be accepted every afternoon and evening from 3 to 9:30 o'clock, until Oct. 15.

Among the leisure time activities that will be available will be sewing, knitting, crocheting, woodcraft, artcraft, music, dramatics, wrestling, boxing, gymnasium, calisthenics, basketball, archery, gamesroom, social dancing, volleyball, business men's and business girls' gymnasium classes, and women's and men's choruses.

Some of the new instructors are Sheldon Brown, men's athletics; Mary Vignola, women's athletics; Rose Lambert, knitting, and Olive Bernard, dramatics. Art Scheldein is the head attendant.

PARKS READY WITH FALL PROGRAMS

WILLKIE CLUB BOLSTERS G.O.P. IN 6TH DISTRICT

Will Back Wagner's Congress Race.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Unexpected blossoming of a first class election contest in the large 6th district was the principal development in the congressional campaign on the west side and in adjacent suburbs last week.

The newly organized 6th Illinois Congressional District Willkie club sprang the surprise by revealing it has already perfected framework for a determined fight to elect a Republican representative for the district on Nov. 5.

More than a thousand volunteers have already enlisted for the campaign, and the number gives promise of reaching 10,000 or more in the next few weeks, leaders of the group reported.

Upsets Maciejewski Plans.

This turn of events has upset the strategy of Congressman Anton F. Maciejewski of Cicero, first term Democrat who had relied on machine effort alone to reëlect him this year. The congressman's supporters agreed that he must now make an active campaign or face possible defeat by Joseph Wagner, Berwyn dairyman whom the Republicans nominated last April.

The 6th District Willkie club was organized at the suggestion of Joseph Coyner of Oak Park, delegate [with Circuit Judge Julius Miner] to the Republican national convention this year. Coyner was one of a group of delegates who favored Willkie in the early balloting on a G. O. P. standard bearer.

He and Fred A. Virkus of La Grange were hosts at the organization meeting in Oak Park on Aug. 14, which was attended by 42 representative business men. Edwin Willkie, brother of the Presidential candidate, was a guest at the meeting.

Behind Entire Ticket.

The purpose of the club is to work for the election of the entire Republican ticket, national, state and local, on Nov. 5, and particularly to strive for G. O. P. representation for the district in congress. This the 6th has lacked since John J. Gorman was unseated by James T. Igoe in 1926. Igoe, a Democrat, was succeeded in 1932 by Thomas J. O'Brien, who retired after three terms to accept the Democratic nomination for sheriff of Cook county.

Coyner and Virkus are co-chairmen of the 6th district club. Frank L. Wood of the 29th ward in Chicago is secretary. Charles R. Hussey of Forest Park is treasurer, and Mrs. John K. Russell III. of Oak Park is director of the women's division.

Campaigning and fund raising will be carried out by teams composed of 10 men and women each. More than 100 such teams are already at work, and the total is expected to reach 1,000 by Oct. 1, according to Mrs. Russell.

The initial effort of the teams was to work for the registration of every eligible voter in the district in time to vote in the Nov. 5 election.

Set Forth Principles.

Principles of the club are set forth in this screed which is featured on a small scroll being distributed by the members as a part of their fund-raising efforts:

"The American is that citizen who has a profound respect for the structure and philosophy of government as reflected in the constitution of the United States and is convinced that under the constitution the individual must find and place himself mainly, if not wholly, by his own efforts, with the minimum of government intervention.

"To us, therefore, the American has entire confidence in the capacity, industry, initiative, intelligence, and resourcefulness of the individual to work out his own and as a consequence his country's economic stability. He has a profound distrust of any program of control that interferes with or is a substitute for these qualities which to him are the practical guarantee of happiness and well-being.

Distrust of Squandering.

"He has an equal distrust of any program that assumes that something can be produced out of nothing or given for nothing, programs of the sort that now clutter up the federal, and in certain instances, the state statute books, thus squandering the resources of the citizenry. He has an even greater distrust for the doctrine that government regimentation, control, or management can function as a substitute for private management, initiative, and resourcefulness, with the consequent increase of a large section of the population uselessly occupied and living off and constricting the productive efforts of others.

"The American furthermore also recognizes that social helpfulness and regulatory statutes, kept within the strict confines of constitutional and logical effectiveness and slowly evolved from practical experience and evolutionarily tested, are indicative of sound and progressive government. . .

Willing to Bear Arms.

"The American is fundamentally a man of peace, but he is not unaware of the ideals his country owes to war; he will willingly bear arms and make sacrifices, if required, to preserve his nation's institutions, so long as they are deeply cherished and not imposed on him repressively."

Dude Ranch Clothes Are Seen on Riding Trails

Eight youthful riders who frequent the beautiful horse trails of the forest preserves show here some of the variety offered for the horse lover's wardrobe. At the left, Miss Lucille Lorber of Glenview, in smartly tailored gray gabardine, has claimed the attention of Sherle Sass of Chicago, whose black cavalry twill jodhpur breeches are topped by a fitted gray tweed coat. Beside them, Hugo Delmar of Evanston, also in jodhpurs, is shown wearing his hooded sheep lined cravenette that means comfort on the chill days that lie ahead. The group at the right are less formally dressed in the western or dude ranch outfits that are currently enjoying wide popularity, especially among the youngsters. Miss Elaine Victor of Wilmette, in the center, is resplendent in black garbardine frontier pants, rose satin shirt, white woven Indian jacket, and black felt hat. The overalled riders are Miss Louise Ford of Evanston, holding her horse, Tex; Janet Skillen of Evanston, and Donald Peebles of Evanston. Looking down from the saddle is Miss Sue Finney of Wilmette, in an oiled silk riding slicker that folds into a tiny bundle.

Stores Ready with New Ideas on Furniture

Every color scheme, decorating note or new idea has been drafted by merchants and manufacturers for National Furniture week which opened yesterday. Model rooms, combinations in textiles and woods, window displays and floral patterns promise a festive autumn, not by the handiwork of nature alone, but by the housewife's ingenuity.

Trained salesmen, who know whether a pink bedspread will blend with a rosy shade drape or how red a red would go with green, are ready to answer questions. Charts and diagrams have been compiled and drawn to help the buyer, whether she is seeking a drum table for a bare corner or furniture for her whole house. No neighborhood store has failed to brush up on 1941 homemaking hints or has neglected to show "things that go together."

Ready to Help Family.

Neighborhood furniture stores this week are more than places to buy furniture. They are your staff of private decorators, the men and women who will worry over your sunparlor sofa with the same personal attention as the family who will sit on it. Young moderns, the 1940 brides, have added to their homemaking vocabulary such terms as color harmony, period furniture or modern, two toned and pastel mixtures. They ask these things in addition to "Is it comfortable?" and "Will it wear well?"

A north side store dedicates two of its seven window displays to "Young America." This store believes, from experience that young America wants modern. To contrast with a sky blue in this window room of bleached mahogany, the store shows a yellow wing chair that a visiting grandfather would admit beats his old one. The room features a circular sectional sofa and the second "young America" room has a sectional sofa divided by a table. This store dedicates another window to 18th century Duncan Phyfe and Sheraton dining room furniture. The other windows are given over to moderately priced furniture in pieces that go together.

Show Modern Rooms.

Six completely furnished rooms from pictures on the walls to rugs on the floors provide idea and inspiration at a west side store. All the rooms are modern, some have dark and some bleached wood furniture.

There is a blue room with canary colored Venetian blinds and rose drapes. The furniture is modern walnut, a 1941 treatment for this wood. The gray room is a bedroom with blue rug. The gold room has blue rugs, gold walls, gold drapes and mirror, and the furniture is two toned American walnut. Green drapes give a contrasting color note to the rose room, a bedroom that boasts a vanity table with inlaid markings. A living room that would wear well is in dubonnet with mahogany desk and drapes of all over floral design.

A west side rug company is offering a new line of high grade broadlooms this fall called the nu-luster. This rug has a sheen that gives it the silky appearance of expensive orientals.

Streamlined Furnishings.

One northwest side store has two model rooms in Swedish modern. The furniture from these rooms can be purchased piece by piece or as a whole. Another store in this district shows a model five room house called the modern streamlined house. The idea in this was to not only, have everything in one room match its fellow furniture but to have rooms lead into each other.

A department store that has branches south, west and north is featuring a line of inexpensive modern furniture in the natural wood tones and the pastel colored, modern textured upholstery. This was designed and is combined during furniture week for the home manager who has a small or moderate budget.

One south side store has redecorated and enlarged its display space and opened yesterday on the first day of National Furniture week. The new floor plan consists of a number of rooms in which furniture can be displayed in groups. The second floor of this store, which was formerly occupied by the upholstery and repair department, is now display space.

The new approach to furniture buying in neighborhood stores is "Come over to our house, madam, you can copy the whole thing or part."

DOWNERS GROVE HAS BANK AGAIN AFTER LAPSE OF NINE YEARS

Bankless since 1931, Downers Grove is rejoicing as the result of the opening of the new Citizens State bank. There was music by the Community band as townspeople took advantage of facilities provided in the former First National bank building on Main street in the business district.

Edward A. Volberding.

Lacking banking facilities, residents of Downers Grove have been obliged to rely on Westmont, Hinsdale, La Grange, Naperville, and Lemont for the handling of their accounts. Establishment of a new financial institution in the suburb will, it is said, not only be a convenience but restore considerable local trade. The project has been sought by the Retail Merchants association and other civic groups with Attorney Herbert A. Grotefeld being among those who have been especially active.

Edward A. Volberding, proprietor of the Downers Grove Motor Sales company since 1922, has been elected president of the new bank thru action of the stockholders. R. C. Brogmus was elected vice president and cashier. Members of the board of directors include Harry A. Borman, proprietor of the Borman Motor Sales; John W. Mochel, and Attorney C. E. Hacklander.

28th Convention Planned by Knights of Lithuania

One hundred members of the Knights of Lithuania are expected to attend the 28th annual convention of the district organization next Sunday at St. Anthony's parish hall, 15th street and 49th court, Cicero. The session will open with church services at 9 o'clock in the morning. Dancing will follow a dinner to be held in the evening.

Pulaski Road Paving Work to Start Soon

Widening and paving Pulaski road will begin this fall according to a report from the Illinois State Highway department made by Harvey Johnsen, executive secretary of the Garfield Park Business Men's association, at a meeting of the association last week. Mr. Johnsen attended the highway department meeting a week ago when it was announced that bids could be taken on the contracts and that work would begin 10 days after contracts are accepted.

Harvey Johnsen.

"Plans are 90 per cent complete," said Mr. Johnsen, "for widening Pulaski road to 51 and 56 feet, for a modern asphalt pavement with a concrete base, for new catch basins and sidewalks where necessary and for six miles of this paving from Cermak road to Belmont avenue."

Cost Set at $900,000.

The paving cost is estimated at $900,000 which will come from state fuel taxes. "There will be no assessment of property owners," Mr. Johnsen said, "the pavement now is only from 42 to 46 feet wide. Business men believe the street will carry 75 per cent more traffic and will improve property value."

Carl Stockholm, president of the Garfield Park Business Men's association, reported at the meeting that preliminary plans had been started for a lighting system in the Madison-Crawford district which will be comparable to that on State street.

Last Monday's meeting was the first of the fall season for the association. Leo Cohen, president of the Standard Lumber company, who was the winner two weeks ago in the business men's bicycle race held in Garfield Park, was presented with a trophy. Others who received prizes are Mr. Jonhsen, second place medal, and T. H. Golightly, president of the Madison-Crawford band, third place.

Is Named Co-Chairman.

George Madigan has been named co-chairman with Mr. Goligthtly on the street lighting project. "We want the district from Springfield to Kostner avenues to be comparable with any district in the city and we also want it to be the most successful," explained Mr. Golightly.

Others on this committee are John F. Butler, Ray McCarthy, Walter P. Powers, Theodore Prodie, Walter J. Kelly, Edward O'Donnell, Herbert Dunning, J. F. Thompson, D. K. Downs, Mrs. Carrie Aarons, Phil Scanlan, Frank Boland, Tom Connery and Al Feldman.

Chapter of Purple Heart to Hold Monthly Meeting

Members of Ray Workman chapter, No. 50, of the Military Order of the Purple Heart will hold their regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening at the Hotel Sherman. All are invited to attend.

TEACHER WINS PLACE IN OPERATIC CHORUS AND SO DO PUPILS

When Mrs. Louise Grosser, 215 East Elm avenue, La Grange, tried out for the new chorus of the Chicago Opera company, she underwent an experience she will never forget.

Mrs. Louise Grosser.

"The huge stage of the opera house was empty save for me," she said. "A spot light was focused on my face so that I might be seen, but not see my observers. Then I sang an aria and a 'Thank you' was called out by an unseen voice. A week later came a card telling me I had been accepted, and giving the date of the first rehearsal."

When the opera season opens on Nov. 2, the regular chorus will number 85, the most ever assembled by a Chicago opera company.

Mrs. Grosser's childhood plans to be a violinist were changed entirely one day when she heard Galli Curci sing. Later at home she attempted to imitate the great artist and was overheard by her father. He decided she had a good voice and took her to a famous impresario who suggested voice lessons.

She studied voice arduously; then came an interlude of love and marriage, and two children. However, she eventually returned to her voice work and began to teach.

TABLE SETTINGS ARE TO FEATURE FLOWER SHOW

Tables set for dinner and for breakfast, with arrangements of special blooms, will be a feature of the flower show Friday afternoon in Unity church, Hinsdale.

In the vogue section, there will be hats and muffs of plant materials, and corsages for evening frocks and for tweed suits. Boys and girls of the suburb have planted their own dish gardens in readiness for the show that will continue from 1 to 9 p. m.

Two organizations, the Garden club of Hinsdale and the Garden Study club of Hinsdale, are coöperating to produce the show for the benefit of the Civic fund. In judging the arrangement classes, design and originality, proportion and balance, suitability of combination, and condition, will count 25 per cent each.

Judges of the show are Mrs. Warren Shoemaker, president of the Garden Club of Illinois, Mrs. Mahlon Bradley, Marc Leeds, Mrs. Bently McCloud, Mrs. Edward Scheidenhelm, and Mrs. H. L. Sterns. Members of the flower show committee are Mrs. M. B. Murray, chairman; Mrs. Elsworth Keith, co-chairman; Mrs. George Berry, Mrs. Robert B. Ayres, Mrs. Euclid Snow, and Mrs. Gardiner Symonds.

Recall Courage of Epirotes in Face of Invader

Some 3,000 men and women who once lived in the Epirus section of Greece or who are descendants of Epirotes will celebrate the 4,000 year history of that mountainous country with a ball and program next Sunday evening in the Midwest Athletic club, 6 North Hamlin avenue.

The Daughters of Epirus, a Chicago Greek-American organization, has arranged the program on the eve of what it members believe is to be an invasion of Epirus by the Axis powers. Mrs. Diana C. Toulon, president of the Daughters of Epirus and chairman of the executive committee for the dance, says: "For the last 4,000 years Epirus seems to have served the invading nations and tribes as an international highway. In all times of invasion, however, the Epirotes defended their homeland until death."

Preferred Death to Failure.

According to historic accounts found by Mrs. Toulon, the Epirotes preferred death if they found they could not hold back the enemy. "They would jump off mountain tops into deep ravines," she says, "rather than surrender and live in subjection. During those years they originated what they called the Choros tou Zaloghou, the dance of liberty."

This strange dance will be the feature of next Sunday's celebration. It will be a reminder of the times that Epirotes gathered in a large mass dance formation and singing in unison would reach the edge of the mountain top and then jump into the ravines. The mass suicide of these people has been recalled in the odes of the poet, Lord Byron.

Recall King Pyrrhus.

Other parts of the program will commemorate the Epirote king, Pyrrhus, who was enthroned in 295 B. C. He is the originator of a "Phyrrhic victory," a victory which ruins the victor.

The committee in charge of the dance consists of Mrs. Toulon, Mrs. Alexandra H. Shukas, Mrs. Meme N. Chacanas, Mrs. Clara P. Argianas, and Mrs. Chresula B. Kircos.

CHURCH FIESTA TO BRING COLOR OF OLD MEXICO

The colors and gaiety of Mexico will be brought to the west side when the Friends of St. Francis hold a fiesta this afternoon for the benefit of St. Francis of Assisi church and school at 1206 South Newberry avenue. Mexican and American dinners will be served from 5 to 8:30 o'clock.

Miss Anita Warnesson is in charge of the dining room, assisted by Mrs. Mary Billings Strey, Mrs. Mary Whalen, Mrs. Lorenie Paul, Mrs. James Dolan, Miss Jane Manton, Mrs. Lauretta Vitullo, and Mrs. Antoinette DeSalvo.

Miss Mary Weibler and Miss Mary E. Kelly are in charge of the bingo booth. Edward Schaefer and Pius Reindl will have charge of the sausage booth.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

HER father plays the fife, her mother plays the piano, and pretty Shirley is a drum majorette. The entire William H. Ohr family left yesterday for Boston, where Shirley will attend the national convention of the American Legion as drum majorette for the Continental Illinois Fife and Drum corps. Her father plays with this corps. On the return trip the musical Ohrs will visit Washington, D. C., and the New York fair. Shirley is a junior at Austin High school and is drum majorette of the Austin High School Girls' band, the only all girl band in Chicago public high schools. The Ohrs reside at 422 North Lockwood avenue.

Shirley Ohr.

MR. AND MRS. W. H. LEWIS, 5448 Washington boulevard, were doubly pleased the other day. They are the new grandparents of twin daughters born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter V. Hart of Kansas City, Mo. Mrs. Hart is the former Dorothy Lewis. The Harts have a son, 3 year old William H., who is big brother to the twins.

Their golden wedding day was celebrated last Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Mark Smiljanic, 2857 South Ridgeway avenue, at a party for 350 guests. The entire family and friends they made in their half century of married life gather to wish them well at the Croatian Sokol hall. There are four sons, Mark, Henry, John, and Charles Smiljanic. Their only daughter is Mrs. Mary Bazdaric.

THE school year will open for Amy Johnson in a blaze of glory. Miss Johnson, who lives in Maywood, will receive a membership in Delta Epsilon Sigma, national scholastic honor society, on Sept 27 at De Paul university's honors convocation. The award is based on scholastic standing and undergraduate activity.

Amy Johnson.

Miss Johnson was feature editor of both the yearbook and student newspaper at De Paul. She was a member of the Student Activity council, the Poe club, Classical club, Woman's league, Junior prom and homecoming committees. She is also a member of Rho Delta Pi sorority.

MRS. MARY RENTNER RATH, 2104 West 21st place, celebrated her 88th birthday recently. She came from Germany in 1870 and has lived in the same neighborhood since that time. She saw the Chicago fire. Five of her six sons and daughters reside in Chicago or vicinity.

First prize, a loving cup, for being an all-around good stenographer was won by Mrs. Emma A. Ronge, 3510 South Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn, in the first annual contest conducted by the Gregg Writer.

Robert Young, 615 Fair Oaks avenue, Oak Park, son of a Pennsylvania railroad employé, recently was awarded a Frank Thomson scholarship, worth about $800 a year for a four year college course.

BERWYN GARDEN CLUB TO HOLD ANNUAL EXHIBIT

The sixth annual garden show of the Berwyn Garden club will be held from 2 to 9 o'clock Friday afternoon and evening in the First Methodist church of Berwyn. Three rooms will be dedicated to hundreds of flower arrangements and specimen blooms. Mrs. Jessie Knotts and Mrs. George Prosch are co-chairmen. On the same day the Hinsdale Garden club, in coöperation with the Garden Study club of Hinsdale, will present their fall flower show in the Unity church of Hinsdale.

Union Printers Celebrate 25th Bowling Season

The Union Printers' league, who for years have been very prominent in the bowling world, will open their 25th year, on Sept. 25. This year being their silver jubilee year, the committee has arranged several gala evenings at Bensinger's Randolph alleys. President Tom Canty of Chicago Typographical union No. 16 will welcome the bowlers and roll the first ball. A large attendance is anticipated for the opening night.

Officers for the ensuing year are: V. Dizer, president, and Al Hoch, secretary.

LIST PASTIMES FOR CHICAGOANS OF VARIED AGES

Games, Instruction Are Offered.

The scenery is being changed thru west side parks for a new play season. The stage hand is Old Man Weather with his backdrops of autumn foliage, crisp fall days and snow storms. Tomorrow a fall and winter program to match the changes in weather will open in the 13 neighborhood parks.

George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of parks, says the program will accent gymnastics, calisthenics, and physical exercise of all types. Table games for both old and young will be a popular indoor pastime.

Nature Study Clubs.

Boys and girls will search the parks to collect and study phases of animal and plant life in the newly organized nature study groups of the artcraft divisions. They will gather brightly colored leaves and twigs, acorns, cocoons, and other materials for making tree ornaments for fieldhouse yuletide parties. Home hygiene and home nursing will also be a part of the program this year.

The park district's little theater group will again present three major productions during the winter. The drama, mystery comedy and operetta will be presented in the Goodman theater by casts consisting of the best amateur talent available in the parks.

CHILDREN OR DOGS.

Can any landlord who read the letter of Annette S. regarding children answer this? What this country needs is not a better 5 cent cigar but a new crop of understanding people in this so-called land of the free. Believe me, I have lived in many neighborhoods such as is described in her letter and life was lived to its fullest enjoyment. Incidentally the sections I have lived in are Warren boulevard, where I was born; 59th street and Wentworth avenue, 20th street and Blue Island avenue, and 26th street and Central Park avenue. In each of the aforementioned localities my former pals came from large families.

But today I believe the situation is such that any newly married couple had better consult their prospective landlords and let him know of their intentions of either having children or dogs. The latter are more preferable in view of today's renting situation.

But my reaction to this is that I am getting disgusted having the same thing told me when I state that I have two children. In 90 per cent of the cases the owners I have contacted can speak hardly any English, and they call this America.

I sincerely feel that A. S. and I are not the only two who feel this way and it's time that something is done to rectify this sordid and appalling problem, lest we develop in our metropolis a worse slum condition than in the past.

I hope you hear from more of your readers on this subject. T. R.

STUDENT HITCH-HIKERS.

When a high school has a large enrollment, there is a traffic problem presented when classes close for the afternoon unless some regulation is made for crossing streets immediately adjacent to the building by a horde of pupils. This problem becomes the more involved when a certain percentage of the students try hitch-hiking as a means of reaching their homes as speedily as possible and with the least possible expenditure of physical effort.

If athletics have value then walking, hitherto considered an excellent form of exercise, certainly constitutes no hardship in fine, fall weather even for those obliged to traverse the greatest distances in the district. Not all students can hope for a place on the football or basket ball teams, but they have a chance to fill their lungs with good air and stretch their muscles after a day at their books. Calling upon passing motorists to provide bus service creates confusion along the highway and has a something-for-nothing angle by no means conducive to strong character building.

Hitch-hiking makes for soft muscles and a soft philosophy of life. Is encouragement of the practice really a good turn? L. J. H.

G. O. P. AIMING AT CLEAN SWEEP IN 14TH DISTRICT

Already Holds 2 of 3 Assembly Seats.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Republicans aiming for a clean sweep of all three house seats in the 14th [Kane-Kendall counties] legislative district are making an attempt unparalleled in the remaining 50 districts of Illinois.

Warren L. Wood.

The G. O. P. now holds two of the seats while the Democrats have one. Signs of Republican resurgence were so strong before the April primary that the party set out to capture the minority's seat as well as its own.

Stung by the inference that their power was waning, the Democrats made the amazing decision to try to get two seats and not merely recapture the one. The nomination of two Democrats made the Republicans gleeful because it increased their chances by threatening to divide the vote of the minority party.

But on Friday, shaky about the results of the gamble, Democrats changed their strategy. They announced that one candidate, Francis R. Dalton, had withdrawn to help the other, Representative Leon M. Schuler. This makes it safe for Schuler unless the G. O. P. polls an overwhelming vote.

Gain in Primary Votes.

This is the first time in 10 years that the Republicans have felt strong enough to try for a clean sweep. The Kendall county precinct committee organization urged this course upon the G. O. P. senatorial committee, which decides the number of nominees. In 1928 and 1930 the Republicans nominated three candidates for the house but elected only two.

Evidence that the Republicans will succeed this time was seen by them in the big gain in G. O. P. primary votes. In 1938 the Republican primary vote for legislature almost doubled the Democratic, 70,000 to 37,000, while last April the G. O. P. vote was more than three times the Democratic tally for the office, 87,000 to 24,000.

The 1938 November election gave Republican candidates for the Illinois house of representatives 94,974 votes to 44,456 for the single Democratic candidate.

On the basis of the G. O. P. primary gain, all three candidates can be elected Nov. 5.

Seeking Third Term.

Representative Friedland of Elgin is a former assistant state's attorney who has a "fine" voting record in Springfield according to the Legislative Voters league. He seeks his third term.

Mrs. Peffers of Aurora is the widow of Representative John M. Peffers. The L. V. L. reported that her first term was deserving of another.

Galvin, also of Aurora, has a law office there. After serving in the world war as a private, he was a postoffice clerk for four years while gaining his education in law. He has been a justice of the peace and a member of the Aurora town board from 1910 to 1917 and from 1929 to the present.

One of the few senatorship races in this area takes place in the 14th district but veteran observers say the outcome is not in doubt. State Senator Arnold P. Benson, Batavia publisher and Republican floor leader in Springfield, polled 25,009 primary votes against the 6,121 of the Democratic candidate, James T. Walsh of St. Charles.

Active in the 41st.

Democrats are taking the offensive in the strongly Republican 41st district comprising Will and Du Page counties. They are running two candidates for the house in an effort to take away one of the two seats now held by the G. O. P.

The entry standing under a question mark is Martin K. Miller, Joliet lawyer who is trying to bring off a reversal stunt. Now charging into the fray with a Democratic banner, he ran for the same office as a Republican in the 1934 primary.

Running mate of Miller is Representative Joseph Sam Perry of Wheaton, leader in the fight to investigate Circuit Judge Edwin L. Wilson of Joliet who had protected slot machines with an injunction for a year. Wilson is no longer on the bench.

Representative Warren L. Wood of Joliet, running for his fourth term, sees cause for Republican optimism on every hand. The G. O. P. house membership of 79 [compared with 74 Democrats] will be increased to between 82 and 86, he predicted.

The agricultural vote is in good shape for the G. O. P. for the first time in eight years, he said. He told of straw votes taken at the recent plowing contests near Plainfield and Peotone, which showed the farmers for Willkie by from 2 or 3 to 1.

Representative Lottie Holman O'Neill, Wood's running mate, has been working hard repairing fences shaken by the Republican primary battle. A seasoned campaigner with a large personal following, she was the first women ever elected to the Illinois legislature.

Joins the Bar

Mrs. Louretta B. Doherty, 3251 Washigton boulevard, a June graduate of the De Paul university law school, has passed the Illinois bar examination. Mrs. Doherty is a member of Kappa Beta Phi sorority and was active in the Meehan Memorial Law club. She is one of four 1940 De Paul university women to pass the examination.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Have you ever felt the urge to buy an abandoned farm and do with it what you wish? Have you ever thought you would love to live with deep woods of your own as a background for your skies, a few hundred acres of gently rolling hills and rich meadow lands, a tiny rushing river, a little lake, and a real waterfall?

If so, you'll be interested in the adventure of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Pellegrin—who did just this.

Four years ago they bought an abandoned farm seven miles northwest of Woodstock, on United States highway 14. It was land rich in possibilities, but its buildings were windswept and stark when they first saw them.

Only Old Hall Remains.

On their grounds had been the thrilling little village of Brookdale a hundred years ago. Only the town hall was left.

But now all that has been changed. What was left of the old town hall is a quite enchanting living room in the new Pellegrin home; a room which retains the original beams and studs and century old timbers. It was Mrs. Pellegrin's idea to keep as much of the original structure as possible. In doing so she has captured the atmosphere of 200 years ago and built the first floor of the house in the same spirit.

Mr. Pellegrin is an industrial artist, and he also is an artist in the use of fine woods. Thruout the house are examples of his work; in the early American chairs and tables which he designed and made, in the hardware and lighting which he also fashioned in his spare time, over a period of four years.

After the little village of Brookdale vanished, its land became known for a great many years as the Lawler farm.

Bunks in Guest Cabin.

Beside the main house and barns, the studio of Mr. Pellegrin and the cottage farm house occupied by young Mr. and Mrs. George Pellegrin, there also is a little cabin guest house.

You reach this by way of a winding drive thru deep woods and across a rustic bridge. It has bunks and pine walls, a small lavatory, and heater, and a great kettle on a hearth for noon or night snacks.

The exterior of the new main house is carried out in skintled brick. The colors are tan and brown and various shades of red, and the bricks are laid with great irregularity, which contributes to the informality of the home. Awnings blend in colors with the brick, and you enter directly into the living room thru an old Dutch door, the natural finish of its aged oak weathered to a grayish hue.

Here the original beams have been kept, and spaces between studding roughly bricked in. There is a large picture window on the front wall of the room to afford abundance of light, and opposite the entrance is a mammoth stone fireplace which reaches to the ceiling. Its fireplace shelf is of hand hewn oak and its stones gathered from the farm.

The kitchen is a gem. An artist's kitchen. It is both modern and as beautifully storied with the past as some kitchen from the coast of the Pilgrim fathers.

The pine walls are mellow colored and rich, the dining table and chairs are honey shade. There also is a second range wall, and here is a modern sink with linoleum work surfaces. There is an overhead indirect lighting fixture, and the door jamb of kitchen is painted a quiet blue with white flowers—the sort of flowers one finds growing in the meadow lands and woods.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 23.

Never allow weeds to go to seed. Pull or burn those on the vacant lot next door and if possible start a civic campaign by organizing all garden lovers to see to it that no weeds can exist in the community. Plow vacant lots and seed the ground so weeds cannot spread to the gardens. Take the initiative in this important activity and the entire community will be benefited.

Keep the garden area free from pieces of wire, broken branches, and all obnoxious things; mow the lawn so the heavy growth will not mat down and injure the standing grass; keep the beds trimmed or edged; prepare for bulb planting; order all bulbs for delivery as soon as possible.

Tuesday, Sept. 24.

Many of the wild flowers may be transplanted at this time and they will bloom next year.

This is about the last week that evergreens can be transplanted with assurance that they will not be injured, altho under all conditions they succeed best when moved with a ball of earth and burlaped. They will not do well in the congested, smoky areas of the city, hence other plants should be used.

Evergreens are excellent for windbreaks on the farm; they are unexcelled as screens and beautiful as specimens. The white pine is a rapid grower. Hemlock is a good hedge plant. Douglas fir and concolor fir grow large. Junipers are better adapted to the smaller place. If the evergreen becomes brown it is best to replace it with another. They should not enter winter with dry soil at the roots.

Wednesday, Sept. 25.

Disbud the chrysanthemums if large sized blooms are wanted. Remove the smaller burs with the fingers, leaving one or more buds to develop. If any plants are growing in the garden, dig and pot them before frost, put in a shady place for a few days and then remove to the enclosed porch or house.

Small bulbils from the stems of lilies should be removed and planted, preferably in a coldframe. Day lilies do well when fall transplanted. They are among the finest of hardy plants, doing well in sun or partial shade. Dig old lily-of-valley plants, enrich the soil, divide, and replant.

Thursday, Sept. 26.

Plant madonna lilies. Imbed them in sand if the soil is heavy. Plant narcissi as soon as possible for they should become established before severe weather arrives. Start another batch of freesias and oxalis bulbs. It is unnecessary to bury them or place them in darkness for rooting.

Friday, Sept. 27.

Fall is an excellent time to plant lilacs, but do not use too many or plant them closer than five to seven feet apart for they are strong growers. Some of the French varieties are very desirable. Buy 3 to 4 foot stock in preference to smaller sizes.

Water newly planted stock and mulch the ground with strawy manure after the ground freezes.

Saturday, Sept. 28.

Hardy annuals sown now will wait until spring to germinate, but they will start so much earlier than spring sown stock that flowers can be enjoyed very early. Suggested kinds to sow include cosmos, petunia, shirley poppy, calendula, nigella, portulaca, and snapdragon. The bachelor's button is a favorite and excellent for cutting. Sweet peas sown late and protected will come much earlier than spring sown seed.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

Tenderfoot Learns to Ride

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Two months or more of weekly riding lessons have convinced me I liked the sport more than casually, so I determined to invest in a regular riding outfit. I looked over the field and sought advice before I bought.

It became apparent to me that bridle path riders are less bound by tradition than, say, the hunting and jumping crowd, for whom dame fashion has laid down fairly rigid rules.

Horse trail clothing combinations are nearly as various as riders. True, most outfits consist of breeches, stout boots, and negligee shirts or sweaters, but in materials, color, and cut the variety is limitless.

I wondered whether to get the old favorite combination of high topped boots and regulation breeches, or the increasingly popular jodhpur outfit of ankle length boots with breeches that terminate in close fitting trouser legs.

Matter of Preference.

My instructor, Elmer J. Holdorf, and other veterans told me it was largely a matter of my own taste and requirements. They said the high boot combination offered such advantages as maximum warmth and leg protection, while jods were less confining and were easier to carry for short notice rides because they took up less storage room. I chose jods.

On advice of my more experienced friends, I also bought a windbreaker—an unlimited, loose fitting belted jacket with plenty of pockets. This can be carried handily in case of sudden cold or rains, and it isn't so much in the way in case one wants to shed it during a ride.

I found riding an ideal consumer of my outworn white shirts that seemed too good to discard entirely. They come to an honorable and useful end on horseback.

So, too, do last season's unlined leather gloves, which serve admirably as hand protection against rein blisters, and the dirt that clings inevitably to harness leather.

Advises Heavy Sox.

For wear next to the feet, sweat sox are the thing. The soft, thick fabric absorbs perspiration and at the same time cushions the feet. Sweat sox are suitable for either warm or cold weather. When buying boots it is well to get them large enough to accommodate heavy sox.

Generally speaking, these clothing tips are applicable to either sex, for woman riders on the bridle paths and horse trails no longer swath themselves in skirts, but copy the men sartorially.

Head covering is optional. Most riders in summer go bareheaded. The exceptions go in for considerable variety. Men, of course, cling slavishly to the fedora. Women are partial to the peasant kerchief, or the small, close fitting felt hat known, I believe, as the bowler.

The cost of an outfit is just about what the purchaser makes it. One can acquire all the necessary wearables for as little as $10 or less, or he can shoot the works and spend as much as a good horse would cost.

I hold that it is best to invest in better quality garments and footgear that will stand up well under the frequent cleanings to which their use exposes them.

Styles Remain Same.

It is well to bear in mind when outfitting that your riding attire, unlike street clothing, does not go out of style quickly. If it is chosen judiciously it will deliver perhaps several years of service.

As freakish as riding clothes may seem to some persons, each peculiarity is grounded in sound reason, I learned.

Take breeches, for example. The peg tops give ample seat room. The close fitting legs eliminate clothing folds that might cause chafing.

Boots are of heavy leather and extend above the ankles because they protect against the stirrup irons. High boot tops insulate the rider's legs from harsh stirrup straps and possible thorns and branches of the trail. They also help to keep cleaning bills down, by standing between trouser legs and the saddle straps and the horse's sides, which unfortunately are not always clean, particularly in the cheaper stables.

CICERO CHURCH TO OBSERVE 11TH YEAR OF EDIFICE

Arrange Special Rites Next Sunday.

It has been 11 years since members of the Cicero Bible church entered their new building at 52d avenue and 22d place, and they will celebrate the anniversary with special services next Sunday. The Rev. William McCarrell is pastor of the church. C. C. Stukes is chairman of the anniversary committee.

The Rev. William McCarrell.

Original cost of the building was $212,000. On dedication day, the total outstanding debt was $165,000. Today the church still owes $91,000, of which $74,000 has been loaned without interest.

The anniversary celebration will begin with a missionary rally at 9:15 a. m., when the Rev. Paul Guiley, missionary to South Africa, will address a union meeting of all the Sunday school departments. At the morning worship service at 10:45 o'clock, it is expected that the greater part of the church's 1,050 members will gather to hear the anniversary message, "A March of Victory," by the Rev. Mr. McCarrell, who has been pastor 27 years.

In the evening, the choir of 60 voices and the orchestra of 20 pieces, assisted by Herman Voss, pianist, will present a musical program beginning at 7:15 o'clock. Mr. Voss, staff pianist of WMBI radio station, and Edward Holt, church pianist, will give a program of double piano music.

GET ACQUAINTED HOUR IS PLANNED BY CRANE P.-T.

Boys of R. O. T. C. Corps Will Present Colors.

Get Acquainted hour is the title of the first Crane High School Parent-Teacher meeting which will be held at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the school, 2245 Jackson boulevard. The R. O. T. C. boys at Crane will present colors and Mrs. Fred Ott, president, will give the message of welcome.

Roy Webster, the new prinicpal, will speak. A reception for mothers of freshmen students will be directed by Mrs. David Isaacson, hospitality chairman. Mrs. Agnes Kuhlmann, program chairman, will lead the community singing.

A reception for Irvin A. Wilson, principal of Delano school, will open the 1940-41 program for the Delano P.-T. A. at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the school auditorium. Mrs. Norbert Pauker will preside. Mrs. Leonard Mendelssohn, second vice president in charge of membership, will open the campaign. Mrs. Morton M. Strassman, past president, will be guest speaker with the topic, "The Influence of the P.-T. A. in the Community." Mrs. Paul Fahling is program chairman.

Miss Rena C. Flanagan, principal of the Tilton school, will be guest speaker at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the first fall meeting of the Tilton unit. Mrs. James Spencer, membership chairman, will speak on "Every Parent a Member." Mrs. Arthur Ohlerich is president of the unit.

Calhoun School Mothers' Civic council will open its season at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon with a memorial service for Mrs. Mamie Bishop, founder and first president of the council. Miss Eleanor Fitzgerald is Calhoun School principal and will participate in the service. Mrs. Bishop died on July 17 in Waupaca, Wis., after a long illness.

MORTON EVENING SCHOOL TO TEACH CABINET MAKING

"Make it or repair it yourself at Morton's is the slogan of the cabinet making and home mechanics classes of Morton Evening school which will open its 26th annual session Sept. 30 at Morton High school, 24th street and Austin boulevard, Cicero.

The evening school year will have 48 sessions. All classes will meet on Monday and Thursday, beginning at 5:30 and closing at 10 p. m. Enrollment nights are Thursday, Friday, and Saturday this week at the office of P. L. Roise, director of the evening and vocational director of the high school. Last year there was an enrolment of 1,300 between the ages of 17 and 60.

Courses in the high school division include academic, commercial, vocational, and home economics subjects. There is a junior college division, a special vocational group, and a course for eighth grade studies.

777 U.S. STATIONS SHIFT POSITIONS ON DIAL IN 1941

W-G-N to Keep Frequency of 720 Kilocycles.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Wave lengths of 777 of the 862 radio stations operating in the standard broadcast band between 550 and 1,600 kilocycles in the United States are to be shifted on March 29, 1941. These shifts are to be made in accordance with the provisions of the North American regional broadcasting agreement, concluded at Havana, Cuba, in 1937.

The Federal Communications commission last week filed with the state department the proposed reallocations of frequencies [wave lengths] in the standard broadcast band. The signatory governments—the United States, Canada, Cuba, and Mexico—are now exchanging their tentative assignments before making them finally operative.

Clear Channels for Mexico.

The reallocation also provides for changes in wave lengths of many stations in Canada, Cuba, and Mexico. Mexico will receive five clear channels which prior to this agreement had no frequencies reserved for high power stations in the standard broadcast band. Cuba gets an additional clear channel from Canada.

This is how the reallocation of channels is to be accomplished, according to present plans:

Stations now operating on channels from 550 to 720 kilocycles, inclusive, will retain their present assignments. Thus W-G-N, assigned to 720 kilocycles, will continue there.

Stations operating from 740 to 780 will move up 10 kilocycles, or one channel. Thus WBBM will move from 770 to 780.

Stations from 790 to 870 will move up 20 kilocycles. WENR-WLS will move, thus, from 870 to 890.

Stations between 880 and 1,450 kilocycles will advance 30 kilocycles.

Clear channel stations from 1,460-1,490 kilocycles will move to 1,500-1,530.

Local stations now on the 1,500 channel will move to 1,490.

Listeners to Change Habits.

These shifts will force listeners to change their listening habits with regard to most stations. All push-button radio receivers will require adjustments for all stations higher in frequencies than W-G-N.

The correlated shifting of Canadian, Mexican, and Cuban stations is expected to eliminate interference with United States stations and improve reception. Interference from Mexican and Cuban stations has plagued particularly rural listeners. Certain broadcast stations on the Mexican border, largely run by interests denied the use of radio in the United States, are to be eliminated. The Havana pact contains no provisions for their continued operation.

Any broadcaster has until Oct. 15 to register his views with the FCC if he takes exception to his assignment.

PETER QUILL TO RETURN OCT. 6 TO W-G-N—MBS

Peter Quill, mysterious inventive wizard, is coming back to W-G-N. Starting Sunday Oct. 6 Peter Quill will be heard in a new series of dramatic broadcasts providing glimpses of possible weapons of the future for the defense of America. The adventure stories will deal with espionage, sabotage, and America's first line of defense with particular reference to science.

The new Peter Quill series, written and produced by Blair Walliser, will be broadcast from 3 to 3:30 p. m. Sundays. They will be sponsored.

Fantastic and daring inventions for the defense of the nation form the focal point of Peter Quill's new adventures. Gail Carson, who is engaged in counterespionage work, and Capt. Roger Dorn, a government anti-sabotage trouble shooter, protect Quill's inventions against the destructive efforts of saboteurs. Pitted against them is the Red Circle, sinister spy ring, headed by Michael Raclov and Sonya Danilo.

Alice Hill and Ken Griffin of last year's cast, which played for 40 weeks, again will have lead rôles as Gail Carson and Capt. Dorn. The part of Peter Quill, brilliant, enigmatic scientist and inventor, will be played by Marvin Mueller.

The inventions projected on the show, while bizarre and fantastic, are not beyond the realm of possibility, according to Pr ducer Walliser. In fact, many are now on the borderline of perfection in scientific laboratories. Last year the Peter Quill show projected several inventions that since have come into use, among them the magnetic mine.

Among the inventions projected on the series this year is a powder which when placed in water will make a combustible fuel suitable for running gasoline engines.

WILLIAMS CITES HIGH BATTING AVERAGE ON AIR

Wythe Williams, Mutual network news commentator, sat down the other day to figure his batting average on predictions concerning European war developments. Williams average is .967, three times the figure which would satisfy his manager if he were a major league baseball player.

Williams is heard on W-G-N from 7 to 7:15 p. m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays and on another program from 8:30 to 8:45 on Sundays. He was recently asked by President Roosevelt to head a board of nationally known commentators who will conduct a regular round table on national defense.

Williams' phenomenal batting average, only a shade less than perfect, is based on such successes as these: He called Hitler's invasion of Holland almost to the hour, and predicted the French armistice 48 hours in advance. Williams' background includes 26 years as a foreign correspondent.

BLEND CLASSIC—OLD AND NEW ON SYMPHONIC HOUR

Marion Claire Will Be Soloist on W-G-N.

Music from the pens of modern classicists as well as older masterworks will be presented on the Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour from 9 to 10 o'clock tomorrow night. With Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, as speaker of the evening, the program will be broadcast over W-G-N, the Mutual network, and the entire network of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation.

Modern classical numbers by Pierne, Debussy, and Korngold will be blended with the works of Beethoven and Tschaikowsky on the program. Marion Claire, lyric soprano, will be featured soloist. The W-G-N. Symphonic orchestra will be directed by Henry Weber.

The orchestra will open the program with the first movement from the Beethoven's Third Symphony. Entitled "Eroica," this symphony originally was written as a tribute to Napoleon, but the title was changed when the Corsican seized the imperial throne.

"Barcarolle" to Be Feature.

Other presentations from the older classics and operas include the "Hungarian Dance" and "Czardas" from Tschaikowsky's "Swan Lake Ballet," played by the orchestra.

"Barcarolle," from "The Tales of Hoffmann," by Jacques Offenbach, will be presented by Marion Claire and Helen Bartush, member of the augmented chorus. Miss Bartush is a young Chicago mezzo-contralto.

Featured among the three numbers from modern classicists will be themes from Debussy, presented by Miss Claire and the orchestra.

Marietta's aria from "The Dead City," by Erich Korngold, sung by Miss Claire, and Gabriel Pierne's "Entrance of the Little Fauns," played by the orchestra, complete the numbers by the more modern composers.

The complete program:

First Movement from "Eroica" [Third Symphony]..................Beethoven
Orchestra.
Aria from Mignon..................Thomas
Miss Claire and orchestra.
Hungarian Dance and Czardas from
Barcarolle from the "Tales of Hoffman"..................Offenbach
Marion Claire, Helen Bartush and orchestra.
Swan Lake Ballet.........Tschaikowsky
Orchestra.
Speech..................
Col. Robert R. McCormick.
Marietta's aria, "The Dead City"...Korngold
Miss Claire and orchestra.
Entrance of the Little Fauns..........Pierne
Orchestra.
Themes from Debussy..............Debussy
Miss Claire, chorus and orchestra.

The duet with Miss Claire will mark Miss Bartush's first featured appearance on the Symphonic hour. Miss Bartush has appeared with the Chicago opera for three seasons. She made her operatic debut with the Chicago opera three years ago.

William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N, is producer of the Symphonic Hour. Musical commentary for the program is written by Cecil Smith of the music and drama department of THE TRIBUNE.

ALEC TEMPLETON TO BE GUEST ON YOUR MUSIC I. Q.

Alec Templeton, noted blind pianist, will head a group of prominent music experts on your music I. Q. to be aired over W-G-N from 8:30 to 9 p. m. tomorrow.

Alec Templeton.

Kathryn Witwer, W-G-N operatic soprano, and Eddie Oliver, popular band leader, now playing at the Continental room of the Stevens hotel, also will answer the musical queries. David Van Vactor, composer and flutist in the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will complete the board of experts.

Senders of questions used on the program receive cash and tickets to the golden jubilee season of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

WISHING WELL WILL MAKE DREAMS COME TRUE FOR LISTENERS

W-G-N listeners will find their dreams coming true beginning tomorrow when a new program entitled "The Wishing Well" will make its bow. "The Wishing Well" will be sponsored by a loop department store over W-G-N at 8:45 a. m., each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and at 9:00 a. m. each Tuesday and Thursday. Mary Paxton, mistress of ceremonies, will invite listeners to "make a wish" for anything they would like from the store, and in turn the store will make some one's wish come true each week.

Mary Paxton.

Listeners are asked to write a letter of 40 words or less telling what they would like to have. To make the letter eligible, those who write in must state the day of the year on which their birthday falls—not their age, however, and also the date of their wedding anniversary if they are married. The writer of the week's best letter will be granted the thing wished for in the winning letter.

JOAN BENNETT, WANGER ON 'IN CHICAGO' SHOW

Actress Stars in Film of War Reporters.

Joan Bennett and Walter Wanger—noted actress and great Hollywood producer—will be 'In Chicago Tonight" for W-G-N and the Mutual network from 7:30 to 8 p. m. next Thursday night.

Walter Wanger.

Miss Bennett will have the lead rôle in a radio adaptation of "Foreign Correspondent," recently released by the Walter Wanger studios. Wanger will talk on the movie industry.

Under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs at W-G-N, this "In Chicago Tonight" production will be one of the "movie night" preformances of the variety entertainment show. Presenting previews of important motion pictures opening in Chicago, movie night is a monthly feature of the "In Chicago Tonight" program.

Miss Bennett, youngest daughter of a noted theatrical family, made her stage debut with her father, Richard Bennett, in the Broadway production of "Jarnegan."

Joan Bennett has had notable rôles in "Private Worlds," "Disraeli," "The Pursuit of Happiness," "Two Is a Crowd," and Wild Girl." Her latest film is "House Across the Bay." In private life, Miss Bennett is the wife of Walter Wanger.

Wanger's production of "Foreign Correspondent," is rated by critics as one of the year's finest pictures. Wanger spent well over a million in money and a year in time in filming the production. The picture will open here soon.

Joan Bennett's rôle in the adaptation of "Foreign Correspondent" will mark the second appearance of a member of the famed Bennett family on W-G-N this year. Last January Constance Bennett played the lead in Noel Coward's "Shadow Play," presented over W-G-N.

Musical accompaniment for the show will be presented by the W-G-N dance orchestra under the direction of Harold Stokes.

Legion Chief to Speak.

Raymond J. Kelly, national commander of the American Legion, will sum up the major achievements of the organization during the year during a broadcast in connection with the American Legion convention, meeting in Boston, at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow over the NBC Red network.

THEATER OF AIR WILL RETURN TO W-G-N ON OCT. 5

Marion Claire to Star in 'Vagabond King.'

The Chicago Theater of the Air will reopen its doors on Saturday, Oct. 5, with "The Vagabond King" as the opening operetta. Marion Claire, W-G-N's prima donna, again will be starred in this series of hour long operetta productions, under the direction of William A. Bacher.

These streamlined versions of favorite operettas and light operas will run from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturdays over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system. The Chicago Theater of the Air again will be sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

A notable group of operatic, concert, and radio headliners has already been engaged to sing the male rôles in the operetta series. Conrad Thibault, well known to radio listeners and concertgoers, will be heard opposite Miss Claire in "The Vagabond King."

List of Male Stars.

Others who will be featured are James Melton, Jan Peerce, Richard Bonelli, John Carter, and Charles Kullman.

James Melton, who starred in "Bittersweet" last spring, will return to the Theater of the Air in "Chocolate Soldier" and "Eileen." Jan Peerce, Radio City Music Hall tenor, who played the male lead in "Student Prince," will be back again in the same rôle.

John Carter, Metropolitan Opera star, altho new to the Theater of the Air, is an old favorite with Chicagoans who heard him at the 1939 Chicagoland Music Festival and Grant park concerts. Carter's lyric tenor voice will be heard in the lead of "Robin Hood."

Bonelli to Be Starred.

Richard Bonelli, famous American operatic baritone, will sing the lead in "Desert Song."

Charles Kullman, Metropolitan Opera tenor who has sung leading rôles in Vienna, Salzburg, Berlin, and London, will support Miss Claire in the leading masculine rôle of "Madame Butterfly."

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and artistic director of the Chicago Opera company, will direct the W-G-N orchestra and chorus. Double casts again will be featured in these productions. A company of outstanding radio actors will enact the spoken parts of the characters with musical headliners doing the song.

Mr. Bacher is in charge of all programs and production at W-G-N.

Besides "Vagabond King," seven other popular operettas have been scheduled and plans are being made for more to follow.

Those already scheduled are: "Chocolate Soldier," Oct. 12; "Madame Butterfly," Oct. 19; "Student Prince," Oct. 26; "Naughty Marietta" or the "Great Waltz," Nov. 2; "Desert Song," Nov. 9; "Robin Hood," Nov. 16, and "Eileen" on Nov. 23.

WARD AND ELSON TO JOIN ON NEW SPORTS PROGRAM

Arch Ward, sports editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and Bob Elson, popular W-G-N sportscaster, will collaborate on a new sports program—"At the Sports Desk with Bob Elson," which will be presented for the first time from 7:30 to 7:45 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N. The program will be heard on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at the same hour.

Ward's entire staff will assist in gathering facts and unearthing features for the broadcasts. The Tribune experts will cover ever phase of sports from football to ping pong. Among these contributing writers will be Irving Vaughan, Edward Burns, Wilfrid Smith, Bob Becker, Howard Barry, George Strickler, Charles Bartlett, and Frank Mastro.

Elson will be at the microphone, sitting at the radio sports desk and giving fans a survey of the sports news.

Eleven years' experience in all types of sports announcing qualify Elson as eminently fitted for his sports desk rôle. He has covered every world series since 1929—a distinction held by no other broadcaster.

SOUSA MARCH TO BE FEATURED BY NORTHERNERS

Leading off with John Philip Sousa's "El Capitan March," the Northerners will present a half hour of popular song favorites at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday on W-G-N. Irene Verner, soprano, will be soloist on the program.

Highlights of the show will be several unique arrangements from "The Singing Mariner" and "Boys and Girls Together," prepared by Helene Webb. The entire cast, including Miss Verner, the octet and the stringed orchestra, will present these numbers.

For her solo, Miss Verner will sing Alabieff's "The Nightingale." The octet will present Franz Lehar's "Yours Is My Heart Alone," "Brindisi," the drinking song from Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana," and the "Pagan Love Song," by Brown. The Northerners' program is under the direction of Harry S. Walsh.

Offer Request Program.

An all request program will feature the Radio City Music Hall broadcast, at 11:00 a. m. today over WCFL when Conductor Erno Rapee returns to the podium following his vacation. Two Wagnerian selections are in the list for Tenor Jan Peerce, "Walther's Prize Song" and "Winterstuerme."

239 Men Spread Death in Three Wards.

Chicago began its long-awaited war on rats last week.

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt, who has 3,000,000 rats on his list to be purged, directed the first operations, which, he said, are only a dress rehearsal of what is to come. Two hundred and thirty nine men, all of them on relief, invaded three wards on the west and northwest sides.

The men were armed with red squill and rat bait. For two days they roamed the alleys, empty lots and areaways of the 22nd, 26th and 37th wards. In that time they found, by actual count, 12,110 rat holes. Down into the holes they shoved 23,738 pieces of poisoned bait.

48,440 Dead Rats.

Result: 48,440 dead rats. Expert exterminators figure for each rat hole an average of four rats.

The box score for each ward follows:

26th ward—7,725 rat holes; 15,451 pieces of bait; 83 exterminators; grand total, 30,900 dead rats.

Sample of Total War.

The rat killing last week in these three wards was only a sample of the total war to come against the city's rodent hordes, which Mr. Hewitt says, is about equal to the human population. These wards are 100 per cent equipped with garbage cans. The rat war will begin in earnest when every building in the city is adequately fitted with a metal garbage container.

No extermination of rats can be successful, the commissioner declared, until all garbage is placed in proper containers. In the last five weeks he has received 518 complaints from householders about rats.

HAUGE LUTHERAN CHURCH TO HAVE 40TH BIRTHDAY

Hauge Evangelical Lutheran church, Central Park and Wabansia avenues, will celebrate its 40th anniversary this week. It was 40 years ago next Sunday that 11 families, members of Trinity Lutheran church, united to form Hauge church. The Rev. Samuel Carlsen has been pastor of the church for the last two years.

Each night this week the congregation will meet for special services. The Rev. H. A. Hanson, who was pastor of Trinity Lutheran church 40 years ago, will preach at the evangelistic service this evening. Tomorrow night A. F. Hammesfahr will address the meeting dedicated to the men of the church.

Tuesday night will be historic fellowship night when members of the mother church and of Immanuel church, Maplewood and Shakespeare avenues will join in the celebration. The Rev. T. W. Tysdal, pastor of Trinity and the Rev. S. R. Olson, pastor of Immanuel church, will speak. At the confirmation reunion Wednesday evening the Rev. Peder Ljostveit, who was pastor of Hauge church from 1932 to 1938, will speak.

Foreign missions will be stressed on Thursday and Friday evenings, and the Rev. J. N. Otte, missionary from South Africa, is the speaker. Three festival services and a Sunday school rally will wind up the celebration next Sunday. The speakers will be the Rev. Peder Ljostveit, and the Rev. Joseph B. Shefveland, president of the Chicago circuit of the Norwegian Lutheran church of America.

COMPLETE WORK ON FIELDHOUSE IN KELVYN PARK

Remodeling work on Kelvyn park fieldhouse is completed and the building is open to the public. The gymnasium has been remodeled, a new office and game room for the boys and girls have been added, four new tennis courts have been completed, and the art craft room and the stage and assembly hall have been enlarged.

Walter Scheider, park supervisor, has announced that class registration for fall and winter recreational activities will begin on Oct. 1 and will be accepted every afternoon and evening from 3 to 9:30 o'clock, until Oct. 15.

Among the leisure time activities that will be available will be sewing, knitting, crocheting, woodcraft, artcraft, music, dramatics, wrestling, boxing, gymnasium, calisthenics, basketball, archery, gamesroom, social dancing, volleyball, business men's and business girls' gymnasium classes, and women's and men's choruses.

Some of the new instructors are Sheldon Brown, men's athletics; Mary Vignola, women's athletics; Rose Lambert, knitting, and Olive Bernard, dramatics. Art Scheldein is the head attendant.

New Officers Are Elected by Nu Alpha Phi Sorority

Betty Glickman, 7722 North Paulina street, was elected president of Nu Alpha Phi sorority last week. Ann Sier, 3237 West Hirsch street, was elected vice president; Mildred Solomon, 3042 North Spaulding avenue, secretary, and Fritzie Miller, 1721 Jonquil terrace, secretary.

PARKS MAP SEASONAL ACTIVITIES

G. O. P. AIMING AT CLEAN SWEEP IN 14TH DIST.

Already Holds 2 of 3 Assembly Seats.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Republicans aiming for a clean sweep of all three house seats in the 14th [Kane-Kendall counties] legislative district are making an attempt unparalleled in the remaining 50 districts of Illinois. Even more amazing is the decision of the Democrats to try to win two of the seats in the state house of representatives.

The G. O. P. now holds two of the seats while the Democrats have one. Signs of Republican resurgence were so strong before the April primary that the party set out to capture the minority's seat as well as its own.

Chances of Republican success seemed uncertain until the Democrats, stung by the inference that their power was waning, announced that they were out to get two seats and not merely to retain the one. They contend that the national ticket will help their local slate in this Presidential election year.

Some Reported Shaky.

As the fall campaign for the state law making jobs opened last week, some of the Democrats were reported to be a bit shaky about the gamble. Election law experts said it will be impossible for one of the Democratic candidates to quit the race without the senatorial committee being required to fill the vacancy. This would restore matters to their present status.

Probably the only way the Democrats could play it safe would be for one Democratic candidate to urge his supporters to vote only for his running mate.

This is the first time in 10 years that the Republicans have felt strong enough to try for a clean sweep. The Kendall county precinct committee organization urged this course upon the G. O. P. senatorial committee, which decides the number of nominees. In 1928 and 1930 the Republicans nominated three candidates for the house but elected only two.

Gain in Primary Votes.

Evidence that the Republicans will succeed this time was seen by them in the big gain in G. O. P. primary votes. In 1938 the Republican primary vote for legislature almost doubled the Democratic, 70,000 to 37,000, while last April the G. O. P. vote was more than three times the Democratic tally for the office, 87,000 to 24,000.

The 1938 November election gave Republican candidates for the Illinois house of representatives 94,974 votes to 44,456 for the single Democratic candidate.

On the basis of the G. O. P. primary gain, all three candidates can be elected Nov. 5, even if the Democrats find some way to prevent the division of votes between their two candidates.

The Republican candidates who figure in this strange lineup are Representatives John C. Friedland and Maude N. Peffers, and Lester James Galvin.

Seeking Third Term.

Representative Friedland of Elgin is a former assistant state's attorney who has a "fine" voting record in Springfield according to the Legislative Voters league. He seeks his third term.

Mrs. Peffers of Aurora is the widow of Representative John M. Peffers. The L. V. L. reported that her first term was deserving of another. Her first grandchild was born during the primary campaign.

Galvin, also of Aurora, has a law office there. After serving in the world war as a private, he was a postoffice clerk for four years while gaining his education in law. He has been a justice of the peace and a member of the Aurora town board from 1910 to 1917 and from 1929 to the present. He is commander of the Disabled American Veterans organization in Aurora.

Democrats running against them are Representative Leon M. Schuler of Aurora, who by his election as county treasurer in 1934 became the first county officer of his party in many years, and Francis H. Dalton of Aurora. Schuler voted against the Ward-Schnackenberg parole reform bill which the other members from his district supported.

One of the few senatorship races in this area takes place in the 14th district but veteran observers say the outcome is not in doubt. State Senator Arnold P. Benson, Batavia publisher and Republican floor leader in Springfield, polled 25,009 primary votes against the 6,121 of the Democratic candidate, James T. Walsh of St. Charles.

Active in the 41st.

Democrats are taking the offensive in the strongly Republican 41st district comprising Will and Du Page counties. They are running two candidates for the house in an effort to take away one of the two seats now held by the G. O. P.

The entry standing under a question mark is Martin K. Miller, Joliet lawyer who is trying to bring off a reversal stunt. Now charging into the fray with a Democratic banner, he ran for the same office as a Republican in the 1934 primary.

Stores Ready with New Ideas on Furniture

Every color scheme, decorating note or new idea has been drafted by merchants and manufacturers for National Furniture week which opened yesterday. Model rooms, combinations in textiles and woods, window displays and floral patterns promise a festive autumn, not by the handiwork of nature alone, but by the housewife's ingenuity.

Trained salesmen, who know whether a pink bedspread will blend with a rosy shade drape or how red a red would go with green, are ready to answer questions. Charts and diagrams have been compiled and drawn to help the buyer, whether she is seeking a drum table for a bare corner or furniture for her whole house. No neighborhood store has failed to brush up on 1941 homemaking hints or has neglected to show "things that go together."

Ready to Help Family.

Neighborhood furniture stores this week are more than places to buy furniture. They are your staff of private decorators, the men and women who will worry over your sunparlor sofa with the same personal attention as the family who will sit on it. Young moderns, the 1940 brides, have added to their homemaking vocabulary such terms as color harmony, period furniture or modern, two toned and pastel mixtures. They ask these things in addition to "Is it comfortable?" and "Will it wear well?"

A north side store dedicates two of its seven window displays to "Young America." This store believes, from experience that young America wants modern. To contrast with a sky blue in this window room of bleached mahogany, the store shows a yellow wing chair that a visiting grandfather would admit beats his old one. The room features a circular sectional sofa and the second "young America" room has a sectional sofa divided by a table. This store dedicates another window to 18th century Duncan Phyfe and Sheraton dining room furniture. The other windows are given over to moderately priced furniture in pieces that go together.

Show Modern Rooms.

Six completely furnished rooms from pictures on the walls to rugs on the floors provide idea and inspiration at a west side store. All the rooms are modern, some have dark and some bleached wood furniture.

There is a blue room with canary colored Venetian blinds and rose drapes. The furniture is modern walnut, a 1941 treatment for this wood. The gray room is a bedroom with blue rug. The gold room has blue rugs, gold walls, gold drapes and mirror, and the furniture is two toned American walnut. Green drapes give a contrasting color note to the rose room, a bedroom that boasts a vanity table with inlaid markings. A living room that would wear well is in dubonnet with mahogany desk and drapes of all over floral design.

A west side rug company is offering a new line of high grade broadlooms this fall called the nu-luster. This rug has a sheen that gives it the silky appearance of expensive orientals.

Streamlined Furnishings.

One northwest side store has two model rooms in Swedish modern. The furniture from these rooms can be purchased piece by piece or as a whole. Another store in this district shows a model five room house called the modern streamlined house. The idea in this was to not only have everything in one room match its fellow furniture but to have rooms lead into each other.

A department store that has branches south, west and north is featuring a line of inexpensive modern furniture in the natural wood tones and the pastel colored, modern textured upholstery. This was designed and is combined during furniture week for the home manager who has a small or moderate budget.

One south side store has redecorated and enlarged its display space and opened yesterday on the first day of National Furniture week. The new floor plan consists of a number of rooms in which furniture can be displayed in groups. The second floor of this store, which was formerly occupied by the upholstery and repair department, is now display space.

The new approach to furniture buying in neighborhood stores is "Come over to our house, madam, you can copy the whole thing or part."

Union Printers Celebrate 25th Bowling Season

The Union Printers' league, who for years have been very prominent in the bowling world, will open their 25th year, on Sept. 25. This year being their silver jubilee year, the committee has arranged several gala evenings at Bensinger's Randolph alleys. President Tom Canty of Chicago Typographical union No. 16 will welcome the bowlers and roll the first ball. A large attendance is anticipated for the opening night.

Officers for the ensuing year are: V. Dizer, president, and Al Hoch, secretary.

28th Convention Planned by Knights of Lithuania

One hundred members of the Knights of Lithuania are expected to attend the28th annual convention of the district organization next Sunday at St. Anthony's parish hall,15th street and 49th court, Cicero. The session will open with church services at 9 o'clock in the morning. Dancing will follow a dinner to be held in the evening.

Kappa Delta Alumnae.

The South Side Alumnae association of Kappa Delta sorority will begin its fall meetings Wednesday evenings at the home of Miss Ruth Claassen, 7726 Crandon avenue.

Enjoys Puppetry Program at Ogden Park

Miss Marilyn Owen, 6345 South May street, has the big bad wolf right in the palm of her hand, but only because it's a puppet. Marilyn is one of the neighborhood girls who likes the puppetry instruction to be offered this fall and winter by the supervisors at Ogden park. The new seasonal program of activities, conducted by the park district thruout the city for young and old, will open tomorrow. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

READING IS EASY AS PIE FOR THIS FIVE YEAR OLD

Adrienne Picked Out Letters as Baby.

Adrienne Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leavitt Allen, 3422 West 60th street, was 5 years old April 12 last, but she's already in the veteran class. She was a reader from 'way back when she was 18 months old.

Of course, she knew only the capital letters then. Now she can reel off entire stories about fairies, pirates, Farmer John and the bunny rabbits, or anything else in the primary class. She can read to suit the sophisticated tastes of youngsters several years older.

Chicago Lawn, Adrienne's neighborhood, heard about her at the beginning of school this year. Miss Bernice Eddy, principal of Tonti school where Adrienne began kindergarten, heard that the child was a good reader. The principal called Adrienne to the office for proof, and Adrienne read and read and read.

Adrienne learned to read because she wanted to, according to her mother. She was never pushed.

Born in Decatur.

The little girl was born in Decatur, Ill., and three months later the family moved to Jacksonville. As the baby grew rounder and older, she began noticing capital letters. She began learning them in earnest at about a year old, and by the time she was 18 months, she could identify the whole alphabet.

Shortly after her second birthday, Adrienne went to live in Kansas City, and there she practiced her reading by spelling out the words written in capitals in the street car ads. Soon she was picking out such words as "and," "is," and "we"—in the newspapers.

About that time her parents thought she should have some books from the public library. Thereafter, some one read to her from a library book after lunch and again in the evening. Occasionally, she asked to "practice" her reading, and for this purpose an old primer was supplied. Her parents say, "We let her take the initiative. We did not care, especially, to teach her reading."

Keeps Adding Letters.

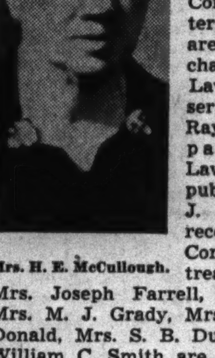
When Adrienne was nearly 4, the family moved back to Decatur, where she entered a private kindergarten. She had added small letters to her repertory by then, and when 3 years old had printed her own Christmas cards. At the private kindergarten she went on with her latest project, learning numbers. She could write them up to 20 and count to 200 in her fourth winter.

Her father reads to her nearly every evening, and she thinks he's a pretty fine fellow. In fact, she wonders whether there are any other men so good. She worried to her mother recently, "Mamma, whatever will I do when I grow up? I'll never find as nice a man as daddy. Will you help me pick one out?"

Adrienne's daddy, who is employed at the stockyards, has his A. B. from the University of Illinois where he made Phi Beta Kappa. Her mother, Geraldine Seiver Allen, has a master's degree from the state university and taught in Illinois high schools for six years.

ALTAR AND ROSARY SOCIETY IS TO HOLD PARTY ON WEDNESDAY

Mrs. H. E. McCullough, 7814 South Loomis boulevard, is general chairman of the fall card party to be given by the St. Sabina Altar and Rosary society Wednesday evening in St. Sabina Community Center. Assisting her are the following chairmen: Mrs. Lawrence Blaeser, tickets; Mrs. Raymond Huene, patrons; Mrs. Lawrence Ryan, publicity; Mrs. J. R. Raymond, reception, Mrs. Cornelius Small, treasurer, and Mrs. Joseph Farrell, refreshments. Mrs. M. J. Grady, Mrs. Walter McDonald, Mrs. S. B. Duffy, and Mrs. William C. Smith are also handling special assignments for the party.



Mrs. H. E. McCullough.

Lions Plan Stag.

The Hyde Park Lions club will hold a stag on Tuesday evening at the Windermere West hotel.

CHURCH BANQUET IS PLANNED FOR CHICAGO HEIGHTS

The 14th annual reunion banquet of St. Paul's Lutheran church, 14th street and Chicago road, Chicago Heights, will take place at 6:30 o'clock this evening in St. Paul's school auditorium. Milton W. Mazur, invitation chairman, has invited members of the last 11 confirmation classes to attend.

Roll call of those attending the reunion will be taken at church services at 10:30 o'clock this morning. The pastor, the Rev. A. A. Brauer, will deliver a reunion day sermon. M. R. Hesemann, choir director, has arranged a special mixed chorus program for this morning.

This evening's program is under the chairmanship of Mrs. A. A. Brauer. It includes a one act play, musical numbers, and addresses. Edwin A. Brinkman is director of the play, "Wildcat Willie," by Anne Coulter Martens. Cast members are Frederick A. Hesemann, C. Edward Smith, Lutrelle P. Wassman, Barbara A. Wilkening, Jean L. Cameron, and Marily G. Schweer.

Miss Ruth A. Kich will play piano solos, and Miss Edith W. Hesemann will present violin selections. Luther M. Brauer, Raymond T. Langbehn, Otto H. Piepenbrink, and Otto H. Stogentin will sing a group of quartet numbers. The Rev. Mr. Brauer will be toastmaster.

BEVERLY DELPHIANS TO OPEN NEW YEAR OF STUDY ON FRIDAY

Beverly chapter members of the Delphian society will meet in Ridge park fieldhouse at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning for their first regular session of the season. Work this year will be under the leadership of the new president, Mrs. D. Roy Howland, 10357 South Leavitt street. Other officers who will guide the club thru this season are: Mrs. Wallace J. Stebbins, vice president; Mrs. W. J. Clarke, secretary; Mrs. R. G. Shissler, treasurer; Mrs. George A. Whitehurst, seminar chairman, and Mrs. Victor Munnecke, Mrs. Leslie C. Wiswell, and Mrs. A. C. Moysey, all members of the seminar committee.

Mrs. D. Roy Howland.

The Delphian society is a study club. Beverly Delphians have elected a three year program to discuss the reciprocal effects of the individual and the world in which he lives.

Reading Is Old Habit to This Girl of 5

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

HENRY Heffner, clerk of St. John's Episcopal Mission, Flossmoor, has announced the appointment of Miss Rachael Ann Bottorf as director of educational and recreational activities of St. John's church. An alumnus of Western Illinois State Teachers' college, Macomb, Miss Bottorf has been instructor in dramatics and English at St. Katherine's Episcopal School for Girls, Davenport, Ia., and has made a number of radio appearances. She is a member of the American Guild of Organists. St. John's school will open today.

Rachael Ann Bottorf.

A pair of Our Towners last week won distinction at the Central States Dahlia society of Chicago annual flower show at the Garfield Park conservatory. Fred L. Trauth, 8429 South Elizabeth street, won the Dahlia society silver cup, which means that he took first place for the largest number of points in the amateur division for the section including from 100 to 200 plants.

Mrs. August Heller, 7826 Eberhart avenue, was given first prize for the best specimen of the Mrs. Robert R. McCormick variety of dahlia. She was presented with the Dahlia society medal. There were thousands of entries in the show.

MR. AND MRS. JACK DAVIS of Blue Island last week became the first couple in the United States to inform Clinton M. Washburn, sponsor of Honeymoon Isle, Fla., that they are expecting a baby. This made the Davises the first entrants in the Honeymoon Isle Stork derby. Mr. Washburn has announced that he would give the 20 cabins on the island and a deed to a strip of beachfront to the first 20 honeymoon couples who had babies. The couples will have lifelong use of the secluded island for vacations as often as they wish, provided they are not divorced.

Eighty-three year old Adam Burns, 6838 Normal boulevard, who wouldn't go near an airplane four weeks ago, took an air trip to Milwaukee recently which convinced him that this should be his only mode of distance traveling from now on. He is said to be the oldest person ever to leave the Municipal airport on such a flight.

"I thought the things weren't safe," he says, "until I saw my sister leave for a trip to Memphis, Tenn. I decided, 'if she can do it, I can do it.' Now I thing flying is a wonderful experience. I'm planning an air trip to California for next year."

During the next four years La-Verne Beckman, 2801 S. Kostner avenue, will be studying for his bachelor of science degree in aeronautical engineering. He is enrolled in the Lewis School of Aeronautics at Lockport, where he began his classes last week. Francis Hazzard, of Wilmington, is also attending Lewis. He will spend the next 12 months learning about the repair and maintenance of airplane engines, having registered for the master mechanic course.

The fourth annual press conference for woman's club presidents and press committees will be held at 2:45 o'clock Friday afternoon in Mandel Brothers grill. Miss Betty Browning, club editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and other club editors will be speakers.

NEW PROGRAMS WILL GET UNDER WAY TOMORROW

Theater Group Lists 3 Productions.

After the summer programs stressing out of door activities, Chicago parks follow the changing season with a schedule reorganized for fall and winter. Items for cool days of fall and cold weather of midwinter include vocational guidance, leisure time plans, and physical development training.

The new term of activities, under the sponsorship of the Chicago Park district, begins tomorrow, according to George T. Donoghue, general superintendent. A new feature will be nature study groups to be conducted by the artcraft division.

The little theater group of the Park district will present three major productions at the Goodman theater again this year. Casts of the plays, which will be a straight drama, a mystery comedy, and an operetta, will be made up of the best amateur talent available in the parks.

Plan Physical Exercises.

Gymnastics, calisthenics, and physical exercises for youth development will be scheduled in fieldhouses. Indoor pastimes will include chess, checkers, bridge, pinochle, and pingpong. Crafts will be offered, also. The study of the use and application of the international Morse code will be on the program. Among available outdoor sports are to be football, soccer, and rugby. Activities planned for southwest parks follows:

Ada, 113th and Ada streets—Artcrafts, badminton, calisthenics, fieldball, folk dancing, games room, gymnasium games, kites, tap dancing, volleyball for women.

Cornell square, 51st and Wood streets—Artcraft, badminton, barn dancing, outdoor basketball, calisthenics, dramatics, fieldball, folk dancing, games room, gymnasium games, kites, modern dancing, social dancing, tap dancing, volleyball for women, weaving, woodwork shops.

STREET HOLES A PERIL.

When is something going to be done about the Paulina street sewer? Since July 1, when the WPA budget gave out, we've been sitting out here looking at holes in the street and wondering. The street is broken up from 45th street to 57th street. Now grass is growing in the ruts, and the other day I broke a spring in my car when I drove onto an innocent looking patch of grass and it turned into a young cave.

Every time a truck lumbers down this way, it kicks up so much dirt we don't know whether we're Chicagoans or refugees from the dust bowl. Working tracks still clutter up the street, and the machinery is parked here yet. Of course, the job isn't finished, but it looks as tho we'll be buried in dust before it is.

There are stones in the side streets, too. In fact, between the stones and the holes, there's very little level going over the entire stretch. Aside from the driving hazard, the street constitutes a danger to pedestrians. It isn't pleasant to step into grass and sink into a hole.

HOPELESS.

FINDS BOYS PLENTY HUSKY.

So now we're going to have conscription and our boys are going to learn how to defend themselves and their country, just in case I wonder how much our lads need the training.

As a daily commuter from the southwest side, I can testify that nearly all the young chaps I meet are good at fending for themselves. They're first off and first on the crowded street cars. They can protect themselves in crowds rushing for the "L" trains, and they're good on the buses, too.

I'm not blaming them. If any of us expect to get to work, we have to be good in the noble art of self-defense and self-preservation in order to make it. I think it might be cheaper to sentence all young fellows to three months of southwest side commuting, the cross-town variety, and if they didn't know how to fight for themselves then, they never would!

JERRY.

CONGRESS RACE HAS EARLY START IN 1ST DISTRICT

King Launches 3 Point Vote Campaign.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Congressional fights in south and southwest Chicagoland gathered headway last week, particularly in the embattled 1st district, which always takes its politics seriously.

Former State Senator William E. King, the Republican nominee, carried the fight to his Democratic opponent, Arthur W. Mitchell. Both King and Mitchell are Negroes, and the district they seek to represent for the next two years is predominantly colored.

King assailed his rival's congressional record in talks before ward and precinct groups. He accused Mitchell of being less than a timid champion of the cause of his own race, citing Mitchell's much publicized friendliness toward southern Democrats as an indication that more aggressive leadership is needed in the district. King promises to furnish that leadership.

Promises Housing Aid.

The G. O. P. candidate promises that when he is elected he will work vigorously for anti-lynching legislation, the granting of work and direct relief to worthy persons, and a greater share of low cost housing for the Negro.

Unless there is a cessation of the wild spending of the present administration, the time will soon come when even deserving relief clients will be devoid of aid, King charges.

A surprise contest has developed in the large 6th district, which takes a big slice of the southwest side as well as most of the west side and western suburbs.

An aggressive independent G. O. P. organization, calling itself the 6th Illinois Congressional District Willkie club, launched a campaign to raise funds and give their services in behalf of the entire Republican ticket.

Their particular objective is the election of a Republican representative for the 6th, which the district has not had for many years. The last Republican the 6th sent to Washington was John J. Gorman, who served one two-year term, starting in 1924.

Give Aid to Wagner.

Gorman was defeated in 1926 by James T. Igoe, who was succeeded in 1930 by another Democrat, Thomas J. O'Brien. O'Brien also served three terms before he retired two years ago to become sheriff of Cook county. The Democratic machine picked as his successor Anton F. Maciejewski of Cicero, who is trying for reëlection.

The Republicans are pinning their hopes on Joseph Wagner, Berwyn independent dairyman, who has attracted attention for his opposition to the federal milk licensing plan that was abandoned after Wagner and other dairymen obtained an injunction in Chicago restraining its enforcement.

Wagner can count on the almost solid support of the suburbs, the Willkie club leaders say, so they are concentrating their efforts in the Democratic strongholds of Chicago.

Another contest of considerable interest is getting under way in the 2d district, where former Congressman Patrick H. Moynihan is seeking to retake the seat from which the incumbent, Raymond S. McKeough, ousted him six years ago.

Moynihan accuses Congressman McKeough with neglecting the interests of his constituency to curry the favor of the administration by voting slavishly in favor of pet New Deal schemes.

publican votes to offset his handicap of being the only candidate in the race who is not experienced in the office sought. In the April primary he got 9,679 votes compared with 25,947 for the top Democrat and 66,822 for the top Republican.

Running mate of Miller is Representative Joseph Sam Perry of Wheaton, leader in the fight to investigate Circuit Judge Edwin L. Wilson of Joliet who had protected slot machines with an injunction for a year. Wilson is no longer on the bench.

Representative Perry, a one time coal miner, farmer, and school teacher, is a lawyer who has served two terms as an outspoken member of the house. He has been Du Page county chairman of the Democratic party since 1934.

Nothing other than an overwhelming victory can be seen for the Republicans in the April primary figures, on the basis of what occurred in 1938. Two years ago the Republicans merely topped the Democrats in primary house votes, 94,.00 to 84,000, but in the election the count was 163,-000 to 88,000. In this year's primary the G. O. P. ran up a lead of almost 3 to 1—135,000 to 52,000.

Representative Warren L. Wood of Joliet, running for his fourth term, sees cause for Republican optimism on every hand. The G. O. P. house membership of 79 [compared with 74 Democrats] will be increased to between 82 and 86, he predicted.

The agricultural vote is in good shape for the G. O. P. for the first time in eight years, he said. He told of straw votes taken at the recent plowing contests near Plainfield and Peotone, which showed the farmers for Willkie by from 2 or 3 to 1.

Wendell Willkie found 20,000 persons turning out to see him when he passed thru Joliet on Sept. 14 altho no special effort was made to get a large crowd, Woods said. He added that he had noted the presence of many Democrats in the crowd.

Representative Lottie Holman O'Neill, Wood's running mate, has been working hard repairing fences shaken by the Republican primary battle. A seasoned campaigner with a large personal following, she was the first women ever elected to the Illinois legislature. She is completing her eighth term [16 years]. Mrs. O'Neill is a widowed homemaker residing in Downers Grove.

"Taxes and broken promises are arguments which are valid but may be laid aside during the present campaign," said Representative Wood. "My main point is that this is the last real American political campaign unless Willkie is elected. There is not much use in electing Republicans to other offices unless Roosevelt is defeated."

Married

DOLLAR WATCH INVENTOR, WIFE HOLD A JUBILEE

J. G. Blessings Note Fifty Married Years.

At a party a few nights ago southwest side residents gathered to congratulate John G. Blessing, 3253 South Bell avenue, and his wife, Louise, who celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. They spoke not only of the successful and happy marriage, but also of the place the husband occupied as an inventor, for John Blessing has invented many things that have helped to make life easier.

Just a few of the successful inventions he has to his credit are the dollar watch, the automatic dial on the telephone, and one of the early motion picture machines. He has just recently completed an unusual machine that automatically records scores in bowling alleys.

Mr. Blessing was born 73 years ago in the Black Forest in Germany. As a child he was taught watchmaking, a trade he still follows in odd moments for the benefit of his neighbors. As a boy he had a love for tinkering with machines, and out of this came his genius for inventing.

Employed by Watch Concern.

He came to the United States when he was 17 and quickly found employment. About 46 years ago he was working for a large watch company in southern Illinois, in the heart of the coal mining region.

Friends kept coming to him with their watches broken or out of order from the hard useage in the mines. Blessing felt there must be some way to prevent the miners from losing so much money on their timepieces, and conceived the idea of making a cheap watch that could stand hard wear and could be thrown away if smashed, at no great loss to the owner.

Makes a Cheap Watch.

He went to his employer and asked if he could experiment with reducing to pocket size the alarm clock they manufactured. He was told to go ahead, and in a short time produced a vest pocket clock that cost only 35 cents to make.

The watch was put into production immediately, and appeared on the market, selling for a dollar. Soon after this Blessing invented a machine for grinding knives that could do the work of eight men. The machine was bought up by an eastern concern, and he went to Connecticut with his family to supervise production.

After this he came to Chicago and joined a large electrical firm. Here all of his inventions were automatically signed over to the company, and Blessing received little publicity for his work. For the company he produced the automatic finger dial on the base of the telephone, and can produce the patent papers for it showing the date of 1908.

This was part of the successful and interesting life Mr. Blessing looked back on when more than 100 of his friends gathered to help him celebrate the anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Blessing's children who helped wish them happiness, were Arthur, John, George, Mrs. Clara Sittinger, Mrs. Lillian Roulo, and Mrs. Helen Klopp. A ceremony was held at St. Maurice's church, 36th street and South Hoyne avenue, and a reception was given for them later by Mr. and Mrs. George Blessing.

THIRD DISTRICT WOMEN TO HAVE SAFETY PROGRAM

Exhibit Will Be Held Tuesday, Oct. 8.

Safety drives will be major projects of the public welfare department of the 3d district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, this season. This is in response to a request from the General federation, which has inaugurated a safety program in coöperation with the National Safety committee.

Mrs. Arthur Kasehagen. [Gordon-Hepburn Photo.]

In connection with the general safety work, Mrs. Arthur Kasehagen, 10352 Wood street, head of the community service division of the Illinois state department of public welfare, will present a highway safety program at club headquarters, 30 West Washington street, on Oct. 8.

Mrs. T. V. Moore, General federation chairman of the committee on public safety, will be the special guest. Mrs. Moore, who resides in Miami, Fla., will be in Chicago to attend the National Safety congress.

List of Speakers.

The following speakers will be on the program: Judge Gibson E. Gorman of the Municipal court, whose subject will be "Legislation Enforcemen"; James Stannard Baker, traffic consultant of the National Safety council, "Motor Vehicle Administration"; Otto K. Jelinek, traffic engineer of the Chicago park district, "Engineering"; George W. Fleming, general secretary of the Keep Chicago Safe committee, "Education"; Lieut. F. M. Kreml, director of Northwestern university training school, "Training Personnel"; George Barton, director of safety and engineering for the Chicago Motor club, "Research."

Mrs. W. T. Buzan, 8829 South Justine street, chairman of the 3d district public welfare department, and Mrs. John C. Biemeck, chairman of public welfare in the 6th district, will be in charge of a safety exhibit. Luncheon will be served at headquarters following the addresses. Special entertainment is being planned for the afternoon. Mrs. Buzan is receiving luncheon reservations.

Beverly Hills Woman's Club.

Mrs. Arnold S. Hyink, 1304 West 90th street, ways and means chairman, has announced an Indian summer festival as one of her department's schemes for financing the club's philanthropies. Eighteen different groups have been signed to coöperate in the all-day and evening entertainment which will take place Nov. 6 at the Ridge park fieldhouse.

Mrs. R. M. Bennett, 9060 Pleasant avenue, club president, is looking after the evening plans. Mrs. William Strack is dancing chairman, and Mrs. Arthur Booth is arranging for a fortune teller, astrologers, and crystal gazers. Mrs. H. W. Bohnett will stage a fashion show, and Mrs. W. F. Hoffman is bridge contest chairman. Mrs. R. J. Maier is also arranging games. Mrs. Charles Barnes and her committee will serve dinner.

Other assistants are: Mrs. D. T. Howard, candy chairman; Mrs. Otto Henry, flowers; Mrs. G. P. Palmer, cakes; Mrs. William Haedtler, white elephants, and Mrs. H. L. Baker, aprons. Mrs. M. J. Howell and Mrs. H. F. Barbour are planning decorations. Mrs. H. L. Packard, Mrs. R. H. Greene, Mrs. Frank Staely, and Mrs. A. S. Bender are on the general committee.

Brainerd Woman's Club.

Mrs. Walter H. Hodson, 1814 West 104th street, reports that the yearbook will be distributed soon. A feature of the book is an inside pocket to hold membership and guest cards.

Classes to be held by the various departments are: Better speech, sponsored by the education department and directed by Miss Elizabeth McQueen; art handicraft under the art department and instructed by E. L. Williams, and a chorus by the music department under a director to be named.

Chicago Lawn Woman's Club.

Mrs. S. C. Kehl, radio chairman, will entertain her department members at luncheon Tuesday at the South Shore Country club. They will plan the year's work, including the weekly broadcasts of health bulletins and other club projects. Mrs. Willis De Lay, Mrs. F. B. Frizell, Mrs. W. R. Ludwig, Mrs. G. R. McNay, and Mrs. Leslie Swanson will assist.

The literature department, with Mrs. I. S. Turley, chairman, and Mrs. William Mason, secretary, will continue the book shelf for the third year.

Fernwood Woman's Club.

The yearbook and membership cards are now available. The club's opening meeting will take place at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Fernwood Methodist church, 101st and Wallace streets.

Mrs. Richard McClure will speak on "What Is Expected of Me as a Clubwoman." Mrs. McClure is well known for her district and general federation work. Mrs. James Todd will play "Organ Moods."

Marquette Manor Women.

Mrs. Robert Meehan, past president, will be chairman of a card party planned for 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at Marquette park fieldhouse, 67th street and Kedzie avenue. NEW RECORD SET FOR TEACHERS' COLLEGE ROLLS

Chicago Teachers college enrollment for this year has reached an all time record of 1,925 students, according to reports released thru the office of the president, Dr. John Bartky. Of the total, 263 are new students. Of that number, 224 are taking courses for elementary teaching and 39 for kindergarten and primary work.

Nine former teachers and 96 college graduates are working on master's degrees and teachers' certificates at the college. In addition to the regular session program, the college is offering extension courses for public school teachers.

A new course this year was organized last week under the Civil Aeronautics authority. Those students accepted will receive ground and flight training under the CAA plan. More than 100 men and 20 girls turned out for the introductory lecture on the course, and nearly all applied for admittance.

CABINET MAKER CREDITS LEARNING TO CHAUTAUQUA

Reads Bible in French; Studies Geology.

David Holmes, 79 years old Flossmoor cabinet maker, calls himself a product of the Chautauqua system. This estimate is a bit puzzling to the middle aged midwesterner who interprets the Chautauqua system as a summer series of uplifting lectures, elocutionary efforts, and musical numbers by advanced students from city conservatories.

David Holmes.

Holmes, however, refers to the original Chautauqua movement, a way of life that grew and flowered among the intellectually curious New Englanders who settled the New York countryside; a training that led its followers into lifetimes of educational pursuits; a training that inspired David Holmes to learn French at the time of the last war and to try piano lessons a few years ago. He admits failure in the latter—failure by family request.

Has French Library.

Holmes is proud of his library of French books. He reads the language regularly, but, he says, "I shall never know it, of course, really know it. That would be assuming too much for home study. I doubt if many of us really know English."

His interest in French grew from looking at the dispatches given in that language at the time of the world war. He bought some books and went to work on his one-man Chautuaqua course, but, he explains, "To understand how I could do that, a person should know about the original Chautauqua."

The movement began at Chautuaqua lake, N. Y., in 1878. The idea was born in a Methodist camp meeting. Briefly, it was a system of providing a four year college course for any group of students wishing to subscribe. A leader, usually a minister or professor, was chosen in each community to supervise study. Dr. John H. Vincent headed the work for many years.

Reading Course System.

Courses, on college level, were worked out in English, history, botany, zoölogy, geology, and other subjects. There were no fees. Students had to buy about $7 worth of books; that was all. They met once a week, usually in the local schoolhouses. The entire system was one of reading courses. There was no laboratory work in the sciences.

Perhaps he inherited much of his love for knowledge. The soil of his birthplace, the Genesee valley south of Rochester, N. Y., was rich farmland. The New Englanders who settled there brought their devotion to the studious life with them. Holmes' earliest recollections include studying.

He recalls that he was an able reader at 7, and he thought nothing of it until some neighbors were surprised at his ability. He lived in a scholarly community, and children sat in on Shakespeare discussions, reading groups, or lectures. It was a system of living that did not spread to the west. In it, the mill hand and the minister, the farmer and the handyman shared a common interest in their endeavor to deepen their understanding of literature, music, and art.

Still Has Geology Text.

After Holmes completed his common school education, he attended a normal school at Genesee, N. Y., for a year. Thereupon his formal training ceased. But the Chautauqua filled in. He still has his "Walks and Talks in the Geological Field" by Winchell. He thinks he knows it almost by rote. His wife thinks she does, too, from hearing it so often!

The young New York student carried his books with him when he went west to Kansas in 1887. He joined a Shakespeare club in Lyons, Kas., and there he met a fellow member named William E. Borah. From Kansas, Holmes went to Denver, where he followed the carpenter-contractor trade for eight years. He kept up in his reading. Then he moved to Chicago, and finally to Flossmoor 15 years ago.

He still reads with a purpose! He has read the Bible in French, which, he points out, is better than most folks do in English. He has corresponded with the president of the International Society of Weights and Measures, a Frenchman, and both that dignitary and his wife have complimented Holmes on his proficiency.

Learning a Civic Duty.

Holmes' trade, like his interest in learning, sprang from a way of life in New York. His first carpentering assignment was trimming trees when he was a small boy. Then he learned to square and score them. The farmers in his community had to clear their land. And they had to build their own homes and barns. They didn't specialize.

Recalling it all, the cabinet maker says, "The men in the flour mill came to the classes, and so did every one else in town." Learning was as much a community activity as a Fourth of July parade.

But Holmes doesn't advocate home study in place of regular attendance at college. He contends, "Student or not, four years of exposure at a university is a wonderful experience. Even the slowest brain must be impressed by a little of it!"

Go Western, Young Rider

This group of young horse trail riders show how the western or dude ranch influence has lately taken hold in the Chicago area. Miss Elaine Victor, in the center, is all dressed up in black gabardine frontier pants, rose satin shirt, white woven Indian jacket, and black felt hat. Miss Louise Ford, holding her horse, Tex, is in blue and red plaid shirt, and levis pulled on over her riding boots. The hatless girl standing beside Miss Victor is Janet Skillen, whose jeans are topped by masculine shirt and gabardine windbreaker. From Tex's back Miss Sue Finney looks down, clad in oiled silk slicker that is handy to carry on a ride because it compresses into so little space. Donald Pebbles, at the right, wears jeans, green shirt, and maroon pullover sweater.

A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Two months or more of weekly riding lessons have convinced me I liked the sport more than casually, so I determined to invest in a regular riding outfit. I looked over the field and sought advice before I bought.

It became apparent to me that bridle path riders are less bound by tradition than, say, the hunting and jumping crowd, for whom dame fashion has laid down fairly rigid rules.

Horse trail clothing combinations are nearly as various as riders. True, most outfits consist of breeches, stout boots, and negligee shirts or sweaters, but in materials, color, and cut the variety is limitless.

I wondered whether to get the old favorite combination of high topped boots and regulation breeches, or the increasingly popular jodhpur outfit of ankle length boots with breeches that terminate in close fitting trouser legs.

Matter of Preference.

My instructor, Elmer J. Holdorf, and other veterans told me it was largely a matter of my own taste and requirements. They said the high boot combination offered such advantages as maximum warmth and leg protection, while jods were less confining and were easier to carry for short notice rides because they took up less storage room. I chose jods.

On advice of my more experienced friends, I also bought a windbreaker—an unlimited, loose fitting belted jacket with plenty of pockets. This can be carried handily in case of sudden cold or rains, and it isn't so much in the way in case one wants to shed it during a ride.

I found riding an ideal consumer of my outworn white shirts that seemed too good to discard entirely. They come to an honorable and useful end on horseback.

So, too, do last season's unlined leather gloves, which serve admirably as hand protection against rein blisters, and the dirt that clings inevitably to harness leather.

Advises Heavy Sox.

For wear next to the feet, sweat sox are the thing. The soft, thick fabric absorbs perspiration and at the same time cushions the feet. Sweat sox are suitable for either warm or cold weather. When buying boots it is well to get them large enough to accommodate heavy sox.

Generally speaking, these clothing tips are applicable to either sex, for woman riders on the bridle paths and horse trails no longer swath themselves in skirts, but copy the men sartorially.

Head covering is optional. Most riders in summer go bareheaded. The exceptions go in for considerable variety. Men, of course, cling slavishly to the fedora. Women are partial to the peasant kerchief, or the small, close fitting felt hat known, I believe, as the bowler.

The cost of an outfit is just about what the purchaser makes it. One can acquire all the necessary wearables for as little as $10 or less, or he can shoot the works and spend as much as a good horse would cost.

I hold that it is best to invest in better quality garments and footgear that will stand up well under the frequent cleanings to which their use exposes them.

Styles Remain Same.

It is well to bear in mind when outfitting that your riding attire, unlike street clothing, does not go out of style quickly. If it is chosen judiciously it will deliver perhaps several years of service.

As freakish as riding clothes may seem to some persons, each peculiarity is grounded in sound reason, I learned.

Take breeches, for example. The peg tops give ample seat room. The close fitting legs eliminate clothing folds that might cause chafing.

Boots are of heavy leather and extend above the ankles because they protect against the stirrup irons. High boot tops insulate the rider's legs from harsh stirrup straps and possible thorns and branches of the trail. They also help to keep cleaning bills down, by standing between trouser legs and the saddle straps and the horse's sides, which unfortunately are not always clean, particularly in the cheaper stables.

CLOSES CAREER SECOND TIME AT CALUMET HIGH

Teacher, Graduate of School, Retires.

An alumna of Calumet High school for the second time in her life, Miss Margaret Blood, 2160 West 111th street, began her program of doing those never-had-time-for things when she retired Wednesday. Miss Blood was graduated at Calumet with a dozen other boys and girls more than 40 years ago. [There were 645 in Calumet's class last June.] She returned there as a music teacher 22 years ago. And Wednesday, the eve of her 63d birthday, the retirement age for Chicago school teachers, she finished at Calumet once more.

Miss Blood's teaching career is in two parts, kindergarten and high school. After she completed her own high school course she spent a year at home deciding what to do next. Her mother thought kindergarten teaching a likely occupation for a young lady, so the next year found Miss Blood enrolled at Chicago Kindergarten college.

Her Work Expands.

After a period of training and cadeting, Miss Blood was back home in Morgan Park and teaching there. First she taught half days. Then the kindergarten course became more popular, and she had to teach all day. She doesn't remember whether a raise went with the doubled assignment or not, but she is sure that the salary wasn't doubled—as was the job.

She liked every minute of it, she remembers, and she'd have remained a kindergartener, perhaps, had it not been for a principal who saw a music supervisor in the young teacher. At the principal's suggestion, Miss Blood began studying music. There followed years of classes squeezed in wherever there was time for them; music on Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays; music over summer vacations, music music, music.

Plans Club Work.

Miss Blood studied under a procession of teachers and in several conservatories and schools. She took her degree at the North Shore school and after 15 years as a kindergarten teacher she became a music teacher at Morgan Park High school. She stayed there for three years. She was transferred then to Calumet where she has served since. Her work there has been 22 years packed with operettas and festivals.

Now Miss Blood plans to take an active part in the music clubs in which she's a member and to join another club or two, she thinks.

OLD TOWN HALL NOW LIVING ROOM IN MODERN HOME

Industrial Artist Revamps Aged Structure.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Have you ever felt the urge to buy an abandoned farm and do with it what you wish? Have you ever thought you would love to live with deep woods of your own as a background for your skies, a few hundred acres of gently rolling hills and rich meadow lands, a tiny rushing river, a little lake, and a real waterfall?

If so, you'll be interested in the adventure of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Pellegrin—who did just this.

Four years ago they bought an abandoned farm seven miles northwest of Woodstock, on United States highway 14.

Only Old Hall Remains.

On their grounds had been the thrilling little village of Brookdale a hundred years ago. Only the town hall was left.

But now all that has been changed. What was left of the old town hall is a quite enchanting living room in the new Pellegrin home; a room which retains the original beams and studs and century old timbers. It was Mrs. Pellegrin's idea to keep as much of the original structure as possible. In doing so she has captured the atmosphere of 200 years ago and built the first floor of the house in the same spirit.

Makes Own Furniture.

Indeed the first floor thruout reflects the very early Colonial tradition in faithful detail.

Mr. Pellegrin is an industrial artist, and he also is an artist in the use of fine woods. Thruout the house are examples of his work; in the early American chairs and tables which he designed and made, in the hardware and lighting which he also fashioned in his spare time, over a period of four years.

The exterior of the new main house is carried out in skintled brick. The colors are tan and brown and various shades of red, and the bricks are laid with great irregularity, which contributes to the informality of the home. Awnings blend in colors with the brick, and you enter directly into the living room thru an old Dutch door, the natural finish of its aged oak weathered to a grayish hue.

Here the original beams have been kept, and spaces between studding roughly bricked in. There is a large picture window on the front wall of the room to afford abundance of light, and opposite the entrance is a mammoth stone fireplace which reaches to the ceiling. Its fireplace shelf is of hand hewn oak and its stones gathered from the farm.

For Outdoor Dining.

Beyond this living room is the large, screened outdoor living room, with a second great fireplace of stone.

The kitchen is a gem. An artist's kitchen. It is both modern and as beautifully storied with the past as some kitchen from the coast of the Pilgrim fathers.

The room divides itself into two parts. In one there is the coal and wood range, with copper hood over it, and a wood surface table close. At the left of this is a deep closet, and on the adjacent wall a built-in barbecue fireplace. There is a brick floor on this utility wall and corner of the kitchen, and the color in the brick floor blends with the color of the linoleum used for the floor on the dining side of the kitchen.

Has Pine Walls.

The pine walls are mellow colored and rich, the dining table and chairs are honey shade. There also is a second range wall, and here is a modern sink with linoleum work surfaces.

On the first floor there also is a large utility service room, with refrigerator, lavatory, shower stall for summer bathers, and water heater.

The second floor, with its bedrooms and large roof deck opening from hall at the head of stairs, is treated with simple, modern simplicity. The floors are carpeted and besides the bedrooms and bath there is a very useful little sewing room.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, Sept. 23.

Never allow weeds to go to seed. Pull or burn those on the vacant lot next door and if possible start a civic campaign by organizing all garden lovers to see to it that no weeds can exist in the community. Plow vacant lots and seed the ground so weeds cannot spread to the gardens. Take the initiative in this important activity and the entire community will be benefited.

Keep the garden area free from pieces of wire, broken branches, and all obnoxious things; mow the lawn so the heavy growth will not mat down and injure the standing grass; keep the beds trimmed or edged; prepare for bulb planting; order all bulbs for delivery as soon as possible.

Tuesday, Sept. 24.

Many of the wild flowers may be transplanted at this time and they will bloom next year.

This is about the last week that evergreens can be transplanted with assurance that they will not be injured, altho under all conditions they succeed best when moved with a ball of earth and burlaped. They will not do well in the congested, smoky areas of the city, hence other plants should be used.

Evergreens are excellent for windbreaks on the farm; they are unexcelled as screens and beautiful as specimens. The white pine is a rapid grower. Hemlock is a good hedge plant. Douglas fir and concolor fir grow large. Junipers are better adapted to the smaller place. If the evergreen becomes brown it is best to replace it with another. They should not enter winter with dry soil at the roots.

Wednesday, Sept. 25.

Disbud the chrysanthemums if large sized blooms are wanted. Remove the smaller burs with the fingers, leaving one or more buds to develop. If any plants are growing in the garden, dig and pot them before frost, put in a shady place for a few days and then remove to the enclosed porch or house.

Small bulbils from the stems of lilies should be removed and planted, preferably in a coldframe. Day lilies do well when fall transplanted. They are among the finest of hardy plants, doing well in sun or partial shade. Dig old lily-of-valley plants, enrich the soil, divide, and replant.

Thursday, Sept. 26.

Plant madonna lilies. Imbed them in sand if the soil is heavy. Plant narcissi as soon as possible for they should become established before severe weather arrives. Start another batch of freesias and oxalis bulbs. It is unnecessary to bury them or place them in darkness for rooting.

Friday, Sept. 27.

Fall is an excellent time to plant lilacs, but do not use too many or plant them closer than five to seven feet apart for they are strong growers. Some of the French varieties are very desirable. Buy 3 to 4 foot stock in preference to smaller sizes.

Water newly planted stock and mulch the ground with strawy manure after the ground freezes.

Saturday, Sept. 28.

Hardy annuals sown now will wait until spring to germinate, but they will start so much earlier than spring sown stock that flowers can be enjoyed very early. Suggested kinds to sow include cosmos, petunia, shirley poppy, calendula, nigella, portulaca, and snapdragon. The bachelor's button is a favorite and excellent for cutting. Sweet peas sown late and protected will come much earlier than spring sown seed.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

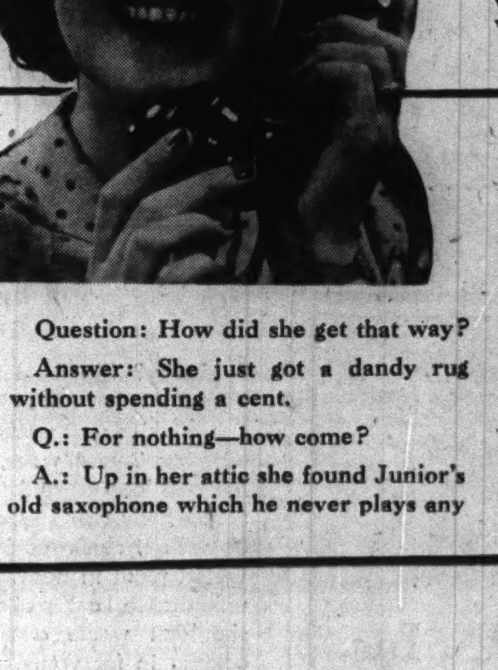
HAVE YOUR CHILDREN A PLAYROOM?

If there is no place for your children to play when the weather gets bad, why not remodel your attic or basement as a playroom?

Remodeling need not be expensive, especially if you take advantage of the offers of lumber, wallboard, glass, paints and other building materials described in the Building Materials column in the Tribune want ad section.

Why not estimate your material and millwork needs today, and follow the Tribune want ad section for values?



THE LADY IS HAPPY

Question: How did she get that way?

Answer: She just got a dandy rug without spending a cent.

Q.: For nothing—how come?

A.: Up in her attic she found Junior's old saxophone which he never plays any more. It was just what an advertiser in the Tribune Barter and Exchange column wanted. So they made a trade.

Q.: Do you suppose . . . ?

A.: You'll never know till you look. Watch the Barter and Exchange column in the Tribune want ad section.

Because they get better results, want ad users place more want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

SERVING CHICAGO FOR 93 YEARS
CHICAGO TRIBUNE

THEATER OF AIR WILL RETURN TO W-G-N ON OCT. 5

Marion Claire to Star in 'Vagabond King.'

The Chicago Theater of the Air will reopen its doors on Saturday, Oct. 5, with "The Vagabond King" as the opening operetta. Marion Claire, W-G-N's prima donna, again will be starred in this series of hour long operetta productions, under the direction of William A. Bacher.

These streamlined versions of favorite operettas and light operas will run from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturdays over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system. The Chicago Theater of the Air again will be sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

A notable group of operatic, concert, and radio headliners has already been engaged to sing the male rôles in the operetta series. Conrad Thibault, well known to radio listeners and concertgoers, will be heard opposite Miss Claire in "The Vagabond King."

List of Male Stars.

Others who will be featured are James Melton, Jan Peerce, Richard Bonelli, John Carter, and Charles Kullman.

James Melton, who starred in "Bittersweet" last spring, will return to the Theater of the Air in "Chocolate Soldier" and "Eileen." Jan Peerce, Radio City Music Hall tenor, who played the male lead in "Student Prince," will be back again in the same rôle.

John Carter, Metropolitan Opera star, altho new to the Theater of the Air, is an old favorite with Chicagoans who heard him at the 1939 Chicagoland Music Festival and Grant park concerts. Carter's lyric tenor voice will be heard in the lead of "Robin Hood."

Bonelli to Be Starred.

Richard Bonelli, famous American operatic baritone, will sing the lead in "Desert Song."

Charles Kullman, Metropolitan Opera tenor who has sung leading rôles in Vienna, Salzburg, Berlin, and London, will support Miss Claire in the leading masculine rôle of "Madame Butterfly."

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and artistic director of the Chicago Opera company, will direct the W-G-N orchestra and chorus. Double casts again will be featured in these productions. A company of outstanding radio actors will enact the spoken parts of the characters with musical headliners doing the song.

Mr. Bacher is in charge of all programs and production at W-G-N.

Besides "Vagabond King," seven other popular operettas have been scheduled and plans are being made for more to follow.

Those already scheduled are: "Chocolate Soldier," Oct. 12; "Madame Butterfly," Oct. 19; "Student Prince," Oct. 26; "Naughty Marietta" or the "Great Waltz," Nov. 2; "Desert Song," Nov. 9; "Robin Hood," Nov. 16, and "Eileen" on Nov. 23.

Takes Wedding Vows

[Koehne Photo.]

PETER QUILL TO RETURN OCT. 6 TO W-G-N-MBS

Peter Quill, mysterious inventive wizard, is coming back to W-G-N. Starting Sunday Oct. 6 Peter Quill will be heard in a new series of dramatic broadcasts providing glimpses of possible weapons of the future for the defense of America. The adventure stories will deal with espionage, sabotage, and America's first line of defense with particular reference to science.

The new Peter Quill series, written and produced by Blair Walliser, will be broadcast from 3 to 3:30 p. m. Sundays. They will be sponsored.

Fantastic and daring inventions for the defense of the nation form the focal point of Peter Quill's new adventures. Gail Carson, who is engaged in counterespionage work, and Capt. Roger Dorn, a government antisabotage trouble shooter, protect Quill's inventions against the destructive efforts of saboteurs. Pitted against them is the Red Circle, sinister spy ring, headed by Michael Raclov and Sonya Danilo.

Mueller Plays Quill.

Alice Hill and Ken Griffin of last year's cast, which played for 40 weeks, again will have lead rôles as Gail Carson and Capt. Dorn. The part of Peter Quill, brilliant, enigmatic scientist and inventor, will be played by Marvin Mueller. Irene Lorraine and Leslie Spear will have the Sonya and Raclov rôles.

The inventions projected on the show, while bizarre and fantastic, are not beyond the realm of possibility, according to Pr ducer Walliser. In fact, many are now on the borderline of perfection in scientific laboratories. Last year the Peter Quill show projected several inventions that since have come into use, among them the magnetic mine.

Plan Weird Sound Effects.

Among the inventions projected on the series this year is a powder which when placed in water will make a combustible fuel suitable for running gasoline engines.

CHRIST CHURCH OBSERVES 70TH YEAR THIS WEEK

Christ Methodist church, 64th and Sangamon streets, will start a five year improvement program this week in partial observance of the organization's 70th anniversary. The five year plan is to be directed toward preparation for an extensive diamond jubilee year in 1945. It will include various improvements for both church and parsonage. The 70th birthday will be observed in services beginning Wednesday and continuing thru the week.

Christ church was so named in 1920 when it was organized as a result of a merger of three other Methodist churches. The oldest of the three, the Portland church, organized by the Rev. George Simmons in 1870, provides the date from which the 70 years of service are taken. The second church in the merger was the Wentworth avenue Methodist set up in 1885 under the Rev. Frederick Gottchalk.

Supper on Wednesday.

The third organization was started in 1903 and known first as the Second Methodist church of Englewood and later as the Sangamon street church.

Veteran members of all churches are now on the Christ church rolls. They will tell of early days in their individual church groups as part of the anniversary celebration.

The opening event in the festivities will be a smörgasbörd supper served by the women of the church at 5:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the church parlors. A pageant entitled "Following the Gleam," written by Mrs. Lloyd Hoover, wife of the pastor, will be presented at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the church.

Program Next Sunday.

The 70th anniversary observance will close next Sunday afternoon when the Rev. Edward Asling, former pastor, now occupying the Zion Methodist pulpit in Elgin, will speak. Older members will give reminiscences.

777 U.S. STATIONS SHIFT POSITIONS ON DIAL IN 1941

W-G-N to Keep Frequency of 720 Kilocycles.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Wave lengths of 777 of the 862 radio stations operating in the standard broadcast band between 550 and 1,600 kilocycles in the United States are to be shifted on March 29, 1941. These shifts are to be made in accordance with the provisions of the North American regional broadcasting agreement, concluded at Havana, Cuba, in 1937.

The Federal Communications commission last week filed with the state department the proposed reallocations of frequencies [wave lengths] in the standard broadcast band. The signatory governments—the United States, Canada, Cuba, and Mexico—are now exchanging their tentative assignments before making them finally operative.

Clear Channels for Mexico.

The reallocation also provides for changes in wave lengths of many stations in Canada, Cuba, and Mexico. Mexico will receive five clear channels which prior to this agreement had no frequencies reserved for high power stations in the standard broadcast band. Cuba gets an additional clear channel from Canada.

This is how the reallocation of channels is to be accomplished, according to present plans:

Stations now operating on channels from 550 to 720 kilocycles, inclusive, will retain their present assignments. Thus W-G-N, assigned to 720 kilocycles, will continue there.

Stations operating from 740 to 780 will move up 10 kilocycles, or one channel. Thus WBBM will move from 770 to 780.

Stations from 790 to 870 will move up 20 kilocycles. WENR-WLS will move, thus, from 870 to 890.

Stations between 880 and 1,450 kilocycles will advance 30 kilocycles.

Clear channel stations from 1,460-1,490 kilocycles will move to 1,500-1,530.

Local stations now on the 1,500 channel will move to 1,490.

Listeners to Change Habits.

These shifts will force listeners to change their listening habits with regard to most stations. All push-button radio receivers will require adjustments for all stations higher in frequencies than W-G-N.

The correlated shifting of Canadian, Mexican, and Cuban stations is expected to eliminate interference with United States stations and improve reception. Interference from Mexican and Cuban stations has plagued particularly rural listeners. Certain broadcast stations on the Mexican border, largely run by interests denied the use of radio in the United States, are to be eliminated. The Havana pact contains no provisions for their continued operation.

Any broadcaster has until Oct. 15 to register his views with the FCC if he takes exception to his assignment.

WARD AND ELSON TO JOIN ON NEW SPORTS PROGRAM

Arch Ward, sports editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and Bob Elson, popular W-G-N sportscaster, will collaborate on a new sports program—"At the Sports Desk with Bob Elson," which will be presented for the first time from 7:30 to 7:45 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N. The program will be heard on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at the same hour.

Ward's entire staff will assist in gathering facts and unearthing features for the broadcasts. The Tribune experts will cover ever: phase of sports from football to ping pong. Among these contributing writers will be Irving Vaughan, Edward Burns, Wilfrid Smith, Bob Becker, Howard Barry, George Strickler, Charles Bartlett, and Frank Mastro. Elson will be at the microphone, sitting at the radio sports desk and giving fans a survey of the sports news.

Eleven years' experience in all types of sports announcing qualify Elson as eminently fitted for his sports desk rôle. He has covered every world series since 1929—a distinction held by no other broadcaster. He has missed only one All-Star baseball game, and that thru sickness.

Monkey on the Air

Cartune-O Jack, a monkey, picks a winner for pretty guest vocalist, Gayle Robbins, while Harold Stokes, director of the W-G-N Dance orchestra, looks on. Cartune-O Jack, regular member of the Cartune-O cast, heard from 8:30 to 9 p. m. each Friday over W-G-N, holds the distinction of being the only monkey on a radio program.

Sabotage Plot Foiled by 'Ned Jordan, Secret Agent'

A story of a fifth column attempt to sabotage a great industrial plant thru a gullible old watchman will be unfolded on "Ned Jordan, Secret Agent," drama of international intrigue presented over W-G-N from 7:30 to 8 p. m., Tuesday.

Legion Chief to Speak.

Raymond J. Kelly, national commander of the American Legion, will sum up the major achievements of the organization during the year during a broadcast in connection with the American Legion convention, meeting in Boston, at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow over the NBC Red network.

BLEND CLASSIC—OLD AND NEW ON SYMPHONIC HOUR

Marion Claire Will Be Soloist on W-G-N.

Music from the pens of modern classicists as well as older masterworks will be presented on the Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour from 9 to 10 o'clock tomorrow night. With Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, as speaker of the evening, the program will be broadcast over W-G-N, the Mutual network, and the entire network of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation.

Modern classical numbers by Pierne, Debussy, and Korngold will be blended with the works of Beethoven and Tschaikowsky on the program. Marion Claire, lyric soprano, will be featured soloist. The W-G-N. Symphonic orchestra will be directed by Henry Weber.

The orchestra will open the program with the first movement from the Beethoven's Third Symphony. Entitled "Eroica," this symphony originally was written as a tribute to Napoleon, but the title was changed when the Corsican seized the imperial throne.

"Barcarolle" to Be Feature.

Other presentations from the older classics and operas include the "Hungarian Dance" and "Czardas" from Tschaikowsky's "Swan Lake Ballet," played by the orchestra.

"Barcarolle," from "The Tales of Hoffmann," by Jacques Offenbach, will be presented by Marion Claire and Helen Bartush, member of the augmented chorus. Miss Bartush is a young Chicago mezzo-contralto.

Featured among the three numbers from modern classicists will be themes from Debussy, presented by Miss Claire and the orchestra.

Marietta's aria from "The Dead City," by Erich Korngold, sung by Miss Claire, and Gabriel Pierne's "Entrance of the Little Fauns," played by the orchestra, complete the numbers by the more modern composers.

The complete program:

First Movement from "Eroica" [Third Symphony].......Beethoven
Orchestra.
Aria from Mignon.......Thomas
Miss Claire and orchestra.
Hungarian Dance and Czardas from
Barcarolle from the "Tales of Hoffman".......Offenbach
Marion Claire, Helen Bartush and orchestra.
Swan Lake Ballet.......Tschaikowsky
Orchestra.
Speech.......
Col. Robert R. McCormick.
Marietta's aria, "The Dead City"...Korngold
Miss Claire and orchestra.
Entrance of the Little Fauns.......Pierne
Orchestra.
Themes from Debussy.......Debussy
Miss Claire, chorus and orchestra.

The duet with Miss Claire will mark Miss Bartush's first featured appearance on the Symphonic hour. Miss Bartush has appeared with the Chicago opera for three seasons. She made her operatic debut with the Chicago opera three years ago.

William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N, is producer of the Symphonic Hour. Musical commentary for the program is written by Cecil Smith of the music and drama department of THE TRIBUNE.

Star of "In Chicago Tonight"

Joan Bennett, who will be joined by her husband, Producer Walter Wanger, in next Thursday's presentation of "In Chicago Tonight." Miss Bennett will take one of the starring roles in a radio adaptation of the motion picture "Foreign Correspondent." The picture, soon to open in Chicago, is a Wanger production and released thru United Artists. The broadcast will be aired over W-G-N and Mutual from 7:30 to 8 p. m.

JOAN BENNETT, WANGER ON 'IN CHICAGO' SHOW

Actress Stars in Film of War Reporters.

Joan Bennett and Walter Wanger—noted actress and great Hollywood producer—will be "In Chicago Tonight" for W-G-N and the Mutual network from 7:30 to 8 p. m. next Thursday night.

Walter Wanger.

Miss Bennett will have the lead rôle in a radio adaptation of "Foreign Correspondent," recently released by the Walter Wanger studios. Wanger will talk on the movie industry.

Under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs at W-G-N, this "In Chicago Tonight" production will be one of the "movie night" preformances of the variety entertainment show. Presenting previews of important motion pictures opening in Chicago, movie night is a monthly feature of the "In Chicago Tonight" program.

Miss Bennett, youngest daughter of a noted theatrical family, made her stage debut with her father, Richard Bennett, in the Broadway production of "Jarnegan." Her first film rôle was in "Bulldog Drummond."

Joan Bennett has had notable rôles in "Private Worlds," "Disraeli," "The Pursuit of Happiness," "Two Is a Crowd," and Wild Girl." Her latest film is "House Across the Bay." In private life, Miss Bennett is the wife of Walter Wanger.

Wanger's production of "Foreign Correspondent," is rated by critics as one of the year's finest pictures. Wanger spent well over a million in money and a year in time in filming the production. The picture will open here soon.

Joan Bennett's rôle in the adaptation of "Foreign Correspondent" will mark the second appearance of a member of the famed Bennett family on W-G-N this year. Last January Constance Bennett played the lead in Noel Coward's "Shadow Play," presented over W-G-N.

Musical accompaniment for the show will be presented by the W-G-N dance orchestra under the direction of Harold Stokes.

Conscription of Wealth Is Subject of Round Table

"Shall We Conscript Wealth, Too?" a discussion of the factors surrounding this phase of national mobilization, will be the University of Chicago Round Table topic, at 1:30 p. m. today over WMAQ. Participants include Leo Cherne, executive secretary of the Research Institute of America; Josh Lee, United States Senator from Oklahoma, and Dean William H. Spencer, head of the University of Chicago school of business.

If the Materials Cost as Much as a New Ready-Made Hat . . .
WHICH WOULD YOU BUY?
It may sound foolish to ask such a question, but when it comes to washing, some women do spend their money for washing materials and supplies such as soaps, gas, electricity, washing equipment, etc. (and still have the wash to do) when they could use the same money to buy Archer laborless laundry service.
Buying washing is like buying hats, the day is past when it paid to "do your own"—so take advantage of this . . .

BUY IRON LUNGS TO SAVE LIFE IN 3 COMMUNITIES

Lions Clubs Lead Drive for Respirators.

Another chapter in the doctrine of public service to which Lions clubs are devoted is being developed in Chicago's southwest side where three organizations are providing iron lungs for use in the communities.

The Englewood Lions club completed its iron lung campaign early last spring by purchasing two infant respirators. The Roseland Lions club has bought an infant lung and a portable adult respirator and campaign is now beginning to collect funds for a stationary adult lung.

The Auburn Park Lions followed the lead of Englewood and Roseland by initiating a lung fund drive last week.

Quickly Put to Use.

B. C. Scott, who was chairman of the Englewood campaign, reports that one machine was placed in the Englewood hospital, 6001 Green street, and the other in St. Bernard's hospital, 6337 Harvard street. The one in St. Bernard's was credited with saving an infant's life almost as soon as it was installed.

Both machines are electrically operated and are combination incubators and respirators. They cost approximately $600 each. Carl Edwards is president of the Englewood club.

Roseland's lung project has grown from a club to a community activity. Churches, patriotic organizations, and civic groups have joined in the drive to provide the community with equipment for any emergency wherein a patient requires artificial respiration.

The portable lung, which has fittings for use by children, may be used in cases of drowning, electrocution, and other accidents. With the infants' lung and incubator, it is housed at the Roseland Community hospital, 11101 Perry avenue. Its use is available, free of charge, to anyone in the community. It will be carried wherever needed by the Roseland Lions club members.

Both Recently Installed.

The infant outfit at Roseland cost $495, according to Reginald Du Bois, president. The portable unit was $550. Both have been installed in the last 10 days. The cost of the big lung, for which the fund drive is just beginning, will be $1,350. Carl Ergo is Roseland lung chairman.

Auburn Park Lions are working toward a Nov. 23 deadline on their drive. Dr. E. C. Warfield, president, has appointed Charles A. Smith, club vice president, as chairman of the campaign. Committee members are C. D. Mell, Dr. W. G. Hebert, Leo Deitch, George Fanning, David Nelson, R. P. Overton, H. R. Waxstein, Charles Pasal, the Rev. H. H. Goodell, Al Fulsaas, M. A. Dwyer, Olaf Newgard, and Roy F. Healy.

The goal is $1,500. A fully equipped adult respirator will be purchased and installed in St. George's hospital, 449 Winneconna parkway. Coöperating with the Lions are the Auburn park parent-teacher associations, business and civic organizations, and the local Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion posts. A community veterans carnival was extended three days last week for the benefit of the fund.

2 LABORATORIES READY FOR NEW TECH STUDENTS

School starts tomorrow for 2,500 undergraduate and graduate students of the newly organized Illinois Institute of Technology. It will be the first day of classes under the merger, completed last month, of Armour Institute of Technology and Lewis institute.

The day school will be in session just a week when the total enrollment will be increased by the registration of approximately 4,000 evening school students. Registration for the night classes will begin a week from tomorrow.

Changes in the physical plant of the south campus, designed to equip the school for the new plan of operation, have been completed this summer. They include the installation of a new research laboratory for work in organic synthetic chemistry. The laboratory will be under the direction of Dr. Saul Winstein, one of 11 new instructors at the institute.

Another improvement is a $5,000 air conditioning and refrigerating laboratory in machinery hall. James C. Peebles, professor of experimental engineering, designed and equipped this laboratory for washing, filtering, mixing, heating, or cooling of air. The machinery is also designed for the proper humidifying and dehumidifying of air.

Eighteen new offices have been installed on the third floor of Chapin hall.

Among the 700 first-year men and women who will begin classes tomorrow will be 24 who have won 1940-41 scholarships. Arts and science awards winners from the south side are: Catherine V. Boyad, Calumet High school alumna; Edwin Koplewski, Lindblom; William E. Mahoney, St. Leo, and Anna Marie Marvel, St. Aquinas High school. K. G. Page, Calumet High school, won a four year fire protection engineering scholarship.

CHORUS TO START FALL REHEARSALS IN MORGAN PARK

Fall rehearsals of the Euterpean Oratorio chorus, directed by Mark Hallett, will begin tomorrow evening in the Morgan Park Baptist church. This singing group is interested in admitting new voices. Any singer who would like to try out for a place in the chorus is invited to apply to Mr. Hallett at 10321 South Leavitt street or to George Walton, chorus president, at 1527 West 107th street.

Joseph Anderson is accompanist for the organization. Other officers are: Jane Saunders, vice president; Helen Stanley, secretary, and Roland Olander, treasurer.

VOTE ANALYSIS REVEALS LOSS FOR DEMOCRATS

5th District Change Is Pointed Out.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Noble W. Lee, Republican candidate for the Illinois house of representatives, last week took apart the April primary figures which seemed to show the Democrats ruling the 5th [Hyde Park] legislative district and found in them a promise of Republican victory in the November election.

Noble W. Lee.

The way Mr. Lee sees it now, the G. O. P. will reverse the present ratio of tw Democrats to one Republican in house membership for the district. The 5th is among eight districts in the Chicago area where Republicans are attempting to gain house seats to build a working majority instead of the slight majority which is nullified by a few disloyal G. O. P. legislators.

On the surface, the Democrats appear to have won a rip-snorting lead of 36,732 votes last April—106,882 to 70,150. This was for all candidates for nomination, with each voter having three votes to plump for one name or divide among two or three.

Lead Shows Shrinkage.

"But watch that huge lead melt away when we analyze the 1938 figures for comparison," Lee said. "In the 1938 primary the Democrats had a lead of 96,438 votes—nearly three times that of this year. What happened in the election? It shrank to a lead of 26,350 votes for representatives, a loss of 70,088 votes."

Such a "shrinkage" this year between primary and election day would be almost twice as large as necessary to evaporate the April, 1940, Democratic lead, Mr. Lee said. Somewhat similar phenomena have been evident in other legislative districts, he observed.

"This shrinkage is not an accident," he said. "The cause is machine rule, which may be exercised easily in the primaries when voters must ask for either a Republican or a Democratic ballot, but not in the fall election."

Lee classified the following voters among those who will switch from Democratic to Republican under the protection of ballot secrecy in November:

1. Public pay rollers and members of their families.
2. WPA workers and members of their families.
3. Persons receiving relief and old age assistance.
4. Business men dealing with governmental agencies.

Looks to Volunteers.

In addition, he said, there is the factor of the Democratic machine having the power to marshall its voters in the primary while the Republican party vote is composed entirely of "volunteer voters" in the district. More G. O. P. volunteer voters will take part in the final voting in November, he said.

Mr. Lee, a native of the Hyde Park district, is associate dean of the John Marshall Law school. He is president of the South Park Improvement association and president of the Hyde Park Men's club, as well as being active in the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the American Legion.

He should be of service in the current drive to stop vote frauds because in 1928 he was special assistant attorney general aiding Frank J. Loesch in the grand jury investigation of ballot thievery. A precinct captain for ten years, he made a strong race for congress in 1938.

Served with A. E. F.

Lee was a member of the last class which graduated from Hyde Park High school before the present structure was built. He later attended the University of Chicago, University of Wisconsin, Harvard university, John Marshall Law school, and the University of Caen in France after he had gone overseas with the army.

Observers say the Republican cause will be endangered in a close race if the G. O. P. vote is lopsided in favor of Mr. Lee's running mate, Representative William J. Warfield. This happened in 1934 and in 1936, when the total Republican vote exceeded the Democratic but both Democratic candidates were elected as representatives.

The district is about 40 per cent colored, which accounts for the big lead gained by Representative Warfield over his running mates. Warfield, who is completing his sixth term in the legislature, is commander of the 8th regiment, Illinois National Guard.

Democrats seeking the pair of house seats have been unusually careful to secure the full benefits of their vote total for their party by instructing citizens to divide votes between them.

Join Their Efforts.

By way of demonstrating this, Representative Louis G. Berman, who is ending his third term next week will

Stores Ready with New Ideas on Furniture

Every color scheme, decorating note or new idea has been drafted by merchants and manufacturers for National Furniture week which opened yesterday. Model rooms, combinations in textiles and woods, window displays and floral patterns promise a festive autumn, not by the handiwork of nature alone, but by the housewife's ingenuity.

Trained salesmen, who know whether a pink bedspread will blend with a rosy shade drape or how red a red would go with green, are ready to answer questions. Charts and diagrams have been compiled and drawn to help the buyer, whether she is seeking a drum table for a bare corner or furniture for her whole house. No neighborhood store has failed to brush up on 1941 homemaking hints or has neglected to show "things that go together."

Ready to Help Family.

Neighborhood furniture stores this week are more than places to buy furniture. They are your staff of private decorators, the men and women who will worry over your sunparlor sofa with the same personal attention as the family who will sit on it. Young moderns, the 1940 brides, have added to their homemaking vocabulary such terms as color harmony, period furniture or modern, two toned and pastel mixtures. They ask these things in addition to "Is it comfortable?" and "Will it wear well?"

A north side store dedicates two of its seven window displays to "Young America." This store believes, from experience that young America wants modern. To contrast with a sky blue in this window room of bleached mahogany, the store shows a yellow wing chair that a visiting grandfather would admit beats his old one. The room features a circular sectional sofa and the second "young America" room has a sectional sofa divided by a table. This store dedicates another window to 18th century Duncan Phyfe and Sheraton dining room furniture. The other windows are given over to moderately priced furniture in pieces that go together.

Show Modern Rooms.

Six completely furnished rooms from pictures on the walls to rugs on the floors provide idea and inspiration at a west side store. All the rooms are modern, some have dark and some bleached wood furniture.

There is a blue room with canary colored Venetian blinds and rose drapes. The furniture is modern walnut, a 1941 treatment for this wood. The gray room is a bedroom with blue rug. The gold room has blue rugs, gold walls, gold drapes and mirror, and the furniture is two toned American walnut. Green drapes give a contrasting color note to the rose room, a bedroom that boasts a vanity table with inlaid markings. A living room that would wear well is in dubonnet with mahogany desk and drapes of all over floral design.

A west side rug company is offering a new line of high grade broadlooms this fall called the nu-luster. This rug has a sheen that gives it the silky appearance of expensive orientals.

Streamlined Furnishings.

One northwest side store has two model rooms in Swedish modern. The furniture from these rooms can be purchased piece by piece or as a whole. Another store in this district shows a model five room house called the modern streamlined house. The idea in this was to not only have everything in one room match its fellow furniture but to have rooms lead into each other.

A department store that has branches south, west and north is featuring a line of inexpensive modern furniture in the natural wood tones and the pastel colored, modern textured upholstery. This was designed and is combined during furniture week for the home manager who has a small or moderate budget.

One south side store has redecorated and enlarged its display space and opened yesterday on the first day of National Furniture week. The new floor plan consists of a number of rooms in which furniture can be displayed in groups. The second floor of this store, which was formerly occupied by the upholstery and repair department, is now display space.

The new approach to furniture buying in neighborhood stores is "Come over to our house, madam, you can copy the whole thing or part."

WOMEN VOTERS OF SOUTH SHORE WILL HOLD TEA

The second fall tea of the South Shore League of Women Voters for members and guests will take place Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. P. Distler, 7370 South Shore drive. Guest speaker will be Mrs. Raymond Knapp, chairman of the organization committee of the Illinois League of Women Voters.

Members of the committee in charge of the tea are Mrs. Fred Sweet, Mrs. Samuel Naismith, Mrs. C. W. Muehlberger, Mrs. W. C. Crimp, Mrs. Leo Halliday, Mrs. W. D. Regenitter, Mrs. C. E. Refield, Mrs. Hjalmer Johnson, and Mrs. Newton Turney. Mrs. James Errant is general chairman of the teas.

Assisting Mrs. Distler at the tea table will be Mrs. H. E. Johnson, president of the unit; Mrs. Clarence Muehlenberger, and Mrs. Henry McKay.

Community Hospital Guild Holds Dinner Dance Oct. 12

The annual dinner-dance of the South Chicago Community Hospital guild will take place on Oct. 12 at the Hotel Shoreland. Entertainment will consist of music and a floor show.

Enjoys Puppetry Program at Ogden Park

Miss Marilyn Owen, 6345 South May street, has the big bad wolf right in the palm of her hand, but only because it's a puppet. Marilyn is one of the neighborhood girls who likes the puppetry instruction to be offered this fall and winter by the supervisors at Ogden park. The new seasonal program of activities, conducted by the park district thruout the city for young and old, will open tomorrow. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

COLORED WOMEN LEAD IN DRIVE FOR WASTE CANS

Push War on Garbage in 2d Ward.

Some of the most efficient work done in the city in connection with the placing of garbage cans in buildings has been accomplished in the 2d ward under a committee of colored women headed by Mrs. Mildred Daniels of 3233 Prairie avenue.

At the beginning of the city's drive to furnish every house with a receptacle, the 2d ward was almost the worst in the city. According to Mrs. Daniels there were only about 700 garbage cans in the entire ward.

The superintendent of streets, Morris Laphen, appealed to the community to help him clean up the district. An immediate response came from William L. Dawson, ward committeeman, who gave $100 to start a revolving fund.

Names Committee Head.

To handle the funds, he decided on a sanitation committee with Mrs. Daniels at the head. She chose five women to help her. They were Mrs. Josephine Ross, Mrs. Mary Gould, Mrs. Fanny McDonald, Mrs. Bessie Rose, and Mrs. Rose Shepherd.

The committee then began a house to house canvass, asking each householder to buy a refuse can. To those who were willing to purchase a receptacle, they offered an oil drum which had been repainted and stenciled with a number.

Record Is Kept.

A record has been kept of each can and the buyer so that there is little chance of the cans being lost or misplaced. Those who were unable to afford a garbage can were given one.

The cans were sold for 50 cents each and the money was replaced in the fund. At the most recent count, the ward had 4,998 buildings supplied with cans, but 1,449 were without them. Mrs. Daniels expressed the hope that the ward would soon be completely supplied, and that maintenance of the revolving fund would insure the ward remaining 100 per cent.

HYDE PARK HIGH SCHOOL WEEKLY SELECTS STAFF

The new staff of the Hyde Park High school weekly was announced last week by Miss Helen Gallagher, editorial adviser. Lucille Buck, 6039 Woodlawn avenue, will be executive editor, filling the position originally allotted to Helen Biederman, 7642 Colfax avenue, who was graduated recently from summer school.

Mary Lawrence, 6138 Langley avenue, is make-up editor; Catherine Kyros, 6209 Evans avenue, is head of the literary department; Wyllis Brittan, 5418 Drexel avenue, assignment editor, and Miriam Klineberg, 7251 Bennett avenue, and Jo Ann Seelig, 5001 Drexel boulevard, are co-editors of the public relations bureau.

Seymour Friedman, 724 East 43d street, and Scott Nichols, 5220 Greenwood avenue, are sports editors. Jane Koefoed, 7032 Stony Island avenue, of the journalism class, is copy editor and Edmond Frank, 5419 Ingleside avenue, is advertising manager.

Barn Dance to Get Freshmen Acquainted

One way of getting college freshmen from all parts of the western hemisphere acquainted in a hurry is to invite them to a barn dance. These students beginning their first semester at the University of Chicago practiced the "Dos-y-dos" last week in preparation for the rural stomp scheduled by the institution for Wednesday evening as one of the highlights of Orientation week. The dancers are Emilie Rashevsky and Bob Boyer. In the background, keeping time to the music, are (left to right): Janice Goode, Betty Leonard, Mary Toft, Ross Cardwell, Guido Weigend, and Bob Wright. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

HOSPITAL UNIT PLANS TO MEET ON WEDNESDAY

The woman's auxiliary of the Woodlawn hospital will meet at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the hospital building, 6060 Drexel avenue. Addresses of welcome will be given by Dr. Lawrence F. Draper, president of the hospital staff; Miss Grace De Vilbiss, superintendent, and Mrs. Marion Andreen, president of the auxiliary.

Officers for the new year are Mrs. Andreen, president; Mrs. Herbert Riggs, Mrs. Clinton Elliott, and Mrs. Robert MacKenzie, vice presidents; Mrs. Peter Laninga, recording secretary; Mrs. Willis Gouwens, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Robert Parker, treasurer; Mrs. Mitchell Kennedy, hospitalization chairman; Mrs. LeRoy Herbst, house chairman; Mrs. David Goldberg, program chairman; Mrs. C. Wallace McDowell, social chairman, and Mrs. Aaron Epstein, library chairman.

The auxiliary maintains two rooms with separate cubicles for charity cases. Last year 33 patients were provided for by the auxiliary for a total of 371 hospital days.

Chapter of Purple Heart to Hold Monthly Meeting

Members of Ray Workman chapter, No. 50, of the Military Order of the the Purple Heart will hold their regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening at the Hotel Sherman. All wearers of the Purple Heart medal are invited to attend.

WILLKIE CLUB SETS GOAL IN 7TH WARD AS 1,000 MEMBERS

Frederick Shannon, chairman of the 7th Ward Willkie club of the Chicago Business Men's Election committee of 1940, predicted last week that at least 1,000 workers will have joined the group by election day. The club, which has grown to 300 members since it was organized on Labor day, was founded to coördinate the efforts of local business men who are backing Wendell Willkie for President.

Grace Walsh.

Members canvass the ward for votes, distribute buttons, and help in any other way necessary.

The 7th Ward club played an important rôle in Willkie's recent visit to the south shore. Aiding Mr. Shannon on the reception committee for the candidate were five of the club's youngest members — Miss Grace Walsh, Miss Shirley Walsh, Miss Priscella Kress, Miss Virginia Rabe, and Miss Peggy Rabe.

BUNDLE MOVIE TOMORROW WILL AID THE NEEDY

A "bundle movie" will take place tomorrow afternoon at the Harper theater, 53d street and Harper avenue. The show, which will last from 2 until 5 o'clock, is being sponsored by Sarah Greenebaum lodge No. 16.

In place of the usual admission fee, all adults and children will be admitted by bringing a bundle of men's, women's, or children's discarded clothing or anything else which would be of value to the needy. The only requirement is that the items must be usable.

Lodge No. 16 maintains four free clinics for underprivileged children. For those who desire to contribute but cannot arrange to attend the "bundle movie," or if packages are too bulky for personal delivery, arrangements may be made for pick-ups by phoning Atlantic 3598.

Union Printers Celebrate 25th Bowling Season

The Union Printers' league, who for years have been very prominent in the bowling world, will open their 25th year, on Sept. 25. This year being their silver jubilee year, the committee has arranged several gala evenings at Bensinger's Randolph alleys. President Tom Canty of Chicago Typographical union No. 16 will welcome the bowlers and roll the first ball. A large attendance is anticipated for the opening night.

Officers for the ensuing year are: V. Dizer, president, and Al Hoch, secretary.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

HENRY Heffner, clerk of St. John's Episcopal Mission, Flossmoor, has announced the appointment of Miss Rachael Ann Bottorf as director of educational and recreational activities of St. John's church. An alumnus of Western Illinois State Teachers' college, Macomb, Miss Bottorf has been instructor in dramatics and English at St. Katherine's Episcopal School for Girls, Davenport, Ia., and has made a number of radio appearances. She is a member of the American Guild of Organists. St. John's school will open today.

Rachael Ann Bottorf.

A pair of Our Towners last week won distinction at the Central States Dahlia society of Chicago annual flower show at the Garfield Park conservatory. Fred L. Trauth, 8429 South Elizabeth street, won the Dahlia society silver cup, which means that he took first place for the largest number of points in the amateur division for the section including from 100 to 200 plants.

Mrs. August Heller, 7826 Eberhart avenue, was given first prize for the best specimen of the Mrs. Robert R. McCormick variety of dahlia. She was presented with the Dahlia society medal. There were thousands of entries in the show.

MR. AND MRS. JACK DAVIS of Blue Island last week became the first couple in the United States to inform Clinton M. Washburn, sponsor of Honeymoon Isle, Fla., that they are expecting a baby. This made the Davises the first entrants in the Honeymoon Isle Stork derby. Mr. Washburn has announced that he would give the 20 cabins on the island and a deed to a strip of beachfront to the first 20 honeymoon couples who had babies. The couples will have lifelong use of the secluded island for vacations as often as they wish, provided they are not divorced.

Eighty-three year old Adam Burns, 6838 Normal boulevard, who wouldn't go near an airplane four weeks ago, took an air trip to Milwaukee recently which convinced him that this should be his only mode of distance traveling from now on. He is said to be the oldest person ever to leave the Municipal airport on such a flight.

"I thought the things weren't safe," he says, "until I saw my sister leave for a trip to Memphis, Tenn. I decided, 'if she can do it, I can do it.' Now I thing flying is a wonderful experience. I'm planning an air trip to California for next year."

During the next four years La Verne Beckman, 2801 S. Kostner avenue, will be studying for his bachelor of science degree in aeronautical engineering. He is enrolled in the Lewis School of Aeronautics at Lockport, where he began his classes last week. Francis Hazzard, of Wilmington, is also attending Lewis. He will spend the next 12 months learning about the repair and maintenance of airplane engines, having registered for the master mechanic course.

The fourth annual press conference for woman's club presidents and press committees will be held at 2:45 o'clock Friday afternoon in Mandel Brothers grill. Miss Betty Browning, club editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and other club editors will be speakers.

H. T. Heald, president of the Illinois Institute of Technology, recently announced that R. J. Spaeth, 8301 Langley avenue, has been appointed to the administrative staff of the new school. A native of Salina, Kas., and a graduate of the American university of Washington, D. C. Mr. Spaeth, as business manager, will be in charge of plant operation and maintenance, purchases and general office service. The appointment was made to facilitate the conduct of business affairs for the institute, recently formed by the merger of Armour Institute of Technology and Lewis Institute.

The Rev. Antony J. Kolanczyk, son of John Kolanczyk, 8837 Burley avenue, will be installed as pastor of the Church of the Ascension, Bose Line, Mich., near Detroit, today. The appointment was made by Archbishop Edward Mooney of the Michigan archdiocese. Father Kolanczyk's family and many friends have chartered a bus to take them to Bose Line to attend the ceremonies. The new pastor is a graduate of Mt. Carmel High school and worked as a moulder in the foundry department in the South Chicago steel mills before he entered the seminary.

TWO appointments affecting the South Shore Boy Scout setup were announced last week by J. Faryl McClanahan, 8846 Harper avenue, chairman of the district training committee. J. A. Kohn, 10439 Ewing avenue, was made chairman of the Eastern community leaders training committee and Charles P. McNicholas, 1740 East 73d street, is the new chairman of Woodlawn's community training committee.

Kappa Delta Alumnae.

The South Side Alumnae association of Kappa Delta sorority will begin its fall meetings Wednesday evenings at the home of Miss Ruth Claassen, 7726 Crandon avenue.

DRAMA, NATURE STUDY TO HAVE NEW EMPHASIS

Gym Exercises Also to Be Stressed.

A fall and winter program designed to aid neighborhood children and adults both physically and educationally will begin tomorrow in south side parks. The program has been planned by the park district as a leisure time schedule which will utilize hours between work or school and bed time for south siders.

Featured this year will be gymnastics, calesthenics, and physical exercises for youth development in park fieldhouses. Another interesting activity will be the Little Theater group, which again will present three major productions during the winter. They will consist of a drama, a mystery comedy, and an operetta at the Goodman theater. The best amateur talent available in the parks will comprise the casts of the plays.

Nature Study Groups.

Innovations in the program will include nature study groups conduced by the artcraft division in which boys and girls will forage in the parks to collect and study various phases of animal and plant life during the autumn. They will gather brightly colored leaves and twigs, acorns, cocoons, and other materials for tree ornaments for fieldhouse yuletide parties. Home hygiene and home nursing also will be part of the artcraft program.

A popular indoor pastime is expected to be table games for young and old. Chess, checkers, bridge, pinochle, ping pong and other contests of skill will be played daily.

Outdoor sports fields will be available in many parks for football, soccer, and rugby. There also will be ice skating on all lagoons and flooded areas during suitable weather.

Both adults and youths will be given an opportunity by craft division instructors to study the use and application of the International Morse code.

Schedule in Parks.

Following are the activities which will be offered in each south side park:

FINDS BOYS PLENTY HUSKY.

So now we're going to have conscription and our boys are going to learn how to defend themselves and their country, just in case I wonder how much our lads need the training.

As a daily commuter from the southwest side, I can testify that nearly all the young chaps I meet are good at fending for themselves. They're first off and first on the crowded street cars. They can protect themselves in crowds rushing for the "L" trains, and they're good on the buses, too.

I'm not blaming them. If any of us expect to get to work, we have to be good in the noble art of self-defense and self-preservation in order to make it. I think it might be cheaper to sentence all young fellows to three months of southwest side commuting, the cross-town variety, and if they didn't know how to fight for themselves then, they never would! JERRY.

ASKS BENCHES AT HARBOR.

One of Jackson park's most frequented places is the beautiful yacht harbor entrance. It is just as popular in winter as in summer, yet there are only a few benches about. A place so inviting and restful should have a few more benches for the mothers and older persons who visit it. T. F.

STREET A SALESROOM.

An auto company in the 6100 block on Cottage Grove avenue is using nearly one block for the sale of used cars. It is also using the street and it is impossible to park cars around there. I believe this practice should be stopped, as the taxpayer is paying for the ground being used to sell cars. O. A.

STUDY OF YOUTH TO BE RESUMED BY URBAN LEAGUE

Will Aid Negro Drive Against Crime.

Monthly luncheon meetings bringing together representatives of south side elementary and high schools will be resumed Monday, Oct. 7, at Poro college, 4415 South Park way, it was announced last week by the Chicago Urban league. The meetings, which are approved by the board of education, will be devoted to a discussion of the problems of the schools and their pupils.

Thus the campaign to curb juvenile delinquency and crime among Negro youths, begun last year under the direction of Joseph Jefferson of the Urban league assisted by the NYA, will continue to be prosecuted vigorously. Mr. Jefferson and Mrs. Lovelyn Evans were selected as chairman of the campaign at a recent meeting.

Police Will Aid.

The plan of coöperation between the police department and the Urban league also will be continued. Under this system, special police officers are assigned to the league for special work among roving gangs. The work last year proved effective and some good was accomplished according to Mrs. Evans.

Today is Urban League day at the Pilgrim Baptist church, 3301 South Indiana avenue. Members of the board of directors and the entire staff of the league will be guests. Staff members who will speak are Miss Juliette Boykin, Howard D. Gould, Frayser Lane, Eugene Turner, Mr. Jefferson, and A. L. Foster.

Plan Achievement Club.

The league, under the leadership of Mrs. Turner, is tentatively planning to organize a Junior Achievement club among the Negroes of the south area. Junior Achievement is a project whereby American boys and girls learn the American system of free enterprise by actually organizing and operating corporations themselves. It is popular thruout the United States.

A discussion of the possibility of a Junior Achievement club on the south side took place at the Youth conference held last week at the Bowen Country club in Waukegan. A number of youths and representatives of church and club groups attended the convocation.

Archbishop to Be Guest of Catholic Club Oct. 3

Mrs. Peter J. Needham will preside at the opening meeting of the year for the South Side Catholic Woman's club on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 3, in the Southmoor hotel. Guests will be Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch and the Rev. P. J. McGuire, spiritual director of the club.

CONGRESS RACE HAS EARLY START IN 1ST DISTRICT

King Launches 3 Point Vote Campaign.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Congressional fights in south and southwest Chicagoland gathered headway last week, particularly in the embattled 1st district, which always takes its politics seriously.

Former State Senator William E. King, the Republican nominee, carried the fight to his Democratic opponent, Arthur W. Mitchell. Both King and Mitchell are Negroes, and the district they seek to represent for the next two years is predominantly colored.

King assailed his rival's congressional record in talks before ward and precinct groups. He accused Mitchell of being less than a timid champion of the cause of his own race, citing Mitchell's much publicized friendliness toward southern Democrats as an indication that more aggressive leadership is needed in the district. King promises to furnish that leadership.

Promises Housing Aid.

The G. O. P. candidate promises that when he is elected he will work vigorously for anti-lynching legislation, the granting of work and direct relief to worthy persons, and a greater share of low cost housing for the Negro.

Unless there is a cessation of the wild spending of the present administration, the time will soon come when even deserving relief clients will be devoid of aid, King charges.

A surprise contest has developed in the large 6th district, which takes a big slice of the southwest side as well as most of the west side and western suburbs.

An aggressive independent G. O. P. organization, calling itself the 6th Illinois Congressional District Willkie club, launched a campaign to raise funds and give their services in behalf of the entire Republican ticket.

Their particular objective is the election of a Republican representative for the 6th, which the district has not had for many years. The last Republican the 6th sent to Washington was John J. Gorman, who served one two-year term, starting in 1924.

Give Aid to Wagner.

Gorman was defeated in 1926 by James T. Igoe, who was succeeded in 1930 by another Democrat, Thomas J. O'Brien. O'Brien also served three terms before he retired two years ago to become sheriff of Cook county. The Democratic machine picked as his successor Anton F. Maciejewski of Cicero, who is trying for reëlection.

The Republicans are pinning their hopes on Joseph Wagner, Berwyn independent dairyman, who has attracted attention for his opposition to the federal milk licensing plan that was abandoned after Wagner and other dairymen obtained an injunction in Chicago restraining its enforcement.

Wagner can count on the almost solid support of the suburbs, the Willkie club leaders say, so they are concentrating their efforts in the Democratic strongholds of Chicago.

Another contest of considerable interest is getting under way in the 2d district, where former Congressman Patrick H. Moynihan is seeking to retake the seat from which the incumbent, Raymond S. McKeough, ousted him six years ago.

Moynihan accuses Congressman McKeough with neglecting the interests of his constituency to curry the favor of the administration start his canvass of stores in the neighborhood arm in arm with his Democratic colleague, Stillman M. Frankland. Berman said he has found that this way of getting acquainted is of the greatest value in winning votes.

VOTE ANALYSIS REVEALS LOSS FOR DEMOCRATS

Fifth District Variance Is Pointed Out.

"Everything is on a 50-50 basis so far as Frankland and I are concerned," Berman said. "We use similar campaign cards, with pictures of both of us."

Berman disagreed with Republican Lee's interpretation of 1938 and 1940 primary vote figures. The Republicans pick up some Democratic votes in November elections because the supporters of the party in power decide to give a little encouragement to the other side, he said.

Berman is a manufacturers' agent for foundry supplies. He was supervisor of the state liquor revenue division in 1933 and 1934. The Legislative Voters' league noted that he was "steady in attendance" in the house.

Frankland, 29 years old, is the youngest candidate. He aspires to the vacancy created by the death of Prof. James Weber Linn of the University of Chicago, who ventured into politics during the last few years of his life and was elected to the house in 1938. Frankland is secretary to the city clerk and was formerly employed in the state department of finance.

Frankland opened his campaign Tuesday night in Shotwell hall, 1442 East 55th street. He pledged himself to work for the proposed Garfield highway, linking present highways and streets on the south side. It would connect with the Chicago airport and industrial plants, thus assuming military value, he said.

Only highways of value to the armed forces will be given federal grants for some time to come, Frankland predicted. Therefore, he said, a state defense highway board should be formed of city, county, and other groups to see that Illinois receives its share of federal road funds.

THIRD DISTRICT WOMEN TO HAVE SAFETY PROGRAM

Exhibit Will Be Held Tuesday, Oct. 8.

Safety drives will be major projects of the public welfare department of the 3d district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, this season. This is in response to a request from the General federation, which has inaugurated a safety program in coöperation with the National Safety committee.

Mrs. Arthur Kasehagen. [Gordon-Hepburn Photo.]

In connection with the general safety work, Mrs. Arthur Kasehagen, 10352 Wood street, head of the community service division of the Illinois state department of public welfare, will present a highway safety program at club headquarters, 30 West Washington street, on Oct. 8.

Will Be Special Guest.

Mrs. T. V. Moore, General Federation chairman of the committee on public safety, will be the special guest. Mrs. Moore, who resides in Miami, Fla., will be in Chicago to attend the National Safety congress.

The following speakers will be on the program: Judge Gibson E. Gorman of the Municipal court, whose subject will be "Legislation Enforcement"; James Stannard Baker, traffic consultant of the National Safety council, "Motor Vehicle Administration"; Otto K. Jelinek, traffic engineer of the Chicago park district, "Engineering"; George W. Fleming, general secretary of the Keep Chicago Safe committee, "Education."

Others Who Will Speak.

Lieut. F. M. Kreal, director of Northwestern university training school, "Training Personnel"; George Barton, director of safety and engineering for Chicago Motor club, "Research."

Mrs. W. T. Buzan, 8829 South Justine street, chairman of the 3d district public welfare department, and Mrs. John C. Biemeck, chairman of public welfare in the 6th district, will be in charge of a safety exhibit. Luncheon will be served at headquarters following the addresses. Special entertainment is being planned for the afternoon. Mrs. Buzan is receiving luncheon reservations.

ARMY RESERVE OFFICERS WILL MEET THURSDAY

The first fall meeting of the Cook county chapter of the Reserve Officers association will be held on Thursday evening at the Hotel La Salle. Capt. Charles H. Blumenfeld, president of the chapter, will preside.

The chapter is one of the largest in the country, claiming more than 1,000 members, and is planning an extensive training program for the year. Many officers of the chapter are on extended active duty with the army now, and many more are expected to be called for duty soon.

Col. Fred L. Walker, of the Second army, with headquarters here, will be the principal speaker of the evening. He will discuss the army maneuvers held recently in Wisconsin. Col. John B. Johnson, U. S. A., chief of staff of the Illinois military area, and other regular army officers will be among the 800 officers expected at the meeting. Maj. Marvin Dixon, past president of the chapter, will be presented with a key.

Columbanus Isabellans Plan Card Party Friday

Columbanus circle, Daughters of Isabella, will start its fall program with a card party at 8 o'clock Friday evening at the Democratic hall, 8010 Cottage Grove avenue. Mrs. Ann Storen, 6921 Prairie avenue, and Mrs. Kathryn Starr, 8253 Throop street, are in charge of the arrangements.

Go Western, Young Rider

This group of young horse trail riders show how the western or dude ranch influence has lately taken hold in the Chicago area. Miss Elaine Victor, in the center, is all dressed up in black gabardine frontier pants, rose satin shirt, white woven Indian jacket, and black felt hat. Miss Louise Ford, holding her horse, Tex, is in blue and red plaid shirt, and levis pulled on over her riding boots. The hatless girl standing beside Miss Victor is Janet Skillen, whose jeans are topped by masculine shirt and gabardine windbreaker. From Tex's back Miss Sue Finney looks down, clad in oiled silk slicker that is handy to carry on a ride because it compresses into so little space. Donald Pebbles, at the right, wears jeans, green shirt, and maroon pullover sweater.

A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Two months or more of weekly riding lessons have convinced me I liked the sport more than casually, so I determined to invest in a regular riding outfit. I looked over the field and sought advice before I bought.

It became apparent to me that bridle path riders are less bound by tradition than, say, the hunting and jumping crowd, for whom dame fashion has laid down fairly rigid rules.

Horse trail clothing combinations are nearly as various as riders. True, most outfits consist of breeches, stout boots, and negligee shirts or sweaters, but in materials, color, and cut the variety is limitless.

I wondered whether to get the old favorite combination of high topped boots and regulation breeches, or the increasingly popular jodhpur outfit of ankle length boots with breeches that terminate in close fitting trouser legs.

Matter of Preference.

My instructor, Elmer J. Holdorf, and other veterans told me it was largely a matter of my own taste and requirements. They said the high boot combination offered such advantages as maximum warmth and leg protection, while jods were less confining and were easier to carry for short notice rides because they took up less storage room. I chose jods.

On advice of my more experienced friends, I also bought a windbreaker—an unlimited, loose fitting belted jacket with plenty of pockets. This can be carried handily in case of sudden cold or rains, and it isn't so much in the way in case one wants to shed it during a ride.

I found riding an ideal consumer of my outworn white shirts that seemed too good to discard entirely. They come to an honorable and useful end on horseback.

So, too, do last season's unlined leather gloves, which serve admirably as hand protection against rein blisters, and the dirt that clings inevitably to harness leather.

Advises Heavy Sox.

For wear next to the feet, sweat sox are the thing. The soft, thick fabric absorbs perspiration and at the same time cushions the feet. Sweat sox are suitable for either warm or cold weather. When buying boots it is well to get them large enough to accommodate heavy sox.

Generally speaking, these clothing tips are applicable to either sex, for woman riders on the bridle paths and horse trails no longer swath themselves in skirts, but copy the men sartorially.

Head covering is optional. Most riders in summer go bareheaded. The exceptions go in for considerable variety. Men, of course, cling slavishly to the fedora. Women are partial to the peasant kerchief, or the small, close fitting felt hat known, I believe, as the bowler.

The cost of an outfit is just about what the purchaser makes it. One can acquire all the necessary wearables for as little as $10 or less, or he can shoot the works and spend as much as a good horse would cost.

I hold that it is best to invest in better quality garments and footgear that will stand up well under the frequent cleanings to which their use exposes them.

Styles Remain Same.

It is well to bear in mind when outfitting that your riding attire, unlike street clothing, does not go out of style quickly. If it is chosen judiciously it will deliver perhaps several years of service.

As freakish as riding clothes may seem to some persons, each peculiarity is grounded in sound reason, I learned.

Take breeches, for example. The peg tops give ample seat room. The close fitting legs eliminate clothing folds that might cause chafing.

Boots are of heavy leather and extend above the ankles because they protect against the stirrup irons. High boot tops insulate the rider's legs from harsh stirrup straps and possible thorns and branches of the trail. They also help to keep cleaning bills down, by standing between trouser legs and the saddle straps and the horse's sides, which unfortunately are not always clean, particularly in the cheaper stables.

SECOND DISTRICT ACTIVITIES TO START WITH TEA

Chairmen Are to Talk of Season's Plans.

Second District club activities will begin Thursday afternoon with a "get-together" tea for district chairmen at the home of Mrs. Ivan Henderson, 1710 East 68th place, second vice president and dean of the department of work of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, second district. Topics of discussion will be program outlines, dates of meetings and objectives.

Special guest will be Mrs. Walter W. Seymour, 7126 Euclid avenue, former dean of departments of the General Federation, who will give an address on the work of departments. Other guests will be Mrs. John W. Simson, 418 West 118th street, president of the district, and Mrs. Terrence C. Craig, 10045 Seeley avenue, first vice president.

Delegates to the law observance department will be guests of the new chairman, Mrs. George Stray, 720 East 81st street, on Wednesday afternoon to outline plans for the year.

Ambrose Woman's Club.

The first meeting of the season will be held at the Del Prado hotel on Friday afternoon, Oct. 4, with the new president, Mrs. William Meister, 7922 Oglesby avenue, presiding. The annual card party will be held in the Del Prado hotel on Thursday evening, Oct. 10.

Chatham Fields Women.

Mrs. Chester E. Nellis, 8012 Evans avenue, ways and means chairman, has announced that there will be a bridge breakfast Wednesday morning in the home of Mrs. Merwin W. Pratt, 10541 Eberhart avenue, first vice president.

At a special board meeting recently changes were made in the executive board. Mrs. J. Earl Payne, 8220 Evans avenue, has been appointed American home chairman, replacing Mrs. Frank M. Evans, 8132 Maryland avenue, who will take over the duties of second vice president and membership chairman. Mrs. George Bone, 8346 Prairie avenue, is to be the literature chairman, in place of Mrs. Harry Ward Miller, 8122 Evans avenue, who has been made treasurer of the club. Mrs. Fred Barron, 8146 Langley avenue, is the new chairman of the public welfare department and Mrs. O. M. Bing, 8212 Champlain avenue, is the new social chairman.

Chesterfield Woman's Club.

The organization will open its 11th year on Thursday with a meeting of the board of directors at the home of Mrs. John Morris, 415 East 89th place. Mrs. Morris, who is chairman of the American citizenship department, and Mrs. William H. Lawshe, press and publicity chairman, will entertain the 17 board members at luncheon.

Chrysolite Club.

The club's 44th year will begin on Tuesday, Oct. 1, at the Del Prado hotel. Officers are Mrs. W. G. Conner, president; Mrs. H .R. Foster, first vice president; Mrs. W. A. Eaton, second vice president; Mrs. E. F. Bryand, recording secretary; Mrs. W. B. Clancey, corresponding secretary and Mrs. Earle Combs, treasurer.

Hyde Park Travel Club.

The organization will have a luncheon and card party at the Better Homes institute, 111 West Jackson boulevard, Thursday morning. Mrs. Ira A. Gay is in charge of arrangements.

Park Manor Woman's Club.

A dessert card party will be held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. M. Bayrne, 8042 South Michigan avenue, it has been announced by Mrs. C. W. Swatzel, 8041 South Wabash avenue, ways and means chairman.

Woodlawn Study Club.

Officers for the new season are Mrs. W. R. Smith, 7719 Bennett avenue, president; Mrs. J. K. Piety, 7959 Marquette avenue, vice president; Mrs. H. L Gorman, 7238 Coles avenue, recording secretary; Mrs. O. G. Schoeps, 6930 Crandon avenue, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. J. F. Fanselow, 6136 Evans avenue, treasurer.

Mrs. L. B. Herbst, 6735 Oglesby avenue, will serve as chairman of the fine arts department; Mrs. J. Colin Moore, home and education; Mrs. George Kirk, legislative department, and Mrs. W. B. Ingledew, of public welfare.

Woodlawn Mothers Roundtable.

Mrs. E. A. Johnson, new president, and Mrs. W. H. Lutton, new program chairman, have completed plans for the club year and will be hostesses to the board at a luncheon on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Lutton, 7825 Cornell avenue.

The board of directors will include Mrs. E. A. Johnson, president; Mrs. Lutton, 1st vice president; Mrs. W. M. Thomson, 2d vice president; Mrs. F. A. Moore, recording secretary; Mrs. O. F. Glaubitz, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Herbert Pratt Jr., treasurer.

Windsor Park Woman's Club.

The autumn season will be opened Tuesday, Oct. 1, in the new club rooms at 2619 East 76th street. The program, which will be presented by Mrs. Clarence Duner, 7627 Yates avenue, chairman, will feature a dramatic story by Florence Bourke Ellis. Miss Ruth Everleigh, violinist, a finalist in the contest conducted by the Greater South Side Four Arts league, will offer "Musical Memories." She will be accompanied at the piano by her sister, Sadie.

Woodlawn Woman's Club.

Invitations to girls who are eligible for the second junior auxiliary of the club have been sent out for a meeting at the home of Mrs. John K. Piety, 7959 Marquette avenue, on Thursday evening. Mrs. Piety is assisting Mrs. P. A. Gray, chairman in charge of organizing the new auxiliary.

777 U.S. STATIONS SHIFT POSITIONS ON DIAL IN 1941

W-G-N to Keep Frequency of 720 Kilocycles.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Wave lengths of 777 of the 862 radio stations operating in the standard broadcast band between 550 and 1,600 kilocycles in the United States are to be shifted on March 29, 1941. These shifts are to be made in accordance with the provisions of the North American regional broadcasting agreement, concluded at Havana, Cuba, in 1937.

The Federal Communications commission last week filed with the state department the proposed reallocations of frequencies [wave lengths] in the standard broadcast band. The signatory governments—the United States, Canada, Cuba, and Mexico—are now exchanging their tentative assignments before making them finally operative.

Clear Channels for Mexico.

The reallocation also provides for changes in wave lengths of many stations in Canada, Cuba, and Mexico. Mexico will receive five clear channels which prior to this agreement had no frequencies reserved for high power stations in the standard broadcast band. Cuba gets an additional clear channel from Canada.

This is how the reallocation of channels is to be accomplished, according to present plans:

Stations now operating on channels from 550 to 720 kilocycles, inclusive, will retain their present assignments. Thus W-G-N, assigned to 720 kilocycles, will continue there.

Stations operating from 740 to 780 will move up 10 kilocycles, or one channel. Thus WBBM will move from 770 to 780.

Stations from 790 to 870 will move up 20 kilocycles. WENR-WLS will move, thus, from 870 to 890.

Stations between 880 and 1,450 kilocycles will advance 30 kilocycles.

Clear channel stations from 1,460-1,490 kilocycles will move to 1,500-1,530.

Local stations now on the 1,500 channel will move to 1,490.

Listeners to Change Habits.

These shifts will force listeners to change their listening habits with regard to most stations. All push-button radio receivers will require adjustments for all stations higher in frequencies than W-G-N.

The correlated shifting of Canadian, Mexican, and Cuban stations is expected to eliminate interference with United States stations and improve reception. Interference from Mexican and Cuban stations has plagued particularly rural listeners. Certain broadcast stations on the Mexican border, largely run by interests denied the use of radio in the United States, are to be eliminated. The Havana pact contains no provisions for their continued operation.

Any broadcaster has until Oct. 15 to register his views with the FCC if he takes exception to his assignment.

WARD AND ELSON TO JOIN ON NEW SPORTS PROGRAM

Arch Ward, sports editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and Bob Elson, popular W-G-N sportscaster, will collaborate on a new sports program—"At the Sports Desk with Bob Elson," which will be presented for the first time from 7:30 to 7:45 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N. The program will be heard on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at the same hour.

Ward's entire staff will assist in gathering facts and unearthing features for the broadcasts. The Tribune experts will cover every phase of sports from football to ping pong. Among these contributing writers will be Irving Vaughan, Edward Burns, Wilfrid Smith, Bob Becker, Howard Barry, George Strickler, Charles Bartlett, and Frank Mastro.

Elson will be at the microphone, sitting at the radio sports desk and giving fans a survey of the sports news.

Eleven years' experience in all types of sports announcing qualify Elson as eminently fitted for his sports desk rôle. He has covered every world series since 1929—a distinction held by no other broadcaster.

He has missed only one All-Star baseball game, and that thru sickness.

Education and National Defense, Review Topic

Problems faced by educators and educational institutions under America's program of national defense will be discussed on the Northwestern Reviewing Stand from 10:15 to 10:30 a. m. today over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Irving J. Lee, professor in the School of Speech, and Ernest O. Melby, dean of the School of Education at Northwestern university will be speakers.

BLEND CLASSIC—OLD AND NEW ON SYMPHONIC HOUR

Marion Claire Will Be Soloist on W-G-N.

Music from the pens of modern classicists as well as older masterworks will be presented on the Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour from 9 to 10 o'clock tomorrow night. With Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, as speaker of the evening, the program will be broadcast over W-G-N, the Mutual network, and the entire network of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation.

Modern classical numbers by Pierne, Debussy, and Korngold will be blended with the works of Beethoven and Tschaikowsky on the program. Marion Claire, lyric soprano, will be featured soloist. The W-G-N Symphonic orchestra will be directed by Henry Weber.

The orchestra will open the program with the first movement from the Beethoven's Third Symphony. Entitled "Eroica," this symphony originally was written as a tribute to Napoleon, but the title was changed when the Corsican seized the imperial throne.

"Barcarolle" to Be Feature.

Other presentations from the older classics and operas include the "Hungarian Dance" and "Czardas" from Tschaikowsky's "Swan Lake Ballet," played by the orchestra.

"Barcarolle," from "The Tales of Hoffmann," by Jacques Offenbach, will be presented by Marion Claire and Helen Bartush, member of the augmented chorus. Miss Bartush is a young Chicago mezzo-contralto.

Featured among the three numbers from modern classicists will be themes from Debussy, presented by Miss Claire and the orchestra.

Marietta's aria from "The Dead City," by Erich Korngold, sung by Miss Claire, and Gabriel Pierne's "Entrance of the Little Fauns," played by the orchestra, complete the numbers by the more modern composers.

The complete program:

First Movement from "Eroica" [Third Symphony] .... Beethoven
Orchestra.
Aria from Mignon .... Thomas
Miss Claire and orchestra.
Hungarian Dance and Czardas from
Barcarolle from the "Tales of Hoffman" .... Offenbach
Marion Claire, Helen Bartush and orchestra.
Swan Lake Ballet .... Tschaikowsky
Orchestra.
Speech ....
Col. Robert R. McCormick.
Marietta's aria, "The Dead City" ... Korngold
Miss Claire and orchestra.
Entrance of the Little Fauns .... Pierne
Orchestra.
Themes from Debussy .... Debussy
Miss Claire, chorus and orchestra.

The duet with Miss Claire will mark Miss Bartush's first featured appearance on the Symphonic hour. Miss Bartush has appeared with the Chicago opera for three seasons. She made her operatic debut with the Chicago opera three years ago.

William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N, is producer of the Symphonic Hour. Musical commentary for the program is written by Cecil Smith of the music and drama department of THE TRIBUNE.

HUMAN VALUE OF RELIGION TO BE MIDDAY THEME

An inspirational theme, "The Human Life Value of Religion—has been selected for this week's W-G-N Midday service by Dr. John L. Dickson, director of the program. The noon hour talks are broadcast daily, except Saturday and Sunday, from 12:35 to 1 p. m.

Representative churchmen on the series, in order of their appearance, are:

Rev. Harold M. ?ingsley, pastor, Church of the Good Shepherd.
Rev. Albert Buckner Coe, minister, First Congregational church, Oak Park.
Rev. Emerson Bradshaw, the Chicago Church federation.
Rev. John Thompson, pastor, the Chicago Temple church.
Harold Molter, Christian Science Committee on Publication for Illinois.

PETER QUILL TO RETURN OCT. 6 TO W-G-N—MBS

Weapons of Defense Theme of Serial.

Peter Quill, mysterious inventive wizard, is coming back to W-G-N. Starting Sunday Oct. 6 Peter Quill will be heard in a new series of dramatic broadcasts providing glimpses of possible weapons of the future for the defense of America. The adventure stories will deal with espionage, sabotage, and America's first line of defense with particular reference to science.

The new Peter Quill series, written and produced by Blair Walliser, will be broadcast from 3 to 3:30 p. m. Sundays. They will be sponsored.

Fantastic and daring inventions for the defense of the nation form the focal point of Peter Quill's new adventures. Gail Carson, who is engaged in counterespionage work, and Capt. Roger Dorn, a government antisabotage trouble shooter, protect Quill's inventions against the destructive efforts of saboteurs. Pitted against them is the Red Circle, sinister spy ring, headed by Michael Raclov and Sonya Danilo.

Mueller Plays Quill.

Alice Hill and Ken Griffin of last year's cast, which played for 40 weeks, again will have lead rôles as Gail Carson and Capt. Dorn. The part of Peter Quill, brilliant, enigmatic scientist and inventor, will be played by Marvin Mueller.

The inventions projected on the show, while bizarre and fantastic, are not beyond the realm of possibility, according to Producer Walliser. In fact, many are now on the borderline of perfection in scientific laboratories. Last year the Peter Quill show projected several inventions that since have come into use, among them the magnetic mine.

Plan Weird Sound Effects.

Among the inventions projected on the series this year is a powder which when placed in water will make a combustible fuel suitable for running gasoline engines.

Gordon on Sport Show.

Gray Gordon, dispenser of "Tic Toc" rhythm, and his orchestra will be Bill Stern's guests at 8:45 p. m. over WENR. The occasion will be a special "I'm an American" program.

THEATER OF AIR WILL RETURN TO W-G-N ON OCT. 5

Marion Claire to Star in 'Vagabond King.'

The Chicago Theater of the Air will reopen its doors on Saturday, Oct. 5, with "The Vagabond King" as the opening operetta. Marion Claire, W-G-N's prima donna, again will be starred in this series of hour long operetta productions, under the direction of William A. Bacher.

These streamlined versions of favorite operettas and light operas will run from 9 to 10 p. m. Saturdays over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system. The Chicago Theater of the Air again will be sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

A notable group of operatic, concert, and radio headliners has already been engaged to sing the male rôles in the operetta series. Conrad Thibault, well known to radio listeners and concertgoers, will be heard opposite Miss Claire in "The Vagabond King."

List of Male Stars.

Others who will be featured are James Melton, Jan Peerce, Richard Bonelli, John Carter, and Charles Kullman.

James Melton, who starred in "Bittersweet" last spring, will return to the Theater of the Air in "Chocolate Soldier" and "Eileen." Jan Peerce, Radio City Music Hall tenor, who played the male lead in "Student Prince," will be back again in the same rôle.

John Carter, Metropolitan Opera star, altho new to the Theater of the Air, is an old favorite with Chicagoans who heard him at the 1939 Chicagoland Music Festival and Grant park concerts. Carter's lyric tenor voice will be heard in the lead of "Robin Hood."

Bonelli to Be Starred.

Richard Bonelli, famous American operatic baritone, will sing the lead in "Desert Song."

Charles Kullman, Metropolitan Opera tenor who has sung leading rôles in Vienna, Salzburg, Berlin, and London, will support Miss Claire in the leading masculine rôle of "Madame Butterfly."

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and artistic director of the Chicago Opera company, will direct the W-G-N orchestra and chorus. Double casts again will be featured in these productions. A company of outstanding radio actors will enact the spoken parts of the characters with musical headliners doing the song.

WISHING WELL WILL MAKE DREAMS COME TRUE FOR LISTENERS

W-G-N listeners will find their dreams coming true beginning tomorrow when a new program entitled "The Wishing Well" will make its bow. "The Wishing Well" will be sponsored by a loop department store over W-G-N at 8:45 a. m., each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and at 9:00 a. m. each Tuesday and Thursday.

Mary Paxton.

Mary Paxton, mistress of ceremonies, will invite listeners to "make a wish" for anything they would like from the store, and in turn the store will make some one's wish come true each week.

Listeners are asked to write a letter of 40 words or less telling what they would like to have. To make the letter eligible, those who write in must state the day of the year on which their birthday falls—not their age, however, and also the date of their wedding anniversary if they are married. The writer of the week's best letter will be granted the thing wished for in the winning letter. In addition to the contest, style notes and popular recorded music of famous dance orchestras will be heard.

Star of "In Chicago Tonight"

Joan Bennett, who will be joined by her husband, Producer Walter Wanger, in next Thursday's presentation of "In Chicago Tonight." Miss Bennett will take one of the starring roles in a radio adaptation of the motion picture "Foreign Correspondent." The picture, soon to open in Chicago, is a Wanger production and released thru United Artists. The broadcast will be aired over W-G-N and Mutual from 7:30 to 8 p. m.

JOAN BENNETT, WANGER ON 'IN CHICAGO' SHOW

Actress Stars in Film of War Reporters.

Joan Bennett and Walter Wanger—noted actress and great Hollywood producer—will be "In Chicago Tonight" for W-G-N and the Mutual network from 7:30 to 8 p. m. next Thursday night.

Miss Bennett will have the lead rôle in a radio adaptation of "Foreign Correspondent," recently released by the Walter Wanger studios. Wanger will talk on the movie industry.

Walter Wanger.

Under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs at W-G-N, this "In Chicago Tonight" production will be one of the "movie night" preformances of the variety entertainment show. Presenting previews of important motion pictures opening in Chicago, movie night is a monthly feature of the "In Chicago Tonight" program.

Miss Bennett, youngest daughter of a noted theatrical family, made her stage debut with her father, Richard Bennett, in the Broadway production of "Jarnegan." Her first film rôle was in "Bulldog Drummond."

Joan Bennett has had notable rôles in "Private Worlds," "Disraeli," "The Pursuit of Happiness," "Two Is a Crowd," and Wild Girl." Her latest film is "House Across the Bay." In private life, Miss Bennett is the wife of Walter Wanger.

Wanger's production of "Foreign Correspondent," is rated by critics as one of the year's finest pictures. Wanger spent well over a million in money and a year in time in filming the production. The picture will open here soon.

Joan Bennett's rôle in the adaptation of "Foreign Correspondent" will mark the second appearance of a member of the famed Bennett family on W-G-N this year. Last January Constance Bennett played the lead in Noel Coward's "Shadow Play," presented over W-G-N.

Musical accompaniment for the show will be presented by the W-G-N dance orchestra under the direction of Harold Stokes.

Bears-Packers on WIND.

The professional football broadcast season begins today when the Chicago Bears meet the Green Bay Packers at Green Bay. WIND will broadcast the game starting at 3 p. m.

OLD TOWN HALL NOW LIVING ROOM IN MODERN HOME

Industrial Artist Revamps Aged Structure.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Have you ever felt the urge to buy an abandoned farm and do with it what you wish? Have you ever thought you would love to live with deep woods of your own as a background for your skies, a few hundred acres of gently rolling hills and rich meadow lands, a tiny rushing river, a little lake, and a real waterfall?

If so, you'll be interested in the adventure of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Pellegrin—who did just this.

Four years ago they bought an abandoned farm seven miles northwest of Woodstock, on United States highway 14.

Only Old Hall Remains.

On their grounds had been the thrilling little village of Brookdale a hundred years ago. Only the town hall was left.

But now all that has been changed. What was left of the old town hall is a quite enchanting living room in the new Pellegrin home; a room which retains the original beams and studs and century old timbers. It was Mrs. Pellegrin's idea to keep as much of the original structure as possible. In doing so she has captured the atmosphere of 200 years ago and built the first floor of the house in the same spirit.

Makes Own Furniture.

Indeed the first floor thruout reflects the very early Colonial tradition in faithful detail.

Mr. Pellegrin is an industrial artist, and he also is an artist in the use of fine woods. Thruout the house are examples of his work; in the early American chairs and tables which he designed and made, in the hardware and lighting which he also fashioned in his spare time, over a period of four years.

The exterior of the new main house is carried out in skintled brick. The colors are tan and brown and various shades of red, and the bricks are laid with great irregularity, which contributes to the informality of the home. Awnings blend in colors with the brick, and you enter directly into the living room thru an old Dutch door, the natural finish of its aged oak weathered to a grayish hue.

Here the original beams have been kept, and spaces between studding roughly bricked in. There is a large picture window on the front wall of the room to afford abundance of light, and opposite the entrance is a mammoth stone fireplace which reaches to the ceiling. Its fireplace shelf is of hand hewn oak and its stones gathered from the farm.

For Outdoor Dining.

Beyond this living room is the large, screened outdoor living room, with a second great fireplace of stone.

The kitchen is a gem. An artist's kitchen. It is both modern and as beautifully storied with the past as some kitchen from the coast of the Pilgrim fathers.

The room divides itself into two parts. In one there is the coal and wood range, with copper hood over it, and a wood surface table close. At the left of this is a deep closet, and on the adjacent wall a built-in barbecue fireplace. There is a brick floor on this utility wall and corner of the kitchen, and the color in the brick floor blends with the color of the linoleum used for the floor on the dining side of the kitchen.

Has Pine Walls.

The pine walls are mellow colored and rich, the dining table and chairs are honey shade. There also is a second range wall, and here is a modern sink with linoleum work surfaces.

On the first floor there also is a large utility service room, with refrigerator, lavatory, shower stall for summer bathers, and water heater.

The second floor, with its bedrooms and large roof deck opening from hall at the head of stairs, is treated with simple, modern simplicity. The floors are carpeted and besides the bedrooms and bath there is a very useful little sewing room.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 23.

Never allow weeds to go to seed. Pull or burn those on the vacant lot next door and if possible start a civic campaign by organizing all garden lovers to see to it that no weeds can exist in the community. Plow vacant lots and seed the ground so weeds cannot spread to the gardens. Take the initiative in this important activity and the entire community will be benefited.

Keep the garden area free from pieces of wire, broken branches, and all obnoxious things; mow the lawn so the heavy growth will not mat down and injure the standing grass; keep the beds trimmed or edged; prepare for bulb planting; order all bulbs for delivery as soon as possible.

Tuesday, Sept. 24.

Many of the wild flowers may be transplanted at this time and they will bloom next year.

This is about the last week that evergreens can be transplanted with assurance that they will not be injured, altho under all conditions they succeed best when moved with a ball of earth and burlaped. They will not do well in the congested, smoky areas of the city, hence other plants should be used.

Evergreens are excellent for windbreaks on the farm; they are unexcelled as screens and beautiful as specimens. The white pine is a rapid grower. Hemlock is a good hedge plant. Douglas fir and concolor fir grow large. Junipers are better adapted to the smaller place. If the evergreen becomes brown it is best to replace it with another. They should not enter winter with dry soil at the roots.

Wednesday, Sept. 25.

Disbud the chrysanthemums if large sized blooms are wanted. Remove the smaller burs with the fingers, leaving one or more buds to develop. If any plants are growing in the garden, dig and pot them before frost, put in a shady place for a few days and then remove to the enclosed porch or house.

Small bulbils from the stems of lilies should be removed and planted, preferably in a coldframe. Day lilies do well when fall transplanted. They are among the finest of hardy plants, doing well in sun or partial shade. Dig old lily-of-valley plants, enrich the soil, divide, and replant.

Thursday, Sept. 26.

Plant madonna lilies. Imbed them in sand if the soil is heavy. Plant narcissi as soon as possible for they should become established before severe weather arrives. Start another batch of freesias and oxalis bulbs. It is unnecessary to bury them or place them in darkness for rooting.

Friday, Sept. 27.

Fall is an excellent time to plant lilacs, but do not use too many or plant them closer than five to seven feet apart for they are strong growers. Some of the French varieties are very desirable. Buy 3 to 4 foot stock in preference to smaller sizes.

Water newly planted stock and mulch the ground with strawy manure after the ground freezes.

Saturday, Sept. 28.

Hardy annuals sown now will wait until spring to germinate, but they will start so much earlier than spring sown stock that flowers can be enjoyed very early. Suggested kinds to sow include cosmos, petunia, shirley poppy, calendula, nigella, portulaca, and snapdragon. The bachelor's button is a favorite and excellent for cutting. Sweet peas sown late and protected will come much earlier than spring sown seed.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

Feminine Comedy Team on Eddie Cantor's Show

Nan Rae and Maude Davis will add titters, giggles and guffaws to Eddie Cantor's Time to Smile program which bows in over WMAQ at 8:00 p. m. Wednesday, Oct. 2. One of the few feminine comedy teams ever to hit the airwaves, Rae and Davis will be a regular feature of the half hour program which includes Dinah Shore, songstress; Bobby Sherwood's orchestra, and Harry von Zeil, as announcer.

129 CHILDREN HAVE COMPLETED READING GAME

One hundred and twenty nine of the 172 children entered in the reading game at Bessemer Park Branch library have placed candles on the birthday cake, which means they have successfully reported on the required number of books.

The 20 south side schools which have participated in the game are Bowen, Bryn Mawr, Caldwell, Clay, Coles, Immaculate Conception, Immanuel Lutheran, Marsh, Parker, St. Bronislava, St. Joseph, St. Mary Magdelene, St. Michael, St. Patrick, SS. Peter and Paul, St. Thomas the Apostle, Sheridan, Sullivan, Thorp, and Warren.

The last six candles placed on the cake bear the names of Eleno Gonzales, Leroy Graczyk, Hazel Armstrong, Virginia Malicki, Raymond Crawford, and Jack Poljak.

The cake in the Calumet library is decorated with 50 candles. Schools represented are Bethlehem Lutheran, Gallistel, St. Francis, and Taylor. Frances Beme placed the 50th candle on the cake. Sixty-nine children are entered in the game.

Wild Life at South Side School

[Genevieve L. Peck Photo.]

More than 60 youngsters started back to school last week at the Hyde Park School for Little Children, 5445 Hyde Park boulevard. The children range from nursery school age to second grade. Nicky De Zavodow, 6932 Chappel avenue, and Jean Zimmerman, 5455 Hyde Park boulevard, are learning about wild life from Peter, the pet rabbit.

HAMMOND TO GET 10 ACRE TRACT AS SITE FOR A PARK

Donor Stipulates Area Must Be Beautified.

The Hammond park board will meet on Tuesday, Oct. 8, to accept officially the gift of a 10 acre site for a public park by Frank R. Betz. This will be a pleasant task for the board, since it had been planning to purchase the tract, which is valued at $25,000, for several years.

Mr. Betz decided last week to donate the land on condition that the new park bear the name of his father, the late Frank S. Betz. He expects the park to beautify the north side of Hammond, which he considers unsightly, and to provide a needed recreation site for the children of that community. The property extends from the state line to Wabash avenue and lies between the South Shore and the Indiana Harbor Belt line railroads.

Serves Need in Area.

Current facilities for residents in that area include Douglas park, a long distance from the heavily populated section which would be served by the new playsite, according to Mr. Betz. This should be the finest park in Hammond, he said.

"Residents in this community have been without a public park in the 35 years that our family has been in business there," he explained. "These people deserve some consideration and I propose to donate this land outright to the city, rather than have it float a bond issue to pay for the land."

He added that park board officials are 100 per cent in favor of the idea of acquiring the site by this method.

To Dress Up City.

"In addition to supplying a public need," he said, "improvements in this area will serve to 'dress up' badly needed approaches to the city of Hammond. We have obtained permission from the South Shore and IHB railroad officials to plant a row of trees along the rights-of-way of both lines, which will enhance the entrance to the city."

The tract was acquired by the present owner in 1925. His father donated the camp at Berrien Springs, Mich., to the Hammond Boy Scout council and his mother gave the Alice house to the Y. W. C. A. chapter.

Women to Meet.

Our Lady of Peace Woman's club will hold its first meeting at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the school auditorium. The Rev. Henry M. Friel will give the address of welcome and Mrs. John E. Stevens, president, will present the new officers.

September Bride

Mrs. Charles F. McWilliams, the former Janice Bilger, was married Sept. 7 at St. Clement's church to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McWilliams, 2548 North Burling street. She is the daughter of George W. Bilger, 1611 Thome avenue, and Mrs. Preston N. Miller, 3609 North Bosworth avenue. A reception in the Svithiod club followed the ceremony. [Allan Photo.]

C. OF C. PREPARES FOR HEGEWISCH'S HALLOWEEN FETE

Committees Tell Result of Recent Work.

Complete committee reports were made and a discussion of plans for this fall took place at the recent meeting of the Hegewisch Chamber of Commerce, Frank S. Sowa, 13355 Burley avenue, president of the organization, announced last week.

Frank Sowa.

A collection was taken at the session to defray expenses for the annual Halloween party which will be sponsored by the group at Mann park. Last year 600 children of the community participated in the event. The chamber also decided to stage a program of some kind, perhaps a bazar or a dance, by Nov. 1. E. J. Brill, 13322 Baltimore avenue, was appointed chairman of the arrangements committee.

Seek Street Improvement.

The streets and alleys committee reported that the chamber will attempt to acquire title to a portion of 136th street between Avenue O and Buffalo avenue fromp rivate owners and transfer it to the city. This will make that portion of the street eligible for paving by the WPA.

The next hearing on a water level lock control for Wolf lake will be made by Ald. Walter Orlikowski [35th] in the near future, according to a report by the Wolf lake improvement committee. The state, which needs a permit to put the lock in, asked the city council to conduet the hearing.

Plan Beautification Drive.

The business men's advisory committee suggested a local business men's meeting in Hegewisch to encourage citizens to beautify their property and to urge business endeavors in the community. Dr. J. E. Plewa, 13350 Baltimore avenue, chairman of the committee, made the motion. The meeting will be held within the next few weeks.

The committee also reported that a new modern ticket office will be built at 136th street by the Chicago, South Shore, and South Bend railroad.

NEW OFFICERS TO BE INSTALLED BY B'NAI B'RITH

Officers and directors of the South Side B'nai B'rith lodge will be officially inducted into office at 8:15 o'clock this evening at a joint meeting with the women's auxiliary in Isaiah temple, Hyde Park boulevard and Greenwood avenue. Ceremonies will be conducted by Richard E. Gutstadt, director of the Anti Defamation league. He will install Sidney Hess, 1300 Hyde Park boulevard, as the lodge's fourth president.

Sidney Hess. [Moffett photo.]

The guest speaker will be Carroll Binder, a foreign news editor. His subject will be "The Defense of the Americas," a discussion of the influences that dominate international life today.

Others to be installed in office are Joseph S. Pinkert, Bernard Roman, and Dr. Floris Van Minden, vice presidents; Bernard Offenberg, corresponding secretary; Irvin J. Rich, financial secretary; Philip C. Shorr, treasurer; Saul Manaster, monitor, and Irving Naiburg, assistant monitor.

Trustees will be Gus Greenebaum, Emil Kitzinger, and Theodore Perlmutter, and directors will be Cecil Alexander, J. Elmer Ascher, David Duhl, Lee Furth, Mitchell Goodman, Bert Hahn, Elliott Hasan, Myron Herzog, Sidney Hess Jr., Morris Kilmick, Alec Kollenberg, Samuel Leeds, Sol Levine, Harry May, Gilbert Mintz, Aaron Pinkert, Robert Shapiro, Burton Sherre, Albert Shepard, Jacob Siegal, Louis Smith, Dr. Marvin Sukov, John J. Weiss Jr., and Isadore Yalowitz.

The lodge now has a membership of 1,600 persons. Mrs. Irwin Olcott is president of the women's auxiliary.

GOLDEN WEDDING DAY NEARS FOR S. SIDE COUPLE

On Tuesday night Mr. and Mrs. William H. Shiffer, 8048 Indiana avenue, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary. They are holding an open house today in honor of the event. They have been residents of the south side for many years.

When they were married 39th street was considered the outskirts of the city, and the cable car was just being introduced on State street. They have watched Chicago grow from a town of 500,000 population to its present size.

Mrs. Shiffer was born on the Orkney Islands, Scotland, and came to Chicago when she was a young girl. Mr. Shiffer came here in the middle 80's and worked at his trade of carriage painter. He last was foreman in the paint shop of the New York Central railroad.

There are three children, Mrs. E. J. Rooks, 7918 Rhodes avenue; Mrs. S. T. Merchant, 8048 Indiana avenue, and W. C. Shiffer, 7535 LaFayette avenue. They have six grandchildren and one great grandchild.

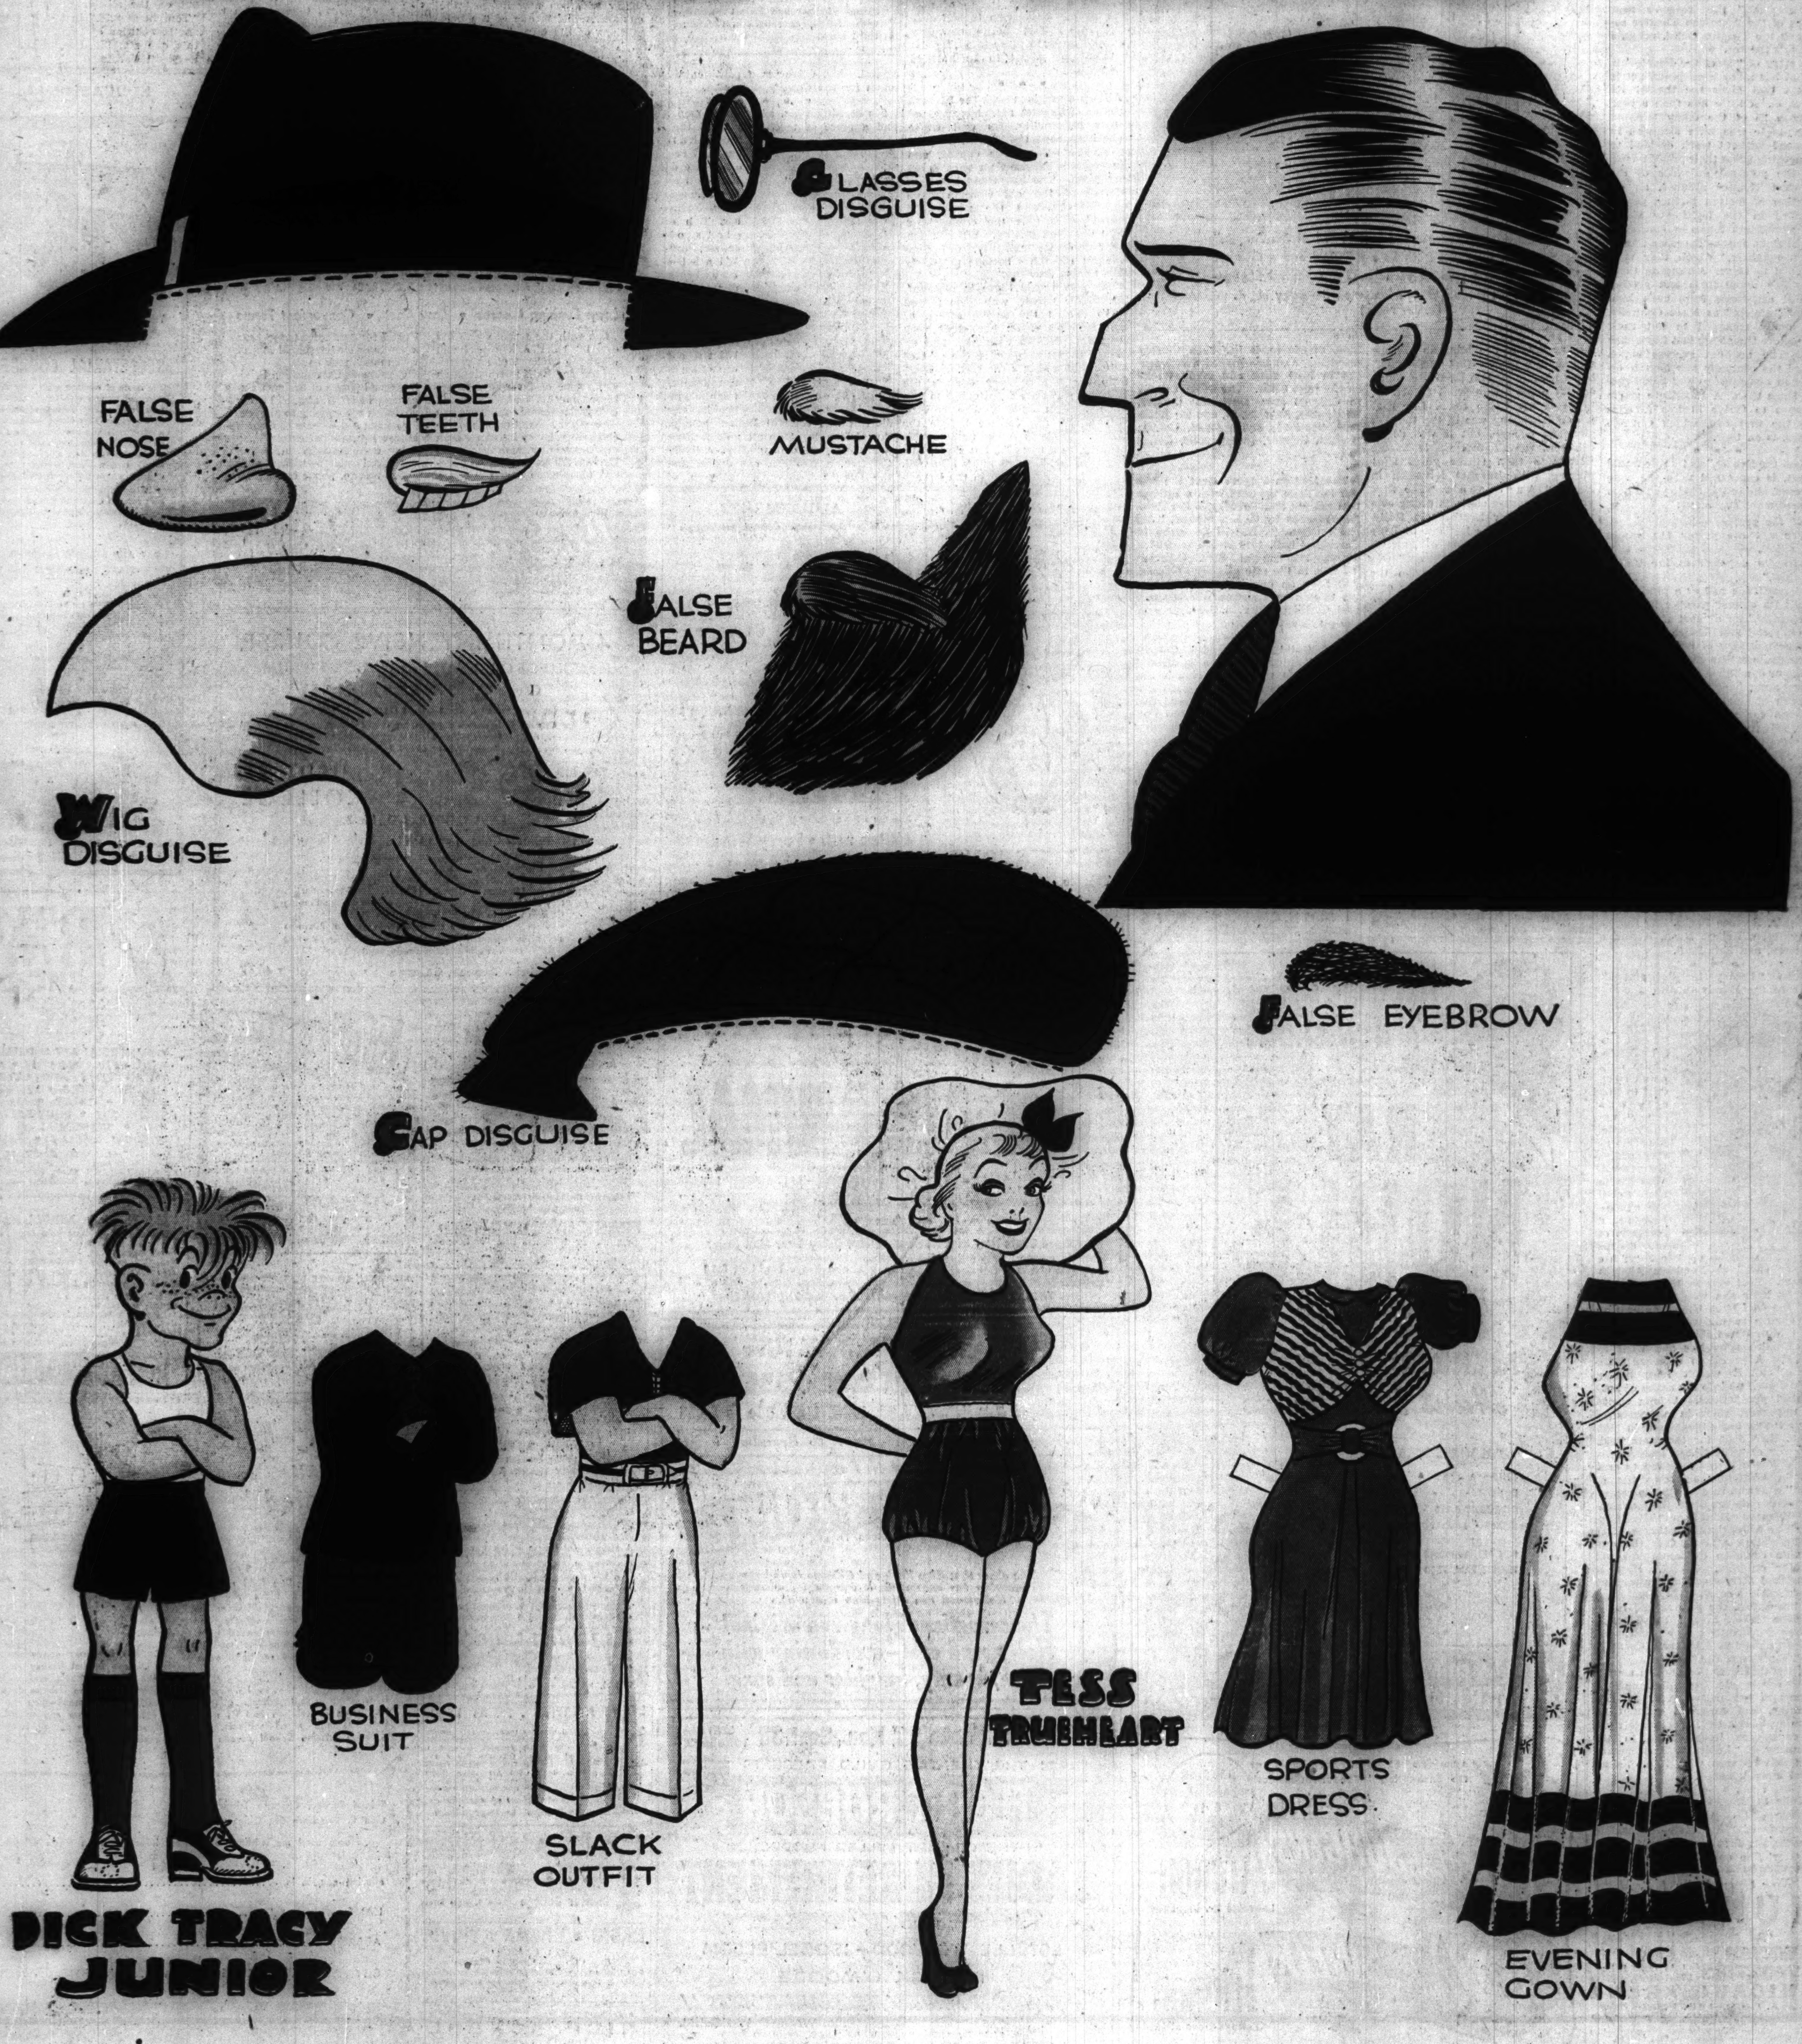
DICK TRACY



Two New Productions to Enliven City's Theater Scene

Tuneful West Coast Musical Here Saturday

Next week-end will find two more productions enlivening the local theatrical scene. On Saturday night a revue from the west coast, "Meet the People," opens at the Grand Opera house, and two nights later, Monday, "Ladies in Retirement," this season's first offering of the American Theater society and the Theater Guild, relights the Harris theater.

The story of "Meet the People" is one that has many precedents, but is the sort that gives the theater its fascination. A little less than a year ago some 26 of the many talented young people who were stranded in Hollywood without work decided to do something about their predicament. With the paternal guidance of the Hollywood Theater alliance, an organization of motion picture people interested in the legitimate stage, these youngsters found or concocted satirical skits, songs, dances, and "production numbers," which they then proceeded to stage. Arranging them in suitable revue form and getting financial assistance from such kind hearted "angels" as Marc Connelly, they finally managed to put their show before the public last Christmas night. The brilliant success which greeted the company has kept it occupied in Los Angeles and San Francisco since then. A substitute group continues to thrive in Los Angeles while the first one, which Chicago will see, is on tour.

"Meet the People," as its title would suggest, is concerned with the common man, and in the finale you'll hear this sentiment expressed:

"Meet the people——
They're not the people the papers extoll,
But they're a power in the Gallup poll."

In its attitude and as a production it finds its closest parallel in "Pins and Needles," for a "sort of mild and unpink social significance runs thru it." The members of the cast figure as principals in one scene and as the singing or dancing chorus in the next. Musical accompaniments are supplied by a pair of pianists in the pit.

Credits for the various sketches, lyrics, and tunes are given to a host of writers: Henry Meyers, Edward Eliscu, Mortimer Offner, Ray Golden, Sid Kuller, Henry Blankfort, Arthur Ross, Bert Lawrence, Jay Gorney, E. Y. Harburg, George Bassman, and David Raksin. Danny Dare is responsible for the staging and choreography of the entire production.

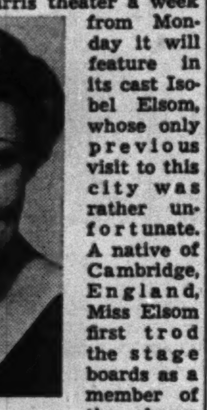
When "Ladies in Retirement" opens at the Harris theater a week from Monday it will feature in its cast Isobel Elsom, whose only previous visit to this city was rather unfortunate. A native of Cambridge, England, Miss Elsom first trod the stage boards as a member of the chorus of "The Quaker Girl" at London's Adelphi theater. That was in 1911, and two seasons later she won a small part in "The Girl from Utah" as well as the chance to understudy the lead, Ina Claire. When this musical toured the English provinces and went to Glasgow Miss Elsom replaced Miss Claire, and it wasn't long before she'd moved up into the realm of nonmusical productions. A long series of important rôles in all sorts of plays led to her engagement in 1926 by A. H. Woods for the New York company of "The Ghost Train."



Isobel Elsom.
[Van Damm Photo.]

Mr. Woods then proceeded to cast her in William Hurlbut's "Sin of Sins," a drama that sought to repeat the succès de scandale then attending Edouard Bourdet's "The Captive" by using the same theme. After trying out in Atlantic City the production came to Chicago's Adelphi theater on Nov. 8, 1926. Here it flourished fitfully and died after four weeks. Altho considerably castigated by the critics, the play served to introduce Miss Elsom to Chicago, whose performance one gentleman rated as good as Katharine Cornell's in "The Green Hat."

Since that time the English actress has continued her distinguished career in her native land, in this country, and Australia without returning to this city. Fortunately she is considered irreplaceable in the company of "Ladies of Retirement" and will be seen with it on its arrival a week hence.

Julie Stevens, the winsome young college girl of the Selwyn theater company of "The Male Animal," is playing her first part in the big time theater. She once was assigned the regular duty of providing an offstage scream in a piece called "Censored," but a nightly scream from the wings doesn't make a significant career. St. Louis is her home town. Her first job on Broadway was in the theater, all right enough, but it was as an usher in the Empire, where Lillian Gish was then [three years ago] playing with Burgess Meredith in Maxwell Anderson's "The Star Wagon." Because she was under contract to Warner Brothers in Hollywood, Miss Stevens lost out to Gene Tierney when the rôle of Patricia Stanley in "The Male Animal" was cast. Extricating herself from the meshes of Hollywood, she came east anyway, and served as understudy to Miss Tierney. Then history reversed itself, and Miss Tierney went to the movies [you can see her, tho not very rewardingly, in "The Return of Frank James"]. Miss Stevens became Patricia Stanley, and has remained Patricia Stanley for the last four months.

On Tuesday Northwestern university will dedicate Scott hall, a new student union building. It will provide a new theater with a fully equipped stage on the campus which will be used for band, orchestra, and choral concerts, for the annual student musical show and for other theatrical activities.

Gertrude Lawrence's tour in "Skylark" is cutting a swath around Chicago without appearing within the city limits. When it was tried out here in the spring of 1939 "Skylark" was no howling success. Since then, of course, it has been thoroly rewritten, and has played a full season in New York and many weeks on the west coast. The nearest dates to Chicago are: Davidson theater, Milwaukee, Sept. 26, 27, and 28; Rockford, Sept. 30; South Bend, Oct. 1; English theater, Indianapolis, Oct. 2 to 5.

The Hudson Players start the season for little theaters with a production tonight and Tuesday of the Tyrolean comedy by C. L. Anthony, "Autumn Crocus." It will be given at Foresters' hall, 1016 North Dearborn street, starting at 8:30. Crescent Venuto, in the rôle of Herr Feldman, will have an opportunity to display his talents as a singer, offering several German lieder in the course of the play's action.

The Guild theater, 616 Church street, Evanston, after a successful experimental spring and summer, is announcing its first subscription season. Four plays will be offered this fall and winter: "The Petrified Forest," by Robert Sherwood, opening Oct. 2; "A Texas Steer," by Randolph Carter, Oct. 30; "Double Door," by Elizabeth McFadden, Nov. 27, and "Ah, Wilderness!" by Eugene O'Neill, Dec. 26. Hope Summers is the producer.

HAS DUAL RÔLE IN REVUE

Like the other youngsters in the cast of "Meet the People," Virginia Bryan functions both as a principal and a member of the chorus. The popular revue begins a limited engagement at the Grand Opera house on Saturday night.

Continental Room Has New Personality

By Will Davidson.

Chicago painters and booking agents are busier than London's air raid wardens these days. Two redecorated rooms and a brand new one, and a pleasant lineup of new faces already have been turned over to the café public; another new play spot and an even more imposing list of talent are about to be hatched this week.

Always a gracious café, the Stevens hotel's Continental room has acquired a new personality. Its cool white walls have been tinted with a pastel green, the accents are copper, and the new wood dance floor is canopied with satin. The bandstand has been relieved of the old German band music racks, and the new solid paneled ones give the orchestra a more dignified setting. Without losing any of its gentility, the Continental room has become positively chic, almost exciting.

The new music there is pleasant, too. Eddie Oliver, who once played piano behind the smoke screen of Ben Bernie's cigar, has eight very competent fellows with him, and together they manufacture the sort of music that makes a comfortable backdrop for the culinary dramas the Stevens' chefs are accustomed to producing. Ann Judson, who is Mrs. Oliver, and Jay Jerome handle the vocals. Eddie is fairly new to this country, as a maestro, but Paris, Amsterdam, and London know him well. Hitler just missed him in the French capital. Mr. Oliver is a continental touch for the Continental room.

Six dancing girls, six musical men, and a piece of machinery steal the show that has just reopened Harry's refurbished New Yorker. The girls, of course, are Winnie Hoveler's photogenic and crisply drilled Dancing Darlings. With an outstanding production number in the difficult and colorful Indian adagio, the girls present an all new routine that is very solid in quality. A lively Can-Can, a Mexican hat dance, and the Orchid fantasy, a melange of tango, rhumba, and conga, are other highlights of their répertoire. A particular laurel must be set aside for the costuming.

Arne Barnett.
[Bloom photo.]

Arne Barnett's band is a delight to those of us who have sat thru many a night of stock arrangements and indifferent musicianship. This ingratiating young pianist has turned his imagination loose, restrained only by an innate musicianship that now has its first chance at self-expression. The result is stimulating.

The machinery mentioned above is the elevating mechanism that lifts the New Yorker dance floor inches above the ringside tabletops so that the show takes on new interest for all customers. It is one of the best adaptations of the elevating stage in town.

After one of those producer's nightmares, an opening night show that not only laid, but hatched, an egg, Harry's has assembled a fair revue. Charles and Jeanne Brewster are young, good looking, and capable tap dancers, Konrad and Simmons do a good roller skating turn, and Mildred Craig scores well enough with her songs. Nick and Yvonne Bird, dance comedians, Ginnette Calle, soubrette, and Wally Rand, hard working master of ceremonies, complete the show. Al Milton's rhumba band alternates with Barnett's, and stars dark haired and statuesque Linda Preston, vocalist.

The week's influx of new intertainment talent starts tonight with the return of Monchito, a locally favored rhumba band, to the Colony club, where Sacassas retains his richly deserved top spot. From now on the Colony's policy is strictly south of the border.

Other dates this week are: Thursday—Merriel Abbott's "Hunt Ball Revue" with Ray Noble in the Empire room of the Palmer House. Friday the Adrian Rollini Trio in the Balinese room of the Blackstone, and the unveiling of the Drake's new Camelia house, with Ramon Ramos playing. Saturday—Ernie Holst's band and Nan Wynn, vocalist, at the Pump room.

'Charlot's Revue.'

The second production of The Players Theater, the group which recently put on the all-star performances of "Tonight at 8:30" in Los Angeles, is another edition of "Charlot's Revue," this one starring Fannie Brice and Reginald Gardiner.

Noted Musicians Engaged for Sparkling Concert Season

1940-41 Series to Offer Many Varied Treats

By Edward Barry.

In order to direct attention away from September's musical bleakness we are spending the month painting lush pictures of the season to come. There have been stories on the Chicago Symphony orchestra's golden jubilee year and on the Chicago Opera company's promising 1940 season. Today, while the opera story is being concluded in another column, we shall begin in this space a two week treatment of the other important musical events which will brighten the October to April span.

Even if some unthinkable calamity were to deprive us of the symphony orchestra and the opera company, the 1940-'41 season would still be one of very great brilliance. Some of the greatest names in the musical world appear on the various concert series. Operagoers will have a busy 17 day season even before the resident company opens its doors. Dance fanatics may look forward to a year such as they have never known. Devotees of the symphony orchestra can count on two series besides that of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Bertha Ott, one of the city's best established concert managers, promises Ruggiero Ricci, the violin prodigy now grown to manhood; the great bluff baritone, John Charles Thomas, and the distinguished Negro tenor, Roland Hayes. The first is booked into Orchestra hall the afternoon of Nov. 10, the second comes to the same auditorium the evening of Nov. 15. Mr. Hayes' recital, also in Orchestra hall, will take place the afternoon of Dec. 1.

John Charles Thomas.

Miss Ott's schedule also contains the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, Dimitri Mitropoulos, conductor [Orchestra hall, Jan. 27]; the Indianapolis Symphony orchestra, Fabian Sevitzky, conductor [Orchestra hall, March 16], and the San Francisco ballet [Studebaker theater, Feb. 2].

Harry Zelzer's 1940-'41 schedule sparkles with names. There are Angna Enters, the superb mime [Nov. 9]; George Czaplicki, Polish baritone [Dec. 15]; Maria Kurenko, Russian soprano [Jan. 12]; Jussi Bjoerling, Swedish tenor [Feb. 16]; Jan Kiepura, Polish tenor [March 2], and Nelson Eddy, American baritone [March 29]. Also Lily Pons, Grace Moore, Lotte Lehmann, and Joseph Szigeti, who will appear in April on dates which have not yet been announced.

Mr. Zelzer also promises first Chicago appearances of the Polish ballet [Oct. 16] and Carmelite Maracci and her dance ensemble [Nov. 30-Dec. 1]. Besides all this there will be performances of three operas—"The Secret Marriage" [Oct. 20], "Halka" [Jan. 19], and "The Haunted Castle" March 30]. Ladis Kiepura, tenor, will appear with the Polish ballet.

The old reliable Don Cossack chorus, Serge Jaroff, conductor, will give two performances on Nov. 17. Jean Tennyson, soprano, and Alexander Sved, baritone, are scheduled for a joint recital on Nov. 24. All or nearly all these Zelzer attractions will use either the Civic Opera house or the Civic theater.

The History and Enjoyment of Music series, which is given annually in the Auditorium theater, offers this season a well balanced program of instrumental and vocal, solo and ensemble music, and dancing. Fritz Kreisler leads off with a violin recital on Oct. 20. He will be followed by the Philadelphia orchestra, Eugene Ormandy, conductor, on Oct. 29. At this concert Artur Rubinstein, one of the three or four greatest of pianists, is to appear as soloist.

Paul Robeson, Negro baritone [Nov. 24], and Kirsten Flagstad, Norwegian soprano [Dec. 8] bring the series up to the holidays. In the new year there will be the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo [Jan. 3], Sergei Rachmaninoff, Russian pianist [Jan. 19]; Argentinita and her Spanish dancers [Feb. 2], and Lina Pagliughi, American soprano [Feb. 23]. Mme. Pagliughi will be making on this occasion her first Chicago appearance.

The Adult Education council's Musical Arts piano series, which offers six attractive piano recitals at sensationally low prices, will bring to Orchestra hall this year such keyboard giants as Rudolf Serkin [Nov. 5], Artur Rubinstein [Jan. 7], Vitya Vronsky and Victor Babin, duo-pianists [March 4], and Robert Casadesus [March 18]. Also the important young American pianist, Beveridge Webster [Dec. 3], and the Chicagoan, Wanda Paul [Feb. 4]. Miss Paul won her right to appear on this series by emerging victorious from the series of auditions conducted last year by the Society of American Musicians and the Adult Education council.

Wanda Paul.

The San Carlo Opera company will move into the Auditorium theater on Oct. 11 this year for a 20 performance season of popular priced opera. The répertoire is about the same as usual, except that "Tosca," which is not always included, has been promised for a single presentation this year. In the appended schedule all performances are evening performances unless otherwise noted:

"La Traviata," Oct. 11; "Carmen," Oct. 12 [afternoon]; "Il Trovatore," Oct. 12; "Rigoletto," Oct. 13; "Madame Butterfly," Oct. 14; "Aida," Oct. 15; "Faust," Oct. 16; "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci," Oct. 17; "Carmen," Oct. 18; "Martha" and Ballet, Oct. 19 [afternoon]; "Tosca," Oct. 19; "Il Trovatore," Oct. 20; "La Traviata," Oct. 21; "La Bohème," Oct. 22; "Rigoletto," Oct. 23; "Faust," Oct. 24; "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci," Oct. 25; "Madame Butterfly," Oct. 26 [afternoon]; "Carmen," Oct. 26; "Aida," Oct. 27.

'What We Hear in Music.'

The eleventh edition of "What We Hear in Music" is now available. This book, the work of the Chicago writer and lecturer, Anne Shaw Faulkner [Oberndorfer], has been greatly enlarged. It offers a survey of national music, a condensed history of music, an account of the development of the orchestra, the opera and the oratorio, analyses of more than 1,000 Victor records, and a pronouncing dictionary. Thruout the book records are cited as illustrations. "What We Hear in Music" is published by the RCA Manufacturing company.

New Role for Desi Arnaz.

Desi Arnaz, a leading player in that just closed, has been signed for a major rôle in "Sky's the Limit," a musical show about aviation, now in preparation at the hands of George Marion, Jr., librettist, and Arthur Schwartz, composer.

SUITORS CREATE TROUBLES

Two suitors, representing brains and brawn, create emotional troubles for Patricia Stanley, the young sister in "The Male Animal." In person she is Julie Stevens, and the comedy can be seen at the Selwyn theater.

Weber Building Fine Repertory for 1940 Opera

By Cecil Smith.

[This is the second of two articles on the coming season of the Chicago Opera company, opening at the Civic Opera house on Nov. 2.]

If you had asked me a year ago whether Henry Weber would be a good artistic director for the Chicago Opera company, I should have had to answer truthfully, "I don't know." Since then I have watched him at work as he courageously—and amazingly successfully—tried to pick up the pieces of the Chicago City Opera company after Paul Longone's death; and in the last few months I have been observing rather intimately the development of his plans for the 1940 season of the new Chicago Opera company.

Mr. Weber has been able to approach the 1940 season without the disadvantage of a host of prior commitments made by a predecessor. In a remarkably creative way he has started from the bottom in the task of assembling the company and planning the répertory. He has considered personnel and répertory, person by person and opera by opera, with a scrupulous care that is both laudable and extraordinary. I think it can be promised confidently that no singer or singers will appear on the opera stage this fall by means of any sort of extramusical pressure, and that no opera will be produced if it seems artistically impracticable.

Positive promises are more attractive than negative ones, however, and the Chicago Opera company is in a position to make many positive promises. Consider the revival of Mozart's "Don Giovanni." Here is one of the greatest operatic classics, recently kept out of the répertory because it might conceivably be a box office failure. This fall "Don Giovanni" will be revived, with an absolutely stellar cast including Ezio Pinza in the title part; Rose Bampton as Donna Anna, a rôle she ought to do magnificently; Margit Bokor, a promising new lyric soprano, as Zerlina; Tito Schipa as Don Ottavio, and the inimitable Virgilio Lazzari as Leporello.

Another gala performance will be the revival of Italo Montemezzi's tragic opera, "The Love of Three Kings." Mr. Montemezzi is in this country now—in Hollywood, to be precise—and he has been engaged to conduct his own score. The occasion will recall his previous visit to Chicago in 1919, to direct the première of his opera, "La Nave." Grace Moore has learned the rôle of Fiora this summer, and will sing it in Chicago for the first time anywhere. Charles Kullman likewise has been working on the superb romantic part of Avito this summer, and will make his first appearance in the rôle in the same performance. Virgilio Lazzari will of course give his memorable impersonation of the old blind king, Archibaldo.

"The Jewels of the Madonna," for years a vehicle for the magnificent talents of Rosa Raisa, will be revived this fall for Dusolina Giannini. Except for a single performance with Bianca Saroya, given by the San Carlo Opera company, the Wolf-Ferrari opera of Neapolitan love and crime, has not been performed here since Mme. Raisa last sang it a decade ago. For that matter I do not think it has been given anywhere in America in that period, except for Mme. Saryoa's one rather unexpected performance here.

The operas of Verdi are handsomely represented in the list for the 1940 season. Both the great operas composed by Verdi in his wonderful old age will be staged—"Otello," with Helen Jepson and Giovanni Martinelli as Desdemona and Otello, respectively, and "Falstaff" in a new English translation, with John Charles Thomas, Dusolina Giannini, and Virginia Haskins in the cast. The earlier Verdi operas promised include "La Traviata" [the vehicle for the debut of Jarmila Novotna], "Il Trovatore," "Rigoletta," and "Aida."

In keeping with a recent pronouncement of Mr. Weber, establishing the international and nonpolitical attitude of the Chicago Opera company, German works will be retained in the rèpertory. "Tristan and Isolde" [with Kirsten Flagstad and Lauritz Melchior] and "The Valkyrie" are the Wagnerian works mentioned. Richard Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier" will be reinstated in the répertory. Two German works, Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel" and Flotow's "Martha," will be sung in English.

Marjorie Lawrence, the Australian dramatic soprano, will sing "Carmen" here—her first Chicago appearance in the part—as well as other rôles. In addition to "Don Giovanni," Rose Bampton will be heard in "Il Trovatore," and possibly in other operas. Two of Karin Branzell's rôles are Amneris in "Aida" and Azucena in "Il Trovatore." Jussi Bjoerling will sing in "Rigoletto."

The assets of the Ballet theater, which will spend the entire season, appearing both in all the operas requiring the services of a ballet and in separate all-ballet programs, have been duly recorded here before. Three of the most gifted young choreographers, Anton Dolin, Eugene Loring, and Antony Tudor, will be in residence here with the company. Choreographers represented besides these three, in the Ballet theater repértory include Michel Fokine, Adolph Bolm, Mikhail Mordkin, Bronislava Nijinska, Jean Coralli, Agnes De Mille, and Andrée Howard.

As has already been announced, the opening performance, on Saturday, Nov. 2, in the Civic Opera house, celebrates the 30th anniversary of resident opera. The bill is Verdi's "Aida," which was the first opera persented by the newly formed Philadelphia-Chicago Grand Opera company in 1910. This fall the opening night cast will include Zinka Milanov [debut], Karin Branzell, Giovanni Martinelli, John Charles Thomas, and Virgilio Lazzari. Mr. Weber will conduct.

U. of I. Takes Its Courses to 15 New Cities

By the Rev. John Evans.

You can take the watering trough to the horse and he might drink. This is a bit twisted but it illustrates a service ideal of the University of Illinois during the last five years. It used to be—on to Champaign-Urbana only if you wish to imbibe at the state's main educational fountain.

But now, the waters are being piped to 15 cities of the state and students may drink thereof without leaving the hearthstone. At any rate, 12 new graduate and 3 new undergraduate courses have been announced as starting this week in Carbondale, De Kalb, East St. Louis, Elgin, Macomb, Normal, Olney, Peoria, Quincy, and Springfield. Other courses have been begun in previous years in Chicago, Charleston, and Olney.

The graduate courses are all in the field of education. There is a good deal of question as to whether a graduate degree in education means much if anything. But in a day when there is less and less discrimination as to what masters' or doctors' degrees stand for so long as they are masters' or doctors' degrees, it may not be wrong or entirely misleading to talk about masters of education, etc. In any event, the University of Illinois is illustrating its service spirit thereby. The graduate education classes will meet in connection with the five state normal schools.

An undergraduate course in government is being offered in response to a request from East St. Louis welfare agencies, and a course in industrial management in response to requests from chambers of commerce in Peoria and Elgin.

Dr. Elliot Cassidy will conduct the courses in American government at East St. Louis. The class will meet each Thursday night at the Rock Junior high school. Prof. A. G. Anderson will conduct the Elgin course in industrial organization on Wednesday nights at the Elgin High school. Prof. R. A. Bunyan will conduct the Peoria industrial management problems course on Thursday nights in Brown's Business college.

The final copies of the most recent printing of this writer's "Higher Education, a Guide to Students in the Selection of a College or University," have been sold by the Chicago Tribune Public Service offices. Data is being assembled for a complete revision of the booklet. The tables will be further simplified. A new section will be devoted to premedical education and the comparative successes of colleges in the preparation of students for the disciplines of medical study. Prior to publication as a booklet the revision will appear in series in this column, beginning at an early date. The most flattering experience this writer has had has been the discovery of several of the booklets intact but WORN OUT!

By Mae Tinee.

Good morning!

"Pastor Hall," at first rejected by the censors, has at last been released for public inspection—and I don't see why not.

I could discover absolutely nothing in it which could offend others than enemies of democracy. Nazis and bundists and fifth columnists won't like it. But loyal Americans, be they German, Jewish, or of other race or creed, will accept the film for what it is—an exposé of a ruthless régime that would crush the individual, and a challenge to all who love freedom to gird on their armor and fight the forces that would consign us to the mercy of a dictator—and a like fate.

Pastor Hall is the beloved pastor of Altdorf, a small German village. Before a harness maker came into power he had preached a kindly gospel on Sundays and lived what he preached on week days. To his parishioners he was sunshine and hearthfire . . . his listening ear and understanding heart their sanctuary in time of trouble. . . .

His greatest crony and admirer is the old German war horse, General von Grotjahn, possessor of many medals for bravery and acumen in the service of his country—the old Germany, that crumbles into ruins during the picture's action—ruins from which rise the hideous phoenix known as Naziism, which draws its nourishment from the nation's young, making of them bloodless, soulless Frankensteinian monsters. . . .

Because Pastor Hall will not conform, because he stands by his people and his beliefs the worst the party in power has to offer becomes his lot and that of his lovely young daughter. . . . Loyal friend thru it all is the general.

• • •

The film exhibits no trace of hysteria and is superbly acted. Wilfrid Lawson, whom you may remember as the father in "Pygmalion," does an unforgettable piece of work in the title rôle.

"Pastor Hall" was made in England.

See you tomorrow.

Exhilaration Goes with New Evening Gowns

By Rea Seeger.

There's a fine fall exhilaration in all the newest dinner costumes and evening gowns. Opulent fabrics, rich vibrant colorings, figure-revealing streamlines, shimmering decorations, such as embroidery, jet fringe beads, bugle beads, metallic embroidery, and similar accents, are used for both the full-skirted evening gowns and the slinky affairs destined for dress parade dinners at home and abroad.

Featured in the current collections just unpacked are glamorous velvet ball gowns with most of the yardage in the wide full skirt, scant inches to the fitted bodice, and a waistline that may be spanned by two hands. The fullness of the skirt doesn't start until well below the hipline, so that the figure is defined better to accentuate the lavish fullness of the skirt. Drifts of fine net, tulle, chiffon, and thin lace are other materials of this fall's vintage. Sometimes these are combined with velvet, with silk, with shining lame, or with thin wool.

Dull crêpes still are the best materials to fashion the sophisticated, clinging dinner costumes. Such plumskin thin stuff drapes with exquisite fluidity, hugs the figure lines, and is well nigh magic for slenderizing the silhouette. Black and white dramatics are new, that is, the simple sheath dress in coal black without the shine of anthracite, worn with a snow white, long sleeved jacket. Strange, unusual colors, such as citron, pale gold, chartreuse, French cerise, tangerine, mauve, and plum, make the fitted hip length, separate jackets that transform any ordinary black gown into a costume of spectacular beauty. Change the jacket, change the mood and the outfit. It's the best fashion trick ever devised for imaginative clothes collectors to make a skimpy clothes allowance appear to stretch.

Lame and tissue shot with silver, gold, or copper threads glint and glisten beguilingly for entire ball gowns, or half and half concoctions of dull material teamed with these shining fabrics. Airy net in dark colors adds color without weight. Underskirts of the lame, clouded with net for the overskirt, are new. So is lame with velvet, lame for the undersheath, velvet for the split skirt. Garish colorings have gone. All the metallics are subdued, subtle, twice as flattering and effective as the older, bolder shades.

Fine embroidery and beading have been revived. Deft fingers work amazingly beautiful motifs of flowers, leaves, and scrolls, not only on the bodices, but in the full and slim skirts as well. Jackets gleam quietly with silver, gold, or multicolored beading or embroidery; bands around the cuffs, collar, and lapels flashing with a repetition of the other embroidery or accent.

Thin, filmy, black lace is set into velvet for a naughty, revealing yoke, for entire back sections of the bodice, for deep yoke, and for the delightfully feminine frilled hemlines. Net is another flattery, worked with cutout appliques of the dress wool or velvet for stunning contrast. All in all, the newest showings of dinner and evening gowns are tellingly feminine in soft flattery of fabric, outline, trimming detail, and expert draping to emphasize the figurelines.

Sketched, four newly unpacked costumes from a high fashion boulevard shop in Chicago, four selected from dozens of intriguing new models for gala occasions. For specific information, call Superior 0200.

FOUR INDICATIVE COSTUMES FOR GALA EVENTS

A. Lovely, wine red, velvet picture gown with yards of the soft material used in full gathered skirt. Bodice is smoothly fitted, neckline low and square cut, loops of velvet forming unusual trim. • B. Cinnamon brown net in drifts fashions exceedingly full skirt. Golden lame makes the swathed bodice clouded in brown net. • C. Dramatic dinner costume using coal black dull crepe for stunning sheath with an interesting narrow strap top and deep center slit in fitted bodice. • D. Pale gold colored crepe makes sophisticated dinner suit flashing with gold metal buttons on fitted jacket.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

Would you give the pine paneled walls of some room in your home a warm and friendly shade of pumpkin brown? There's a method to treat pine to obtain just this finish. And with a few experiments you can vary the tones to suit your taste and room decorations.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

Young girls love their mothers' perfumes, powders, and lipsticks not wisely, but too well. Mothers resent their raids on the private stock of cosmetics for two reasons: It's expensive experimenting and, 9 times out of 10, what is glamor for mama is NOT glamor for daughter!

There's been a need, for a long time, for glamor aids created especially pour la jeune fille, glorifiers that are dainty and gay and appropriate in their charm and character. At long last that need has been filled. One of the great houses, surveying the teen age scene, has created a whole lovely line, delightful and not at all expensive, for the girls who celebrate their cosmetic coming of age.

Packaging is pink and pretty, to make her dressing table look feminine and to appeal to her own taste. Perfume, cologne, soap, talcum, bath powder, lipstick, and face powder all are daintily dressed in a tender pink with a simple scrollwork design and motif of a young head and a dance program.

The glorifiers themselves are delightful. The young girl loves them because they're all keyed to exactly the kind of a fragrance that suits her. It's a heavenly bouquet, flower-fresh and sentimental, but just faintly hinting of the sophistication to which the young aspire. It all constitutes the collegienne kind of glamor.

The perfume itself is lovely. This is to be worn on the Big Occasion. For daytime use, to keep her flower-fresh, this same scent has been repeated in a lighter form, a bouquet lotion to be used after the bath and for sports.

There are three lovely lipstick shades—flame, bright, and rosy pink; three face powder shades, peachy cream, pinky beige, and rosy tan. And there is one marvelous little item the young girls will love, a lip pomade, colorless, that keeps her lips soft winter and summer, no matter how much time she spends in the snow or in the sun.

There are bath powder, bath soap, talc, and even sachets, all in the same young girl's own fragrance. She can have a whole cosmetic "wardrobe" of her own, minus false notes.

For information, telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0200. Inclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for written reply.

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

The young girl's dream of a whole ensemble of glorifiers created for her special requirements has come true. A youthful perfume, charming but not too unsophisticated, is the key fragrance for a whole family of glamorizers, ranging from lipsticks to frothy bath preparations.

Eleanor Nangle, "thru her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids and tells you about them daily in The Chicago Tribune.

Read Antoinette Donnelly's article in the Graphic section of today's paper. She tells that young gir' are "pacing" the charm parad with their own coiffures.

Daisy Embroidery Design

By Nancy Cabot.

This attractive wild daisy design is an easy embroidery trick for any needleworker desiring to make a cushion. The hot iron transfer design is stamped on linen crash or novelty weaves, and worked up quickly. It is the type of pillow which is suitable for any room or in any corner.

For the hot iron transfer of the wild daisy embroidery design, No. 708, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Avoid undie odor . . . use New Quick LUX

"Second-day" underthings may look fresh but . . . perspiration odor clings—soon offends. Avoid offending—Lux undies after each wearing. New, quick Lux takes away perspiration odor fast!

In water as cool as your hand; new, quick Lux dissolves 3 times as fast as any of 10 other leading soaps tested. It goes further—gives more suds, ounce for ounce, even in hard water, than any of these soaps. Safe for anything safe in water!

In the same familiar box—at no extra cost to you!

Hollywood's Women Stylists Are Prominent

By Bettina Bedwell.

Hollywood fashions for years were the production of a man-dominated world. Producers, directors, and the great designers whose names appeared at the masthead of big films had their say about the clothes worn by stars, and there wasn't a woman to sause them back. But the Hollywood I'm discovering belatedly is a fashion center in which women designers are getting to be a big power. And it is my firm conviction that there is enough feminine designing talent in this town to feed a very big, and ever-growing, demand for modern styles. Edith Head and Irene already are big names. These two girls have dressed, and are dressing, a most brilliant quota of the filmland stars. Renie, of RKO, Dolly Tree of MGM, Vera West of Universal, Natalie Visart of DeMille productions, and other girls here are demonstrating a wealth of genuine designing talent that is going to do big things in the future.

Edith Head.

Irene is the girl who dresses virtually every one of the greatest stars for private life, and in addition makes a whale of a lot of their screen clothes. Edith Head is the veteran woman designer for the movie business, with a record of 16 years at the job with Paramount. She's a pint-size edition of a woman who looks about 20, with a black page boy bob that makes her resemble a Fujita drawing. Her vitality is immense, and she's the only dress designer I've met with the sparkling wit of Gabrielle Chanel.

Miss Head says that taste in dressing for the screen has "upped" tremendously since she began designing. When she started the clothes were "simply terrific" and the stars were dressed on the "spangle and tassel" principle of glamor. Today she works for clean-cut modern lines unless it's a costume picture, and she keeps personality in the frame of current fashions. But she is plenty angry when folks say that clothes designed for a "horse opera" or some hussy part are what Hollywood thinks is fashion. "The only time we make fashions are when we dress a modern picture with an atmosphere for fashionable clothes," is her contention. So please get this straight.

The first designing Edith Head ever did in the movies was for an elephant. She came to Paramount with the idea that she would start right in on Pola Negri, the then reigning star, and they set her to work on the elephant for whom she made a glamorous, if extensive, stomacher! However, she has created the most publicized costume ever to appear on the screen, and that's Dorothy Lamour's sarong. She says she's designed sarongs in every language, material, cut and flavor. But don't get me wrong. Edith Head's designing talent doesn't rest on a sarong. Far from it. I saw in her atelier at Paramount about a hundred stunning modern costumes, equal in cut, line and creative detail to the best of our American designing talent. She's pretty sick of hoopskirt and other period influences in our fashions, and what she makes is of, by, and for Today. You can make that two. I'm pretty sick of the past in today's clothes, also.

It's one of those ironic twists of taste, however, that one of the most important recent years' trends in styles, which I personally saw developed in Paris and later amplified in America, stemmed from a costume picture with clothes designed by Edith Head. It was the famous Mae West influence from "She Done Him Wrong."

She corrects a few illusions that folks on the receiving end of filmland have, one of which is that the sky's the limit for screen wardrobes. Miss Head puts it: "I can't just sit down and do anything I like with seventy-five silver foxes. There's a budget for every picture, and a poor girl story gets a poor girl budget, rich girl, rich, etc." Another thing: The designer gets the script of a story she's going to dress and has to learn the character and action as boundaries for the clothes to be worn.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1940: by Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I play at match-point duplicate games about three nights a week and have for my partners two other young men. To some of our more elderly opponents we have become a frequent source of irritation because our psychic bids have begun to 'gum up' the works. Occasional accusations of a private understanding between my partners and myself have been overlooked because they have not been registered with the tournament directors.

"At the start of last night's session my partner suggested we employ a change of pace—no psyches! I vetoed the idea, my partner accepted my veto, and now we both regret our decision because the following bombshell came up on the last board of the evening against the tournament director:

"West, dealer.
"Match-point duplicate.
"North-South vulnerable.

NORTH

"The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 diamond†	Double	1 spade‡	Double
2 diamonds	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

"†I dealt and decided to open for both offensive and defensive reasons. If I passed I probably would never be able to show both suits. I bid the longer one first.

"‡Swell . . . but it may be a psyche. The tournament director [South] went into a long huddle over the one spade bid. My suspicions were fully aroused and the following thoughts raced thru my head:

"If South doubles, East is psyching, because the spades outside of my hand cannot be divided in such a manner as to make both South's and East's bids logical. East probably has an escape from the double, which may very well be in hearts. In order to avoid a bad penalty at two hearts I prepare my self by a rebid of two diamonds. East can then pass or, if he meets with a window-rattling double at two hearts, can scurry back to three diamonds.

"South finally doubled and I bid two diamonds without any hesitation. Aided by poor defense, I was able to make one overtrick on a cross-ruff. The score sheet showed game for North and South at most of the other tables and the tournament director immediately pounced on me and my cards with the query: 'What kind of bidding is that when you don't leave your partner's bid in the double, holding all those spades?' When I stated that I figured the bid to be a psyche, his comment was that things looked mighty 'fishy.' This attitude prevailed, we were later informed, after our departure.

"The use of deception is a popular device in most American sports today, and there is no reason why psychic bids—offensive and defensive—should not enjoy a high and honest rating among bridge players. Do you not agree and is there not something that you can do to lift this phase of our game out of its present status of unpopularity?

"Possibly a series of articles on how to psyche and how to combat them would serve such a purpose.
—W. K., Chicago."

The trouble with a great many bridge players is that they are suspicious of the wrong things!

It seems to be a deeply ingrained human trait to prefer the questioning of some one else's integrity to that of one's own intelligence. In this case [as in thousands of similar cases] the South player wasted all his mental efforts on an attempt to "get the goods on" his tricky opponents—consequently, was unable to bring pure reason to bear on the actual problem involved. When North doubled the original diamond bid for a takeout and East put in his spade bid, it was, of course, fitting and proper for South to double the one spade for penalties. But when West "rescued" his double with two diamonds, South should not have even considered leaving in his partner's penalty double. It was not necessary for him to know just what was going on in the spade suit.

The pertinent facts were [a] that he was void of diamonds, hence could not coöperate sufficiently in defense against a diamond contract and [b] that he was vulnerable, whereas the opponents were not vulnerable. After North's takeout double, South, with strength in both major suits, a void in diamonds, and the club ace, should have been 98 per cent sure that a game was in sight. To abandon that game in favor of setting the opponents would mean that North-South would have to defeat the diamond contract no fewer than four tricks if they were to get ample compensation. This, patently, was an absurb hope, particularly in view of the fact that if North had held tremendous strength in the diamond suit, he would not have doubled one diamond—he would have passed for a trap. Since South was void of diamonds, it was an odds-on chance that East would show up with a few diamonds, possibly with a great many. Thus, South should not have considered accepting the two diamond double and should have devoted all his attention to the problem of expressing his own holding to partner. The best method of doing this would be first to bid two spades over his partner's double of two diamonds.

This, in view of South's previous penalty double of spades, would clearly announce a long and good spade suit. If North had reasonable spade support, such as Q-x-x, he would easily be able to recognize the fact that the opponents were psyching in spades and would give a spade raise. On North's actual holding, of course, this would be out of the question, but North would show his own distribution and strength by mentioning no-trump. South would then be able to bid his other major suit, hearts, and the partnership would arrive at a four heart contract which, despite the remarkable heart break [all five in East's hand] could be easily fulfilled. Moreover, since East would undoubtedly have doubled four hearts, North-South would have found themselves with an excellent instead of a miserable match-point score on the board. Just incidentally, the two diamond contract should have been defeated by North making the obvious opening of the ace, king, and another diamond.

The contrast between South's naïveté and West's shrewd reasoning on this board is a striking one. West's own explanation of the "thoughts that raced thru his head" is completely lucid and logical. As he points out, it was literally impossible for East to have a legitimate spade bid, for South to have a legitimate double, and for he himself to hold five spades to the A-10. There just aren't that many spades in the deck. Hence it required no "private understanding with partner" nor any esoteric flights of fancy to conclude that something peculiar was going on in the spade department and this in turn led unerringly to another conclusion, that East's bid had been psychic. West's action in denying spade support under these circumstances was not only legitimate, but darn smart and, far from inviting criticism on ethical grounds, should have elicited the respect and admiration of the opponents as well as his partner.

It goes without saying that there is nothing more important at the bridge table than scrupulous ethics. This, however, does not mean that opponents must be led by the hand thru a maze of bidding difficulties. It is high time that players past the novice stage acquire a little self-reliance and stop yelling "thief" whenever they have been legitimately befuddled.

Hearts are trump and South leads. North-South are to win six tricks against any defense.

Solution: South leads a diamond, which North trumps. North leads spade queen which East ducks, but South overtakes with the king and leads another diamond, which North trumps. North leads another spade. Again East ducks, and South wins with the 10, leading a third diamond. This North trumps and leads one more spade.

East now wins and South makes a trick with the six. If East wins the first or second round of spades, he establishes the suit for South.

Numerology

By Evelyn Holmes

Sept. 22, 1940.

Universal day—A highly emotional day. Don't you be the one to lose control.

Looking ahead—There is often a quickening of the action and influences of the numbers felt in the fall of the year when the new number of the coming year begins to be felt. The numbers which are more active usually are stronger and bring earlier action than the more passive numbers. One, five, and nine bring changes, the one and five starting new things, the nine ending things, so their influence is often felt in the fall of the year preceding. If you know your number for 1941 you can prepare your mind and act accordingly.

Year ahead—If this is your birthday, you have one of the years of changes coming. It is an important period for you.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

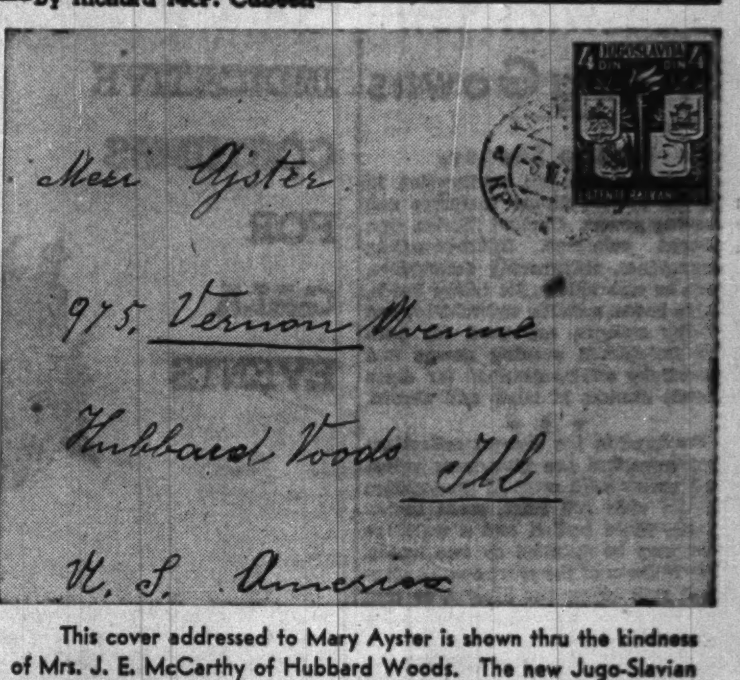
Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

The 3 cent and 5 cent values of the Inventors' Group of the famous Americans series of commemorative postage stamps will be placed on sale on Oct. 14. The 3 cent value will honor Cyrus H. McCormick and will be introduced at Lexington, Va., while the 5 cent value, which honors Elias Howe, will be placed on sale at Spencer, Mass.

Collectors who wish to obtain covers bearing first day postmarks with either of these stamps may send not to exceed 10 addressed envelopes to the postmaster at either or both of the cities designated, together with a cash or postal money order remittance to cover the exact cost of the stamps to be affixed. Each prepared cover should bear a notation in the upper right hand corner indicating the exact number of stamps to be affixed to the envelope.

Each lot of prepared covers with the remittance should be enclosed in an envelope addressed to the postmaster at the proper city and the outer wrapper should be endorsed "For first day cover service, Famous American series." Your shipment should be timed to reach the first day city not more than one week before the event.

Orders for unused stamps must not accompany requests for first day cover service, but should be directed to the Philatelic Agency, postoffice department, Washington, D. C., where the stamps will be placed on sale Oct. 15. Local postoffices thruout the United States will be supplied with these stamps as soon as production and distribution permit.



This cover addressed to Mary Ayster is shown thru the kindness of Mrs. J. E. McCarthy of Hubbard Woods. The new Jugo-Slavian stamp was issued on May 27 and shows the arms of Jugo-Slavia, Greece, Rumania, and Turkey, which make up the Balkan entente. Following the example of the Union of South Africa the stamps in the sheet are bi-lingual, alternate stamps having country name in Cyrillic and in Roman letters.

The initial order of Coronado stamps amounted to 50 million copies. This commemorative issue was placed on sale at Albuquerque, N. M., Sept. 7.

The chamber of commerce, Kankakee, Ill., will sponsor a cachet for the opening of the new postoffice Oct. 1. Send covers at once, ready to go. Postmaster's signature will be provided if desired.

As Postmaster General James A. Farley prepared to leave the service which he had guided for the last seven years he issued a statement summarizing the changes and additions which had been made during that period. Among his remarks are some of special interest to collectors. The additions to airmail service include the inauguration of the trans-Atlantic and trans-Pacific routes, accompanied by a four fold increase in airmail poundage, and the extension of rural delivery routes by several hundred thousand miles. He is particularly frank in dealing with the issuance of commemorative stamps which, he says, "has increased the sale of stamps to collectors from $300,000 per year to $4,000,000, which figure represents a source of what might be termed clear profit to the government, as most of these stamps purchased by collectors are never used for postal purposes." He mentions also extra services handled by the department which include bonus payments to veterans, social security registration, census of the unemployed, the sale of savings bonds for the treasury department, the shipment of gold for the same department and the sale of hunting licenses for the department of agriculture.

Under new schedules in connection with the airmail service to South America, some planes remain overnight at Cali, Colombia. Postal clerks have been assigned to distribute and make up mails at the airport. This activity, which the Postal Bulletin states is not a postoffice, will be known as the "United States Postal Agency, Cali, Colombia." It is not known that a hand stamp bearing this agency designation will be used, but it will be worth collectors' time to examine all covers carried between the United States and South America on FAM 5-9, Miami to Buenos Aires, via Canal Zone, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Chile, Bolivia, and Argentina.

The naval postmark collectors and those who fancy extra-territorial cancelations on United States stamps are in luck with the recent acquisition by the United States of bases in many of the British colonies in the western hemisphere. It is likely that future postmarks will be similar to that used at the Guantanamo naval base in Cuba, and that the first occupation of the new bases will lead to the use of United States stamps with appropriate postmarks.

The 19th century United States stamps as listed in the 1941 edition of the Standard Postage Stamp catalog published by Scott Publications, Inc., remain generally at the prices quoted in the previous edition. Such changes as have been made are upward. The 1847 issue is unchanged while the 1851 issue of unperforated stamps has two changes. The used 5 cent red brown, Type I, has received a boost of $2.50 to $40 and the 10 cent green, Type IV, also in used condition, is lifted $10 to $85. The perforated stamps of 1857 have received a little more attention and increases of about 10 per cent have been made in the case of used copies of the 1 cent, Types I, II, and III, the 5 cent brick red, Type I, and the 10 cent green, Type II.

U. S. ALBUM FREE.
We have published a specially prepared album for the U. S. Government series of Famous Americans, printing the history and achievements of each of these Famous Americans right under the space reserved for each particular stamp. So great has been the demand for this album that we have sold already more than 30,000 copies.
This unprecedented popularity is due to three facts: First, the album can be completely filled at very little cost. Second, collectors like to have a short biography of the person illustrated on each stamp. Third, there are no spaces for these stamps in other existing albums.
If you do not possess this Famous American album get it at once. We will send it FREE to approval applicants who send 5c for mailing and handling charges.

Patterns by Clotílde

By Clotilde.

Four patterns today form a conspiracy in behalf of your wardrobe. With them you may have a complete tailored outfit that will weather the autumn, no matter what its weather, and the early winter, too.

No. 3413 fashions a classic tailored suit, with two button waistline closing on the jacket, which has traditional rever collarline, pockets near the hem, and tailored sleeves. The skirt is the good style with inverted front plait. An ideal scheme contrasts a plaid woolen jacket and a plain woolen, corduroy or velveteen skirt.

No. 3298 makes two blouses for this suit, or for any other suit or skirt you may have at hand. One blouse is the classic shirtwaist, with a breast pocket and full, long sleeves. The other goes dressy with a lacy or be-ruffled jabot and collar, with cuffs on the short sleeves to match. Silk crêpe, cotton, or woolen jersey may be used for the tailored blouse, and any sheer or soft silk for the dressmaker blouse.

No. 3471 fashions a boxy top coat to wear over the suit or over woolen dresses. It has a high buttoning, a notched rever collarline, huge pockets, and one little one on the bodice. All the lovely woolens and flannels in pastel and dark shades will make up beautifully.

No. 3466 makes a "beanie" hat for this costume. It comes in one adaptable headsize and the yardage requirements are on the envelope. This pattern costs 10 cents extra.

Style No. 3413 is designed for size 16 and for 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 1¾ yards of 54 inch material, with 1⅞ yards of 39 inch lining, for jacket; 1⅜ yards of 54 inch for skirt.

Style No. 3298 is designed for size 16 and for 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 2⅜ yards of 39 inch material for dressy blouse; 2⅛ yards for tailored version.

Style No. 3471 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 2¼ yards of 54 inch material, with 2⅛ yards of 39 inch for lining.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Stores Stage Style Shows for the Home

By Edith Weigle.

It's refurbishing time for your home. As the days grow shorter, the air crisper, as the children go back to school and you take winter woolens from their boxes your attention turns indoors and you look about you with an eye alert to new styles and colors in furniture, draperies, and floor coverings.

This coming week is the best time to learn about fashions in furnishings for retail dealers, both in the loop and outlying districts, are observing National Furniture week and are presenting special displays of all the items that go to make the American home more comfortable and more beautiful. There's real news in the 1940 interior decoration story.

Most important in high style merchandise is the trend toward the Regency period, an era of elegance which covered the first 25 years of the 19th century in England and was widely copied in this country, where Duncan Phyfe, Samuel McIntire, John Seymour, and others were engaged in creating their most beautiful furniture designs.

It was the age of fine mahogany, of lustrous satins and damasks, velvets and brocades, of marble busts, and tall, urnlike lamps, of ornate silver services, flowered porcelain, ormolu mounts on tables and cabinets, of black lacquered and painted incidental pieces, of scenic and striped wallpapers; it marked a revival of interest in ancient Greece and Rome, an interest that influenced the design of many a piece of furniture and many a fireplace mantel and bit of decorative accessory.

A model house, recently opened for public inspection, is an excellent example of American Regency furnishings. Many of the chairs, tables, couches, and cabinets have been painstakingly copied from rare antiques now in the Metropolitan Museum of New York, the Philadelphia Museum, the Historical Museum at Baltimore, and in famous houses of the early 19th century which are preserved as museums.

The sketch at the upper left in the layout today shows the fireplace grouping in the living room of this house. The mantel design was inspired by an old paneled door of the period; the couches, in delicate green, are exact reproductions of originals in Maryland, and the interesting little table behind one of them is also a replica of an antique.

You'll notice that the lamps are taller than those we've been using for some years. This, again, is characteristic of the Regency period, as is the charming little green mableized table at the right.

• • •

The draperies in this room are in a rich faille printed in a design copied from an old piece of embroidery and are carried out in deep rose. They contrast beautifully with the pale green walls.

Besides the living room, this house has two bedrooms, bath, dining room, and kitchen.

In sketches Nos. 2, 3, and 4 are seen a few of another line of delightful Regency furnishings that boasts of 1,662 items. And here the news is that they have all been selected to go together and that they all are available in a number of colors which have been so made that no one clashes with any other.

You may choose the lovely little chair with a seat done in a striped material in Regency rose, for example, and be certain it will blend with the lyre base mahogany table and with the handsome lamp with a Trafalgar torquoise satin shade, or with the medallioned Brummel brown damask and lighter toned wallpaper. Besides the colors named there are also Brighton blue, Windsor gold, Wellington green, and Pavilion purple. The dining room is all in Windsor gold.

Whether you know a thing about color or not you may be sure all items chosen from this enormous ensemble of home furnishings will harmonize because they've been designed and manufactured to do so.

Modern furniture is also making many an attractive display in the stores during National Furniture week. At the lower right in the layout is a glimpse of a good looking living-dining room which makes use of excellently styled, light mahogany pieces. The chest is an unusual one, as it offers storage space and a writing compartment, as well, one drawer pulling out to make a convenient little writing desk.

The big, luxurious, semicircular unit couch-chairs are done in turquoise blue. The round coffee table has a glass top and a useful lower shelf. The tone of the dull, beige-pink walls is deepened in the bois de rose color of the frieze broadloom rug. Long draperies of a lovely rose faille are hung at the windows of this model room in a loop store.

The dining group, No. 5 in the sketches, and the clever corner table, No. 8, are being shown in an outlying furniture store in a brand new "streamlined" model home. They are of birch which has been given a most pleasing, light, natural wood finish.

The living room in this five room house has an artistic color scheme of beige, turquoise blue, and rose. All the furniture, both upholstered and solid wood pieces, are of the birch in modern style. The dining room, done in soft, light yellow and palest gray makes a lovely background for the natural wood tone of the birch.

Sketch No. 6 shows one of the smartest and most popular chairs for bedroom use. It's as comfortable as it is good looking and may be used for sewing, since it has no arms, or as a slipper chair.

No. 1. A glimpse of the fireplace grouping in a distinguished model home done in American Regency style. Almost all the pieces shown are copies of rare antiques of the period. ● No. 2. This sketch, as well as No. 3 and No. 4, are from a line of specially designed Regency furnishings being exhibited in another model house. Here even the colors have been manufactured to blend, a valuable aid to the amateur home decorator. ● No. 5. A corner of an attractive dining room in a series of rooms done in "streamlined modern." The simple, nicely styled furniture is of birch in a natural wood finish. ● No. 6. As smart as it is comfortable, this bedroom chair is in the fashion limelight. Its charming accompanying table has a top of yew wood. ● No. 7. A view of a central arrangement in a living-dining room, part of still another series of model rooms. Here the furniture is of light toned mahogany and the huge, luxurious unit couches are in turquoise blue. ● No. 8. An interesting modern birch table made to fit into a corner.

Sandwiches of Various Kinds 'Make' a Party

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dainty and attractive sandwiches "make" the tea party. When there are afternoon callers, whether they drop in informally or come by invitation, tea and sandwiches will make them feel welcome.

Unexpected guests aren't likely to get elaborate sandwiches with their tea, but they won't mind that. Quickly made tea sandwiches composed of whatever kinds of breads and spreads are at hand, together with a cup of hot tea, will please them. Little sandwiches shaped with a cookie cutter or cut in squares, "fingers," or triangles with a sharp knife may be put together with nothing more than butter, if that's all there is available. If there's jam or jelly, or peanut butter or a cheese spread, any of these may be used as filling.

Chopped parsley, watercress leaves, lettuce, spinach, or other greens make a plain bread and butter sandwich more attractive and more flavorful. If a few crisp bacon slices were left from breakfast, or if cooking a few strips of bacon is no trouble to the hostess and doesn't leave her guest or guests waiting too long in the living room, chopped bacon tea sandwiches may be served.

If a hostess is foresighted enough to keep a can of date-nut bread on the pantry shelf, she may have dainty tea sandwiches in a twinkling. The canned loaf should be sliced thinly, and each sandwich had better be cut in two, for the sake of daintiness. If the callers should happen to be men, this tea party etiquet which demands small and dainty sandwiches might be revised somewhat. Because of the contempt of the average man for bite sized sandwiches, the diameters of these edibles might be increased a bit.

A hostess who has time to plan ahead for an afternoon tea may be interested in these sandwiches, which require a little more fussing than the plain ones.

TEA PARTY SANDWICHES.

1. Waffled sandwiches: Put two slices of sandwich bread together with creamed butter and a thin slice of cheese. Add a spread of deviled ham, if desired. Trim off crusts and cut sandwich into quarters. Toast these little square sandwiches in the waffle iron.

2. Avocado sandwiches: Mash an avocado, season with salt, paprika, minced chives, and lemon juice. Use as filling for plain or toasted sandwiches.

3. Sautéed tea sandwiches: Sauté rounds of bread in butter until brown. Put together with chopped bacon and peanut butter, or cream cheese and jelly.

4. Pecan sandwiches: Mix finely chopped pecans with a little mayonnaise and use as filling for buttered rounds or triangles of thinly sliced bread.

5. Toasted marmalade sandwiches: Make thin sandwiches with buttered bread, using marmalade as a filling. Trim crusts and cut into fingers, squares or triangles. Toast just before serving.

6. Fried rolled sandwiches: Trim crusts from thin slices of white bread, spread with a sharp cheese, and roll up. Tie with coarse thread and fry in deep fat until brown. Remove thread and serve.

7. Rolled sandwiches: Cut sandwich bread lengthwise into thin slices, trim crusts, and spread each long slice with creamed butter and any desired filling. Roll from one end, jelly roll fashion, and wrap in slightly dampened cheesecloth. Chill until just before time to serve, Slice thinly.

8. Rosettes: These are rolled sandwiches made as described, with a two tone filling. Mix cream cheese with sieved pimiento for the red filling. Mix another portion of the cheese with minced chives, parsley or green pepper. Use a separate knife to spread each filling. Butter the long, trimmed bread slice and spread the two fillings on it in stripes, a broad stripe of pimiento, then a broad stripe of the green filling. Stripes should run the short way of the bread. Roll sandwiches, chill, and slice. The red and green pattern is pretty.

9. Ribbon sandwiches: Cut five slices of bread, very thin ones. Part dark and part light bread may be used. Spread with butter and stack together, using four different fillings. For example, you might use three slices of whole wheat bread, two of white, with these fillings: Cream cheese and chives, chopped bacon and relish spread, minced chicken and mayonnaise, cream cheese and watercress. Trim off crusts, wrap in cheesecloth, weight lightly, and chill. Slice crosswise to serve.

10. Brown bread and banana sandwiches: Mash bananas, season with salt, lemon juice, and a little sugar. Use with thin slices of brown bread.

For other party sandwiches, as well as the more hearty kinds, see "The New Sandwichmaker," a mimeographed booklet which sells for 5 cents in stamps, by mail.

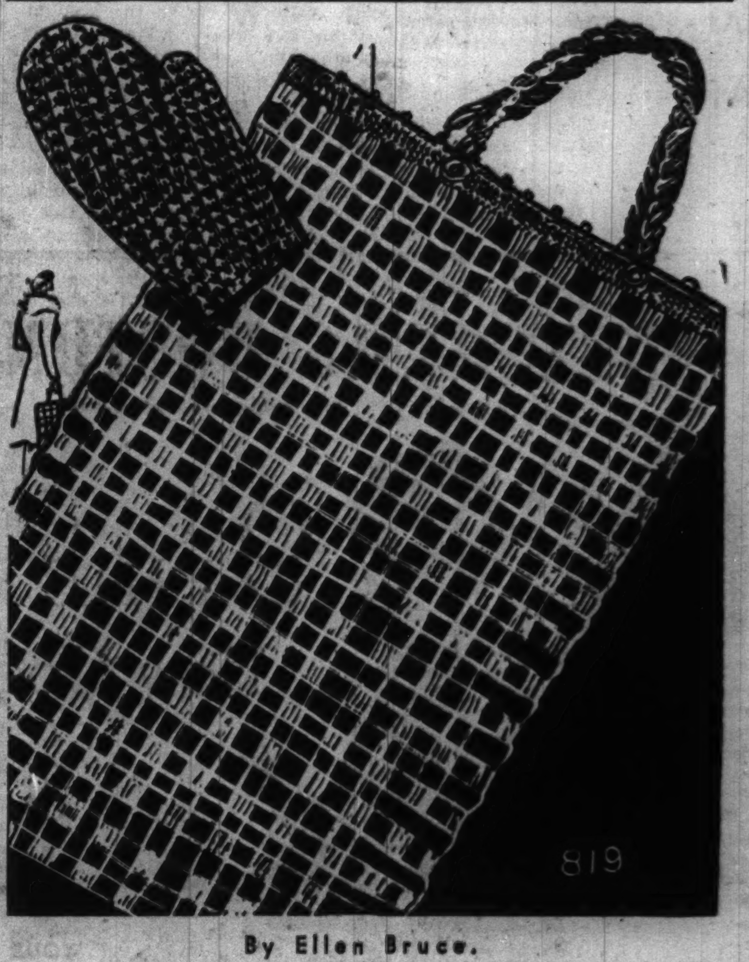
Oven Mitt, Shopping Bag



By Ellen Bruce.

These two items amount to the last word in household utilities. The first is a crocheted oven mitt to prevent burning by steam when taking the cover off that roast pan. The second is a sturdy shopping bag which cannot loose its shape or fall apart with constant use. Both are easy and quick crochet jobs, and inexpensive. Carpet warp or string may be the medium with which to execute this crochet work, and they are available in all the desired colors.

For instructions in crocheting the oven mitt and shopping bag, No. 819, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

THE LADY of the House

"Let me live in a house by the side of the road
Where the race of men go by"

Only they don't go by. They come in and try to sell me things—extracts, shampoos, soaps, vacuum cleaners, brushes, polishes, and all sorts of gadgets. Yesterday, after going six-ways-to-once for a couple of hours, I am standing in a daze in the middle of the kitchen floor wondering what's easiest for lunch. The doorbell rings. Since I am being a "friend to man" I hurry to answer. Six feet of man confronts me with a grin and says: "I'm Oofey. O. O. Oofey. Are you the lady of the house? I guess you don't know me, but does that matter?"

I try to look tall and forbidding and to tell him that it certainly does not matter to me. But the bombardment has left me speechless and my anti-hotaircraft fails to go into action. In no time at all he has me backed across the room and sitting in a deep chair from which I can't escape, and I seem to have ordered another magazine I don't want and won't have time to read. I am still wondering what college got him.

There goes the bell again and I hear some one asking my daughter for the lady of the house.

Today [Sept. 22] Old Sol crosses the equator for "down under" and he won't be back for quite a spell. The air has a bit of an edge, and travelers along our skyways are headed south. Scarlet flame tips maples and oaks, and sumac is a running fire. My plantain lily holds up its last slender alabaster chalice; trumpet honeysuckle and purple clematis yield a few late blooms; and there is a single rose, red badge of courage, on a tall stem reaching for the sun. Robins are busy finishing off the elderberries and the blue jay seems to have forgotten the liquid notes of his courting days as he sounds his ill tempered challenge to fight any and all comers.

Last week the vegetable man came along the block with a whole load of tomatoes, cucumbers—"slicers and pickles," and big bunches of dill. For several days the pungent odors of hot vinegar and spices and herbs pervaded the neighborhood, while the relative merits of cherished recipes for dills, bread and butters, sweet-sours, and cherry chunks were being discussed. Whether it is better to use a little vinegar for the dills, or let them sour in their own juices, was the subject of serious debate. By way of compromise I put a sliver of garlic in each jar of my dills, which gives them that "little something different."

A New High.

"How would you like, for district attorney, the tallest lawyer in the county—a man who is 6 feet 4 inches tall—so that you can easily find him in a crowd if you need a district attorney?"

[From campaign literature in the mail.]

This Mr. Smith.

"Fate tried to conceal him by naming him Smith . . ." but we are going to bring him to light. So right here, ladies, is where we give the men [husbands included] those gentle digs they need to wake them up—and they'll think it means George, next door.

It goes about like this. This Mr. Smith frequently keeps dinner waiting but gets picturesquely sarcastic if he has to wait 10 minutes for the women of his household. Or, this Mr. Smith is sure to leave his wet rubbers where they make dark pools on the freshly polished floor.

All right, Mrs. Smith—even if your real name is Jones, or Brown, or something else—just give us the lowdown on that man. We'll never, never tell, so send in your peeves.

The rocking chair is to stage a comeback we are told. O, to be sure, a streamlined design in tune with the modern trend; but nevertheless, a rocking chair. How well I remember that capacious old Boston rocker of my childhood days, so deep and wide mother could rock two of us at the same time. The colors of the hand painted red roses and green leaves on the head rest were mellowed by the years; the patchwork cushions for seat and back worn dim and threadbare. Standing in a warm corner of the big old fashioned kitchen, or beside the redly-glowing base burner, that old chair with mother in it was sanctuary for a youngster with a hurt or a grief.

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels with herb laxative, combined with syrup pepsin to make it agreeable and easy to take

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with good old Syrup Pepsin to make your laxative more agreeable and easier to take. For years many Doctors have used pepsin compounds, as agreeable carriers to make other medicines more palatable when your "taster" feels easily upset. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna, combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully its herb Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines, to bring welcome relief from constipation. And see how its Syrup Pepsin makes Dr. Caldwell's medicine so smooth and agreeable to a touchy gullet. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna at your druggist's today. Try one laxative that won't bring on violent distaste, even when you take it after a full meal.

There are few things as pathetic as a sick child, and we feel sure that our readers will be interested in helping to fill the following requests.

A mother writes for aid in making her small invalid son a bit more comfortable.

"Dear Miss Brown: I am the mother of two children, a girl of 9 and a boy 5 years old.

"My little son is afflicted with tuberculosis of the spine and, at present, his whole body is in a cast. He can lie only face down or on his back. After a year in the hospital, he now has been sent home for six months, and I am anxious to do everything I can to make him comfortable.

"My husband also is ill and has been in a sanitarium for over a year, so our income is very small. I need a folding go-cart or stroller. Our old one is broken beyond repair and I just can't afford another. Without it I can't take my boy outdoors, so I am asking your help. He gets lonesome and restless at home, and we live rather close to a park. He enjoys going there so much, and I would be very thankful if some reader has a discarded folding stroller I could have.—Mrs. J. S."

This little boy has endured much in his short life, and with a sick husband, this mother cannot provide for the youngster as she would wish. The address is on the near southwest side and we do hope that some reader can supply the needed item which will permit this little fellow to enjoy an occasional trip to the park.

Three Major Benefits on Social Calendar

By Judith Cass

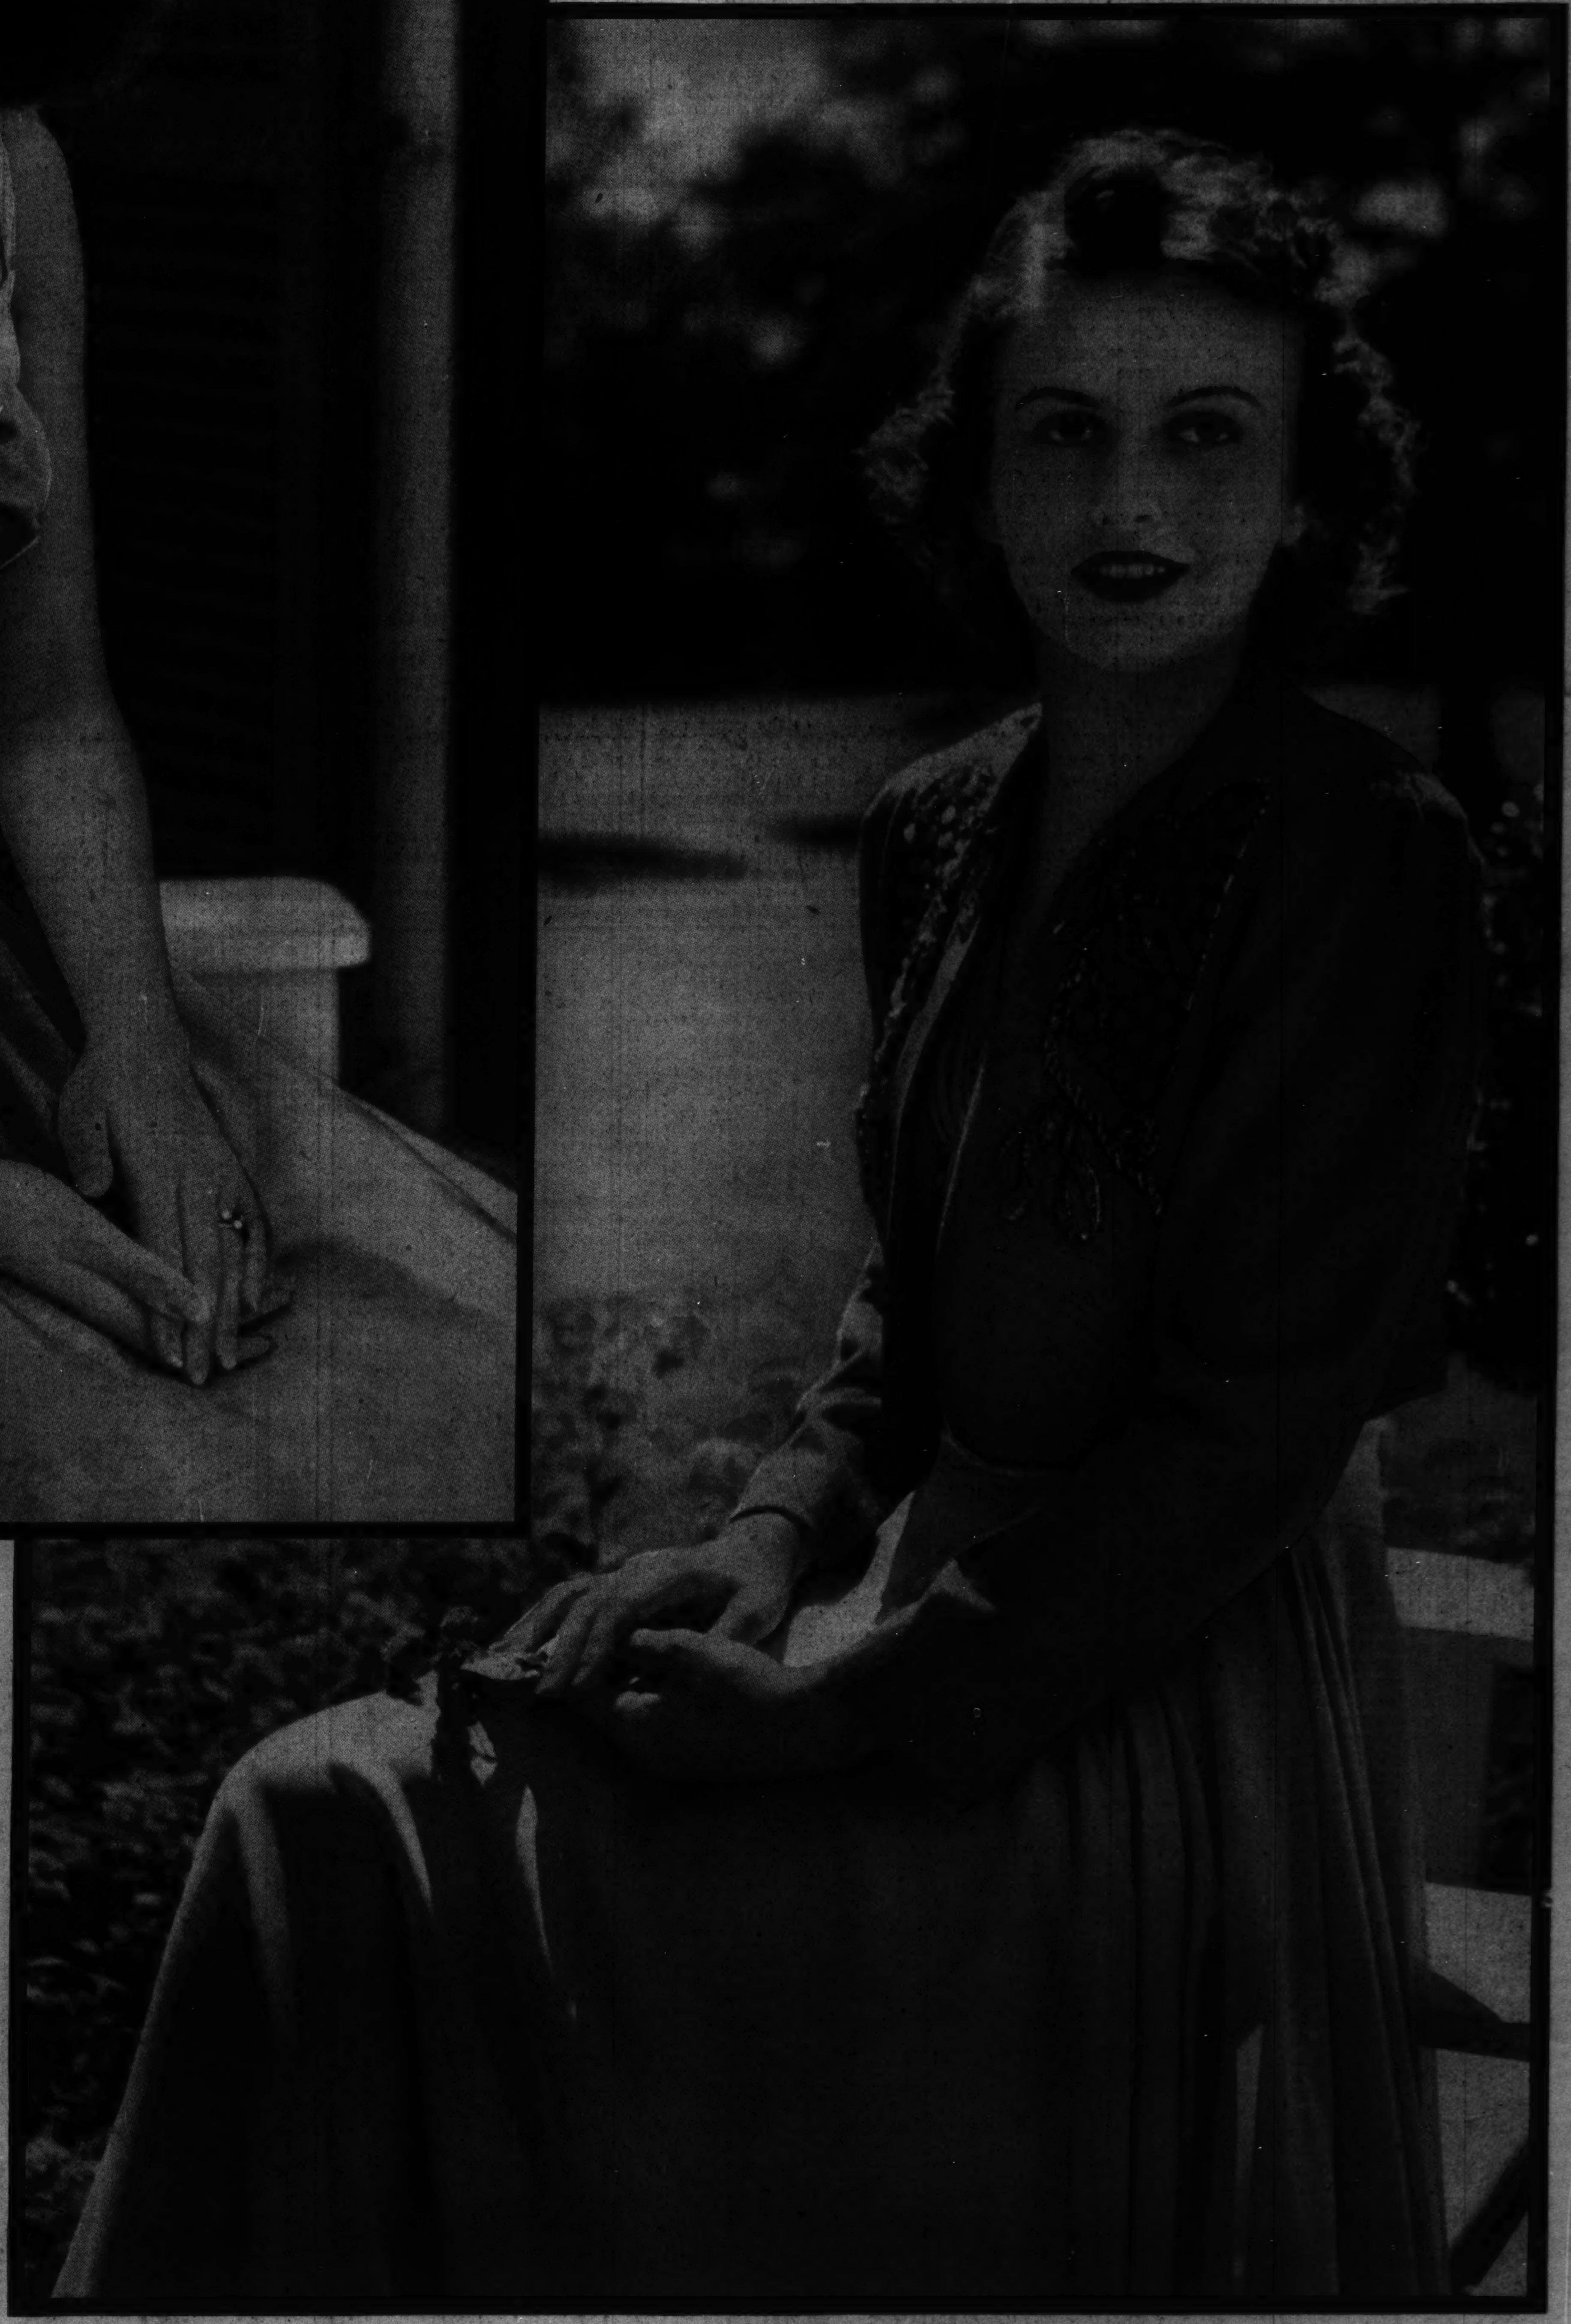
The autumn season is entering its second phase this week. The rush of early debut parties is over and most of the buds and their beaux are starting back to schools and colleges, leaving the entertainment field clear for their mothers' uninterrupted concentration on charitable works. This second phase of going to parties for worthy causes as well as for pleasure is longer than the dizzy debut whirl, for it will continue straight thru the winter.

Three major benefits are scheduled for this week. The annual fashion show of the Winnetka board of Northwestern University settlement will be held on Friday afternoon at the New Trier High school auditorium in Winnetka. A shop to raise funds for British war relief will be opened tomorrow at 615 North Michigan avenue. The Illinois Opera guild will receive the proceeds from the housewarming of a new shop at 200 North Michigan avenue on Wednesday night.

The women who run the fashion show have been hard at work ever since last spring to make it as successful as its 13 predecessors have. The show will start at 2:45 o'clock, and the admission charge of $2.50 for main floor seats or $1.50 for the balcony includes tea. Mrs. Averill Tilden and Mrs. Edwin Hadley have been in charge of obtaining the scores of pretty amateur models, many of them debutantes of the season. Mrs. Arthur Walsh is to be in charge of the dressing rooms where the clothes will be adjusted to the last degree of chic before being seen on the runway. Mrs. Herrick Hammond has been pondering stage decorations. Mrs. Neil Dawes is making the tea arrangements.

Mrs. John Hooker has had the tremendous task of enlisting exhibitors and making certain there are no duplications in (Continued on Page 3.)

Below: Miss Priscilla Armstrong, daughter of the Julian Armstrongs, is another debutante who will model new clothes at the New Trier High school auditorium on the afternoon of Sept. 27. The Settlement Fashion show is one of the largest and most popular of each fall season.



Autumn Enhances Beauty of New England

By Cousin Eve

FITZWILLIAM, N. H.—New England looked a bit older the other day when I took most of it in my stride. Entraining in New York at the crack of dawn, one passed Connecticut towns and villages drowsing under autumn leaves, and Rhode Island, tidy and wide awake.

Crossing a bit of Massachusetts, we found Beantown in a heavy fog and drizzle and the ancient cow tracks Bostonians call streets a mass of solid traffic in the downpour. Luckily we had hours of daylight to spare for the run up into the White mountains by motor.

A visit was due to friends who had emigrated from an estate at Chantilly, northwest of Paris, to a New Hampshire farmstead in this fair village on the uplands, facing Mount Monadnock.

June and Barney came by in a car, and after nosing thru foggy Cambridge we were on the up and up toward Lexington and Concord. This region, the real cradle of liberty, is residential and magnificent. We swept over perfect roads, past historic houses and churches and nice little village greens with statues of Paul Revere and Nathan Hale, until suddenly it was Groton.

Even in the mist that hung like a veil over the avenues of oaks and elms one saw perfection, green velvet lawns and white, beautifully architectured early American houses, shuttered in black or green, all the way. Groton is one long village street three miles in length, with an early-day inn and the year 1725 over the front door.

Fall Enhances the Beauty of New England

Another few miles of fog, and we swooped into Winchendon, a mountain town smelling of pine and hemlock, where they make toys. Deer and bear, wildcats and foxes, abound in these woods, where is many a good little house, empty a hundred years or so.

We stopped for a bite at Toy Toy tavern, a high, modern inn where winter sports were done in the past, and at 9 p. m. were in Fitzwilliam. In six months my hosts had found their house, rebuilt it, put in a water supply, plumbing, lighting, heating, and insulating. They had planted gardens, and that was only the half of it.

This tale is only interesting as it tells what is happening in hundreds of New England villages. European exiles who have lived comfortably and cheaply in French, Italian, and Swiss towns have swarmed back under the American flag. Henceforth their life will be a la Emerson, Hawthorne, and Longfellow, and there won't be a vacant house in Maine, New Hampshire, or Vermont. Property in Vermont is already quite high. Some English friends, who have lived for years at Gstaad in the Bernese Overland, have bought 2,000 acres at Brownsville, near Windsor, and are going in for cattle raising in a big way.

The house where I was staying in Fitzwilliam was built in 1770 and was noted for its woodwork. Taken from an old church, it was paneled and carved delightfully, and the Louis XIII. furniture relaxed into the bright rooms as if made for them. There were log fireplaces, and the old oak pillared French beds were like early American ones, while ancient potteries of Normandy and Brittany had crossed seas safely in the great flight to glow in vivid blues and yellows from Norman chests and side tables.

It takes doing to remake a home on French lines and fit it into the rigid pattern of New England. But "Sunny Top" conformed, and faces the majesty of Monadnock with a beautiful white front, and at the rear a "cat hole" that had been there a century or so. And every morning Pokey, the family cat, wakens family and guests impartially with gentle clawing of blankets and moist, pink kisses.

Mornings were wonderful at Fitzwilliam. The sun beamed, Monadnock towered blue in the distance, and on warm days there was a sheltered brick terrace at the rear for breakfasting and lunching. It gave on an old apple orchard, lilacs, and syringas, and a newly made brook to carry off the rush of autumn rains. Across the brook in her own camp is Gussie with her young family of five "fifth columnists," little dachshunds, born, however, in the United States!

They were afraid of frost in the mountains and tomatoes and tobacco were tucked in at night. There were perhaps 50 scattered houses in Fitzwilliam, a fine white pillared town hall, and one of the prettiest white steepled churches in the country on the village green or "place."

The Stanley Coffins, once of Winnetka, have the most important brick house in the village—dating way back—with many windows and plenty of brass on the front door. The whole countryside is pink with laurel and rhododendrons in July, and down the road is Laurel lake where a colony of artists camps in wooded spots. Down a picturesque woodland lane, Colonel Paget of London has built a divine house after the early American pattern, white, with a central chimney and gray shutters, very old style indeed. Not far away, the Richmond Coxes have adapted an enchanting old mansion to their uses, and both have marvelous mountain views.

Higher than "Sunny Top" on the same hill the Harmon Barneses of New York own a sightly acreage, an all around the year house. They have a handsome young daughter who raises "huskies." Young Miss Barnes, driving her sledge and team of eight beautiful pale faced dogs over seven feet of snow, is a daily winter thrill in Fitzwilliam village.

A fantastic real estate boom is on in New Hampshire and Vermont. Every nice little old time American house is snapped up as soon as it goes on the market. The net result to New England is a back to the country movement.

Among Chicago people in this sector are Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Mullaney, who have settled on a beautiful sunny slope facting the mountains.

In these rural communities the chief outdoor sport is motoring, and we circled widely, day after day. One day it was Northampton, Mass., where Smith college is located, and its preparatory school, a grand old town with gorgeous trees. The Wiggin inn, a big modern hotel, has been doing business for 200 years, and keeps its two earlier buildings as curiosity shops. At one side of the back garden is a group of early day exhibits of housing and farming, and the earliest is now an old time village store and postoffice, with famous historic names still on the boxes.

That day we scouted round Williams college at Williamstown, moved slowly as possible thru the Deerfields, because they were so full of peace and beauty. Old Deerfield is a famously lovely town, and its front doors and many of its windows, in fact, its entire architecture, is said to be the most quaint in all New England. Great modern schools are buying up their properties, and at Deerfield the boys were already in—and there seemed little left to the village that wasn't included in the academy

The magnificent trees and far off mountain views of Deerfield and the outstanding houses included in this institute sent us on our way vastly impressed.

The names of Massachusetts towns are very English—Sunderland, Winchester, Durham, Windsor, and so on indefinitely—all with wide, grassy lawns, under superb oaks and elms, but no sidewalks.

Another day we went lunching to Peterboro, N. H., where the Edward McDowell summer school for artists was located before the hurricane landed on it two years ago. This town has done for itself what John D. Rockefeller Jr. did for Williamsburg, Va., and has reproduced in fine style all its early American public buildings and a brick church or two.

After lunch we discovered that several people had bought land along the deep, dark river that rushes thru and made themselves pretty one storied terraced houses and gardens, utilizing the river fronts in ways most fascinating. The houses were pink, their gardens Italian rather than Yankee.

In this region is Dublin, old, exclusive, hidden away retreat of the ultrawealthy, and, finding ourselves at the very gates of Knollwood, the estate of the Franklin MacVeagh family of Chicago and Washington, we drove in. There are 400 acres to this old mansion and several smaller cottages, used in the past for the housing of friends. Anything more depressing than a place once a center of gayety, the resort of high society, elegant, amusing, full of life's charming hours—now deserted—is hard to imagine. Knollwood looks as if the former hosts had just walked out; it is furnished thruout—the far view over the mountains, unsurpassed—home of people who were patrons of all the arts. Mrs. Jack Gardner of Boston, famous in her day, frequented Knollwood, and Mrs. Marshall Field, Mrs. Augustus Eddy, and an unending list of cosmopolites. To crown my feeling of being a ghost returning to former "hants" it began to rain heavily. A big black cloud had settled above Knollwood and tipped a lot of water over upon us in a downpour.

Far more interesting and gay was the day we went over to Royalston to leave cards on the former empress of Austria, Zita, as the entire community took pleasure in doing. Zita has been going about to luncheons, dinners, and teas with three of her daughters and four of her sons, who are the guests of Calvin Bullock of New York.

Royalston is a mountain town near Athol. To get there we had a wild ride sliding down narrow roads, where the hurricane had struck hardest. All about in the forests were uprooted trees, not yet salvaged as in the northern states. In Vermont and New Hampshire, saw mills are flourishing in unexpected places, and piles of lumber are rising high. The country was gray and bleak that day and Royalston's one wide residential street was aloof and lonely as only a New England village knows how to be.

Mr. Bullock has two square, white houses facing one another across a road. The house occupied by Zita and her gay young offspring has a "lookout" and is the quainter of the two.

Behind a white picket fence, with pairs of white colonial urns topping the several gate posts, it reminded less of the imperial palace in Vienna and the superlative beauty of the Habsburg summer home at Schönbrun than almost any house one has ever seen.

Beyond the two houses were fields and distant golf links, and all was calm and quiet but for the tree toads and their rhythmic choruses. Her majesty, as Zita is called by her Austrian maitre d'hotel, was away from home that day. Her sons, Otto and Felix, had left for New York at noon and she had driven down to Worcester to see them off. The Archduchess Adelaide received us in the neat little square salon, with its plain New England air, and I thought how rare it was to find a girl anywhere with so much poise. She is the eldest daughter of the last emperor of Austria, Carl, and is a willowy, dark eyed young creature with rosy cheeks, decidedly pretty. Across the street, the shouts of her brothers, the Archdukes Charles Louis and Rudolph, could be heard at tennis, and the charming princess said that her younger sisters, Charlotte and Elizabeth, were there, too. They love America and find Royalston something like the Austrian Alps—just a little! June asked the young archduchess if they would winter in the mountains and stay to enjoy 14 feet of snow. She replied that much as they liked being in America the family will travel into Canada, where the younger sisters and brothers go on with their studies later this month.

Zita, who is a slight, dark eyed member of the royal Bourbon-Parme family, was crowned at 24, empress of the Austro-Hungarian empire, with fifty million subjects. At 27 she was banished from Austria with the emperor and her children; and at 30 was left a widow. A couple of Massachusetts state troopers have been detailed to keep an eye on the royal household—and they must keep busy, I fancy, watching over the seven lively young Habsburgs who go about as freely as so many Americans.

It was an interesting interlude, that visit. This may be the twilight of kings, but who can see the dawn?

Another day we left at eight in the morning and plunged straightway into thick fog that blanketed the world. Driving west at a great pace we came finally into clear weather, finding ourselves in the Green mountains, on a sort of backbone or ridge looking both west and east. It was 10 o'clock and we were mounting the slopes of Mount Olga, celebrated for two things, a magnificent view and wonderful waffles. The place was called, I believe, "Tip Top Inn," and part of the rites of eating waffles was shaking hands with the gentleman who cooked them. He was all trimmed up with Willkie buttons, and invited us to return.

Our course was due north to Bennington. Vermont was green and dazzling, the estates larger and far more developed than New Hampshire's and the entire lay of the land is different. A Green mountain in no way resembles a White mountain. We were on our way to the 4,000 acre estate of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Miller. And from there to the Berkshires, which is quite another story.

MARRIED ON SEPT. 10

Mrs. Arthur W. Weston, the former Dawn Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril C. Thompson of 2607 Colfax avenue, Evanston. Her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Weston of Ontario, Canada, took place on Sept. 10 at the First Methodist church in Evanston.

Knitted Lounging Slippers

By Jean Macdonald.

For those who prefer lounging slippers without heels, these knitted slipppers with lamb's wool on the lining of the leather sole are a perfect answer. These may be made for both women and men, and are of the sandal variety, hug-me-tight fashion. The sandal is knitted in moss stitch, while the hug-me-tight slipper is done in a knit and purl stitch which is unusual and attractive. These slippers make ideal gifts and are easy knitting jobs.

For instructions in knitting the lounging slippers, No. 830, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Sale of Lovely Articles to Aid British Relief

New and exotic items, the cream of the crop from smart decorator shops and the stocks of Chicago retail establishments and manufacturers' showrooms, as well as rare old pieces from many a well known Chicago home, will rub elbows tomorrow when the British War Relief shop opens at 615 North Michigan avenue.

Here are some of the items which will be offered at bargain prices: A handsome leather top desk on which may be used a lamp made from a fine old apothecary jar, modern luncheon sets shown on fine linens of another year, Chinese rugs whose colors suggest accessories developed in the new plastic materials, mirrors of the 18th century period, crystal drop candelabra, framed prints, imported objects of crystal and porcelain, and an assortment of bibelots.

Among the patronesses of this shop, which will be open until Oct. 5, are Mrs. Stanley Field, Mrs. Lewis Bernays, Mrs. Walter Brewster, Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, Mrs. C. Morse Ely, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Byron Harvey, Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Mrs. Irene Sidley, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, and Mrs. John C. Murphy.

The shop for the British War Relief society started out to be a place where generous friends of Britain could sell objects of art or house furnishings to benefit the cause, but so many other sorts of donations were received that the shop may present the appearance of a general store. Dogs, canned goods, champagne, jewelry and furs are some of the things other than household goods that have been donated. Selling the articles during the two weeks the shop will be open will be the decorators and architects, who are sponsoring the benefit, and a large corps of assistants, including many of the prettiest young women in the city.

The shop will be open every day from 10 in the morning until 9 at night, including next Sunday. Saturday, Oct. 5, will be the final day. Various groups are taking days: tomorrow, for instance, will be British Empire day with Lewis Bernays, British consul, opening the shop, and his wife and a group of other British women serving as saleswomen. Women of the local press will be at the shop on Monday, Sept. 30.

Members of the Illinois Opera guild have been working only two weeks on their benefit which promises to be of especial interest to all who will be attending performances of the Chicago Opera company this winter. A fashion show to be presented at the opening will include a regular miniature "opening night" with perfect opera-going costumes. The guild contributes to a fund that provides opera seats for music students.

Mrs. James G. McMillan is president of the guild. Among those who have been helping her with the benefit are Mrs. Barnett Faroll, ticket chairman; Mrs. Hill Blackett, Mrs. William Ragland, Mrs. Millard B. Kennedy, Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Saltiel, and James C. Thompson, who will be in charge of the bar.

Members of Christ church guild have been invited to a "strip-tease" luncheon meeting at the home of Mrs. Roy A. Bard on Tuesday. The luncheon is being held in connection with the guild's annual rummage sale, and the strip-tease will not denude the luncheon guests to the extent that they will create undue attention en route back to their homes. The guests will strip only the extra clothes they will be wearing with the idea of donating the articles to the rummage sale. The sale will be held on Oct. 14 in Christ church parish house, and, as usual, book lovers are invited to contribute and to come in and browse around the large supply of books that will occupy one part of the house.

The pantry committee of the senior board of La Rabida Jackson park sanitarium is giving a fashion show and tea on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Lawrence J. Lindsay. Mrs. Lindsay is chairman of the benefit. Members of the senior board and of the junior auxiliary will model fall clothes.

The board of directors of the Chapel Guild of the Cenacle will give its annual card party on Saturday, Nov. 16, at the Stevens hotel. Mrs. Hempstead Washburne is president of the board with Mrs. George D. McLaughlin, Mrs. Edward Kerwin, Mrs. Britton I. Budd, Mrs. William Roy Carney and Mrs. Henry Murphy as vice presidents. Mrs. Harry Drake is treasurer; Mrs. Charles Kerwin, recording secretary, and Mrs. Frank Gordon, corresponding secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pynchon are inviting a group of friends to have supper at the Pump room tomorrow night to meet Beverly Cox, and to hear her husband, Charles Cox, and his orchestra. The musical group also will play there the following Monday. The Thomas Underwoods, the young Edwin M. Ashcrafts, Mrs. Paul Steinbrecher, Mrs. Townsend McKeever, Mrs. Welch Dickinson, the John Leslies, the Royden Keiths, the William E. Vogelbacks, and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Alberts also are planning parties to hear Mr. Cox.

AT HOME IN GRAND RAPIDS

Mrs. Charles DeBruler, the former Phoebe Carol Kerrihard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Liebetrau of Chicago. Her marriage to the son of Mrs. Charles DeBruler also of Chicago, took place on Sept. 1 in the Blackstone hotel, the Rev. John Thompson of the First Methodist Episcopal church officiating. Mr. DeBruler, who attended Lake Forest college, and his bride are at home in Grand Rapids, Mich. Mrs. DeBruler attended Northwestern university and Lake Forest college.

Mrs. Prentice Gives Musical at Pittsfield

PITTSFIELD, MASS.

Mrs. E. Parmalee Prentice gave the fourth in her series of summer musicals yesterday afternoon at Mount Hope farm, Williamstown. As at preceding concerts H. Archer Gibson of New York played the organ and helped the hostess arrange her program. Tea was served to the 150 guests on the terrace, from which could be seen evidence of the approaching October foliage display, unrivaled anywhere.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gilbert Colt had a dinner party of 45 last night at Overmead, Pittsfield, to celebrate their fortieth wedding anniversary. All of their five children and in-laws were present. They also have seven grandchildren. Mrs. Colt is the former Miss Frances Kittredge Crane, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Zenas Crane of Dalton, where Crane and company have been making the paper for all the legal paper money in this country since 1879. Her father founded the Berkshire museum at Pittsfield and the Pittsfield Boys' club. Dr. Colt's father, Justice James D. Colt, was on the Massachusetts Supreme court bench for 16 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilder Kimball and Mrs. Charles H. Abbott of Rumford, Me., are visiting their sister, Mrs. Warren M. Sallsbury of Lake Shore drive, at Tor court, Pittsfield. She is to return with them to Maine next week for a fortnight.

Mrs. George Allen Holloway of New York poured yesterday at a tea given by her mother, Mrs. Brace W. Paddock, at Pittsfield in honor of Mrs. Franklin Kittredge Paddock and Mrs. Stephen B. Hibbard, who have moved here recently from Boston.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Metz of Lincoln Park west are in Chicago for a week. They were accompanied from Fernbrook, Lenox, by Professor William Lindsay, who was en route to Minneapolis to resume his work in the music department of the University of Minnesota.

Larz A. Holloway of Glencoe has joined his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Holloway, at Tamarack, Tyringham, following a visit at Thermopolis, Wyo.

Mrs. Winthrop M. Crane Jr. is giving a garden party at Chilton house, Dalton, on Tuesday in honor of Mrs. W. Rockwood Gibbs and the Richmond Garden club of which she has been president for 25 years.

WEDS OCT. 5

Miss Harriet Wilson, whose marriage to Paul L. O'Toole, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew O'Toole of 7137 Luella avenue, will take place on Oct. 5 in St. Bride's church. CARSON PIRIE SCOTT & CO

More Emphasis in Art World on Sculpture

By Eleanor Jewett.

Sculpture still remains one of the live issues of the day. The "missing" Puritan by St. Gaudens at the Art institute is still expected to make a return appearance and one that will be permanent. Many readers of this column have written in to ask when the statue will be restored to its place by the front door. The struggle is a little like that which went on when the late Director Robert B. Harshe of the institute banished the "Song of the Lark" to a closet. Public opinion won her freedom. The Puritan has had a longer stay in obscurity, but perhaps his durance vile may come to an end at a not too late day in the future. America is in immediate need of all her patriots, the living and the dead; the living to act, the dead to give inspiration. The character of the Pilgrim Father is the character we need in the citizen of today. St. Gaudens' statue could be studied to advantage by every visitor to the Art institute; it is typical of the best in American tradition.

Paul Manship, New York sculptor, is pleading the cause of the great group of fine sculpture on the grounds of the New York World's Fair. Apparently he feels much as did Benjamin Franklin Ferguson, who left in his will a trust fund of a million dollars, the interest of which was to be used to acquire sculpture for Chicago parks and boulevards. Mr. Manship today wants to keep the exposition sculpture for the parks of New York City. He declares:

"As much as possible should be kept as permanent decoration in the park. Our American parks are sadly lacking in sculpture. We spend millions on highways and bridges that will be obsolete in 20 years, and practically nothing on works that would be permanent records of our time."

More emphasis is placed upon sculpture in the news from New York that a new art organization has been formed there under the chairmanship of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. "to help American sculptors reach a larger audience and make it possible for more American homes and gardens to have fine examples of our native sculpture." The organization is known as the "Limited Editions of American Masterpieces of Garden Sculpture." It plans to reproduce contemporary American sculpture in editions of 100, thus reducing the price, increasing sales, and expanding the outlet for the plastic medium.

Among other projects of the organization it hopes to bring out annually works of three American sculptors, two to be nationally known and one to be selected by competition. Wheeler Williams [who with one of his famous black panthers is on view in this column today] was the first sculptor chosen and the society has announced the issuance of his eight delightful garden sculptures, cast in lead and called collectively "The Childhood of the Gods." The group comprises figures of Neptune, Hercules, Venus, Diana, Apollo, Pan, Ampthitryon, and Mercury as children, each 33 inches high. A photograph of "Venus" shows her as one of the most fascinating child figures to have ever been devised, one can imagine nothing more perfect for a garden.

Supplying the all important cash for making the bronze molds are eight sponsors who have guaranteed $1,000 each, and who will receive in return four of the figures. Something like this has been done before for painters, but this is the first time, as far as we know, that sculptors have been especially considered.

The Studio Publications, 381 Fourth avenue, New York, has just printed [Sept. 15 was the publication date] an intriguing little book, "Drawing Dogs," by Diana Thorne. The many lovers of Miss Thorne's work know without being told exactly how beautifully she herself draws dogs, but this book will, perhaps, teach you how to draw your own pet, and if it does not the fault cannot possibly be Miss Thorne's. Her suggestions are definite and the illustrations which accompany the text are superlatively clear. But it takes something more than "knowing how" to draw well; if you already have the gift the booklet will encourage you. If you cannot draw, do not be dismayed; the book is for you, too [provided you are a dog lover]; it is a charming collection of whimsical portraits of many breeds.

This "Drawing Dogs" by Miss Thorne is a companion book to the intriguing "Drawing a Cat" by Clara Turlay Newberry, a Studio Publication of last spring. This has an introduction by Thomas Craven and is addressed to all cat lovers. The book includes 80 illustrations of sketches and finished drawings. No cats were ever more adorable than those of Miss Newberry's. All children [and most adults] should have both dog and cat book in their libraries, if only for the fun of looking at the pictures.

Orozco, the Mexican painter, has finished his mural in six interchangeable panels for the Museum of Modern Art, New York, and the museum has issued a pamphlet about it: "Orozco . . . Explains." Truth to tell the painter does not really explain; he expands, and he expands on the theme that a picture is a poem. If his explanation makes his mural clearer to your mind, so much the better for you; it leaves me still puzzled and quite at odds with practically every idea he advances. Orozco worked 10 days on the mural, each working day a period of from 8 to 30 hours, which does not seem excessive.

WHEELER WILLIAMS AND ONE OF HIS BLACK PANTHERS

Wheeler Williams, sculptor, will be a member of the New York jury for sculpture for the annual exhibition of American Painting and Sculpture to open at the Chicago Art institute this fall.

Four Shows Open Season on Broadway

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special]. — Broadway is perking up. Nothing yet to get excited about in the new theater season, but at least a touch of life. Like an early fall bride, the old street is showing something old and something new, something borrowed and something blue.

Lynn Fontanne.

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne are back from a month's rest in Wisconsin with Sherwood's "There Shall Be No Night," with which they stirred the town last spring. There is a new piece called "Jupiter Laughs," by the Dr. A. J. Cronin who wrote an exciting novel, "The Citadel," about fee-splitting English doctors.

There is a marvelous array of assorted magic borrowed from all the magicians of all time in an entertainment called "Sim Sala Bim," with a Dane named Dante at its head. [He was born Harry A. Jansen in Copenhagen and used to tour with Howard Thurston in America, but for 12 years he has been known as Dante in Europe and was driven home by the gunfire and confusion of war.]

And there is a bit of blue humor in the gags of a musical comedy called "Hold On to Your Hats," which has brought Al Jolson back to town after an absence of nine years in Hollywood and environs.

A varied list, and nothing remotely to be associated with the higher drama, except the Lunts' play, which covers the invasion of Finland. This may be just as well. The town is still in summer mood. Daylight saving has another week to run. And the world's fair is still diverting crowds hurrying to get in on the big show's last month on earth.

The fellow called Dante is the nearest thing to a novelty in the show line. He is a handsome oldster, with gray hair, and a magician's goattee such as the great Herrmann used to wear. The story runs that he first saw a magic show at McVicker's theater in Chicago, of which Herrmann was the star, and his ambition was fired. He finally made his way into vaudeville, and later joined with Thurston, whose paraphernalia and secrets he eventually acquired. He has been touring the world and avoiding America the last 12 years, but when war came he started home. The Germans confiscated all his trick stuff, fearing that he had concealed money in secret recesses, and when he got back to America he had to build a new assortment of chests, cabinets, and such.

Dante is not as elegant as to manner as Hermann was, nor as suave as was Kellar. He performs no miraculous escapes as Houdini did, save a rope trick or two. But he knows all there is to know about what he calls "practical magic." His "Sim Sala Bim" show [he insists the title is from an old Danish folk song and means something like "a thousand thanks to you"] runs for two hours, and during that time he leaves no trick unturned, nor unrevealed a single major illusion known to such exhibits.

He tosses off the old ring and rose trick, in which ladies' rings are collected from the audience, pounded into a shapeless mass, and then shot into a jewel box suspended from a crane on the stage, from which they are recovered in perfect form, with each attached to a rose, in about a third the time it took Kellar to do it. He produces enough live stock from impossible places of concealment in the first 10 minutes of his exhibition to populate a farm.

He has a chest suspended from the ceiling thruout the evening, and into this he shoots his young lady assistant from the stage, as Herrmann was in the habit of doing after a quarter hour's elaborate preparation, in something like four minutes flat. His own particular pet illusion he calls the "stratosphere." Into the basket of a balloon he loads two girls and a man. At the report of a pistol the basket explodes, the riders disappear, and 30 seconds later the three occupants come romping up the aisle.

He does all the Houdini cabinet work in exposing spiritualistic materialization with fewer words and more success than any of his predecessors. In fact, there isn't anything he doesn't do that I can remember any of the former masters of magic doing, and in each instance he does it in about half the time and with a third the fuss they employed. Including most of the card and palming tricks in any man's repertory.

Dr. Cronin's play is something of a disappointment. Partly, I have no doubt, because it is Dr. Cronin's play. The crusading novelist is always expected to turn out something pretty thoughtful and emotion-stirring.

"Jupiter Laughs" is fairly routine drama telling of a rather unpleasant but very serious young medic, Dr. Paul Venner, who is working feverishly in the laboratory of a London hospital on a formula that he has great hopes will cure most of the nerve disorders known to his profession. Because he places all his faith in pure science, he has little use for religion. This serves to irritate and confuse him when he falls in love with Dr. Mary Murray, the daughter of missionaries, who has her heart set on going to China to work for the heathen.

The conflict, as you may see, is a familiar one in the theater. Dr. Cronin, however, is not content with one plot; he toys with several. Dr. Venner is also involved in an affair with the wife of his superior, and the patient on whom he has been trying his new nerve remedy suddenly dies on him. His enemies would bring action again him, and the lady whose love he spurns wrecks his laboratory with an explosion, which also kills his true love when she tries to save his papers.

Resort Guests Stay for Fall Color Pageant

White mountain resorts still continue to attract many from the Chicago area, and late visitors include those who came east to place their sons and daughters in schools or colleges, and later tour the hills to see the beginning of what promises to be an autumn color pageant of spectacular beauty. The peak of the foliage charm comes in early October.

WHITE MOUNTAINS, N. H.

Mrs. Ernest Poole, chairman, and Mrs. Hill Griffith, vice chairman of the Franconia Red Cross chapter, are gratified at the success of their recent benefit auction, at which in 35 minutes, Miss Bette Davis, cinema star, sold $35 worth of her autographs for charity. Private subscriptions have swelled total receipts to more than $1,600. The chapter has decided to purchase a rolling kitchen for the London poor, to be sent immediately to England. Mrs. Griffith, formerly Miss Philipson of Chicago, will hold meetings for this chapter on Wednesdays at her home thru the autumn season.

Mrs. Poole and Mrs. Griffith will be among executives of the state Red Cross chapters to attend a meeting and luncheon on Sept. 27 at the Mountain View house, Whitefield.

Mrs. William Beye of Oak Park, who has spent the summer at the lovely "White Village," lower Waterford, Vt., owned by the family of her sister, Mrs. James W. Davies, and Hamilton Allport of Glencoe, who is a guest there, were entertained at luncheon at Spalding inn, Whitefield, on Sunday by Mrs. Davies. Mrs. Beye and her sister are charter members of the White Mountain Garden club, whose last meeting was held at the Sugar Hill residence of Mrs. Francis Blewer on Wednesday.

Mrs. J. G. M. Glessner is recuperating satisfactorily from a recent illness and still is at the Littleton hospital near her home where her children, Miss Emily Glessner, Mrs. Robert W. Edge of Bedford, N. Y., and Mrs. Renée Mathey of Paris and their families are spending autumn.

• • •

All Chocorua and Tamworth turned out to attend the auction at the mansion home of the late John Sumner Runnels of Chicago, held there all thru last week and the early part of the present week. Mrs. Clive Runnels and John Sumner Runnels II. came from Chicago, and were at Chocorua inn to be near others of the family. Every one wanted mementos of Mr. Runnels, who was Chocorua's oldest and most important summer resident at the time of his death.

Are You Less Understanding than a Judge?

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Boys and girls, teen age or younger, come into the juvenile courts on many different charges.

As you sit beside the judge and listen, you realize, if you've had much to do with children, that many boys [and some girls] of families that you know have gotten into similar mischief. But the neighbors affected by their actions have brought no charges, knowing that high spirits and a sense of adventure may be responsible.

Or, as you listen to the social worker talk about a young offender, you may see, in your mind's eye, young people you know who have had "every advantage" and have still gotten into just some such serious mixup. Only no one has preferred charges and they have never appeared before a juvenile court.

Among the misdemeanors they are charged with are such things as breaking windows [do you know any boy who hasn't longed to smash windows?], stealing from stores, attempted holdups, breaking into empty buildings, and sex offenses. The causes are many: Bad neighborhood or companions, crowded quarters, drunkenness of parents, no home life, and, in some instances, subnormality.

But the things that will strike you are two:

First, the very human understanding of the judge, who may be like one of the judges I sat beside, and have boys of his own, and who doesn't blame or preach, but looks for causes and tries to have them corrected. That's one thing you'll notice.

The other thing that will strike you is the fact that the very last resort [even if the child has been in trouble more than once] is to send that child to an institution.

The young person is helped by the case worker and his parents and home is made more nearly as it should be.

• • •

Yet I receive, at intervals, letters from the parents of teen age boys who are trying and defiant and troublesome, asking me the name of an institution or a reform school where they might send their boy. They are willing to try something that the judge of a juvenile court avoids.

Even from the mothers of smaller boys I receive letters talking about sending them away because their parents can't manage them, to a nice strict boarding school!

My answer to them is: The job is yours to do. There is no better place than home for a child or a young person to learn to live, to live with himself and with other people. And my advice, spread out a little, goes something like this.

The tools to use in helping children who are out of key with their parents, their school, and their social life are:

Interest from their parents.

Interests and worthwhile occupation for their leisure.

Companionship with their parents.

Understanding.

Approval.

These tools may be used in various ways.

First, if you're the mother, stay at home instead of unnecessarily going to work or business.

Second, whether mother or father, stop scolding, nagging, punishing, and holding brothers or sisters up as an example. That will get you nowhere, as you have proved. Show no favoritism. Feel no antagonism.

• • •

Try to understand your child. The girl or boy in the early teens is not like the little child of 6 or 8, and must not be treated as such.

Drop the "commanding officer" attitude, if you're a father, and be a friend to your boy. If you're a mother, be and act more like a loving companion and less like an official faultfinder.

Avoid making your son or daughter feel reprehensible. "I'm ashamed of you," or, "You're a disgrace to me," is only making what you feel important. It pulls them down. Instead, build up your child's self respect and pride.

Next, school enters in.

When school work suffers, find out why. Go to school. See the teacher, See the principal. Enlist their cooperation. Make them realize your interest and your need of their help. Then they probably will come to feel their responsibility, too, in helping your boy or girl. Consult the school system's guidance bureau.

Or perhaps the school is the wrong one. It may be that your child needs to learn a trade, a craft, or to take a business course, instead of straight academic work. Find out from the principal where you can reach some one qualified to give vocational guidance.

Children in the early teens need wise enlightenment on sex and reproduction, but their parents cannot give it to them unless they have things clear in their own minds. We have many brief, ready suggestions to offer.

• • •

Finally, let me say this:

Letters from parents who want to send their boys away seldom give the impression that a warm, attractive home life exists.

Children begin life by loving their homes and regarding their father and mother as the very hub of the universe, provided they are given any excuse at all to do so. All thru their lives their homes and their parents should be a sort of combined magnet representing warmth, friendliness, understanding, happiness, interest, a magnet which draws and holds them.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Sept. 9, 1892.

Dear Julia: As I sit in our Rush street library, I hear from the parlor strange talk between Will and a caller, a client, whose name I don't remember. A "sporting gent," as Will calls him, he has just returned from New Orleans, where he was a witness to the Sullivan-Corbett fight. Sad indeed is he, for he had bet a large sum on the late champion, which means that he will need to sell a Chicago lot he owns, in order to pay his losses.

James J. Corbett.

I hear him discussing the fine points of the contest, with an occasional bit of profanity which I won't favor you with. "I never felt so bad in my life, Mr. Esmond," he says earnestly. "Not on account of my own big wad I had on him, but for poor Sully himself. Just to think of the winner of a hundred battles—John the Great—lying with his face in the bloody sand of the ring, the crowd howling outside the ropes, the count going on—seven, eight, nine . . . and OUT. He snaps his fingers on that.

"O, well," says Will, who, having laid a small wager on Corbett, can afford to be philosophical, "there's always a last time for every champion."

"But think of it," almost weeps the Sullivan backer, "What gall and wormwood for a man! Don't you remember how the very boys in the streets had him for a hero? Would they walk across the road to look at him now? And all the young bloods that used to lick his boots! Well, they're fawning on Corbett today."

"Perhaps," says Will, "he may still do something on the stage."

"Naw," hopelessly. "Who wants to look at a defeated champion?"

Will has said repeatedly that any one could have predicted the result in advance, seeing the roll of flesh around Sullivan's waistline and knowing that drink has been his great enemy, while the new champion, James J. Corbett, young, and in the pink of condition, had spent his time the last days at the New Orleans Y. M. C. A.

When one looks at the papers, with pages about the fight, it is sad to note that only half a column was given to the death of our Quaker poet, Whittier, who died Sept. 7. Well, he was only a poet, to be sure.

It is pleasant to know how happy and peaceful his later life had been, with those he loved about him, and his place in the affection of America assured. I love his descriptions of nature and home life. "Snow-Bound" is one of my favorites, and I was glad to see that Richard Henry Stoddard called this the poem on which his reputation most surely rests. "If there is anything in British song with which it can be compared," says Stoddard, "it is 'The Cotter's Saturday Night,' which is perfect of its kind, tho devoid of the poetic grace which is the charm of this sweetest of all American idyls."

Sept. 16, 1892.

For some reason, I didn't finish and mail this letter last week, and now I will add a few lines. Sandy and Will want me to send you a ballad by one of those bards who seem to be always waiting for a calamity. This tells the tale of the Sullivan-Corbett fight in dreadful rhyme. I shall not copy it all, just four lines and the refrain, sung to the tune, Sandy says, of "Throw Him Down McCloskey."

"The story you are familiar with,
how John was whipped at last;
From the very start, in fact, we're told, he was very much outclassed;
He did not seem to be himself at no time in the fight,
And somehow he didn't have the use of his big awful right."

REFRAIN:

"John L. has been knocked out!
The people all did cry!
Corbett is the champion!
How the news did fly!
And future generations, with wonder and delight,
Will read in history's pages of the Sullivan-Corbett fight."

"Wonder and delight," forsooth!

Do forgive me for obtruding this low ballad upon you. It's the fault of my husband and son-in-law.

With love, Yours as ever,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

John Greenleaf Whittier [1807-1892] began his career as editor of the newspaper in his home town, the Haverhill Gazette. Devoted to the abolition cause, he wrote many poems published under the title, "Songs of Freedom." What is your favorite Whittier poem?

John Lawrence Sullivan [1858-1918], idol of the sporting world during his championship days, retired, on his defeat, to a farm at West Abington, where he died.

Theater Notes.

From Paul S. Warden, Chicago: "I was a theater fan when I was a kid, rushing from Sunday school to get a front gallery seat at the old Havlin's [lower Wabash avenue]; the Haymarket, or even the Academy of Music. The 'Charity Ball' was a much ballyhooed production and, having a little extra change, I took Pa and Ma to the opening. Gosh, was I excited that I was able to get front gallery seats? I can never forget Pa's face, when we took our seats. I didn't realize that he would never take Ma to a show unless they had 'parquet' seats. I am sure he had never sat in the gallery before. Pa didn't like 'Charity Ball' and was heckling it to Ma much of the time. It was a sophisticated society drama, doubtless a good play, but two days later I couldn't have told you anything about it, but I could almost rewrite such thrillers as 'Shenandoah'; Hoyt's great comedies, 'The Texas Steer,' and 'A Milk White Flag'; Sol Smith Russell's 'Poor Relation,' and others."

Graham Taber, South Bend, Ind., writes that "Charity Ball" was written by William De Mille, father of Cecil De Mille, Hollywood producer, and of William De Mille Jr. De Mille also wrote "The Wife" and "Lord Chumley." Richard Harding Davis, Mr. Taber reminds us, gave the stage a success in "The Littlest Girl," which had appeared in "Van Bibber" as "Her First Appearance." Robert Hilliard took this to leading vaudeville houses. Graham Taber himself, with his own company, presented the play over the northwest Orpheum circuit about 30 years ago.

On Sept. 15 this column celebrated its 11th anniversary, the first letter to "Dear Julia" having appeared in 1929.

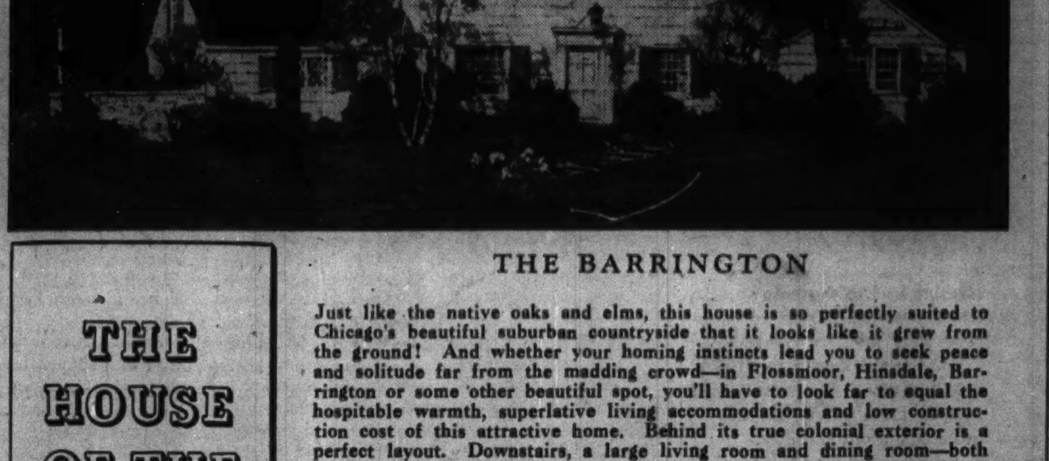
THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK



THE BARRINGTON

Just like the native oaks and elms, this house is so perfectly suited to Chicago's beautiful suburban countryside that it looks like it grew from the ground! And whether your homing instincts lead you to seek peace and solitude far from the madding crowd—in Flossmoor, Hinsdale, Barrington or some other beautiful spot, you'll have to look far to equal the hospitable warmth, superlative living accommodations and low construction cost of this attractive home. Behind its true colonial exterior is a perfect layout. Downstairs, a large living room and dining room—both with French doors opening onto a flagstone terrace. A quiet study with bath adjacent so it can be used as a guest chamber. Large kitchen and laundry on the first floor where it should be. Upstairs, two large master bedrooms and bath—and over the garage, a maid's apartment and bath. Send for your free copy of the folder which describes this house so you can study the floor plan at your leisure—but do it now, for the supply is limited.

WE WILL BUILD THIS HOME ANYWHERE IN THE CHICAGO AREA

Family Living Group to Hear Dr. McClusky

Howard Yale McClusky, professor of educational psychology at the University of Michigan, will address members of the Association for Family Living at its first fall meeting on Sept. 30 at 11:45 o'clock in the tearoom of Carson Pirie Scott & Co. Dr. McClusky, who has been appointed associate director of the American Youth commission in Washington, has said: "What the youth of America think and do is of supreme importance to all of us. We want them to uphold and strengthen our democracy, but we will have to show them a democracy that works." In his talk on "Youth and the National Emergency" a week from tomorrow, Dr. McClusky will point out the important relationships between youth, defense and the national welfare. The meeting will close with a discussion period in which William J. Campbell, Russell A. Beam, Evelyn Millis Duvall, and other leaders will participate.

The business and professional women's group of the National Council of Jewish Women, Chicago section, will hold its first meeting of the season Tuesday at 7:15 o'clock in the council offices. This group was organized last year in accordance with the council's program of attempting to meet the needs of all groups of women. Two meetings are planned for each month: Business meetings on the fourth Tuesday, and social meetings on the second Sunday after the business meeting. Mrs. Bernard J. Salita is chairman.

Sidney Jacobs, a member of the staf of the Board of Jewish Education, will speak before the women's division of the American Jewish Congress at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Palmer House. His subject will be "A Year of Hope."

• • •

The first open meeting of Hadassah, to be held at 2:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the Gold ballroom of the Congress hotel, will be highlighted by a talk by Rabbi Morton M. Berman of Temple Isaiah Israel. Mrs. Max Shulman, chairman of membership, will outline plans for the new membership drive; Mrs. Carl M. Halperin, chairman of Youth Aliyah, will report on its work, which involves the transfer of children from central Europe to Palestine; and Mrs. Jacob Lebovitz will outline the program of the national convention which will be held in Cincinnati from Oct. 20 to Nov. 3. Delegates to the convention will be elected at this meeting.

On Wednesday Mrs. S. H. Soboroff, newly elected Chicago Hadassah, president, will be the special guest of the northwest district of Hadassah at a luncheon and reception at the Covenant club. Mrs. Robert L. Aronson and Mrs. Ernest Rosenberg are co-chairmen of the arrangements.

A tea party and sociay, including cards, majhong and keno, will be on the program for the first meeting of the Willing Workers Woman's club, Wednesday afternoon. The meeting will be held at 1:30 o'clock at the Standard club. Mrs. Harry King is president of the club, which is associated with the Winfield Tuberculosis sanitorium.

• • •

Five women, charter members of the Catholic Woman's league, which was founded 47 years ago, will be the special guests at an anniversary party at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the league lounge. The program, which will be given at a candle light tea, will stress the highlights of the league's existence, reflected in the work of Mrs. P. W. Anderson, Mrs. Theodore Buhman, Miss Harriet B. Lutz, Mrs. D. J. Sullivan, and Mrs. James L. Murray, chairman of St. Mary's settlement.

Mrs. James L. Murray.

Graduates of 1940 will be the guests at the annual fall tea of the Chicago Illinæ club next Saturday afternoon. Mrs. George Frazer of 435 Sheridan road, Winnetka, daughter of the late Edmund J. James, first president of the University of Illinois, will open her home for the occasion. She will be assisted by Mrs. James M. Cleary of Kenilworth.

The club woman's bureau at Mandel Brothers will present Madame Sarra Kliachko in a lecture-recital on "Listeners and Orchestral Music" at 2:45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. This lecture is open to a'l interested in music, club presidents and program chairmen. On Friday, at 2:45 o'clock, the bureau will hold its fourth annual press conference for club presidents and press committees. Betty Browning, club editor of THE TRIBUNE, will be among the speakers.

The Illinois Association for the Crippled will meet for luncheon on Wednesday in the men's grill of Mandel Brothers to discuss plans for the establishment of a central, permanent outlet shop for the sale of handcraft articles made by severely handicapped persons. The association, under the chairmanship of Dr. Frank G. Bruner, will sponsor a cooperative sale of articles between Thanksgiving and Christmas. Proceeds from the sale of any product will be turned over to the maker of the article.

The Fort Checaugou chapter of the Daughters of the American Colonists of Illinois will give a tea at 1:30 o'clock next Saturday afternoon in the Republic building. Miss Doris Plapp will present a program of piano selections.

The 18th year of the Indian Council Fire will be opened at 8 o'clock next Friday night at the annual American Indian day program, to be held at 32 West Randolph street. Besides the program of speeches, singing and dancing, the annual Indian achievement medal will be awarded to the 1940 winner. Dr. Philip F. Frazier, Sioux, and his wife, Susie Meek Frazier, will come from Santee, Neb., to take part in the program.

A dessert bridge and a style show have been planned for the homecoming party of the Social Economics club, to be held at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the assembly room of the Republic building.

Mrs. Joseph Braun is the newly elected president of the Johanna No. 9, United Order of True Sisters, which will begin its 67th year on Thursday.

Beverly's Cut Flower Show to Be Sept. 27

With exhibits from many of the finest gardens on the north shore, a cut flower and vegetable exhibition sponsored by the North Shore Horticultural society will be given Friday, Sept. 27, at Horticultural hall in Manchester, the last show of the year. The society has given many exhibits during the season and these have been attractive to the summer sojourners.

BEVERLY, MASS.

Art exhibits by the Marblehead association will feature the late September and early October offerings of the north shore group. The Magnolia Art association, the Gloucester Society of Artists, the East Gloucester and Rockport association exhibits have been well attended and successful. Creation of an art center including a school of art, music, and architecture, and the possibility of an permanent art museum, are among the developments of the season. This suggestion has been made by Yovan Radenkovitch of New York, president of the Gloucester Society of Artists, and finds many supporters in the various colonies.

Coming of autumn weather has spurred interest in the late season golf at the Myopia and the Essex Country clubs. The New England tournament at the Essex Country club this week brought out some of the best golfers in the six states. Tennis is still a favored sport, but the yachting season is over with the exception of special races at the Marblehead, Beverly, Manchester, and Cape Ann clubs.

More than two score of English refugee children, most of the number in their teens, are enjoying the charm and quiet of the north shore, far removed from their bomb raided homes across the Atlantic. The largest of this group is being cared for by Miss Helen C. Frick at her Eagle Rock estate at Pride's Crossing where 12 children are staying. The coach house, one of the largest on the shore, has been remodeled for living quarters overlooking the beautiful rose gardens and within a short distance of the famous Paine's beach. Another large group is with Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Winthrop at Groton hall at Hamilton, and still another with Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Pingree at Flying Horse farm, also in the Myopia district in Hamilton.

Already several of the children have taken up their studies in the private and public schools along the shore. Many prominent English families are represented in the now happy newcomers to America. Plans are made to make the north shore their home during the duration of the war, and there is every assurance that the stay will be a never-to-be-forgotten experience.

The John C. Meechams have returned to their Chicago home after a long season at their summer place at Annisquam, where they have one of the most attractive estates. The Meechams have done considerable entertaining this season and are always welcome sojourners on the north shore.

A wedding of much north shore and Chicago interest took place yesterday at St. John's Episcopal church in Beverly Farms, when Miss Elizabeth Burrage Challifoux, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Challifoux of Willowbank, Beverly Cove, became the bride of Harry Engman Draper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clare H. Draper of Boston. All of the colonies were represented at the ceremony. There were many parties preceding the wedding at which the young people were fêted. Among those entertaining were Mrs. Albert Cameron Burrage of Manchester, grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Draper, parents of the bridegroom; Mrs. Gardner M. Fiske, Mrs. Harrison Gardiner, and Miss Ethel Febiger of Manchester.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter and her daughter, Miss Nancy Leiter, are to make a late season stay at Edgewater house, their Beverly Farms home in the West Beach district. Mrs. Leiter will go to Chicago for a visit with friends before returning to her Washington home for the winter. Miss Leiter has been busy this week with the winter quartering of her yacht, the Venture, after a most successful season of Marblehead racing.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris of Eagle Head, Manchester, have been visiting relatives in Chicago. The Morrises are planning a late season at their Coolidge Point estate.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bradley of Boston are at the Oaks, the home of Mrs. Bradley's father, Godfrey Lowell Cabot, at Beverly Farms for the early autumn. Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn [Mary Armour] have returned to Washington after a pleasant summer at their Arbor Vitae cottage, Smith's Point, Manchester.

Cornelius Crane, son of Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. of Chicago, who has been at Castle Hill, the Crane home in Ipswich, has returned to New York. Mr. Crane had a late season cruise to the St. Lawrence river with a party of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Clay Bartlett of Chicago are planning to be at their lovely Chapman's corner home at Beverly Cove later than usual this season and will be here until after the Thanksgiving holiday. The Bartletts usually spend much of the winter in Florida.

Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., wife of Senator Lodge, junior senator from Massachusetts, opened her lovely home last week for a bundle tea in aid of the North Shore Babies' hospital in which many of the colonists are interested. The sale was a very successful one. Senator and Mrs. Lodge are planning to spend the winter in Beverly with their young sons, George and Henry, away at school.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Leonard Jr. have returned to their home in Wilmington, Del., after a pleasant summer at "Druimteal" the home of Arthur C. Leonard of Chicago at Eastern Point.

ENGAGED TO BE WED

Miss Constance Donaldson, whose engagement to Alan F. Wilson Jr. recently was announced by her mother, Mrs. William Lockhart Donaldson of Evanston. Miss Donaldson is a graduate of Penn Hall. Mr. Wilson, also of Evanston, is a graduate of Lafayette college.

Journalism Alumnae Plan Five Courses

The Chicago Alumni chapter of Theta Sigma Phi will sponsor a series of five courses in the journalistic fields this fall and winter. The executive committee, headed by Mrs. Elanora Walker, will meet at the sorority chapter house tomorrow evening to complete plans for the courses, which will start during the week of Oct. 14.

All classes will meet in room 1005, 431 South Wabash avenue, from 6:30 to 8:30 o'clock. Monday evenings will be devoted to the studying of trade paper writing, including editing, type makeup, and photography. The class in publicity will meet on Tuesday evenings to discuss radio, fashion, and institutional publicity.

On Wednesdays Mrs. Susan Dibelka will have charge of the creative writing group. Fashion promotion, copywriting, and display will be studied on Thursdays, and textile fields will be discussed on Fridays.

• • •

The Chicago branch of the American Association of University Women will have a tea for new members at 2 o'clock Saturday at the Woman's City club. Mrs. Paul M. Mitchell, new president, will outline the program for the year, including "the task of helping to maitain and strengthen the best elements of the civilization we wish to preserve." With this goal in mind the association will sponsor a course of three lectures by Miss Ethel Kawin, educational leader and vice president of the Chicago branch. Her subject will be "Freedom and Discipline in a Democracy." Other plans which will be discussed are the inauguration of an arts program as a balance against distortion, continuation of international relations study, and discussion of current national and state legislation.

Miss Ethel Kawin.
[Fernand De Gueldre Photo.]

The National Radio Council on Children's Programs will hear a report by Mrs. Dorothy Lewis of a survey of children's programs at 350 radio stations in 150 cities. The meeting, open to members of all civic and educational groups, will be held at a breakfast at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow morning in the tearoom at Carson Pirie Scott's.

• • •

The Women's Finance Forum of Chicago will sponsor a series of lectures on "Present Trends" starting Thursday thru April 24. All meetings will be held at 7:30 o'clock in the Congress hotel, and will be preceded by dinner. Robert P. Vanderpoel will give the opening lecture on "Present Trends in the News." Investments, real estate, banking, insurance, economics, interest rates, and world events will be discussed once a month by authorities.

WEDS NOV. 10

Miss Joyce Jaffe, whose engagement to Norman Glabman has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Jaffe of 6720 Paxton avenue. The wedding will take place on Nov. 10.

Women's Trade Union Leagues Are to Convene

The Women's Trade Union leagues and committees of Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, and Wisconsin will hold their annual conference at the Hotel Atlantic Friday thru Sunday. Mrs. Laura H. Lunde, secretary of the Illinois Women's conference on legislation, will speak on "Why We Oppose the Equal Rights Amendment," at the luncheon meeting on Saturday. Two panels will be held during the afternoon on "Organization of Women Workers" and "Organization of Auxiliary Women." A special program has been planned for the conference dinner in the evening. "Five Years Under the National Labor Relations Act" will be the subject of the last session on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Laura H. Lunde.

Harriett Ann Cahlman, R. Schwartz Engaged

Mrs. Mabelle Cahlman of Houston, Tex., formerly of Chicago, announces the engagement of her daughter, Harriett Ann, to Richard L. Schwartz, son of Mrs. A. Schwartz, also of Houston. Miss Cahlman attended the Vogue School of Art in Chicago. Her fiancé is a graduate of the University of Texas, and has done postgraduate work at Harvard university.

Reception on Program for Pen Women

Members of the National League of American Pen Women have marked next Thursday afternoon on their calendar as the most important event of their club year. Mrs. Walter Dill Scott of Evanston will open her home for a reception for Mrs. Frank Granger Logan, honorary president of the Chicago branch of the league.

Mrs. Frank G. Logan.
[Ernest Martin Photo.]

Josephine Hancock Logan, honorary member of the national organization of pen women, recently was made vice president of the Poetry Society of London, Inc., as well as honorary president of the Chicago poetry center of that organization. She is the founder and president of the Society for Sanity in Art, Inc., which has branches thruout the country and abroad. Mrs. Logan expects to have a second National Sanity in Art exhibition during February at the Stevens hotel.

Mrs. Leon Willien, president of the Chicago branch, will assist Mrs. Scott at the reception. Pouring will be Eleanor Everest Freer, Mrs. Lewis C. Jesseph, and Mrs. Edgar B. Penney, honorary presidents; Sonia Sharnova, Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins, and Mrs. James Ward Thorne.

The opening meeting of the Northern Illinois branch of the pen women will be a tea for Emma Menke, new president, at 3 o'clock next Saturday. The affair will be held at the home of Mrs. Franklin Miller, 1500 Lake Shore drive.

Friends of American Writers will open their season with a tea at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Chicago Historical society. Mr. and Mrs. Haldore Hanson will speak on "A Foreign Correspondent and His Wife Look at the News." The program for the year will include talks by Dr. Mortimer Adler, Charles Hanson Towne, C. S. Forester, and Peter DeVries.

Ida Carothers Merriam will speak on "Techniques That Smooth the Way" at the opening exercises of the Baptist Missionary Training school at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

My Summer Work

by Eleanor Jewett

I made a woolen shawl
Or it might have been a mitten,
Or a bathrobe or a wrap—well,
A wrapper for a kitten.

I made a woolen something,
Knit-one-purl-two-knit—
It might have been most anything
That did not have to fit.

I made a woolen summer work,
All beautiful and blue;
It isn't VERY messy! Look!
You like it? It's for you.

Popular Boxy Jacket Suit in Autumn, 1940, Version

Something new in suits! As a matter of fact, it's an old standby, popular with American audiences for some time, all dressed up for 1940. It's the box jacket with casual skirt, which may be worn "simply everywhere." What brings this model up to the current autumn standard is the quartet of pockets and the generous amount of buttons. The plaid, too, is a big thing this season.

The original model is created in rich colors. The plaid unites winterberry, chartreuse, blue and brown, while the skirt, in a plain shade, is blue. Don't worry about your figure proportions. Even if you're slightly plump, the boxy jacket does a great deal to conceal that excess weight, and the plaid, contrary to common opinion, will not make you look large when it's in a jacket styled as this one is.

Style No. 5366 designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16 and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurements. Size 16 requires 1⅝ yards of 54 inch material, with 1⅝ yards of 39 inch material for lining for the jacket. The skirt calls for 1⅝ yards of 54 inch material.

me the management of her uncle's estate. Harold Sydney died two or three weeks ago."

"And that's worth a great deal, isn't it?"

"Yes. If I accept I'll be in receipt of a very large, what seems to me after these years, an enormous salary. I can afford to buy back my place here and make it my home, if you will be generous enough to sell it to me."

"And . . . and Cicily?"

"There's no real question of my marriage with Cicily," said Jed, the color intensifying itself to white heat in his face, "but if there were it's after all, a house where she once expected to be mistress. All thru her girlhood until you took Rufus from her, she must have looked upon Faildyke as her future home. If eventually I do bring her here, Cathryn, who has a better right to be brought? Wouldn't making that possible be on your part an appropriate amends?"

Cathryn stood up and walked across the room. She stopped blindly in the middle of the floor. She did not look at him. "I'm sorry, Jed. You've come just a few days too late. I've, I've already decided to sell Faildyke to another purchaser."

Jed cried out, "Perry Collen."

He went over to a chair where he had left his hat. He looked sick.

"That's that," he said.

Cathryn now was looking at him. She was shaking and her hands twisted themselves together. She whispered, "I'm sorry, Jed."

"By God, Cathryn," he was moving past her to the door but stopped to say this, "I believe you are. I believe your cup of hatred must at last be full and running over. You've won, my dear Salamander. You've won."

Near the door he saw Martin Sylvester's picture of him and, even in the profound bitterness of his disappointment, it checked him for an instant.

"Where did this come from?"

"I bought it for dad's Christmas present," said Cathryn in a muffled voice, "last year. He . . . he never saw it. I found it in Mr. Sylvester's studio."

"You . . . bought it." Jed wheeled to stare at her.

"Yes. I'd sold a ring of my mother's. I paid $50 for it. Mr. Sylvester really gave it to me. I think it's very good. We . . . we . . . Mr. Sylvester and I christened it . . . The Deliberate Exile."

Jed laughed. "Not so deliberate," he said, "but certainly an exile . . . this time . . . for always. I'll not be coming back to Faildyke when it belongs to Perry Collen . . . and his wife."

He made her one of his formal bows but just before going out, paused to give the room and its mistress one deep, unreadable look. He stood very straight with his chin down, looking up. His pose duplicated that of the portrait. For an instant it seemed to her consciously, triumphantly, inevitably he possessed Faildyke and herself . . . and of his own bitter will, renounced them.

Jed Pens Resignation from His Law Firm

Almost as soon as Jed entered his New York rooms that evening, he sat down and wrote his resignation from the firm of Carver and Flint. The manager of the Sydney estate, even if not Cicily Ranger's husband, would have both hands full, could do justice to no other office. Immediately, in order to burn his bridges behind him, he went out to mail this letter.

The rest of the night he spent walking the city streets in agony. To his pride he interpreted this pain as the result of Faildyke's loss, the bitterness of defeat at Cathryn Kiethan's terrible, small hands. He could not bring himself to surrender Faildyke and her, thus victorious, to Perry Collen and not the least of his distress consisted in the futile racking of his brain for some eleventh hour preventative. Somehow, somewhere, there must be a weapon to use against them. This incessant struggle kept him from putting his attention on that very important answer to Cicily's offer. Three or four days were spent in the desperate effort.

On the fourth night, exhausted as by loss of blood from an undiscovered internal wound, he got back to his rooms at dawn, mixed himself a stiff drink, and slept almost until noon. The telephone bell beside his bed jangled him to consciousness.

"Mr. Galt, there's a young lady down here in the lobby who's been asking for you. Are you expecting some one?"

"Cathryn in surrender!" his wild hopes prompted. "Who is it, Miss Kay?"

"A Mrs. Peregrine Collen."

Jed fell back, then, with a shaken hand, lifted the instrument.

"Tell her please that, if she will wait fifteen minutes, I'll come down and bring her up here. Tell her I overslept."

He got up, bathed, dressed with mechanical rapidity. "They were very sudden," he told himself, his brain shrieking unintelligible comments, "or perhaps they've been married secretly for some time. But why, in God's name should she come to see me?"

In the lobby of the apartment house he looked rapidly about. Only one of the visitors' thrones against a rococco pillar was occupied and this, not by Cathryn Kiethan. He went over to the desk.

"Mrs. Peregrine Collen?" he questioned. "Didn't she wait?"

"Yes sir."

He heard a step behind him and turned. A small young woman in black had lifted to him a pair of enormous liquid eyes, dark as night. She was prettily built except for an exaggerated development of breasts, heightened deliberately by her clothing.

"This is Mrs. Collen," she said with a touch of accent. "Are you Mr. Galt?" Her smile showed a row of tiny white pointed teeth like those of a wild but friendly animal. "I would like so very much if you would give me the indulgence of a private interview."

"Of course. Would you object to coming up to my sitting room on the twelfth floor? It would be quiet there. We wouldn't be interrupted."

"That would, then, be best."

They mounted in silence. He let her in. She went tapping in her extremely high heels across the little vestibule into the austere room with its river rippled windows. She looked very rapidly about and gave a quick exclamation. "And there is Faildyke, no? The same as Perry's picture."

"You are his wife?" asked Jed, trying to make his voice casual in spite of the terrific drumming of his heart.

"But yes, certainly." She laughed. "You don't know him well lately?"

"No, I've not seen him for years, until by accident I ran across him in a restaurant the other night."

"And then he was with Mees Cath-a-reen Kiethan, not?"

The lawyer made no direct reply. "You know Miss Kiethan?"

She sat down, straight except for the impressive forward thrust of her exaggerated breasts. She might be a pouter pigeon, poor little creature. She looks, he thought like somebody. He was startled. Cathryn Kiethan. Fantastically, improbably, but certainly there was a queer pervasive resemblance. She lifted her hands, plumply gloved in black, and let them fall to her plump little knees. She had pretty legs in the well developed Latin fashion and very small arched feet. Her full lips were beautiful in motion and in repose.

"Me? But I know her better than any woman in the world, altho I never met her. Cathreen. . . . Cath-reen. Oh, he told me how it was with him. Perry is very honest. He told me she was marrying herself to a Mistair Galt. Your brother, no?"

"My brother. He died before the wedding."

"Unfortunate. But Perry had gone back to Faildyke . . ." the name sounded strange on this strange tongue. "In order to ask her to be his wife. At one time, they loved, they would run away together. Two children and not a dollar between them. It was you who prevented, was it not?"

"How much you know about us!"

"But then my poor Perry went away and worked very hard and he thought she would be waiting for him and as soon as he had some money, some job, back he came with his hopes and his plans to Faildyke, just to hear sudden, like a knife in the heart, that she was to be married the next week. She announce her betrothal to Rufus Galt. So he went crazy and would kill himself but got his father to send him away.

Resemblance Reminds Perry of Cathryn

"It was then while he was in the Canal Zone that he met me. He was quite drunk all of the time at first. Me, I work in a night club, but very respectable. My father was American business man and die, leaving my mother poor and sick. Perry say I look like Cathreen and drive him mad.

"So, after a while, I gotten him away from drink and we were married by a priest, me I was going to have a baby. But my baby was born dead. And Perry, when he had taken me to Sous America was bored and restless. He was sorry he had married out of his despair and me looking like Cath-reen. But me, I was not sorry. I love him and I think he truly love me if he give us a chance. I am a faithful and good wife.

"It is better he wait and try to make a good job of his marriage. He went to the States and say maybe he get straightened out and come back for me. And I wait. Pretty quick he don't write. Then I get some weeks ago a letter from some one I know in the States. She send me this. . . ." Mrs. Collen produced the newspaper clipping which had already taken its toll of emotional effect.

"I see your name and hers and his. I cable. He cables, want you to divorce me. Any settlement you ask. But me, I don't want no settlement." Her beautiful eyes spilled over. "I want him. And I come to fight for him, hard. I won't give a divorce. I won't let Cathreen take him from me.

"She has had her chance. She did not want him. She did not wait for him. Me . . . I can wait. I would go to her and say all this, but I am afraid I get excited and scratch her eyes out. So I think . . . it is best to go to an old, old friend of her childhood and ask him to tell her please. I don't know if Perry has told her yet about me.

"I want please for you to tell her and to make her understand that if she must have my husband it will only be as his mistress . . . for the loss of her reputation and social position. Me, I will live here or up there beside her at the lake and the world will say, Bonita Collen, she is his wife; the Kiethan woman she is his lady friend at Faildyke. I do not tell Perry all this, only you or Cathreen herself—if you will not tell her more careful."

Jed walked up and down, hands behind his back. A weapon had been put into his hands, but it looked ugly to him.

"Why don't you go to your husband, Mrs. Collen, and let him tell the truth if he hasn't already told it. You have nothing to go on but a gossip column item. Neither of us can possibly know what has passed between Perry and Miss Kiethan. He may not have made love to her. His cable may not have any reference to her."

Bonita Collen shrugged this suggestion away as being completely irrelevant.

"Perry knows now I am here. Maybe, yes, he has told her. But I want her own friend to help her see the truth. Perry is what you call a very slick talker. He can speak any woman to do or to think what he says. She should have the help of a friend."

Jed's face burned. The help of a friend!

"It is to be you . . . or me. And that will be very hard on her for I lose my temper, pst! Just like that." She snapped her fingers with the sound of castanets. "And my tongue she says the worse I can think. I am not," said Mrs. Collen in frank regret, "a lady at the heart."

"All right," he said abruptly. "I'll go. Let me telephone to Miss Kiethan. I'll take the first possible train."

When he had taken her as far as the pavement, Jed came back and, without allowing himself time to change his intention—he had almost immediately given up his first plan of getting hold of Peregrine as being unfair to both Mrs. Collen and Cathryn herself—he put in his call to Watchiki. Matthew was on the wire.

"This is Jed Galt, Matt. May I speak to Miss Cathryn?"

"She left for the city, sir, very early today."

"Do you know where she is?"

"Just a minute, I'll ask Mary. . . . Mary says she can't be sure, sir, but that Miss Cathie did say something about going to a Mr. Sylvester's studio, the artist that made your likeness, Mr. Jed."

Cathryn had, in fact, visited Martin Sylvester's studio.

Cathryn Pays Visit to Martin Sylvester

He had hardly finished a late breakfast when his Chinaman announced a lady visitor. Martin came eagerly from his living quarters into his workroom and found the Salamander. She was standing with a wrapped canvas, leaning against her, holding it with both her hands.

"You'll never guess what I've come for this time!" she said.

"Not, I hope, to return the Deliberate Exile?"

"Gracious no. He's framed and hung on the wall of Faildyke's most important room. And he looks very grand there and as proud as Lucifer of his refusal to have anything to do with us. This is a very great treasure, Mr. Sylvester, one of Faildyke's greatest. It's an original Corot. It was bought by Jed's grandfather in France." She undid the wrappings and stood the canvas against the wall in a clear light. "Isn't it beautiful?"

"It is."

"I think he bought it because it reminded him of Faildyke; the misty light, the lake, the tall trees. I've seen it look just so."

"And you want . . . ?"

"I hoped you might like to buy it or would be able to suggest a buyer. I'm awfully hard up. I really need cash desperately." He stood looking at the Corot and thinking of Faildyke's Cathryn and Cathryn's Faildyke. She, meanwhile, went drifting about, stopped with a cry.

"O, Mr. Sylvester! O, gracious! What a perfectly magnificent portrait, Cicily!"

He turned, delighted with her spontaneous praise.

"Yes. I've actually finished it. Do you find it amusing?"

"No. I find it perfectly marvelous. How Cissie has changed. She looks like . . . 'Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies. Thou anointest my head with oil. My cup runneth over.'"

Martin laughed. "She does . . . rather. But this time I don't need any one to suggest a title. I have one ready."

"May I guess?"

She stood a few feet from the canvas, which was large and colorful and showed Cicily enthroned, dressed in blue velvet, her hair sparkling, her throat long and imperial, jewels in her ears, on her fingers and on her arms. Her ankles were crossed. The picture included the simple, athletic huntress, and the would-be Minerva. It was a child and a princess, a boy and a spoiled, excited girl. It was generous and greedy and stupid and lovable, complacent and sad. It was Cicily Ranger.

"I can't seem to think of anything grand enough," said Cathryn, "or funny enough."

Again he laughed. "My title, I flatter myself, satisfies both requirements. I'm calling it . . . The Portrait of My Wife."

"But . . . Mr. Sylvester. . . ."

"O, I don't say it's the title of the original, my child, nor even the title I'll attach to the portrait for public consumption. But it is my name for the picture. You see, I've given you my sacred confidence. Would you like to sit down and let me bring you some coffee and toast? And then, being helpless, you might have to listen to my fairy godmother theory."

"That would be definitely amusing," smiled Cathryn, whose pale color had returned. Her lips were again stained with raspberries but her pulses were in revolution and she had a slight physical pain across her heart.

[Concluded next Sunday.]

"Perry say I look like Cath-reen and drive him mad."

PREFACE TO SCANDAL

FOREWORD

A wife discovers that her faith in a man has been groundless, but that her loyalty is too strong to be taken away, even in the crash of their lives.

"JUST a minute," he said. He put the receiver down very gently, so you couldn't hear it click on the table. He walked across the bedroom, as lightly as he could. He had that tread of heavy men, who are used to being boss, and now, as he pussy-footed in dead seriousness, a stout man of 50 in Long Island flannels, he looked as tho he were trying to be funny.

He leaned around the door to listen, and his weight swung the door out into the hall. Where was everybody? What were they doing? With his heart beating in mortal fear, he leaned his head forward, listening to the silence.

Clara was probably dressed downstairs, waiting to go to the Ruxtons with him. The servants were all back in the kitchen. Now all he had to do was to go back, lock the bedroom door, switch the extension off, and talk to Carl, who was in his private apartment in New York. Talk to Carl, decide what to do. This was Sunday. Wall Street was closed. Why hang here listening?

He had never been a coward about taking chances, and now, with his back to the wall, he would not be one, either. He would go back, and pick up the receiver, face the music.

He leaned over the banisters and looked down into the luxurious hall, the carpet, priceless as a tapestry, the authentic English paneling, scraped and stained. And there hung the Goya, the one he'd bought from Sir Joseph Duveen. Wonder how much that'll bring, he thought.

"Clara!" he called.

"O, there you are," she said. She walked to the front of the stairs. "For goodness sake hurry up. We're supposed to be there early, for drinks."

He saw her pale, undernourished face, tilted up to him, in its roll brim hat, and he noticed the dress, brand new, an original model. It fitted her perfectly, she was as lean as a mannequin, tho not as young. And he saw the jewels she wore.

"Where are the servants?" he said.

"Why, darling, what's the matter? Do you feel sick? Are you looking for something to take?"

"No, I just had a little too much sun playing on the Van Alston's course this morning. That's a stiff course. Look here, I have some important business to discuss. Where are the servants?"

"O, I told them we'd be out. They're probably down at the beach. Why don't you just switch the extension off?"

"That's what I'm going to do. You go and sit in the car."

He stood well back from the window, but he could see. Now he closed it, and in spite of the heat he closed the other windows, too. The ones looking out over the sound, where the nearest thing was his own yacht, lying at anchor. He stooped and switched off the extension, and then he grabbed the receiver, and said:

"So you're letting me down, after all?"

"Has this phone got an extension?" said Carl.

"Not now. Go ahead. Talk."

"Well, I've done everything I could," Carl said. "But I tell you frankly, there's nothing to do. From what I can ascertain, your company auditor has found certain discrepancies. It looks as if he went to the treasurer of your company, and that the treasurer went to all the other directors on your board. Now I've found out that they're having a secret meeting without you, downtown today."

"But today's Sunday."

"That's just the idea."

And now, here was Tansy Lassiter. . . . The pleasure he would get from taking her in the garden and kissing her! (Tribune Studio photo.)

"Wait a minute—let me get this straight. You mean to tell me that there's a directors' meeting without me, when I'm the president?"

"Yes, that's just it, Corny. They're right down in Wall Street now, having this secret meeting. They've got the auditor and the treasurer down there, and they're going over the company books, and they're going to see for themselves that approximately 5 million dollars is missing——"

"And you're going to back out now and leave me? You refuse to represent me?"

"All the dealings my firm has had with your firm have been on the up and up. We can't afford to represent you. We wouldn't do you any good if we did represent you. We're not criminal lawyers. What you need is a criminal lawyer. The best in the country. Tomorrow morning the directors of International Oil are going to the district attorney. They're going to say that you, their president——"

"You don't have to tell me what they're going to say."

"I advise you to get Branden Mathews. He's the smartest criminal lawyer in the country. He'll pull you out if anybody can. I don't think anybody can, but there's a chance. After all, you're the president of International Oil. You are International Oil. You're one of the biggest shots in the country."

"All right, Henry," he said to the chauffeur. "I'll drive." He slid under the wheel.

Clara looked at him. "You're sick," she said anxiously. "Corny, you've been overworking for 15 years. And now you're sick."

He stepped on the accelerator and the polite little trees whizzed by, and the carefully planted flower borders, and all the riches of this large rich estate, flew past the car in a paste of blurred color.

"I'm Cornelius Jones," he said. "I'm president of International Oil and one of the biggest shots in the country. Fellow just told me so!"

"Are you sure you're not paying too high a price for it? I don't like to see you sick, Corny. Let's go away. Let's give you a vacation."

Clara Warns Husband to be Careful

At the entrance to their drive, he slowed down. Then he jerked out into the highway, fumbling with the gears, ripping into high.

"Be careful!" she said. "Be careful!"

Careful, he thought, that's a funny one. Careful, for what? I'm due to be put in jail. Ten years, maybe. Maybe 20. I'm going to spend the rest of my life in jail, if amounts to that. And Clara, who tells me to be careful—what will she do when I tell her the news? How will she walk thru walls of photographers, flashlights, reporters? And when they give her the third degree, how about that? She'll be ostracized. None of our swell friends will stick with her. And she sits here, and doesn't know it.

And money, he thought. She won't have any money. Won't have the house or the place in Nassau. And the yacht. She loves those trips we take. She'll miss those. She'll have to sell her jewels.

There, pinned on her and hanging on her arms, were about half of the jewels that she was going to have to sell. That 15 thousand dollar bracelet from Paul Flato, those modern cabochon sapphires set around with diamonds to form hearts. And that pin she was wearing, let's see, what had that cost? About 20 thousand, perhaps. Those diamonds in the center were sizable. Look at it glistening on her concave breast, holding the pleats of her dress just so, to make a little fullness where none was. Poor Clara! And her pearls, yes, she had those on, too. Quite a little fortune in those pearls.

Almost, he disliked her for the loyalty she'd be sure to give him. He could imagine her questions, her intelligent, loyal conversation. The way she'd sit, quietly in the car driving home, digesting the news and looking pale.

O, that's what he'd married her for, because she was a lady, "to the manor born" as people put it. Because she had intrigued him, with her handsome, horsey distinction. Because she was old man McCreery's daughter, and he, in those days, was considered the coming genius. He was young, he'd already made a quarter of a million dollars in the stock market on his own, and honestly.

And of all the women he ever knew, she was the one who came nearest to touching his heart. Because she loved him and admired him, because he was her hero. That was before business got him utterly, and before ambition in him took the place of every emotion.

Hero. He'd been no hero for 10 years. He'd been a crook, the giant among swindlers. Because with the crash he'd been in danger of losing his fortune and that would have meant losing power. All his power, everything he lived for. So, he'd taken the only course left open to him, he'd tried to make it back with company funds. He'd borrowed, secretly and desperately, to stop his whole fortune from melting and running thru the cracked opened bottom of 1929. What else could he do? It was either that or be ruined.

And for the first few years everything went well. He'd made money. He'd made a couple of millions. He had a reputation for being the greatest genius of modern finance, and this talent he used for stealing. He stole slyly and brilliantly so that nobody knew. He had to have a fortune and power and social position. He had the desperation of certain self-made men who taste power when they are starved for it. These men cannot be without power and position, —they must have it—it is their life.

Decides to Stay and Face the Music

And now that he'd lost, now that his desperate gambling was at an end, they would all laugh in his face and curse him. His wonderful friends and his old enemies, too. Well, he'd show them. He was no little fellow. No cowardly crook who'd take a chance on running away, and being caught and brought back. He would not run, or commit suicide. He'd stay and face the music. He'd stay and see what his lawyers could do for him. Not Carl, his old attorney, but some other fellow. Branden Mathews, probably. Some big criminal lawyer who was willing to take a chance. He'd phone Branden Mathews tonight, after the party, and get him out of bed.

Now he began to perspire. The sweat stood out on his face and dampened his collar.

I am going thru with it, he insisted to himself. I am going to the Ruxtons. Those are the last drinks I'll enjoy for a long time. Those may be the last cocktails I'll ever have. And that supper. They've got one of the best chefs in America. I'm going to have a last good meal. I'm going to find Tansy Lassiter, and take her out in the garden and kiss her.

And he got a certain strange kick out of thinking: Won't they be mad tomorrow? Won't they be furious, the Ruxtons, and all those fine people, to think that they were on familiar terms with me? To think that only last night they were talking to me, and laughing with me, and giving me food and drink. I, who am the biggest crook of the age.

But then he remembered that some of them would be impoverished by him, too. That some of them would lose half their fortunes because their money was in International Oil.

And he thought: Perhaps I shouldn't go out of a sense of decency. Still, why employ such a word now? Why say decency at this late date?

"The prisoner ate a hearty breakfast," he quoted to himself, and smiled.

A limousine honked and passed them.

"There go the Van Alstons," said Clara, suddenly.

Where were they? He felt the bump of railroad tracks under his wheels. O, yes, they were near the Ruxtons now, this was the trunk line they were always complaining about.

NEXT SUNDAY—"JACK IN THE POT," A SHORT STORY BY DOROTHY WEST

It chugged at night, they said. Here was a little freight station. If he were a different man, he might get out of the car now, and with a quick explanation to Clara, he'd slip away and board one of the freight trains as it came thru. Like a tramp. Go away somewhere, just like a tramp. Hide. Lose his identity. This was the sort of thing that panicky men did, or tried to do.

Now the sweat was running down his neck, and the discomfort of it was almost unbearable. He turned into the Ruxtons' drive with its ornate overwrought iron gates.

He rolled slowly up the driveway, without knowing what he was doing, right up to the front door.

They got out. A butler was at the door. Other people were following them, one smiled and waved at them. Just before they got to the door, he turned and walked along the veranda. He had Clara by the arm, and he said, softly, but not in a whisper:

"Tomorrow morning the board of directors of International Oil are going to the district attorney with our books. The auditor has found a discrepancy. It amounts to 5 million, and I took it. I stole it. I am in the red that much. I couldn't put it back this time. Not only our own fortune is involved, but quite a lot besides. I shall get a good lawyer to defend me. A crim—one who knows his business and takes cases like this. It's a hopeless fight, but I mean to make it."

She stood perfectly still. She left her arm there, in his grasp, as if she couldn't feel, altho he gripped her arm, so that it must have hurt her.

And then, very slowly, she began to blush. He saw the painful color flooding her neck. The red spread slowly, down, down her throat to where the diamond pin was. She turned her back on the passing people, and her whole face was now a deep, bright crimson.

"I don't have to ask if it's true?" she said.

"No, Clara, it is true."

"The Ruxtons!" she said. "The Ruxtons have a lot of money in International. Why they may have to change their whole way of living. This whole house here—this whole place——And lots of other people will feel this."

"Yes," he said. "That is so. There will be hundreds of people. There will be several companies affected."

"You thought you could put it back?" she said. "You didn't deliberately cheat all these people?"

"You can't think I was such a fool!" he said angrily.

A man came out of the house and waved to them. "Hello," he said. "Hello—hello! What are you two doing there in the corner, gassing? Didn't you come to the party to see anybody else?"

Rich Heir Offers a Hearty Greeting

The man was Bunny Van Alston, a plump young man, gay, and with a few drinks in him. He was heir to one of America's great fortunes. He shook hands with them, and patted them on the shoulders and said:

"Come on in. Come and have a drink on me! Look here, Corny, when are you going to ask me on that yacht again? I haven't been out on it for a dog's age. Have you sold it to the Swiss navy or something?" And he laughed at his joke, wrinkling up his nose.

There was a pause.

"Well," he said. "See you later."

She stared after him. "Bunny Van Alston, too," she whispered.

"Let's go home," she said. "We can't stay here. All these people—"

His voice was angry now: "You can't go. You forget. It is not only they who are injured, it is I who am ruined—utterly destroyed. I am going to jail. For what amounts to a life sentence. In all pobability, unless my lawyer can get me off. You will be financially ruined. And your social life will change. Everything will change. Don't you realize that?" he said, staring at her. "Don't you feel anything for us, too, for you and me?"

But when she didn't answer him, he said: "I'm going to pretend everything's all right. Tomorrow none of these people will speak to me. Which is fair enough. But they won't speak to you, either. They aren't friends. They never were friends. You'll see. But if you think a minute, you'll see that I'm doing the best thing, going in there. If we go home now, it will be an admission—of something, which I may never admit. Not legally. I don't intend to commit suicide. Or run away to Greece. I intend to stick around and do what I can."

He waited, but she stood staring in front of her.

"You can go home, then," he said. "Here are the keys."

"No," she said finally. "No, I don't want the keys. I'm coming with you."

It was strange how strong habit was in her. The social habit. There she was now, being gay, moving around the room, saying hello to everybody, waving, laughing in that lively way of hers. It was as if she hadn't heard him speak to her and say what he had said. As if her life were still completely as it had been—whole, unbroken, and safe. She kept talking to people. She held a glass in one long, thin hand, and the glass did not tremble—none of the liquor in it shook.

It was he who was acting strange. He found that after all, he could not make the best of his last evening among people. It was all he could do to just stand there in a corner of the bar. He said hello to people automatically. He felt himself saying little pleasantries. He held a glass very tightly, and drank bottoms up, and grabbed another glass.

The people, the party—all this big terrace with its tables, its drinks, its view of Long Island Sound—the rock gardens sloping to the water, and the butler and the footmen beginning to light the Japanese lanterns—all this seemed to be made of transparent color, like a movie film. He looked at the whole scene and said, tomorrow—tomorrow this will be gone.

And, slowly, his sense of unreality increased, until he begun to feel a cold around his heart.

His eyes went back to Clara. He hadn't thought about Clara for years. He'd only known that she'd been there always, sticking to him, enduring him. He'd neglected her for other women, and it was over ten years since he'd been faithful or devoted or considerate.

But he would not be weak about her now, any more than he would run, or kill himself, or show the white feather in any way. He would not beg her, or be soft and humble and ask her for moral refuge. He would wait for the end of the party, when he could take her home, and then he'd see what her decision was. Whether she would stick to him or not.

And now, here was Tansy Lassiter. He saw her flaming red, blue, and white striped beach evening dress, her bare dark curls. She looked into his eyes, her face smiled, he felt the outline of her slight hand inside his own. And the pressure from her hand, that had meant everything in the past months—yes, everything exciting, this pressure from a hand—this face to kiss—now, it was nothing at all.

"Are you sick?" she said. She backed away a step. She did not want to be beside him if he were to faint. This would make her too conspicuous.

"What's happening is, that you thrill me," he whispered to her. "I'll see you later. We'll walk in the garden."

She nodded. He gave her hand one little squeeze and walked away.

Tansy Lassiter, that ice cold wanton. That huzzy. The pleasure he would get from taking her in the garden and kissing her! The pleasure he would have tomorrow when he thought of her, languidly opening her morning paper over her exquisite breakfast tray.

A common thief! A crook! In jail! And she—Tansy Lassiter, had handed herself over. She, who was always so careful since she'd married out of the chorus!

O, it will be a pleasure, he thought grimly.

The drinks he had in his hand disappeared. They went down, ice cold, wet. He felt the sting of them in his stomach. I mustn't get too drunk, he thought. I must keep control of myself.

He got himself a white china plate with the Ruxton crest on it, an old English dragon and sword from way back. He went to the buffet and helped himself to two boot legged lobsters, tiny ones, that you aren't supposed to catch. They were stretched on platters, rows and rows of them, red and white and deep yellow with butter. He helped himself to succotash out of a chafing dish, and a butler thrust a goblet of iced champagne into his hand.

He felt the shape of the food. It made little lumps in his mouth, he could feel his throat contracting as he swallowed. He swallowed all of the food—every bit of it that was on his plate. He even took the fork and scraped the plate. He said things, jolly, easy things, to people. To dozens of people, who jostled his elbow and stood near him, smiling into his face.

They stood too near. They smiled too much. Did they guess something? Were they watching him? And there again was Tansy Lassiter, with her own private smile for him. She lurked, she was sly, and her smile, really, might mean anything. Had she, too, guessed that something was wrong? O, but she'd never guess what it was.

Steadies Himself by Leaning on Bar

No, he said to himself, slowly, steadying himself a little by leaning against the glass and chromium bar. No, he repeated inside himself firmly. I will walk out into the darkness with her. I will not let my imagination run away with me. Nobody knows anything. I will go thru this evening. I will. I will keep to my original plans.

He downed the champagne and walked toward Tansy. He took her arm and they walked into the garden. The garden was quiet, you could hear the distant swish of water and a few trees sighed. He walked her, very slowly and carefully down the garden path to where it joined the driveway, then he turned her and just as carefully walked her back toward the house.

"Aren't you going to kiss me?" she whispered, leaning against him.

"No."

He took her back into the house. He went over to Clara and stood beside her chair.

"You can't go," Judy Ruxton said to them. "It's just the shank of the evening!" She held on to him and Billy Ruxton took Clara's hand, saying, "Come on, Joneses, this will be no party without you."

They wanted them to stay, because Cornelius was the big oil king—as powerful as Rockefeller. Because they felt rich and powerful together and safe in each other's company.

He watched their gay, pleading faces, begging them to stay, and felt the persuasive pressure of Judy's arm. He thought, I ought to tell them now. How wonderful to feel her arm drop! How wonderful to watch their faces change!

But he went to get his hat.

Clara asked him to stop the car, about a quarter of a mile down the driveway. She looked along the two yellow tunnels the headlights made, and said slowly: "I have been thinking all evening, all during the party. I see what made you do it. It's partly my fault. We've both depended on money, for — well, for everything. Money and social position. You were a simple boy from the middle west when I met you, and when we married. We should have gone back to the middle west to live. You'd have tasted enough power then, building up some little business honestly. But you built up this fortune, and when you saw it going you couldn't help trying—to save it. I know you intended to put back everything you took. And I know how wildly you speculated. And I know the times when you've been under a strain."

"Did you know all this?" he demanded.

"Not really," she said. "But often—very often—I've felt that things were going wrong. I felt that you were trying to save our fortune and that it would some day melt. I never thought——"

"I know what you're going to say, Clara. You never thought I was a crook."

He sat, waiting for her to go on. He realized now that he was quite drunk, altho at the party he'd felt sober.

"Whatever you've done," she said, "I know you're going to face it. Perhaps you'll plead guilty. Anyway, you'll face it and go to jail for it. You won't change or break down. I know you, perhaps better than you know yourself. I love you—that is, I did—and things don't change so suddenly after twenty years. I don't love you as I did when we first married. I don't want to kiss you ever again, but I love you just the same.

"So, while I was at the party, I thought of a little plan. It's quite simple, it won't take long to follow out. It's easy, and perfectly free. You will never have to face a trial or try to run away, or have any trouble or disgrace of any kind. At the party I made one telephone call just to check a certain time schedule. . . . You're a little drunk, Corny, aren't you?" She gave him one quick look, and then said, quite indistinctly, "if you weren't as drunk as you are, I wouldn't even say this."

"What can you do?" he said, without much interest. "You are wonderful to want to help. I appreciate it. I do. But how?"

"There are several things," she said. "But the one I have chosen is the quickest and the best. It will set us both free."

"You're crazy," he said, scornfully. "You're not using your intelligence. You can't do things, unplanned, in the night like this. It's night—it's night—and tomorrow I'll be caught. But stay with me."

"I'll stay with you," she said. "I'll stay with you always." . . .

He started the car. And because he was drunk now, he drove slowly. It was going to take longer to get home with him drunk as he was. To get home—to get ready to flee. Flee? Escape? Well, yes, why not? Clara was talking about escape. Why not escape, after all? A warmth filled him. He was relieved. For now, with the idea of escape beginning to establish itself, there was a chance for him. There was hope.

"Let me drive," said Clara.

"You surprise me," he said. "You surprise me,"—and he laughed.

Cornelius Stops and Lets Wife Take Wheel

He stopped and slid over and let her take the wheel. He was surprised indeed, warmly surprised by the new idea she'd given him. That she would help him escape! Why, with her money and her jewels—those jewels he'd been looking at this afternoon, thinking that they would go to pay the expenses of his defense.

Defense? If you were really a strong man you had to admit defeat. No good standing up and fighting when you were already licked. Why, now, he'd be considered a fool not to run. Now it was the strong thing to run. A steamer sailing from a Mexican port. He could charter a private plane tonight and be in Mexico City before anybody was any the wiser. Let's see, it was only about ten now. Only about 10 o'clock. He could get a plane at the airport right here.

"You were right," he said to Clara. "I will fly, I will fly for my life. I will beat it across the border in the dead of night, alone!" And he let out a relieved laugh. His terror, his tension, were melting in him, breaking up and trickling off, like warm water. The relief of it was almost more than he could bear.

"We are going too slowly," he said. "We must make good time. You can phone the airport and say it's business, and I'll pack, or the other way round. It doesn't matter much which way we do it, as long as you help me to fly."

But she kept driving slowly. "It's a matter of time," she said.

He wasn't listening to her. He was busy with his own thoughts. Time flies, he said to himself. And I shall fly with it. And suddenly his deflated ego, his vanished sense of power, came back to him.

"If I hadn't made one or two little slips," he said, "we'd be all right, you and I. We'd be in the blue now, dear, and no district attorney would be going over me for fleas. But by the time they get to our files I'll have skipped. My partners will go on with the business, that's all. They're not to blame. It will be all right. I'll be all right, too. I'll take your jewels now, and the money we have, and I'll skip. It will be great to be in Greece. I'll start over again. I'll make another fortune from the ground up, and an honest one this time, to show that I can do it. Just to show all these beggars that I can do it. This mess I'm in is turning out for the best. I was getting soft. Why are you driving so slowly?"

"The 12:15 train is ahead. We'd be held up by that anyway."

"But it's only ten to twelve," he said, and he saw the dial on the dash board. It was swimming greenly, the number almost blurred together.

"It's a little past twelve," she said. "I have my eye on the time, too. Here we are. The train's coming."

Fuzzily he saw the light. He saw it flashing red. This pesky little country crossroad. If he were on that train now. If he were on that train, fleeing, instead of here in a car, stopped by this red light, flashing. Flashing right in his face. He was held up. Time was precious. They'd be after him——. No, he had time. He had time. Ha, let them look for him tomorrow morning!

Well, listen to it ring, and see the light flash. Kept here, by God!

"I'm kept here by this damn thing," he said. "Why didn't you drive faster? If you'd driven faster—Clara, look out! No, don't go now, the train's coming—you haven't time. No, stop! The train's here—now! My God. Clara! My God!"

And again he cried out, "Clara! Clara!"

And these were his last words. He made an unsuccessful grab for the wheel. Then he saw the engine. It was towering above them. Light flooded the car. For the time it takes to draw one breath he saw Clara with the spotlight on her, with her flowered dress, with her hat, with jewels shining, her hands clutching the wheel, her eyes turned away from him. He had no more time—the locomotive was screaming, filling the air, screaming, shattering everything to pieces, to silence, to darkness.

"Aren't you going to kiss me?" she whispered.

NO SURRENDER

INSTALMENT XII.

She was incarnate spring, all April.

What Has Gone Before

Seventeen-year-old Cathryn Kiethan overhears Jed and Rufus Galt discussing the wish of their father, John Peter Galt, and her mother, that Cathryn marry one of them. Tho she had adored both boys, particularly Jed, all her life, she is so humiliated when she hears Jed say he refuses to be baited by her mother's hook, that she goes to Perry Collen, stable boy on the Galt estate, Faildyke, and begs him to elope with her. Jed stops the elopement, kisses Cathryn, and tells her she is more in love with him than with Perry. Further humiliated, she slaps him and swears revenge. Several years later, after her mother has died, Cathryn goes to New York and gets a job as social secretary to Mrs. Ranger, whose daughter, Cicily, is engaged to marry Rufus. Cathryn has turned from a weedy adolescent into a flaming beauty, and Rufus realizes it is she he loves instead of Cicily. He asks her to marry him and she, not knowing of his engagement to Cicily, says yes. Jed, who is now a lawyer in New York, accuses Cathryn of disloyalty and greediness and in vain tries to break up the new romance. A year later, when members of the family gather at Faildyke for the wedding, Jed kisses Cathryn passionately, and when she responds he accuses her of unfaithfulness to Rufus. On her wedding eve Rufus is thrown from a horse and killed. Cathryn stays on at Faildyke with John Peter, and Jed returns to New York. Tho Jed says he hates Cathryn, when he sees a portrait of her by Martin Sylvater, a friend of Cicily's, Jed buys it. Later Cathryn goes to Martin's studio, sees a portrait of Jed, and buys that. Neither knows of the other's purchase. John Peter dies and wills Jed Faildyke only on condition he ask Cathryn to marry him. Otherwise it all goes to Cathryn. Jed, still angry with Cathryn, tells her he will never ask her to be his wife. She remains at Faildyke but has trouble with finances as Jim Ames, the superintendent, cheats the estate of so much money the entire stable of horses have to be auctioned off to pay debts. Ames skips with the auction money and his son, Dick, tries to force his love making on Cathryn, but Perry Collen appears on the scene offering his protection and friendship. He has returned a much traveled and rich young man. Cathryn is thinking seriously of marrying him as it is obvious he still loves her and she knows his money will save Faildyke. Cicily Ranger inherits a fortune and suggests to Jed that they marry and buy Faildyke from Cathryn.

JED had tried to pitch his answer in the key of tender and grateful amusement, the key Cicily, in spite of weeping, had somehow managed to sound, but when he had kissed her a gentle good-night, when he had found himself in his room alone, he knew that both of them had been deeply and sincerely moved.

The gentle clinging softness of her young beauty, her suggestion of surrender, her appeal to all the repressed power of emotion in him, had awakened hunger, sharper than any he had known. Not an angry hunger, not a hunger to be beaten down like a mad dog, condemned, despised, but an honest, human, and holy hunger for the sweetness of domestic affection, for intimacy, for a home.

He was surprised himself by the warmth of his love for Cicily. He had been thinking of her since his boyhood as Rufus' property. She had always smiled at him thru that barrier. But now, altho she still acknowledged Rufus' ghostly precedence, she had offered him her living self. And with herself, what more! All the kingdoms of the world . . . no less! The power and glory of them. And . . . Jed was not conscious of any anticlimax . . . triumph over Cathryn Kiethan, Faildyke for his own.

Not long before that evening some one had sent him a newspaper clipping of a comment in some gossip column. . . . "In the spring a livelier crimson comes upon the dyer's breath, in the spring young Perry's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of Cathryn Kiethan, finding herself and her inheritance more tempting than either were to a young Knickerbocker lawyer whom we know. Jed Galt, however, can't be feeling any of the symptoms of the dog in the manger for he has, it appears, another heiress and another estate within his grasp. . . ."

At the time, Jed had given, for his own benefit, a convincing exhibition of contempt, but now the words began to have their influence. If Cathryn were going to marry Peregrine, she would certainly not be forced to sell Faildyke. Jed was not consciously a schemer; in these days for once he certainly acted under the spur of strong emotion; nevertheless, before he finally accepted the management of the Sydney estate, and all that must now, he felt, honorably be accepted with it, he wanted to put in his bid for Faildyke.

Jed Meets Cathryn at Edge of Meadow

Naturally, his surrender to Cicily's generous offer of fortune and of herself did not depend upon his being able to buy Faildyke, but, somehow, that certainty was the root of his whole future as he was beginning to envisage it. At noon of the second day of his parole he took a train to Watchiki.

Three years ago in May—and this was May again—Jed had left the highway and taken this same path afoot across the fields. Then he had stopped at the foot of the terraces, remembering Cathryn, arming himself against a meeting with her in the house at dusk. This time he had no chance for last minute preparation.

As he came out of the sun splattered vernal woods, he saw her at the edge of the meadow, gathering the little new sweet violets from beneath their leaves. She was in white and the sun struck thru the sheer edges of her dress and the fine spun ends of her fair hair. She bent and rose with a floating ease. She was incarnate spring, all April. She saw him and stood still as Proserpina at sight of sudden Pluto. Her violets fell and not until he had come close did she bend down to regather them. She began immediately thereafter to hurry toward the house.

"You ought to have let me know you were coming," she said. "It's a pretty long trip. I'm quite often in New York myself. It might be easier for both of us to talk over any business . . . if you can have any business to discuss with me nowadays . . . somewhere in town."

Her words were more rapid than her steps. "I suppose you came because you got wind of Jim Ames' disappearance. I suppose you're going to say, 'I told you so'." She smiled a quick malicious smile, letting her long eyes slip up and away across his face. "You wouldn't miss such an opportunity to rub it in, Jed, would you?"

"I did come partly because of what I knew of Ames. But only partly. When we get to the house—that is, if either of us has any breath for talk—I want to make you a proposition."

She looked frightened, shut her mouth tightly and said not another word. Faster and faster she walked until, at the foot of the terrace steps, she darted ahead of him and fairly ran for shelter. He followed at his leisure watching her . . . not like the flame he remembered mounting dangerously but like a spray of blossoms, a flying shred of mist; no less dangerous, he reminded himself for that.

In the house, he waited for her near the window of the big room where she had told him her tired and sad good-by after John Peter's funeral. Then it had been winter, very gray and sad; now it was friendly and beautiful and warm. The window stood open, the curtains lightly moved. Birds made love in music, their wings rustled, their bodies sprang or dropped or drifted in mating colors, gold, scarlet, blue. Cathryn had gone upstairs "to put the violets in water" and, he supposed, to gather all her resources of enmity against him. He was smiling as she came toward him. She had changed from the aura-ed embodiment of April to a lady in scarlet jacket with smoothed hair and a composed, grave face.

"If we're going to discuss a 'proposition,' Jed, why not sit down?"

Cathryn's Suffering Noticeable to Jed

She sat in the deep window seat but he rested one knee there and leaned back against the opposite curtain, looking down at her. He meant to put her at a disadvantage but her composure and her folded hands counteracted the desired effect. She has really changed, he thought, from a defiant girl to a fairly formidable woman. And she's suffered. There was the delicate etching of pain to tell him that, the dimple was there, sharp, straight and poignant.

"What is it, Jed?"

"It's this. I don't want to say I told you so but, to be clear, I must repeat that I did expect some such disaster as has come upon Faildyke. I wanted to be master here after my father's death because I had plans to save it from this blow, to reorganize, to economize, to be rid of Ames and his crew, to put the property to some sort of intelligent use."

"'There's timber, farming country, building lots, grazing and dairy land'," Cathryn murmured, quoting Jim Ames. Perhaps, she thought, Jim meant to suggest to me how I could retrieve my fortunes which he had helped to wreck. "I know you were right, Jed. Rufus and Dad and I were on the wrong track. And I'm paying the piper. But I'm not going to complain. We had our fun. I'll work it out somehow, Jed." But she knew she couldn't work it out, that Faildyke and she were going down for the last time. These were for her and for Faildyke the last sweet moments of their life together.

"What I want you to do is this, Cathryn. I want you to let me buy you out. I want to take over Faildyke, debts, liabilities, losses and all."

This started Cathryn back to the less impressive aspect of her girlhood. Up flew her hands, one on each side of her face to frame astonishment.

"Oh, Jed, you can? I mean, you've been able to save so much as that?"

"No," he admitted grudgingly, wishing that had been the case. "But something has happened to me just recently that has changed my prospects." His voice quickened its pace. There was something in her beautiful shining eyes that made him fear her comprehension.

"You wouldn't be interested, except in this one result. I truly now can afford to pay you a just price for your inheritance. I can free you from all this burden and worry and responsibility. I know that the . . . the estate came to you not quite . . ." his ironic smile was an attempt to disguise the feeling that made him deeply flush, flush as tho hot iron had been laid across his cheekbones beneath the steady eyes, "not quite in the fashion you might have desired or . . . enjoyed. I know it must have been a terrible winter for you. You look as tho you'd been thru an illness, Cathryn. Loneliness, remorse—I'm crediting you with remorse—I imagine, have eaten away most of the sweetness of your triumph over me. And then, the auction sale.

Jed Galt Pleads to Buy Back Faildyke

"You loved the Hunt and all its paraphernalia . . . and your associations with them. Brandy and Cigaret . . . old Troth. I put in some bitter hours during the days of Faildyke's auction, myself, tho I was well out of range of the sound of that damn hammer. All right, Cathryn," he bent down and put a hard, strong grasp upon her hand, the one that had fallen from her face to her lap, "be a sensible woman for once in your life, instead of a vindictive one . . ."

"What you say," she hurriedly inserted, "is not exactly designated to soften my vindictiveness, Jed Galt."

"Let me buy back my own home where my mother and my brother and my father lived and died and let me bring it back to its beauty and security, to its reality. Be generous, Cathryn Kiethan. Name your price."

For all the sharp lashing of his references to her inheritance and to her possible remorse, it was on Cathryn's tongue and in her heart to say, "Take it . . . It's yours. I never meant to steal it from you . . ." when understanding sprang like a hunting cat upon her impulse. "I read something," she said, "somebody sent me a newspaper clipping." Her eyes went floating, swept all about the old room, the portraits, the books, then came back, wet with quick ichor, to his face.

"Tell me the truth, Jed. You are a great believer in telling the truth. In any case, I'll find it out. I must know this before I consider anything you say. Are you going to marry Cicily Ranger? Will it be her money that buys you Faildyke?"

Jed answered, "Cicily has offered

They Stand Up to Plant Corn in Guatemala

By Frederic Babcock.

SAN ANTONIO PALOPO, GUATEMALA.

This is the land where the farmers stand up to plant their corn. The slopes are so steep that the Indians scarcely have to bend as they shove the kernels, one at a time, into the rocky soil.

San Antonio Palopo is only a short boat ride on Lake Atitlan from our hotel at Panajachel. Patches of corn dot the mountainside that leads down to the lake. We move slowly past them, and land at this settlement of adobe houses, thatch roofed, and placed wherever a ledge can be found for them.

Here the women are attired in red huipiles, with sleeves of red and white stripes. The men are all dolled up in white trousers with small red stripes overlaid with fancy figures, and white shirts with red sleeves, and red belts, and black and white plaid skirts or aprons. When the weather grows too warm for the men, they doff their aprons and carry them on their backs.

It has been said that the costumes in the villages surrounding Lake Atitlan are more varied than anywhere else in Guatemala, if not in the world. Each hamlet has its distinctive array. We foreigners take one look, and are amazed. The Indians stare right back at our costumes, and are highly amused. It's difficult to tell which class gets the greater kick out of seeing the other.

In the more civilized confines of our lakeside hotel the servants always seem to be on the run. Here the people take it easy. Nobody hurries. The women and girls—straight backed after generations of balancing everything on the top of their heads—appear to glide along the stony, zigzag paths that lead from the waterfront to the tiny plaza high on the hillside.

Our group of sightseers includes Salvadoreans, Englishmen, Germans, Americans, Cubans, Danes, and Mexicans. Tourists come from all over the world to marvel at these villages which can only be described by the trite word, "quaint." Many more would be here if they knew of this hinterland.

• • •

We visit the dilapidated church, and wonder why its bells have been taken from the steeple and placed in the timbered structure nearby. We enter the homes of the natives, and inspect their system of Turkish baths. Each home has a crude outdoor arrangement of hot coals and stones that provide steam for the weekly cleansing.

Everywhere are the purple jacarandas.

Far below us, kayaks and double paddles are cutting figures in the water of ever-changing colors. To the right is the shoreline path followed by the Indians as they trot occasionally to the bigger town of Panajachel. To the left are the sleeping volcanoes. A haze has spread over the lake. It softens the tone of blues and greens and purples. But it fails to mar the incomparable picture.

Highest Eastern Road.

Highest highway in the east is the Smoky terminus of the Blue Ridge parkway, which reaches an altitude of 6,311 feet at Clingman's dome, highest peak in the Smokies. Clingman's Dome, in North Carolina, is 6,642 feet.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcome. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

HERE'S A GENEROUS OFFER.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—To the Travel Editor: During the last winter I made several showings, to "shutins" of color motion pictures which Mrs. Smith and I had taken on various trips. The great pleasure expressed after these showings has led me to feel that amateur movie makers can render considerable happiness and pleasure to less fortunate people.

It is my understanding that there are various organizations whose purpose is to help shutins. Without conflicting in any way with these organizations, but rather working thru them, can you give me suggestions whereby we might organize amateur movie makers of Chicago, who would be willing either to loan their color films, projection equipment, or donate their time to take this type of entertainment to these people? I shall be very glad to volunteer my services and equipment, and to organize such a group, if there is merit in the plan, and if it can be worked in conjunction with present shutin organizations.

I cannot refrain from saying that in each instance, when I had the privilege to show my films, the appreciation expressed was a substantial reward for the time and effort given.

I am sure many other Chicago amateur movie makers will be deeply rewarded as I was, if they have the opportunity to bring happiness to these unfortunate persons.

My address is the First National Bank building; my phone, Central 3547.

H. L. SMITH.

MADE IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—To the Travel Editor: I noted with interest your article of Aug. 4, saying that artificial flowers are made from fish scales in Bermuda, some of them being tinted and worn as hair ornaments.

In her letter, published in THE TRIBUNE on Aug. 18, Mrs. Roy Parsons of Oquawka, Ill., tells of having seen and bought some of these flowers in Rockport, Tex.

It may be as a matter of surprise and interest to a number of persons to know that flowers and other decorative objects are being produced from fish scales right here in Chicago. Mrs. C. Rosenberg Foster is a teacher in this city, and has for some time been teaching her pupils to utilize fish scales, not only in making flowers, but also to arrange them, after tinting, to form pictures, which are then framed and placed under glass. The results of her years of experimenting with these and other homely and inexpensive materials for art objects have been assembled in her recently published textbook, "Trashcraft." E. T. JAMES.

SCRAPBOOKS FOR CHILDREN.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—To the Travel Editor: I should like to add my voice of regret regarding your new way of printing the names of shut-ins.

I make scrapbooks for sick children, and have enjoyed taking names from your lists and trying to cheer up those youngsters who might appreciate such a remembrance.

I wonder if you could give a little more information when you publish the names of small children. It would help me in determining which would enjoy having one of my books. MRS. F. C. TODD.

NO MORE SUFFERING.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—To the Travel Editor: Some time ago you published the name of Amelia Jaehnke, 5601 North Pulaski road, Chicago, in your column, and she received many cards and letters. Please advise those who so kindly made her shut-in life bearable and happy that she has since passed away.

A. F. JAEHNKE.

THANK YOU DEPARTMENT.

Grenloch, N. J., Sept. 14.—To the Travel Editor: I wish to thank you, and the readers of THE TRIBUNE, for the many beautiful cards and letters. In my nine years as an invalid I have never before been made so happy. Now, more than ever, I want to live!

I should like to answer each reader personally, but this is impossible. So I am asking you to do it for me.

God bless America—and its splendid people! LOUIS ROY LAU.

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 16.—To the Travel Editor: A few weeks ago you printed my name in your column. I have tried to reply to all the kind persons who sent me cards and letters, but some of them gave no address. So I ask you to let them know how much their greetings have meant to me. On behalf of other shut-ins, may I say: Keep up the good work! [MRS.] HELEN LIVINGSTON.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—To the Travel Editor: Recently I requested you to publish the name of Roger Johnson, St. Paul, Minn., in your shut-in column. His family has asked me to thank THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the readers who responded so generously. He received numerous cards and letters. It certainly is nice to know that there are so many kind people in the world.

MRS. CHARLES K. FIELD.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Travelers and other Tribune readers are invited to send cards and letters to those persons unable to share in the wonders of travel. These requests were among those received last week:

Donald Schnyders, Englewood hospital, 6001 South Green street, Chicago. [Donald, 11 years old, suffered a broken leg and a gash in the head in an auto accident. He will be laid up for several months.]

Paralea Bobell, 1508 East Adams street, Springfield, Ill. [Miss Bobell, an invalid for nine years, is now bedfast at a home for convalescents. She will try to answer each greeting.]

Ann Beckman, Lowell, Ind. [Ann is 8 years old. She has heart trouble, caused by rheumatic fever, and is unable to walk or to attend school.]

The Misses Della Mitchell, Isabell Malcolmson, and Hilda Fanello, all at the Oak Forest sanitarium, Oak Forest, Ill.

Miss Hazle Kunz, 3222 South McClure street, Marion, Ind.

Cod Fishers of Gaspe Attract the Sightseers

By Alden Powell.

GASPE PENINSULA, QUEBEC

Cod fishing around the peninsula is now at its height.

The cod "industry," among the chief pursuits of Gaspe, is always of great interest to those American visitors who like to look into unusual callings.

More than 3,000 descendants of fishermen who emigrated from France in colonial times fish for cod these days, and all of them speak French.

Today all the fishing boats are propelled by gasoline engines, but they also are fitted with sails and can depend upon the winds when necessary. Mostly the fishermen wear great rubber boots and sometimes berets, tho many go bareheaded. They are a simple, hardy folk, bronzed by lives at sea. Except for the introduction of the gas engine, their lives have changed little in the last three centuries. They have all the color of the fishermen of the southern coast of France.

The highway following the St. Lawrence along the Gaspe often passes close to the beaches where fishermen are cleaning their cod. And you can buy a fish from them at 10 cents each. Their boats are pulled on shore by means of horses.

At Cap Chat [Cat Cape] fishermen dry cod the same way they do in Norway and Iceland. Since the war the business of dried codfish has increased in the province of Quebec, since these men are now taking up the market formerly supplied by Norway and Iceland.

The boats are anchored a half a mile or more from shore, in the deep mouth of the St. Lawrence. Before they begin the catch of cod the men pull long seines thru the sea, catching herring for bait. These are cut into small pieces and each of 250 fishing hooks, suspended from heavy lines, is baited. These, in turn, hang from heavier lines, which often span half a mile or more of water. How the fishermen prevent the lines from becoming a snare is one of the mysteries of Gaspe.

Western Ponies in Quebec.

Sure-footed mountain ponies from the Canadian rockies were taken to Quebec province this year to carry trail riders along the mountain paths of the Laurentians.

Taos Indians to Dance in Honor of San Geronimo

Santa Fe, N. M., Sept. 21.—Historic Taos pueblo, the greatest pile of Indian architecture in New Mexico, will take on added color Sept. 30, when the Taos Indians celebrate their annual fiesta and dances dedicated to San Geronimo, the pueblo's patron saint.

Heralding the start of fiesta is the Sunset dance, held on the eve of San Geronimo day. The day is filled with races and dances.

Antics of the "delight makers," or clowns, conclude the public portion of the program. Their most striking act is the climbing of a tall, greased pole to claim the reward—often a butchered sheep stuffed with fruits and vegetables—on top.

Taos has been a goal to travelers since the 16th century. The ill-starred Mission of San Geronimo was established at the pueblo soon after 1598. Its walls fell during the Pueblo revolt of 1680, and again in a futile Mexican-Indian revolt in 1847.

The Taos Indians' custom of wearing white blankets in summer and red and blue in winter adds an unusual touch to the lights and shadows of the earthen-stained pueblo walls.

Latecomers Swell Crowds in Canada

QUEBEC.—Due to a variety of reasons, it took Quebec's tourist season a long time to get into high gear this year. But the province is now experiencing the greatest influx of Americans that have ever visited this stronghold of French culture in September.

In Quebec city, Montreal, Sherbrooke, the Gaspé region, and the Laurentians tourists from south of the border are taking late vacations and spending many dollars in hotels, department stores, and resorts.

The money spent by the visitors plays an important part in the dominion's war effort, inasmuch as it is used to finance Canadian purchases of war materials in the United States.

Movie to Be Shot at Marine Studio

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla.—Marineland, 12 miles south of this city, may become a movie set for a full length movie this winter.

It is reported here that a Hollywood company is planning production of the picture with the script calling for starring rôles to be played by the denizens in the huge oceanarium.

If the picture is made, it will be the first full length feature "shot" at the site. Several movie shorts have been made there since the Marine studio was opened two years ago.

South Atlantic Resorts

• Off Georgia's southern coast in a chain of islands noted for their pine-balm beauty and restorative climate lies Sea Island, world-famous in colonial days as the home of Sea Island cotton. The great plantations gone, it is today an elaborate playground with palatial hotels, excellent golf courses, beautiful casinos, riding paths, gun clubs and gorgeous tropical gardens. Tybee Island, favorite seaside resort of colonial times, is still popular with Southern families. Nearest mid-south resort is Virginia Beach, more cosmopolitan in character and long a favored spa of Europeans and famous for its deep sea fishing, hunting in fragrant pine forests and riding to hounds. A Sea Island or Virginia Beach vacation is different! Consult the advertisments in the Travelers' Guide today or let the Chicago Tribune Travel Bureau help you plan a South Atlantic resort vacation. This department of the Tribune Public Service Office can supply you with information about steamship, railroad, bus and plane travel, cost of transportation and accommodations en route for trips and tours to any part of the world which interests you. Services are free. The Tribune Travel Bureau sells no tickets—gets no fee or commission from the sale of tickets. So feel free to call in person, write or telephone.

INSTRUCTION.

FOR 69 YEARS
BURNHAM
BEAUTY CULTURE
TRAINING HAS BROUGHT CONSTANT—LARGER
EARNINGS TO GRADUATES.

WHY do the owners of more exclusive Beauty Shops from coast to coast PREFER Burnham Graduates?

WHY is there always a WAITING LIST OF TOP-NOTCH OPENINGS for qualified Burnham operators?

WHY are there no unemployment problems or "slack periods" for Burnham trained girls?

BECAUSE Burnham's gives more thorough individualized instruction. Our policy of FAR FEWER PUPILS PER TEACHER brings each student into close contact with our recognized STYLE AUTHORITIES, and makes each graduate a true COIFFURE ARTIST and BEAUTY SPECIALIST.

BECAUSE the special Burnham System of PRIVATE STUDENT CONSULTATION adds to every student's knowledge and earning power.

BECAUSE Burnham's is NOT A BRANCH SCHOOL run on a Chain Store System, but it is the original institution where most modern Beauty methods were started and developed.

Free lifetime employment service.

NEAR NORTH SIDE
We're looking for some delightful tenants who wish to live where they can enjoy loads of the good things that are going on down here, and still be able to get a full night's sleep, and save their energy. It's so near the loop that you can walk to and from your office and get a little build up that way too. We think our studios and studio apts. are rather unusual and delightful and we try to do our share in making them enjoyable. High ceilings, huge living rooms, duplexes, little foreign open courts, all just a little different, and all with fireplaces. We would like to show them to you anyway and you might wangle a little rent out of us to help pay the cost of moving.
COOK ESTATE.
161 E. Erie-st. Superior 2875
Sundays, 9 to 1; eves. Del. 4935.

NEAR NORTH SIDE
We have studio and studio apts. for groups of 2 to 4 persons where at a moderate cost to each one of the groups, you can live in a wonderful place and be down here where there is so much delightful entertainment at broadcastings, concerts, and lectures, at practically no cost and you can get home for a full night's sleep. Some furnished.

Why not combine your business and home? Seven tenants in one of our buildings have done so, and have 3 large rooms [one with a fireplace] and a reception hall for their office—and just a few steps down the hall, a 4 room apt. [2 baths]—home from business in just one minute. A background like this should tend to get one away from hard boiled business dealings to one of friendship and confidence—located just off N. Michigan-av., 2 blocks from a new subway station. Also other locations where the same plan can be worked out on a smaller scale.

Northwest Side.

A MODERN brick 2 flat. A home for yourself, an income from your tenant, no janitor service, because there are two heating plants. These important advantages will give you a home that pays for itself. That's home buying comfort at its best.

A very modest down payment and the balance for buyer to pay after collecting rent from tenant is far, far below rent value from your apartment.

NEW HOMES
Adjoining Kenilworth on the south and 1 blk. south of the Kenilworth stations is Connecticut village, a beautiful garden spot with 25 new homes completed in the last year, all in architectural harmony and beautifully landscaped. These homes, from 6 to 10 rooms, have been purchased by families interested in the educational, recreational [5 blocks to beaches], and social advantages offered by the north shore suburbs. Homes now in course of construction are being built for some of Chicago's top flight executives, evidence of the desirability of our location and ability to serve you. You, too, may be interested in one of the new 7 to 10 room homes just being completed, or may desire one built to meet your requirements. Drive out today, Sheridan-road to Woodstock-road in Kenilworth, 5 blocks west to our Connecticut village office. Ask property representative about our other new homes in Winnetka, Kenilworth and Wilmette, sizes 7 to 12 rooms.

Day by Day on the Farm
By BOB BECKER

Fly on Schedule

September 21, 1940.

THE boys on the Du Page county farm are wondering whether the the crows and the pheasants are carrying pocket watches under their wing feathers these days. By the way these birds show up at regular hours in two spots on the farm the men believe they must have some way of telling time.

The crows have the most regular habit of all the birds which stay on the farm. The men aren't fond of these troublesome black birds, but they have to admire their punctuality. Promptly at 3 o'clock every afternoon the crows leave one of the farm woods and settle down on the dead black limbs of an old willow tree near a creek at one corner of the farm. The gardener reports that the crows are so punctual about this daily "migration" that he could set his watch by their actions.

Feed on Sunflowers.

The pheasants also have a farm plot on which they hold daily meetings at regular hours. They aren't quite as punctual as the crows, but every afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock the pheasants come from three directions to feast on the sunflower seeds which are ripe now. Some come from the center woods, others fly in from the alfalfa field, and more come from a neighbor's field.

The nine comedian mallard ducklings which were hatched in a farm incubator this spring and have been amusing the farm residents all summer now are old enough that the men can tell the drakes from the hens. Only two of the nine youngsters are drakes.

The ducklings have been moved so many times that they should be authorities on the subject of "Travel on the Du Page County Farm." They already have lived in three different locations and soon are to be moved to the fourth. They were hatched in an incubator and later placed in a pen in the yard. Then they were moved to a pool with a small coop on the bank as their headquarters. They got into mischief in this location so were banished to another pool away from the farm homes. Soon they are to be moved to a pen near the barnyard where they will be kept over the winter.

Avoid Banding Traps.

The bird banding traps in and alongside the center woods on the farm aren't doing much business these days. Several field sparrows and a bluejay were trapped and banded this week, but the birds which are staying on the farm evidently are finding plenty of natural supplies of food and water without going into the traps. Weed seeds are mature now and provide a ready supply of food for the birds' breakfast, lunch, and dinner, and the dews have been so heavy for the last few weeks that the birds don't need to go into the traps for water.

The big duck trap now is being baited with shelled corn to attract the first migrating teal and the resident mallards which are flying back and forth between various northern Illinois ponds. A stretch of cool weather in the northern states will send the teal and other water fowl down to Chicagoland, and altho it's a little early to expect any large flights the first migrants will be here before long. When they do settle down on the Du Page county farm there will be free meals of corn waiting for them.

EDWARD C. HEIL, 5120 Harper Ave., tells how he found the car he wanted.

"MY wife and I make a trip to Florida each winter. I looked forward to cutting many hours off the traveling time in a newer car.

"I was driving a 1936 eight sedan which had gone about 60,000 miles. I intended keeping it a while longer, but started watching the Tribune want ads for a bargain.

"One day a 1940 Chrysler New Yorker convertible was advertised. From the description it seemed to be an attractive car, so I went to see it at the Earl A. Martin showroom, 5200 Lake Park Ave.

"Paul N. Hill, general manager, demonstrated the car. It was a maroon model, driven about 9,000 miles, but clean as a whistle. When I saw it I decided there was no use waiting, so I bought it for the old car and $1,100.

"I'm completely sold on the car and get a terrific kick out of driving it."

SEE TODAY'S WANT ADS FOR THE CAR YOU WANT!

Before you decide to spend anything on your present car, find out how little money will buy you one of the smart looking, late model used cars now on the market at attractive prices.

New car sales during recent months have been bringing a large number of late-model trade-ins on the market. Dealers are pricing them to sell quickly. As a result, you have a great opportunity to get a bargain in the make and model you prefer. For a review of these unusual values, see the Used Automobiles for Sale columns in today's want ad section.

EARL A. MARTIN

"RESULTS HAVE ALWAYS BEEN HIGHLY SATISFACTORY"

"Realizing that so often one receives only reports of dissatisfaction, I want to give you a report of a job well done.

"The convertible Chrysler coupe which Mr. Heil bought was advertised in the Chicago Tribune and brought us five calls on it the first day. We sold it to the first customer who came in.

"I have bought Tribune auto classified for almost twenty years and must say that the results have always been highly satisfactory.

"More power to the World's Greatest Newspaper."

Sincerely,
(Signed) EARL A. MARTIN

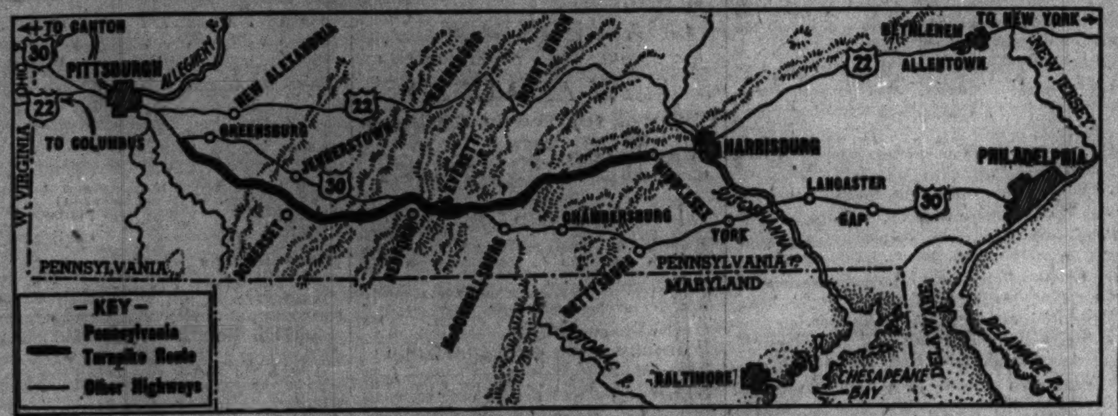
MOTORS—TRAFFIC—HIGHWAYS

Pennsylvania's 160 Miles of Deathproof Highway



This is the route of the new 160 mile Pennsylvania turnpike from Pittsburgh to Harrisburg, supposedly a deathproof highway, constructed at a cost of $4,378,000 a mile. It will be opened to traffic in October.

Modern Turnpike Engineering Combines Speed with Safety

BY HAL FOUST.

The Pennsylvania Turnpike, America's first extended superhighway, will give motorists a sample of road engineering for speed with safety. The highway, 160 miles long, from Pittsburgh to Harrisburg, is to be opened to traffic some time next month.

The design characteristics are those advocated in The Tribune's editorial platform for Illinois and Chicago in plank No. 2, reading "Build Deathproof Highways." These characteristics as applied to the turnpike are listed by Samuel W. Marshall, chief engineer, as follows:

"Separation of the streams of traffic flowing in opposite directions to reduce the possibility of head-on collisions and sidewipe accidents.

Eliminates Cross-Traffic.

"Elimination of all highway and railway grade crossings so that there will be no cross-traffic.

"Wide, smooth, stable shoulders level with the pavement to allow vehicles to park completely off the paved area and to provide 'elbow room' in case of traffic emergency or mechanical failure of the vehicle.

"Two lanes of pavement in each direction to reduce the menace of slow moving vehicles, to eliminate the necessity of encroaching on the lanes of opposite direction traffic when passing and to prevent delay in passing.

"Traffic lanes of sufficient width to care adequately for the safety, comfort and convenience of all classes of traffic.

Pedestrians Excluded.

"Elimination of all frontage, wildcat commercial development and local farm entry along the right of way and the complete control of that right of way.

"Exclusion of pedestrians.

"Moderate rates of grades to increase safety during icy weather and to increase the speed of large, heavily-loaded trucking units so that rear-end collisions between fast and slow vehicles are minimized.

"Uniform and consistent operation conditions.

"Specially designed access facilities at reasonably long intervals with acceleration and deceleration lanes so that vehicles may enter and leave the main highway with reasonable safety and a minimum of traffic disturbance."

200 Feet Right of Way.

The minimum right of way width is 200 feet. Two pavements each 24 feet wide are separated by a 10 foot parkway and are flanked by 10 foot shoulders.

The turnpike, as implied by its name, will charge a toll. The rate for passenger cars will approximate one cent a mile. Trucks, depending upon their size and weight, will pay a higher graduated tariff.

The cost of this superhighway, thru the mountains for most of the distance, with seven tunnels with an aggregate length of seven miles, and with 300 structures, was $70,050,000. This is about $4,378,000 a mile, several times greater than would be the cost of a similar facility in flat Illinois country.

Weakness Discovered.

A weakness in the project is that it does not penetrate a large city on either end. The eastern terminus is 13 miles west of Harrisburg and the western terminus is 11 miles east of Pittsburgh. The greatest need for deathproof highways is within metropolitan areas, such as the supers that long have been advocated for Chicago.

The Pennsylvania Turnpike was financed with federal assistance. Of the total, $29,250,000 was an outright government grant and $40,800,000 was a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan. Illinois, represented in the senate by James ["Strong Box"] Slattery and Scott ["Slush Fund"] Lucas has obtained no comparable gift.

CONCERN GROWS OVER FATALITIES TO PEDESTRIANS

Regulations to Reduce Toll Are Suggested.

BY HAL FOUST.

Reckless pedestrians are of growing concern to police, public officials, safety engineers and civic agencies. And statistics indicate that this concern is not only warranted but is also belated.

In Chicago, three-fourths of the traffic fatalities are pedestrians.

"In a majority of the cases," says Ald. George D. Kells [28th], chairman of the council traffic committee, "the pedestrian is guilty of at least contributory negligence. In almost half of these deaths, the victim is in the street some place other than at a cross walk when he is hit."

A Matter of Education.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, believes that police regulation of pedestrians will be necessary for a substantial reduction in this type of fatality. But he also believes that the public first must be educated to acceptance of such regulations.

The Chicago park district is progressing in the installation of physical equipment to safeguard pedestrians. Fences restrain jay walkers from express pavements on Lake Shore drive. On South Park way, fences border bus loading zones. At Soldiers' field, there are chains on the curb to keep pedestrians on the sidewalks.

Chicago's street car loading platforms lack protection that has been used successfully in other cities. Here, the car patrons invade traffic between the curb and the loading platform. In some cities, the patrons are guided by fences from the platform to the cross walk.

Council Juggles Ordinance.

The city council in the last few weeks has been juggling, in and out of committee, an ordinance to require pedestrians in the loop to walk on the green light only. The right turn movement of vehicles limited to the green interval interferes with pedestrians moving on the green. If pedestrians are to be restrained from walking against the red, it might be necessary to permit right turns of automobiles on the red light at some intersections and to prohibit all right turns at other intersections.

A proposal for a city wide enforcement of pedestrian obedience to stop and go envisions some difficulties. There are many light controled intersections between a heavily traveled thorofare and a side street with almost no traffic. It would be difficult to restrain pedestrians from crossing a pavement with no traffic on it, such as encountered in walking north or south on the east side of Sheridan road north of Devon avenue.

12,300 Killed in 1939.

"Last year," W. H. Cameron, managing director of the National Safety council, said in telling of the nationwide picture, "12,300 pedestrians were killed and 260,000 injured. Two of every five killed in motor vehicle accidents are pedestrians.

"In cities, pedestrians numbered 61 per cent of all persons killed in traffic accidents and 35 per cent of the injured. In rural areas, the figures were 22 and 6 per cent respectively.

"Surely it is high time that we faced the issue in this pedestrian traffic problem—that we placed more responsibility on the pedestrian himself.

"I do not infer that the motorist is not often the guilty party. Nor do I suggest that we let up on all effective measures for control of drivers and mechanical causes of accidents.

Disregard for Safety.

"But we know that in more than two-thirds of all pedestrian accidents the pedestrian was violating a traffic regulation or committing an unsafe act.

"In cities, 41 per cent of the pedestrians killed were crossing streets between intersections or coming from behind parked cars. Many other fatalities occurred when pedestrians crossed against the traffic signal.

"We have made a beginning at pedestrian control. In 178 cities ordinances regulate pedestrian traffic. In 80 of these steps have been taken toward control. In a few cities pedestrian control has been sufficiently authoritative and persistent to obtain results, and lives have been saved.

"But in all cities the pedestrian should be required to observe the traffic signals and signs, just as the motorist is expected to obey them. But it is only fair that he should be given adequate protection."

NEWS AND VIEWS

Cadillac's 1941 automobiles will include a car in the medium priced field, Nicholas Dreystadt, disclosed yesterday. "The new car, at the lowest price ever quoted on a Cadillac V-8, contains all the quality, size, and performance of the regular Cadillacs," Dreystadt said. "In addition we have included all the advances in style, comfort and driving economy that have been developed recently."

L. I. Woolson, chief engineer for De Soto division of the Chrysler corporation, describes the "simplimatic transmission" used in conjunction with fluid drive on the 1941 De Soto as a semi-automatic device which makes available to the driver starting, cruising, and accellerating gear ratios without changing the position of the shifter lever. A momentary lifting of the foot from the accelerator pedal puts a gear into position for quick pickup.

The 1941 Buick, Nash, and Packard cars will be on display at the Hunters and Winter Sports show at the Chicago Arena which opened yesterday and will continue thru next Sunday.

Drawings for space in the used car section of the 41st annual Chicago Auto show will be held at a luncheon meeting Tuesday at the Drake hotel. Frank H. Yarnall, chairman of the used car committee, will preside at the drawing. The show will be held Oct. 26 to Nov. 3, inclusive, at the International Amphitheater, Halsted and 43d streets.

VOICE OF TRAFFIC

AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE.

Wilmette, Ill., Sept. 19.—Like most other people, I have been paying car insurance for years, with the idea that it would reimburse others should there ever be a loss.

I got a new slant on how gyp insurance companies work on June 22. A hit and run city of Evanston garbage truck crashed into my legally parked car. Imagine my surprise when the city of Evanston's insurance firm tried to chisel, expected me to take a loss on the physical damage sustained.

The result is, I am suing the city of Evanston. I did not have the slightest responsibility for the accident, and there is little doubt of the outcome.

Nevertheless, it is going to be rather expensive to Evanston taxpayers in point of time wasted. I am dragging into court a traffic cop, a truck driver, and burning up the valuable energies of the Evanston corporation counsel, all because a lousy insurance company will not pay off unless cornered like a rat in a hole.

My point in calling your attention to this arises from the fact that, today, a person buying car insurance has no way of knowing how much it's going to cost him.

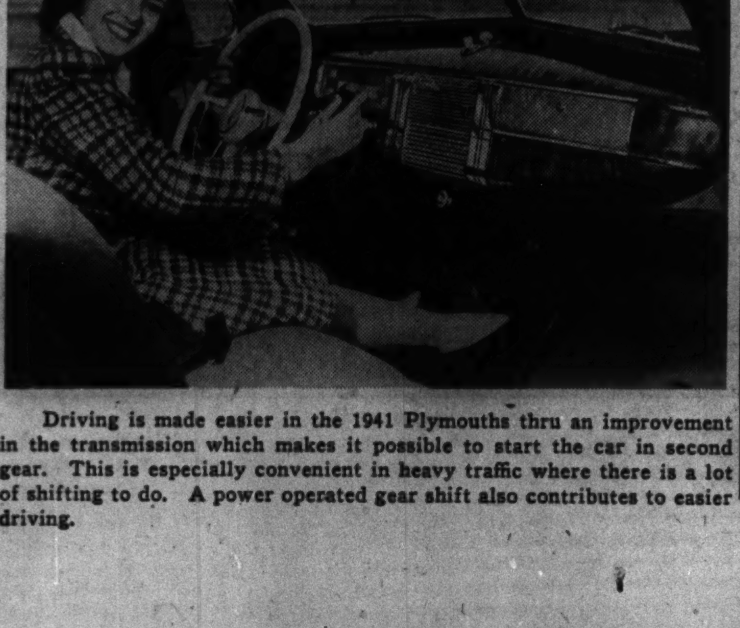
1. With a legitimate insurance firm, his premiums pay for legitimate losses.

2. With a gyp outfit his premiums—plus as much time as the insurance company sees fit to squander in court—are needed to take care of losses that arise.

I think the percentage of cases that are settled out of court by each insurance company should be published. The public has no way of detecting the wolves in sheep's clothing, as a lot of them sadly find out if ever an accident occurs and reveals it.

TOM F. BLACKBURN.

Driving Easier in 1941 Plymouth



Driving is made easier in the 1941 Plymouths thru an improvement in the transmission which makes it possible to start the car in second gear. This is especially convenient in heavy traffic where there is a lot of shifting to do. A power operated gear shift also contributes to easier driving.

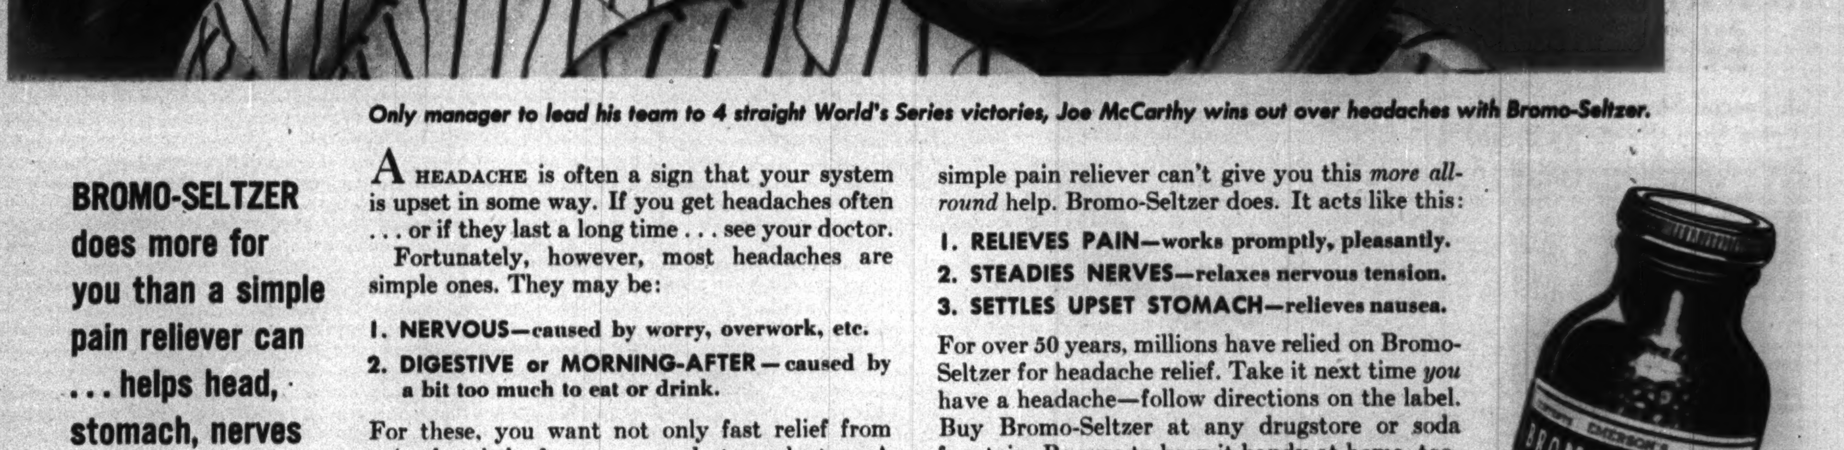
JOE McCARTHY

knows how to get MORE ALL-ROUND HEADACHE RELIEF



Only manager to lead his team to 4 straight World's Series victories, Joe McCarthy wins out over headaches with Bromo-Seltzer.

BROMO-SELTZER does more for you than a simple pain reliever can . . . helps head, stomach, nerves

A HEADACHE is often a sign that your system is upset in some way. If you get headaches often . . . or if they last a long time . . . see your doctor.

Fortunately, however, most headaches are simple ones. They may be:

1. NERVOUS—caused by worry, overwork, etc.
2. DIGESTIVE or MORNING-AFTER—caused by a bit too much to eat or drink.

For these, you want not only fast relief from pain, but help for nerves and stomach, too. A simple pain reliever can't give you this more all-round help. Bromo-Seltzer does. It acts like this:

1. RELIEVES PAIN—works promptly, pleasantly.
2. STEADIES NERVES—relaxes nervous tension.
3. SETTLES UPSET STOMACH—relieves nausea.

For over 50 years, millions have relied on Bromo-Seltzer for headache relief. Take it next time you have a headache—follow directions on the label. Buy Bromo-Seltzer at any drugstore or soda fountain. Be sure to keep it handy at home, too.

FOR THE 1 MAN IN 7 WHO SHAVES EVERY DAY

A Special Shave Cream—It's Not a Soap, Needs No Brush!

Daily shaving leaves many men's faces raw and sensitive. Yet, because of his business and social status, one out of every 7 men must shave every day.

To meet this condition, Williams has now developed GLIDER—a special cream for daily shavers. With no soap base, it's a complete departure from ordinary shave creams. No brush. No lather. Not sticky or greasy.

A superabundance of moisture is contained in this rich cream. It won't dry on your face. Applied with the fingers, it quickly softens each whisker. A protective layer is formed over which your razor glides. Off comes each hair at the base without scraping. Like a cold cream, yet not greasy, Glider helps keep your skin smooth all day. Glider is the result of 100 years' experience in making fine shaving preparations. FREE—tube of Glider. Send your name and address today. The J. B. Williams Co., Dept. OG-19, Glastonbury, Conn.

ALL YOU DO IS FINISH THIS LETTER

Dear Aunt Jenny—
I like Spry best for all baking and frying because (ADD 25 WORDS OR LESS)

SEA FOAM FUDGE CAKE

¾ cup cocoa
¾ cup sifted brown sugar, firmly packed
1¼ cups scalded milk
⅔ cup Spry
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup granulated sugar
3 eggs, unbeaten
1 teaspoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon soda
2 cups sifted flour

Mix and sift cocoa with brown sugar. Add scalded milk gradually and stir until smooth. Cool.

Blend Spry, salt and vanilla. Add granulated sugar gradually and cream well. (Spry's creamy-soft, ready for instant mixing!) Add eggs, singly, beating well after each addition.

Sift baking powder and soda with flour 3 times. Add flour to creamed mixture, alternately with cocoa mixture, mixing after each addition until smooth. Bake in two round 9-inch Spry-greased cake pans in moderate oven (350° F.) 40 minutes. Spread Sea Foam Frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake. See what delicious tasting cakes you get with purer Spry—lighter, too! Make all your cakes with Spry. Use it for pastry, frying.

SEA FOAM FROSTING

2 egg whites, unbeaten
1½ cups brown sugar, firmly packed
5 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon light corn sirup
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine egg whites, brown sugar, water and corn sirup in top of double boiler and mix thoroughly. Place over rapidly boiling water and beat constantly with rotary egg beater until mixture holds up in peaks (about 7 minutes). Remove from fire, add vanilla and beat until cool and thick enough to spread. Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two 9-inch layers.

All measurements in these recipes are level • Clip and save this Spry recipe

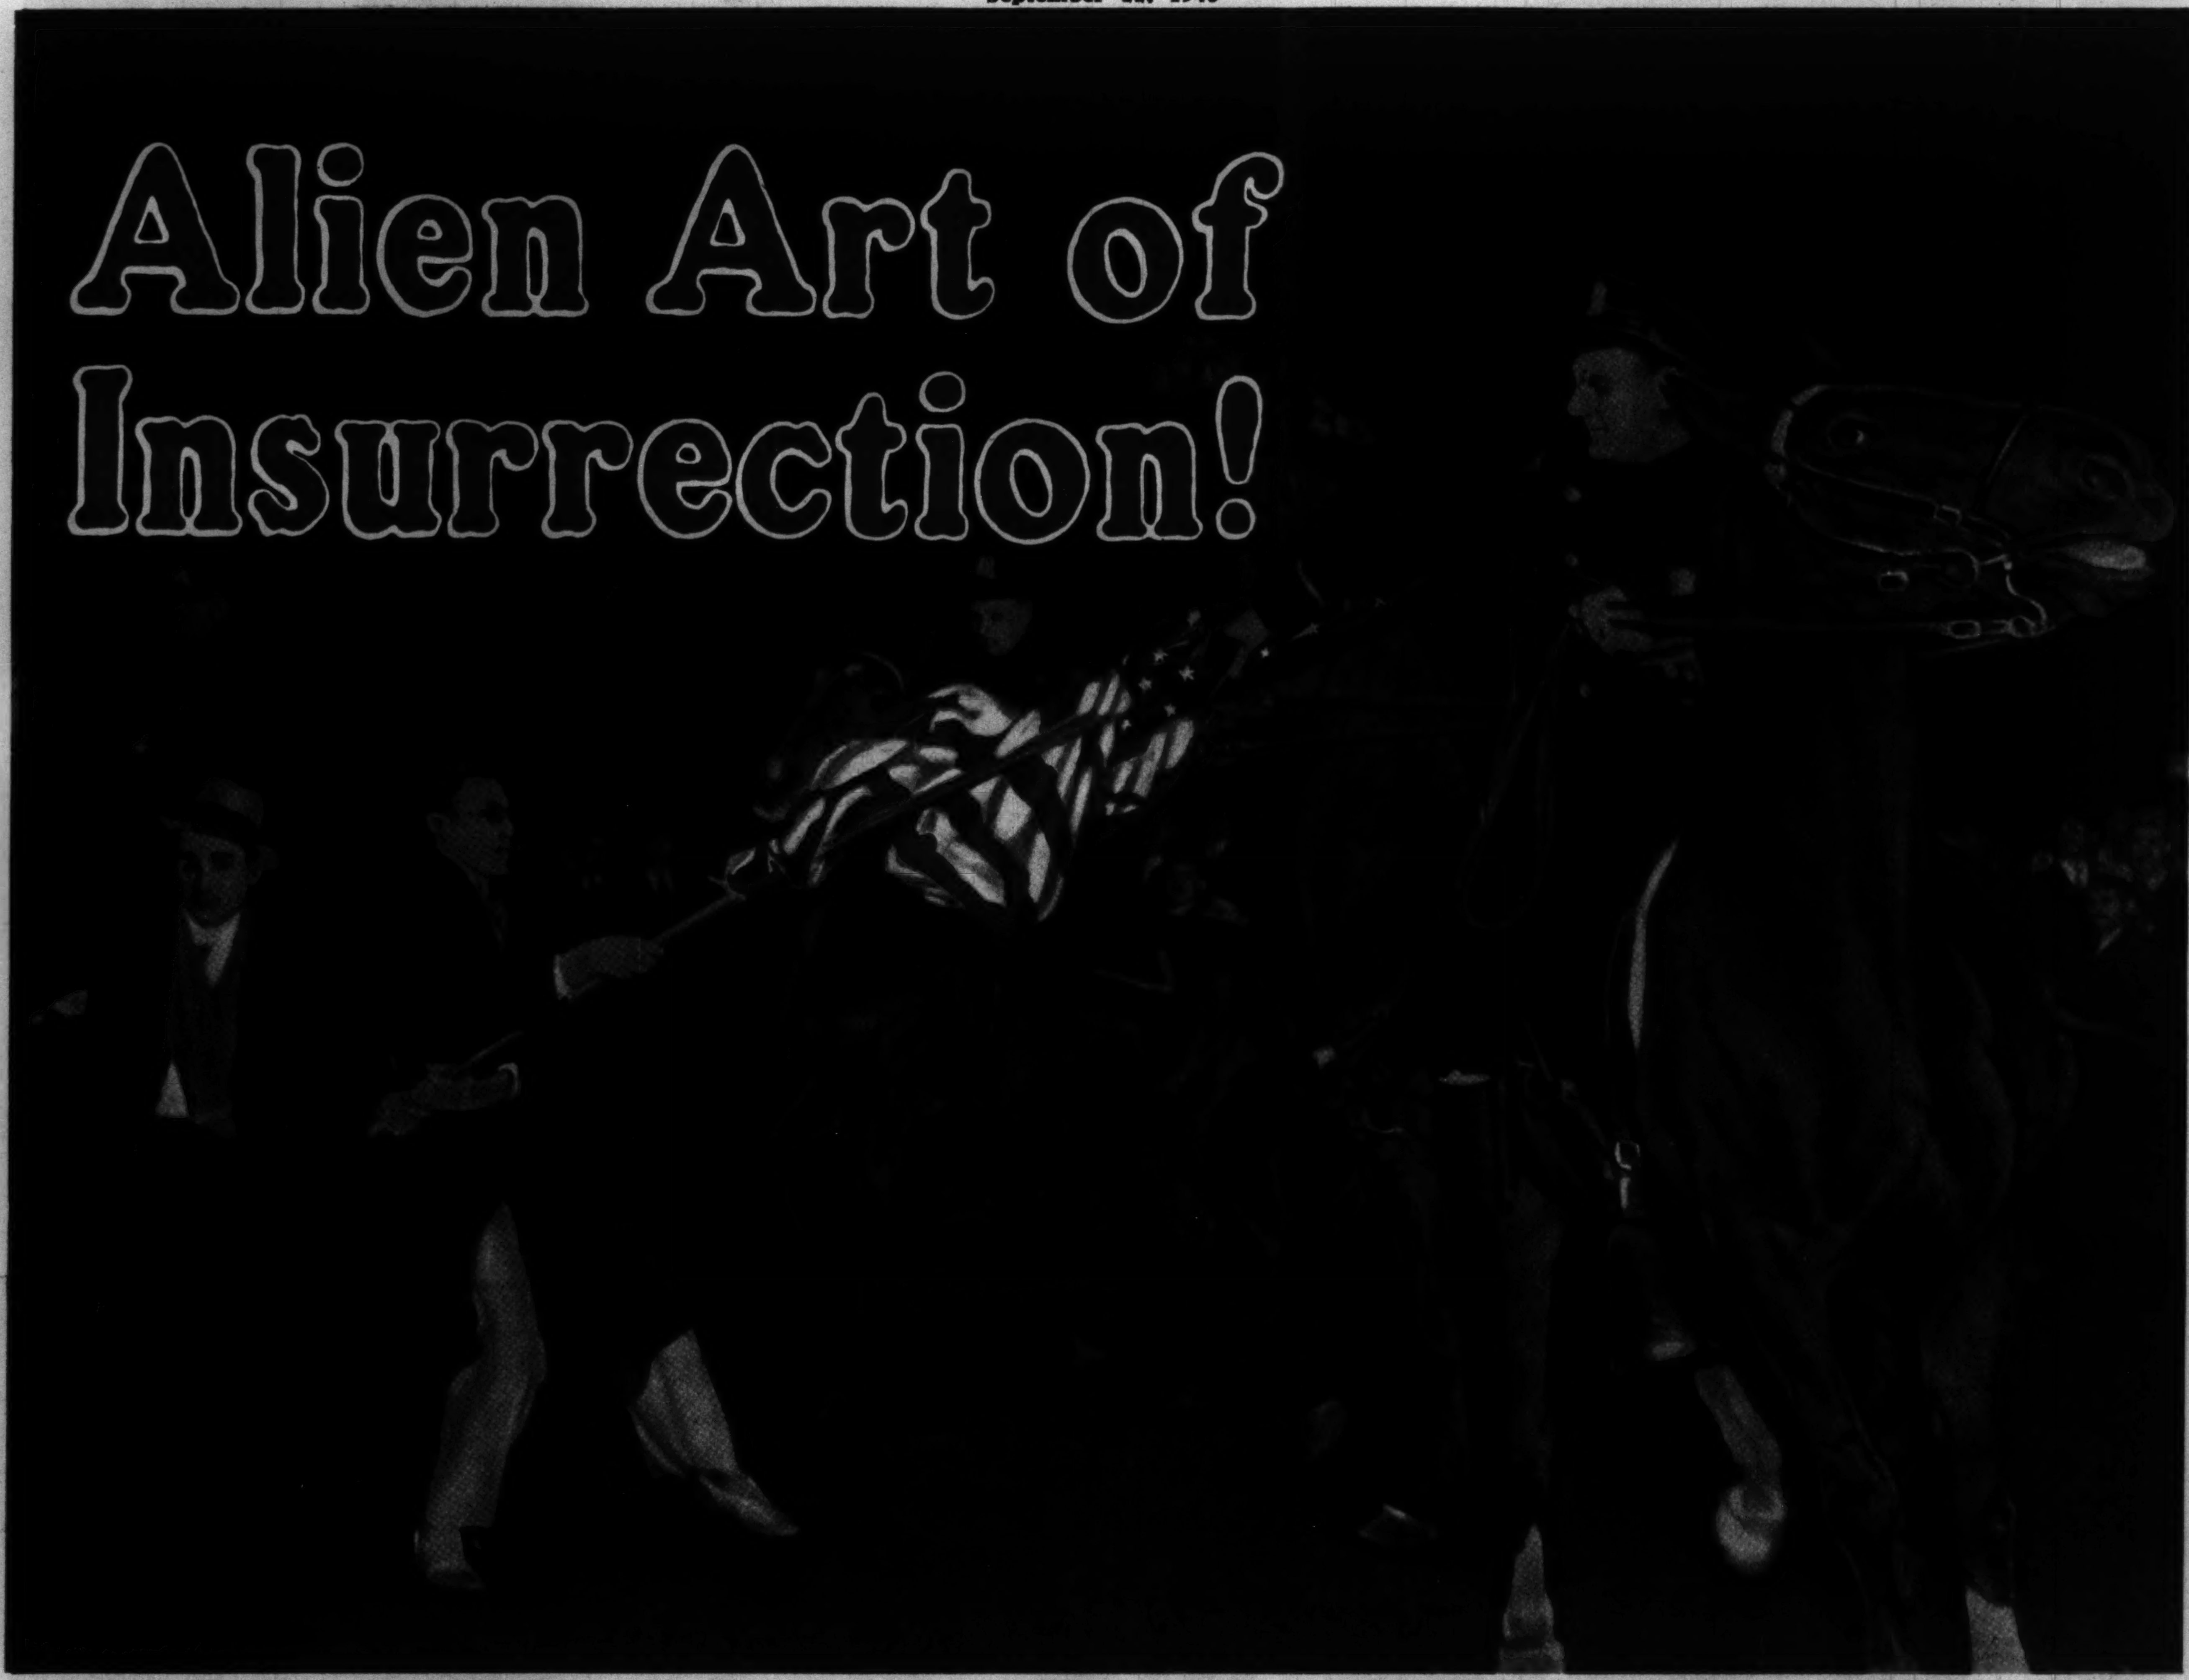
Alien Art of Insurrection!



(International News photo.)

Riot leaders frequently place women in their front ranks; they like to operate under cover of the American flag.

Technique of Riots Developed Abroad

By LLOYD WENDT

PARIS FOR MONTHS seethed with internal strife. The Nazi-Fascists of Col. François de la Rocque had flouted the authority of the government with as wild a street battle as the capital had seen since 1871. The countering strikes of the communists paralyzed production and sent waves of terror thru the country. Ugly rumors of incipient civil war in France swept about Europe.

Then one night the government forces struck. Squads of motorized armed guards descended upon secret headquarters, munitions depots, and gun caches. Leaders of the dread Les Cagoulards (The Hooded Ones) and their allies, the CSAR (Comité Secret d'Action Revolutionaire) were dragged from their beds and rushed before special courts.

They were charged with plotting to seize the government of France, with the connivance and support of Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy.

The extent of the plot and the perfection of its organization and equipment stunned the French people. All of Paris had been mapped for attack. Battalions of men were armed with guns and hand grenades. They were drilled and organized and ready.

The swiftness of the government's countermeasures sent leaders who could escape scurrying across the frontiers. But France was shaken with a terror it had not known since the revolt of the Paris commune. The government tottered and threatened to fall.

Then, in the hour of extreme crisis, the French communists delivered their blow. A general strike was called in Paris. Transportation, utilities, and factories were tied up. The French defense program, already delayed by the internal struggle for power, stopped altogether.

Street demonstrations and disturbances began. The police turned from one menace to another. For days France was demoralized.

Finally the government, almost miraculously, saved itself for the time. But the strikes continued. The confidence of the people had been lost, the defense program crippled, and France was laid open to external foes. The fifth column, operating in its two opposing wings, had won the first battle of France.

Two years later, in June, 1940, Hitler, with some assistance from Mussolini, finished the job. France surrendered unconditionally, and the French republic became a Fascist state.

Street Battles Are Planned Affairs

The scene shifts to America. Three huge trucks move into pier 38 on San Francisco's water front. Longshoremen begin hasty loading operations. They watch warily as they work, for they are breaking a strike. Near by are police keeping armed guard.

Suddenly among the warehouses to the east a disturbance breaks out. The police hurry over. Meanwhile from the recesses of pier 38 squads of men descend upon the trucks. Clubs and fists and stones fly. The police, tricked, swing back, their riot guns ready. They fire warning shots.

It is a signal for general action. Along the five-mile water front, from the tip of the Embarcadero past Rincon hill and the city ferry building, hundreds of longshoremen take the offensive. Thruout the day, over an area a square mile in extent, the battle rages. Two strikers fall mortally wounded, 38 more are injured.

Gov. Frank Merriam declares a state of emergency, charging that a small band of communists has taken over an honest strike to cloak a campaign of violence approaching the proportions of armed revolt. He summons (Continued on page two.)

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

Photographing Reflections Simple and Effective

REFLECTION pictures are among the simplest and most effective trick shots which every amateur should try. There are so many occasions for taking the various types of reflection pictures that you will have no trouble at all finding subjects. The simplest type, and the one that offers the greatest variety, are pictures taken with the aid of a mirror. But you can easily enumerate half a dozen other kinds, such as clear reflections in a lake, river, or pool; pictures of buildings reflected by wet pavement or rain puddles; reflections on window panes, polished silver or glass utensils, spectacle lenses, and innumerable other objects.

You can classify reflection pictures in three groups. One type intends to show a clear reflected image of objects, free from distortion. Such pictures can be made only with flat reflecting surfaces such as flat mirrors, glass, and motionless water.

Another group consists of distorted reflections, which appear on all types of curved surfaces, whether they be the polished headlight of an automobile or a concave mirror. These pictures are usually humorous or grotesque, but not always so. It is entirely possible to make "pictorial" shots by this method. Reflections on rippled water surfaces also fall in this group.

Finally, there is a group of reflection pictures that could be labeled multiple reflections. Interesting pictures can be made, giving somewhat eerie effects, if your reflecting surface shows the overlapping and blending images of several objects. Similar effects are caused if not only an image but also some direct light is reflected by your "mirror." If direct light rays hit the reflecting surface they give the picture a soft, hazy appearance, as if it had been photographed thru fog or water.

For good results follow a few elementary rules when making reflection pictures. Take, for instance, the matter of focusing. If your camera has a ground glass or a range finder it is simple to focus reflection pictures. When the image appears sharp on the ground glass or in the finder it will be sharp in your picture. But if you set your focus with a scale you must add to the distance of your camera from the reflecting surface the distance of the subject from that surface. The sum of those two distances will give you the correct focus.

You must follow this method of focusing if you photograph only the reflection. But if you want to get both the object and its reflection in one picture you set the focus for the distance from camera to mirror and stop down your lens so that you get a greater depth of field. This is important to remember, as some of your most interesting reflection shots will show people in front of mirrors. Such pictures are especially intriguing because they enable you to show two views of a face simultaneously in one picture. But they must be sharp, and this you can achieve only by using a small lens opening.

The proper exposure for reflection shots also must be closely watched. The reflected images are less brilliant than the original object. Consequently you must give them a longer exposure than you would use if you were photographing the object itself. In the case of good mirrors the loss of light is small and needs little compensation, but when you photograph reflections in water or in a colored Christmas tree decoration you will have to use far slower shutter speeds. Your exposure will be made even longer wherever you must stop down the lens to get increased sharpness.

If you snap reflection pictures indoors you can speed up matters by using stronger lights. But be careful to shield the mirror or other reflecting surface from direct light rays. All the light should fall on the subject whose reflection you are photographing.

For indoor work you can use very effectively a chromium plated ferrotype tin as a reflecting surface. These tins are flexible, so that you can create distortions at will. Another good use for the tins is to sprinkle water on them and to photograph the many images these water drops reflect.

For shooting undistorted reflections in water the water surface must be smooth. Exposure should be somewhat longer than the reflected subject calls for, as the image on the water is less brilliant than the original.

(Photo by Robert Zeyallas, Detroit, Mich., from Kodak Exhibit.)

Reflections in a mirror provide pictures of unique charm. To get both the subject and the reflection in sharp focus you must stop down the lens and set the focus for distance from camera to mirror. If only the reflection is photographed, focus should be set for distance from camera to mirror plus distance from mirror to subject.

the National Guard to reinforce the police. The rioting is halted, but the longshoremen, directed by the alien radical, Harry Bridges, hold the waterfront. The great port of San Francisco is helpless.

The strike spreads to 100,000 other union men in the city. Food supplies are shut off, while millions of dollars of perishables spoil at the docks. Shipping and production are at a standstill, while Bridges balks the efforts of old line labor leaders to end the strike.

Street battles of this kind, familiar occurrences in many American cities, are an important mechanism of insurrection in modern times. They are as deadly to national defense as were the communist-Fascist conspiracies to the security of the French republic.

The technique of street fighting has been carefully developed by the exponents of foreign ideologies now operating in the United States. By such means defense strength is tested, the authority of the American system is flouted, production is halted, and the people are prepared psychologically for a decisive coup.

Like other methods of modern warfare, street fighting had crude beginnings. The first Paris crowds to attack the troops of Louis XVI. on July 12, 1789, were simply disorganized, maddened mobs, fierce with hunger and armed only with paving stones, knives, and iron shod staves.

Soon, however, the mobs began to assume a kind of order. The Breton and Jacobin political clubs developed systems of communication and bell signals to bring the rioters into the streets by planned sections which could simultaneously surround a given position in a coordinated movement.

The revolutionaries also found that an advance guard of women and even children is extremely effective . . . and this plan is followed in the street riots in this country today. The success of the women who participated in the storming of the Bastille led to the regular use of a feminine van in the riots. The 10,000 Paris women who led the advance on Versailles quickly discovered that even hardened professional troops hesitate to fire on women. Soon the male members of the mobs began wearing petticoats as they threw up their barricades of cobblestones in the Paris streets.

George Jacques Danton probably was the first to organize the Paris street riots in the modern manner, instituting a technique later to be perfected by Louis Blanqui, Leon Trotsky, and present day Red and Nazi leaders. He organized 48 "sections" in Paris. His political clubs numbered 10 men each, and each man was responsible for 10 subleaders in the mob. Their instructions were communicated secretly, and Danton himself delivered the orders to the bell signalers in the Cordeliers and six other churches: the tocsin to bring the rioters into the streets according to plan.

Danton's outside troops, comparable in some ways to the parachutists who now aid the Fifth Column, were the 600 men of Marseilles who "knew how to die."

When the Marseillaise arrived in Paris, singing their thundering march song, Danton was ready for action.

The signal bell of the Cordeliers summoned the sections into the streets one hot August night. At the fore was a corps of women and children, bearing petitions—a trick to get the marchers close to the assembly. Following were the units from Marseilles, well armed, and throngs of workmen, equipped with spears, bayonets, knives, and iron-tipped clubs. These weapons also were effective tools for digging up the paving blocks, which at once provided barricades and ammunition.

(Acme photo.)

CIO sympathizers, in helmets, defy court injunction against mass picketing by lining up in front of gates of Cleveland, O., plant.

The task of the leaders was to get the people to march, and to force contact with the troops. After that they must look out for themselves. This also is the present technique of the communist riot leaders in this country.

Danton advanced his battalions in two wings, one to the Hotel de Ville (city hall) and the other toward the Tuileries.

Galliot de Mandat, commander of the National Guard of France, elected to defend the persons of the king and queen in the Tuileries and let the assembly shift for itself. Danton's street fighters quickly surrounded the elective branch of the government in the Hotel de Ville.

The forces approaching the Tuileries halted before the Pont Neuf over the Seine, where Mandat defended a strong position. They were no longer a wild mob, they acted according to plan.

Danton, in possession of the Hotel de Ville, caused a message to be sent to Mandat, summoning him before the assembly for orders. Mandat foolishly obeyed.

This trick doomed the government. As soon as Mandat departed, the street fighters charged. The leaderless National Guards retreated, refusing to fire on the women and children who swarmed across the bridge. When a barrage of paving stones and pistol balls broke among them, many of the guards mutinied and joined the rioters.

Danton's battalions were ready for this. They had brought along artillerymen and grates for heating cannon balls. They seized the defense armament at the bridge, and turned it on the palace. The loyal Swiss guards were overwhelmed as Louis refused to let them fire. Louis and his queen were made prisoners, and Danton's coup succeeded.

Thru the long and bloody history of the French revolution street fighting strategy continued to develop, until Hanroit, the ex-brandy seller, and his organized mobs could take Paris for one faction or another almost at will. Hanroit himself was finally executed, and a new strategist, Napoleon Bonaparte, stepped into the scene.

In October, 1795, the Royalists were preparing a coup. Three thousand men were ready for the sortie into the streets. Napoleon, at the Theater Feydeau, remarked to a friend: "If they were to put me at their head I would undertake, myself, to put them in the Tuileries in two hours."

But the government, fortunately for it, summoned Napoleon to conduct the defense, and he demonstrated his ability to take the Tuileries by the manner in which he defended it.

Napoleon decided that heavy guns would stop the Paris rioters and keep order. He dispatched two officers to the camp of Les Sablons, and they brought back 40 field pieces. These were ranged before the Tuileries to command all approaches. They could rake with grapeshot the streets where the mobs had ruled. Muskets did not greatly overmatch paving stones, but Napoleon's cannon were another matter.

Napoleon was aided in his preparations by the fact that while the insurgents were ready to die for their cause, they did not want to get wet. The attack was delayed for hours until a rainstorm ceased. Then, at 4 p. m., the insurrectionists began their assault.

The first shots burst in the Rue Saint-Honoré, near the Church of Saint-Roch. Then Napoleon's cannon enfiladed the streets. Nearly three hundred rioters fell, the rest broke and fled. Paris had found a master, and the days of revolution were ended. The science of street fighting, as Paris knew it, had, by a single volley, been outmoded.

Nevertheless, the paving blocks were dug up again in 1830, 1839, and 1848. But the revolutionary, Louis Blanqui, the first to proclaim the "dictatorship of the proletariat," saw then that mere rioters could no longer take a city. He began to develop a science of insurrection.

Blanqui believed that a small, trained army of street fighters, thoroly drilled and disciplined, could seize the vital points of a city and hold them until the masses should rally to the support of the revolt. Blanqui saw the street riot as a cover for the more important operation. His system, thoroly refined, has now become the "putsch," a German word, meaning minor rebellion, and combines the Danton street fighting method with the palace revolt technique of the Praetorian guards in ancient Rome.

Blanqui organized a band of 4,000 men. They were taught the construction and storming of barricades, and they were instructed in the methods of handling the weapons of the time. They worked their way into the National Guard, where they could obtain further training in military strategy, and could seize arms and wreck morale in a critical hour. A division of women was formed for the street fighting forces. The women carried cans of petroleum for the firing of buildings.

In October, 1870, while the Prussians besieged Paris, Blanqui had his opportunity. His trained divisions swept thru Paris and quickly defeated the provisional government. Blanqui, however, loved revolt for its own sake, and he soon relinquished command to the forces he had conquered in order to offer a united front to the Germans.

So powerful were the Blanquist forces that the Prussians, when they finally did capture Paris, never attempted to invade the workingmen's quarters, defended by those doughty street battlers and putschists.

In the Russian revolution of October, 1917, Leon Trotsky put new polish on the art of insurrection. He adopted the Blanquist principle that a few men, trained and armed, can seize

Want to Be a Glamor Girl? Then Attract Attention

Hollywood.

THIS PIECE might be titled "How to Be a Glamor Girl in 1,000 Easy Lessons," because, for the benefit of all the young ladies who think it would be nice to earn $3,700 a week and be married to Clark Gable, that's about how it is. For every screen lovely who got where she is thru natural beauty, conscientious work and ability, you'll find another who got there by chance, thru a gag, or because of a pose. Or because it was necessary to put her there.

Only one thing is necessary in any case—to attract attention. In the days of our grandfathers, a girl could put the ax to her mother and stepfather, set fire to the baby and then walk down the main street in her underclothes. Soon as she got acquitted she was pretty sure of a vaudeville engagement at Hammerstein's Victoria.

But this sort of attention-getting is regarded bleakly by the movies. It would be better to win a beauty contest. It would be better to let a talent scout, or an agent, or a director see those big beautiful eyes while serving him a double-thick malted at a drive-in. It might even be better just to use an old Victorian trick and drop a handkerchief in front of a director, scout or agent. The records don't reveal any handkerchief-dropping episodes, but it isn't a bad idea and Hollywood might think it was new.

Take Dorothy Lamour, which isn't a bad idea either. She was a Chicago department store elevator operator. She didn't win a beauty contest; she lost one in New Orleans the year the late Dorothy Dell won it and got a Paramount contract. All Miss Lamour had was long hair and, later on, a job singing with a band. It was Miss Dell who got her a screen test.

As an actress, Lamour looked grand, but was the despair of directors because she whined when she spoke. Henry Hathaway got her in "Spawn of the North," an Alaskan affair in which she could not wear a sarong but for which she substituted a tight sweater, and he told her f'evven's sakes to stop whining.

"You don't do that when you sing, do you?" he queried. "No, you've learned to sing in a husky, torch-song voice. Well, talk in the same register."

Miss Lamour obeyed and became a glamor girl.

A few years ago Paramount conducted a "search" in connection with a now-forgotten film called "The Search for Beauty." Out of it came specimens from all over the country, including a lazy, drawly, corn-fed babe from North Texas State Teachers' college named Clara Lou Sheridan. She was so lazy that once, while having some "glamor" portraits done in the gallery, she fell asleep, a lamp fell down and hit her shoulder and burned her and put her to bed for two weeks.

She was the despair of every coach and expert in the studio, was finally dropped from the pay roll after having done nothing but pose for some leg art. By some miracle she got another stock contract at Warner's. This studio had her hips beaten down, her hair thinned out, and changed the Clara Lou to Ann.

The publicity boys gave her a great break out of pure affection, and she caught on. If she hadn't had ability, and the ability to learn, she'd have been dropped again, don't worry. But she's doing all right.

Another Paramount "search" was for the Panther Woman, and among the specimens turned up for this one was another gal with a drawl named Margaret Fitzpatrick. When she came to Hollywood from Alabama it was the first time she'd been on a train. She had never used makeup, she wore long underwear—honest!—and her teeth were crooked. Well, they put jackets on her teeth, junked the longies, taught her to talk.

John Engstead, the publicity department art editor, liked the girl, taught her to walk. The old stuff of putting a book on the head and pretending to be a lady entering a drawing-room. Phyllis Loughton, the drama coach, took her in tow, and Wally Westmore showed her how to use makeup.

The studio changed the Margaret Fitzpatrick to Gail Patrick—and there she is. She was, of course, no dope to start with, but a gal with a college degree and a Phi Beta Kappa key. She is now one of the pleasantest and most smartly dressed women in the film colony.

Ellen Drew, now working in "D. O. A.," is a Kansas City barber's daughter who worked in a Chicago suburban dime-store. She did win a beauty contest—a little local one—and came to Hollywood. She went to work behind a soda counter, learned how to make up, do her hair, and get the most for her money out of clothes.

An agent to whom she served a giant chocolate malt with two scoops of ice cream got her a screen test and she won a meaningless little stock contract. She kept spending a quarter of her pay on dramatic coaching, got her first break when Frank Lloyd gave her a good secondary rôle in "If I Were King." After "D. O. A." she'll do one of the great Sarah Bernhardt rôles—"Sappho."

A girl can get into the movies by a build-up—winning a contest, having an agent discover her, putting on an act. After she's in, she can be made prominent by a publicity build-up. Rita Hayworth, for instance, is now the object of an intensive studio and privately hired publicity campaign. But it is obvious to anybody who ever earned a living doing anything that if a girl is going to stay where she's put she must have some ability.

Many girls come up the hard, slow way, being extras, doing bits, studying, showing ability and being recognized for it by getting increasingly better parts. But showmanship doesn't hurt. Lana Turner turned a set of sweaters and a red automobile into profitable attention-callers. Carole Lombard specialized in wearing furs, spent most of her money on them.

After posing in shorts for fotogs at the U. S. C. track, Greta Garbo took the advice of the late Lon Chaney and started playing hard-to-get. Paulette Goddard was a platinum blonde chorine and platinum blonde chorines are numerous. Chaplin made her a brunette.

Marlene Dietrich was a hausfrau at heart and still is. She loves to bake apple strudels and things—and she used to haunt the studio soda counter lapping up malts. Josef von Sternberg took her in hand, put her on a diet, made her quit playing her musical saw in public—yes, she played a musical saw—nixed all "home art" of her in the kitchen, started a painstaking glamor process.

Olympe Bradna was known at the studio as "The Little Fullback," until she took off some weight. Norma Shearer, tired of simple rôles, went to a noted photographer, ordered him to make some "glamor" pictures of her. These sexy pictures started her on a new career.

Penny Singleton, as Dorothy McNulty, was doing so-so. Hearing that the comic strip "Blondie" was being planned as a picture, she went to a makeup friend, had him turn her into a blonde, landed as Blondie. Laraine Day was just the nurse for Dr. Kildare until Edward Small borrowed her for "My Son, My Son," and the makeup men changed her hair-do, allowed hitherto hidden freckles to appear, advised shortening her skirts so a couple of good legs could show.

Over at the Warner studio, which gave Ann Sheridan oomph after Paramount had quit trying, they lined up for me a few of the thousand easy lessons for being a glamor girl:

1. Glamor is more a state of mind than outward appearance. There are girls in the chorus line of any screen or stage musical who are more beautiful than the average star. Beauty is important enough, but not all-important.

2. Many women have been born with beauty but none has ever been born with glamor, which is an acquired quality.

3. To be a candidate for Hollywood glamor, one should have one distinctive feature, such as Ann Sheridan's red hair, Dietrich's legs, Olivia De Havilland's eyes, Lana Turner's bosom.

4. One shouldn't be too much the perfect lady, but able to have a good time. A lust for living will show in the pictures. Even if her reputation suffers at first, the playgirl—and by this is meant enthusiasm for something, not loose morals—will get farther than her more sedate sisters.

5. One should come to Hollywood with as little to unlearn as possible. Many a candidate has stubbed her toes because she knows too much—or thinks she does. Lamour's elevator job and Drew's soda counter aren't bad backgrounds.

6. One should come from a large family, if Providence has been kind enough to arrange it. The edges will be rubbed off a girl's ego before she gets to Hollywood if she has enough brothers and sisters.

7. One must be willing to learn the things that Hollywood can teach—how to walk, how not to talk, how to dress (wisely but not too well), and how to get along with people.

A break, however, will be a great help. I put this question to one of Hollywood's ablest studio publicity men: "If you were a reasonably good-looking girl who wanted to get in the movies, and couldn't wait to do it the hard way, what stunt would you try?"

The publicist, who has been glamorizing babes for twenty years, took time out to think. Finally, thinking aloud and speaking slowly, he said:

"I believe I'd get into a low-cut gown and go to Ciro's alone and sit around and look mysterious . . . yes, sir, that's what I'd do. I'd almost guarantee you that inside of a week, maybe in a couple of nights, everybody would be talking about you and some agent or scout would tap you . . . by golly, that's a good idea. I think I'll try it with somebody just for the hell of it."

I'll let you know what happens when he does.

How's Your Pronunciation?

● Many of us take pride in the belief that we pronounce correctly the words that we employ in everyday speech. Yet often we may be wrong without knowing it, for our friends and acquaintances are reluctant to put us right. Here are ten common words frequently mispronounced. Try them yourself and then turn to page nine and ascertain how many of them you have spoken correctly.

1—Hosier
2—Imago
3—Impugn
4—Issue
5—Kilometer
6—Labyrinthine
7—Matinee
8—Mayonnaise
9—Melee
10—Militia

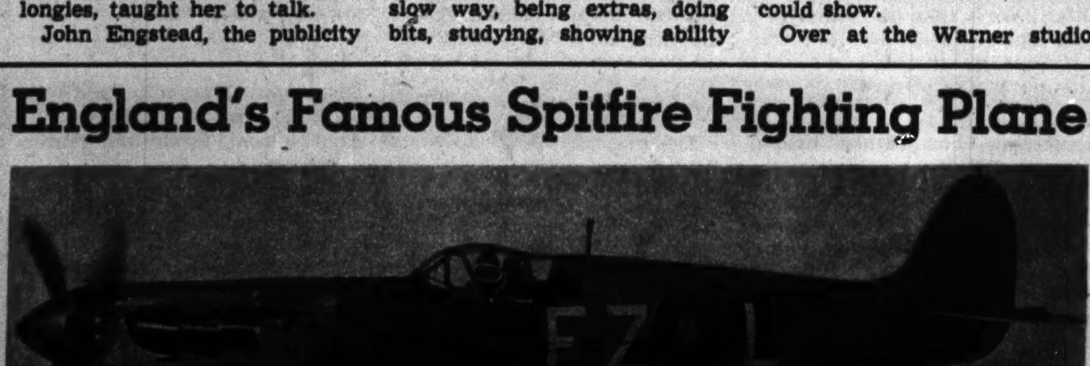
England's Famous Spitfire Fighting Plane



On page one of the Graphic Section of Sept. 1, a picture of a British Hawker Henley two place fighting plane was erroneously identified as a Supermarine Spitfire. Somewhat similar in appearance to the Henley, the Spitfire, illustrated above, is a single seater, said to be England's fastest fighting plane. (Acme photo.)

Why sneeze?—Try New "Anti-Sneeze" Rinso

98% free of the "soap-dust" that causes sneezing

There's up to a quarter pound of irritating "soap-dust" in many other widely used package soaps

What 98% free of "soap-dust" means to YOU!

It means no cloud of "soap-dust" to make you sneeze....It means you won't be bothered by those messy scum-forming lumps of "soap-dust" in the wash-water....It means longer-lasting suds....It helps prevent "washday hay-fever".

New Rinso goes so much farther than the old it's like getting free soap every 5th washday

● It's the marvelous "suds-booster" in the New "Anti-Sneeze" Rinso that makes it give richer, longer-lasting suds—in double-quick time. In tub washing, Rinso's active suds SOAK clothes up to 10 shades whiter often in as little as 10 minutes. Yet Rinso is safe for overnight soaking of your finest cottons—linens, white or colors.

The New "Anti-Sneeze" Rinso is officially recommended by the makers of 33 leading washers. Marvelous for dishes and all cleaning. Grease loosens quickly. Silver and glassware come sparkling clean. Economical, too! Rinso costs less than 1¢ a day for dishwashing! And the New Rinso is so easy on hands. Try it today!

"ODE TO CHICAGO"

Chicago's skyline as it appeared after the fire of 1871.

Chicago's skyline today, looking south, with Tribune Tower in the foreground.

THIS POETIC DRAMA OF THE LIFE OF A GREAT CITY WAS PRESENTED LAST THURSDAY NIGHT OVER W-G-N AND THE MUTUAL NETWORK. CONCEIVED AND DIRECTED BY WILLIAM A. BACHER. WRITERS: JOHN D. HESS, FRAN COUGHLIN. MUSICAL SCORE BY DAVID BROEKMAN.

Sing a song for Chicago;
Let its voice be the voices
Of prairie and people—
A song for Chicago,
A saga for chorus
Of heartache and splendor—
A song for Chicago!

NARRATOR:
Good evening, ladies and gentlemen.
Instead of bringing you a show, tonight
We're trying something very odd. Perhaps You'll like it more this way; the reason is
That you, the audience, will do the work.
Tonight you'll make the show. Yes, this is Just exactly what we've planned. Now, I could Start it off myself . . . I'll ask you all a Question. I'm interested in finding out
If any one here in the audience
Cares what makes a man a man—and nothing Else—an able bit of handiwork, quite Worth the self-admiring glance he often
Gives himself. (Loudly.) You, sir, yes? You have a Question first, it seems.
CRANK:
Not a question, no. I want to dispute your Attitude. You're very wrong, very wrong indeed.
A man's a little beast, a growth, a docile,
Parasitical blight on the face of God's green earth.
Any one knows that.
NARRATOR:
I don't agree. Audience!
CHORUS:
Don't agree! Don't agree! The man's all wrong!
NARRATOR:
With all respect that's due, we must be frank.
Our audience, I fear, considers you a crank.
CHORUS:
A crank! A crank! That's what he is!
CRANK:
I stand upon my rights, sir! A man's a cheat, I say;
A small and sweating oaf, a blundering, crawling,
Cowardly thing; confused and stuffy, too!
CHORUS:
Cut it out! Enough! Enough!
CRANK:
Take this very city as a sample!
Use Chicago as our first example!
CHORUS:
What about it? What about Chicago?
NARRATOR:
I warn you, sir—this audience tonight
Is part of the city Chicago. They Often chafe when such as you pass comment
On their city. Just by way of warning, sir.
CRANK:
I only said, and say it still, that
A dirty, grimy, ponderous thing—a man—
Can hardly be called a beautiful work . . .
Which was your original premise, was it not?
I further pointed out this city as
A sample—a horrible example, if you will.
NARRATOR:
Take my advice; sit down, my man.
CRANK: I say Chicago is . . .
CHORUS: . . . dirty, yes!
CRANK: Chicago is . . .
CHORUS: . . . sweating, yes!
CRANK: Chicago is . . .
CHORUS: . . . confused, yes!
CRANK: You see they agree!
CHORUS:
Not true! Not true! We don't agree!
Sing a song for Chicago;
Let its voice be the voices
Of prairie and people—
A song for Chicago,
A saga and chorus
Of heartache and splendor—
A song for Chicago!

NARRATOR:
They say you're wrong. They say the dirt,
The sweat, confusion, is part of
The glory . . .
CHORUS: (Begins heavy bass chant of "I will, I will!")
CRANK: . . . Glory, my eye!
NARRATOR:
. . . because they indicate something else; they form
A base for something finer. Do you get me?
CRANK:
I do not. And I can hardly understand you.
What the devil's all that racket? Make them stop!
NARRATOR:
That's the beat of the blood of Chicago!
That's the rhythm and pound of Chicago!
CRANK:
It's positively primitive. Have them stop, I say!
NARRATOR:
We're showing you, as best we're able,
What Chicago's all about. The sweat,
Confusion, grime you mentioned
When you first spoke out. Be still
For just a moment, sir. We have a
Set of scenes we'd like to show you . . . please.
(Indian drums sound.)
The year 1812—Chicago's begun
With a shovel, an ax, a pioneer gun——
CRANK:
What is this place?

(Chicago Historical Society photo.)
Fort Dearborn, from an old print.

NARRATOR:
A fort. The sluggish river is the Che-ga-gou. Wild Onion river is its English name.
CRANK:
But who are these? And this strange music——
NARRATOR:
—is the Dead March! These are men about to die. You see that man, the blackened face, the buckskin . . . Captain Wells. There, Capt. Nathan Heald. The soldiers, buff and blue . . . the raw militia in their hunting shirts . . . the wild Miami scouts in eagle plumes . . . sharp in the August sunshine every face, carved as a cameo in the clear lake air . . . all on a hopeless mission. (Women's and children's voices in babble.)
CRANK:
Women and children, too?
NARRATOR:
Women and chilaren and the old and ill . . .
CRANK:
Why don't we stop them?
NARRATOR:
They can't stop . . . this is the way it had to be.
CRANK:
Do they know?
NARRATOR:
The soldiers know that dying is their trade. These others know that in the wilderness death is a trade that all alike work at.
CRANK:
But it's cruel!
NARRATOR:
This is a wavelet in a rising flood, the flood of empire. And the wavelet ebbs . . . the flood is still to come.
CRANK:
May I stop them—may I ask a question?
NARRATOR:
Ask that man—John Kinzie, there.
CRANK:
Look, sir, if the Indians destroy you here, what then?
KINZIE:
I reckon then some other men will have to sweat and build it up all over again.
CRANK:
O . . . in the sand dunes . . . must I, must I watch?
NARRATOR:
There is no need to look. Remember only, this I have endured; my city has endured; my people have endured. Old John Kinzie rode out from that fort. Years later old John Kinzie said:
KINZIE:
A whole wagonload of children was tomahawked, and some of the women were carried off by the chiefs. And some of the men were tortured to death.
SINGERS:
These rest at last by lake dune and by prairie,
Who braved the flutter of the eagle plume;
These found the wilderness a bitter berry,
These staked their claim upon a sandy tomb.
The city musters shining towers around them
Who knew the naked sky line of the west;
Long, long ago the prairie wolves found them;
These came and died and conquered—let them rest!
NARRATOR:
This is page one—Chicago's begun
With a shovel, an ax, a pioneer gun!
(Very low rumble of presses.)
CRANK:
Enough—enough of that where are we now?
NARRATOR:
Back in the studio.
CRANK:
What's that rumbling noise I hear?
NARRATOR:
You'll know that later.
CRANK:
I'd like to know now.
NARRATOR:
Remember, I said a series of scenes. If we're to Really convince you, you have much more to see.
CRANK:
I know—but please don't feed me dates. It makes
No difference to me that there were less
Than a hundred Chicago souls in eighteen
Hundred thirty—and thirty thousand
Or more exactly twenty years later.
NARRATOR:
For a man who doesn't care, sir—you've
Remembered that mighty well.
CRANK:
Yes, I know my history. Those
Earliest pioneers did much for us.
But since then, what's been done?
NARRATOR:
If you'll bet quiet, sir, we'll show
These scenes in order.
CRANK:
I only thought you'd rather not flaunt the Unholy collection of all the world's bums
Chicago brought in during those great—ahh—
Expansion years. I think it's better you
Don't cite the million squatty, dumpy,
Rotten wooden shacks you spread along the Shore of the beautiful Lake Michigan.
NARRATOR:
You seem to
Know a lot, but I wonder if you ever heard
Of old Joe Medill or John Stephen Wright—
Who told the world the name Chicago in big Newsprint. And have you had an inkling of Our George M. Pullman, or old Cy McCormick
Or older Mayor Ogden? They were a few
Of the boys who wore the big gold watchchains
In the 40's and the 50's or so.
They built the city out of the mud, these Men I mention; and others, too. Does the Audience recall some other pioneers?
CHORUS:
Other pioneers! Hundreds! Thousands!
VOICE 1: A swarm of Germans!
VOICE 2: A batch of Swedes!
VOICE 3. A slew of Irish! Poles!
CHORUS:
Of third, second, first, or no generation back.
Hundreds! Thousands! And more!
Lots more!
Sing a song for Chicago!
SOLO:
Pull your stakes and saddle up
And tote along your possibles,
Farewell to sweet New England gals
And sour New England gospels—
Buckskin pants and beaver hat
Virginia spurs, and gambler's vest; They're on the move, the trail is free
And freer still the fertile west:
CHORUS:
She's rowdy, rough and ready, boys
She's easy come and easy go
Root hog or die, the stakes are high; We'll take our stand in old Che-ga-go!
SOLO:
Mark Beaubien calls the fiddler's tune
Then step high, wide and fancy-O,
Her streets are nigh nine feet of mud
And life is cheap and chancy-O;
Choose your partners, shake a leg
Forget the past, the town is new
Here's a hole for every peg
And here's a hearty how-de-do:
CHORUS:
She's rowdy, rough and ready, boys,
She's easy come and easy go
Root hog or die, the stakes are high; We'll take our stand in old Che-ga-go!
SOLO:
Choose the name that suits ye best
Make a wish where dreams come true;
The question ain't who have ye been
The question is what can ye do?
A-horse, a-foot, by lake or land
We'll number nigh ten thousand soon;
Let every feller lend a hand,
And every feller mind the tune!
CHORUS:
She's rowdy, rough and ready, boys,
She's easy come and easy go
Root hog or die, the stakes are high; We'll take our stand in old Che-ga-go!
NARRATOR:
How did you like that?
CRANK:
Picturesque—but rather overdrawn, I'd say.
NARRATOR:
Only overdrawn? You're losing your punch.
Here's what an English tourist said about us . . .
VOICE:
The population here consists of sharpers of every degree, peddlers, grog-sellers, horse-dealers, horse-stealers . . . rogues of every description, white, black, brown and red . . . half breeds, quarter breeds and men of no breed at all. The little village is in uproar from morning to night, from night to morning. Really, the whites seem to me more pagan than the red men.
NARRATOR:
He didn't like us. We were more citified after the railroad came. Lent us a tone. But let's go on. (Chorus: "The south said yes. . . ." "The north said no. . . ." "The south said yes. . . ." "The north said no. . . .")
CRANK:
What is that noise? It sounds like a parade. . . .
NARRATOR:
I told you, sir, that things were just begun . . .
I'd like to show you Chicago streets in 1861.
CRANK:
The Civil war—and if I'm not mistaken
Your city profiteered and boomed
In most unscrupulous fashion.
VOICE 1:
Why did you come here, John Brown?
BROWN:
I came to free the slaves.
VOICE 2:
You're fanatical and mad!
BROWN:
Is it sane to keep five million men in slavery? Is it sane to think such a system can last? Is it sane to suppress all who would speak against this system, and to murder all who would interfere with it?
VOICE 3:
You have heard the sentence pronounced upon you. Have you anything to say, John Brown?
BROWN:
If it be deemed necessary that I should forfeit my life for the furtherance of the ends of justice, and mingle my blood further with the blood of my children, and with the blood of millions in this slave country whose rights are disregarded by wicked, cruel and unjust enactments, I say let it be done!
LINCOLN:
Old John Brown thought slavery was wrong, as we do; he attacked slavery contrary to law and it availed him nothing before the law, that he thought he was right. He has just been hanged for treason against the State of Virginia, and we cannot object altho he agreed with us in calling slavery wrong. Now, if you undertake to destroy the union contrary to law; if you commit treason against the United States our duty will be to deal with you as John Brown has been dealt with. We shall try to do our duty.
CRANK:
Who was that? That last speaker?
NARRATOR:
A Springfield lawyer. Nominated here in Chicago. He went on to Washington. That was Abra'm Lincoln.
CRANK:
Well, Lincoln—he meant something. But that other stuff—that music, "John Brown's Body—one grasshopper jumped upon another grasshopper's back"—The Civil war and all that—I understand all that.
NARRATOR:
Do you?
CRANK:
Why yes, I mean . . . I . . .
NARRATOR:
You understand this music, the most moving and most terrible of all the songs of war? Can you see with the mind's eye, and feel with the heart's pain what my city and my people saw and felt and suffered those four years?
CRANK:
Well, I . . . yes . . . I think . . .
NARRATOR:
You think this is some tinsel tune to be laughed at and patronized and parodied because any fool can improvise a line? Have you heard the heart-cry of my people, part sob, part shout—part hope and part despair, as Father Abraham called, "Seventy-five thousand . . . three hundred thousand . . . six hundred thousand volunteers?" These voices are the voices of the West. Lincoln and Grant and Logan led these men. These were a sabre in Phil Sheridan's hand. A mighty torch in Sherman's March to the Sea. You understand, you say. Then mark this well: If once again the cause of slavery finds new champions and new conquerors for a world too cowed and dull and feeble to resist; if once again men listen to the glib apologist for evil, pointing out how safe their slavery is—how splendid is their leader's might and motive; and then deride the human hopes and destinies of men who, asking freedom first, shall dare aspire to life and liberty and happiness . . . Against that cause I give you this old song. Against all slavery this shall be your shield:
In the beauty of the lilies,
Christ was born across the sea
And the glory of his bosom;
it transfigures you and me,
As he died to make men holy;
let us die to make men free.
His truth goes marching on.
CHORUS:
Glory, Glory, Hallelujah,
Glory, Glory, Hallelujah,
Glory, Glory, Hallelujah!

The O'Leary cottage. It survived the fire but has since been torn down.

NARRATOR: Well, do you begin to understand it now?
CRANK:
I think I do. I'm sorry if I hurt your feelings. Say—there's that noise again—the one we heard before. What the dickens is it?
NARRATOR:
I'm afraid you'll have to wait. First, look at our city in eighteen hundred and sixty eight
CHORUS:
How do you like us now?
CRANK:
I hope you'll pardon my attitude,
But to be quite frank, I still say Chicago's boisterous, overgrown, and crude.
That was all very well for the pioneers,
But man, you've been growing for years and years!
CHORUS:
Did it ever occur to you that not all pioneers wore moccasins and coonskin caps?
NARRATOR:
I want to mention some of those . . .
There were Marshall Field and P. D. Armour
And Nelson Morris and Potter Palmer
And Carter Harrison—to start things off.
CHORUS:
And workers and draughtsmen and all the men
Who lived in Chicago and built for it then.
Do you see what we mean by a pioneer?
A man with some flesh beneath the veneer.
A worker, a maker, a man who builds;
A man who carves before he gilds.
A man who loves newness and power and growth
And lives with a colorful, violent oath.
CRANK:
I'm afraid that I failed, in my studies
Of you, to notice the vigor and charm you possess . . .
But now perhaps you'll explain where
We are, and who's that singing.
NARRATOR:
The year is eighteen seventy-one, and I've arranged
For you to look into a barn at Five-fifty-eight De Koven street.
Let's open the door.
SONG:
Oh, the poor little fellow
His legs they were yellow.
He was plump, black and heavy
And brisk as a snake—
Till some bloody savage
Went out on a ravage.
And murdered Nell Flaherty's duck-loving drake . . .
CRANK:
Well, frankly I don't know why you brought me here.
All I see is a barn, a cow, and a fellow singing.
NARRATOR:
Ask him what he's doing here.
CRANK:
Oh, you over there, what's your trade?
MAN:
You're an odd looking gent to be askin' questions. I'll have you know that right across the path is the house of the Widow O'Leary, whose hired man I am, whose smelly barn this is, whose stubborn cow I'm doing my best to milk—
CRANK:
O'Leary did you say? Watch out for that lantern, my man—
I know its importance. I wish you'd be more careful.
MAN:
I'll thank you to mind your business, sir. And close the door for a bad wind's blowing.
CRANK:
I advise more care in handling that cow. I know what's about to happen, sir. Please be a bit more careful.
MAN:
Stand still, y' crazy beast, stand still!
Y' clumsy, overfed, ill-mannered beast.
Y' broke my lantern, y' did.
CRANK:
And set afire all that hay.
MAN:
Well, don't be such a stick. Run and fetch me
A pail of water or something else to stop this.
Ohhh Good Lord—the whole barn's afire. Out of my way!
CHORUS:
A howling wind; a tinder city;
Flame and panic; brains are giddy.
Shingle, pine and tar, and oak,
These are food for flame and smoke.
Shifting winds, and now the South
Falls into the fire's mouth.
Now head north and now the loop
Crumbles in the fire's swoop.
Beat with frantic, futile hands
At the embers and the brands.
Wells, La Salle, and Clark, and State
Are astride before its gait.
Gangway as the engines run;
Kill the looters with a gun.
Ring the frightened courthouse bell;
Now the whole downtown is hell.
Shot as from a flaming quiver,
Now the sparks have leaped the river.
Leaped the river; there it goes!
Jumped the river; burned the hose!
Run, run, run, run! Gasping, choking, panting, take—
Shelter by the lurid lake.
Burned the men . . .
Burned the buildings . . .
Burned the men . . .
Lord, please save us!
Lord . . . amen.
No more flames; no more crashes;
All Chicago lies in ashes.
CRANK:
Horrible, horrible. That Chicago fire was a great calamity—
CHORUS:
It burned four miles of ground.

Song of Chicago

Music by ADOLF G. HOFFMANN

CRANK:
The most terrible thing I've ever seen.
CHORUS:
16 hundred stores burned down.
28 hotels—burned down.
All the virile, new Chicago—burned down, burned down.
CRANK:
Yes, I know. I sympathize. Too bad.
CHORUS:
A hundred thousand homeless.
Two hundred fifty dead . . .
CRANK:
How could they think? How could they plan? How could they hope to rebuild?
(Single hammer starts pounding.)
NARRATOR:
There's a man working. You might ask him.
CRANK:
My deepest sympathy, sir.
MAN:
Huh—what say?
CRANK:
I say, I'm terribly sorry for you in this calamity. I hope you'll accept my heart-felt condolences . . .
MAN:
Oh—condolences—yes, thanks.
CRANK:
Have you any idea of the new city's plan, the psychological impact of all this—the social repercussions.
MAN:
God Almighty, Mister, the fire was Sunday! All I know is on Tuesday the relief trains came. The railroads hauled 'em free. The rich men gave. The poor men worked. We all read Joe Medill's piece in the Tribune: "Looking upon the ashes of 30 years accumulation, the people of this once beautiful city have resolved CHICAGO SHALL RISE AGAIN."
CHORUS:
WOMEN:
Out of the ashes of '71
Arose the thoughts of many a one;
"Remember the way Chicago's begun—
A shovel, an ax, a pioneer gun."
CHORUS:
(ALL)
Build, build, build, build!
Sweat; build; sweat; build!
VOICE:
In the year 1880 there were in the City Chicago—five hundred Thousand inhabitants . . .
CRANK:
Whoa—wait a minute, wait a minute please!
Since you're doing all this building, why not Do it by some plan? Build for beauty; make
It spacious. Take your time. Go easy, men!
CHORUS:
Build! build! build! build!
NARRATOR:
If you aren't interested in lusty,
Husky, brawling building—please, sir, just step
Back a little, will you? Thank you.
VOICE:
In the year 1890 there were in the
City Chicago a million, two hundred
Thousand inhabitants.
CRANK:
Just a minute if you please . . .
What about those labor strikes?
What about the Pullman strike and Haymarket Riot? What about those, eh?
CHORUS:
Build and Sweat! Build and sweat! Can't be stopped!
The strong survive—the weak are dropped!
VOICE:
In the year 1920 there were in the
City Chicago two million, seven
Hundred thousand inhabitants.
CRANK:
I have another question, please.
Would you be good enough to stop your racket and Explain those years of crime and Crooked Government? What about Capone?
St. Valentine's Day Massacre?
And all the rest?
And what about the scandals down at City Hall?
CHORUS:
The most trains; the most wheat;
The most steel; the most meat;
The most this; the most that;
Here we're lean; there we're fat.
More, more, more Chicago Willed . . .
Step aside, step aside! Build, build, build!
VOICE:
In the year 1940 there are in the City Chicago three million, seven
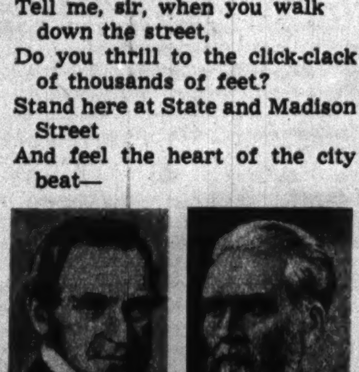
Hundred thousand inhabitants.
CHORUS:
Sweat and build, sweat and build! Build, build, build!
CRANK:
Stop, stop, stop! For God's sake stop! I know Chicago!
I could tell you more
Than all of you together!
CHORUS:
Tell us about the city. Tell us about Chicago.
CRANK:
Very well. The city has more than two hundred parks, seventy beaches, and
Twenty-five free public golf courses.
CHORUS:
No, no, no. Tell us about the City. Let us know Chicago.
CRANK:
There are in the city at least fifteen
Major libraries. One alone contains 2 million books. Does that data sound correct?
NARRATOR:
Your data sounds all right to me.
But that's not what the people see.
CHORUS:
How about it? How about it? What about Chicago?
CRANK:
I know, for instance, exactly how many dollars are spent per year in retail trade;
The figure is two billion, one hundred and twenty seven million, five hundred and twenty thousand dollars.
How many of you people know that?
CHORUS:
Who knows—who cares?
CRANK:
Chicago has a hundred and ten
Different hospitals—
CHORUS:
Yes, yes, yes—we know about it.
But shout the name Chicago. Shout it!
CRANK:
I don't know what you mean . . .
NARRATOR:
I believe, sir, you've missed the essential
Spirit of the City—
Tell me, sir, when you walk down the street,
Do you thrill to the click-clack of thousands of feet?
Stand here at State and Madison Street
And feel the heart of the city beat—



John Kinzie. Joseph Medill.

The motors, the brakes, the El on the tracks;
Rattles and whistles and rumbles and thwacks;
The stone and the tar and the steel all live,
Breathing the vigor the people give.
The banging and clanging and newsboys' call;
But all of a sudden
There's no sound at all.
But this is Chicago too.
And nobody knows where the noise all flew.
This is the quiet—the park perhaps—
It seems that the city cautiously naps.
This may be a side street; it may even be
Ten miles from the loop; the air here is free—
With forest preserves for miles around
Yet still is within Chicago's bound—
Or Michigan Avenue—Four a. m.—
As solemn and soft as a requiem.
CHORUS:
Noise again, noise again—come to the beach—
Millions of people—pleasure for each.
Hot, did you say? Well, jump in the lake.
Or lie on the sand let yourself bake!
But wait just a second. A breeze has begun.
Here comes the wind; there goes the sun.
(LAUGH). We like it, we do—this heat on Sunday.
Altho we might freeze or blow away Monday.
NARRATOR:
Monday? Monday? Did someone just say Monday?
Back to work—Back again. Got to get a move on.
SOLO:
Whoopee ti yi yo
Git along little dogies,
It's all your misfortune and none of my own;
Whoopee ti yi yo
Git along little dogies
Chicago's big stockyards will be your new home!
NARRATOR:
Back to the stockyard. Meat for the millions.
Slaughter-house workers kill by the billions.
Queasy in the stomach? Bothered by the smell?
Say. Skip it, brothers. What the hell.
CHORUS:
Back to the railroads. Heart of the nation
More railroads here than the rest of creation.
VOICE 1: Where y'headed, Mister?
VOICE 2: San Francisco.
VOICE 1: How about you?
VOICE 3: Bound for New Orleans, suh—
VOICE 1: And you?
VOICE 4: Up to Canada, Buddy.
VOICE 1: How about the other fellow?
VOICE 5: On my way to New York.
CHORUS:
All the country—Thru Chicago; railroad heart of the Nation!
NARRATOR:
Now to the airport, station for skyways.
America's center for great air-lane highways.
VOICE 1:
3½ hours to New York!
VOICE 2:
13 hours to Los Angeles!
VOICE 3:
8 hours to Miami! Detroit . . . Denver . . . Boston . . . Seattle!
CRANK:
Stop! Stop!
CHORUS:
Have you caught the spirit of Chicago! Shout it!
CRANK:
I will if you'll but tell me what you mean.
CHORUS:
Shout it! Shout it!
CRANK:
I've forgotten. What the devil is the thing.
CHORUS:
I will!
CRANK:
Yes! That's it—"I will"—
CHORUS:
Shout it louder, please!
CRANK:
I will! I will!
CHORUS:
Closer! That's more like it! Keep it up!
CRANK:
I will—I will—I will—
(Sound of printing presses.)
Listen—there's that sound again. Why is it that every time something happens that noise comes back? What is it?
NARRATOR:
I'll tell you what it is. Those are the pens of Time—recorders of the News—THE PRESS! Helping our city build; making our city great! Newspapers! THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE—recording the news for posterity!
CRANK: (LAST GASP)
I'm beginning to see what you mean.
But just one more question, please.
What sort of people live here? For instance
Who's that man across the street?
Does he yell "Fresh Fish" on Maxwell Street,
Or "Fifty Shares" on La Salle?
CHORUS:
Who cares. Who in the sight of God
Gives a shout! We haven't time to notice!
VOICE:
Say—didn't we have some work to do!
VOICE 2:
That little guy interrupted us—the
Guy with all the questions.
CRANK:
I was only trying to inquire . . .
CHORUS:
Never mind! Never mind! There isn't room
For you, just now. No room at all!
CRANK:
Dirt, Sweat—Confusion—I warn you, I tell
You once and for all; it's no good. No good!
CHORUS: (EXULTANT)
Out of the way! Out of the way! Watch out
For the power! Watch out for the force, the speed,
The lusty, brutal, cruel, gorgeous, great,
Dynamic pioneer of Cities! Get out of the way of CHICAGO!
NARRATOR:
Such is the saga Chicago. This is the City Chicago. Look down upon my city from the sky, my city of broad suburbs and green fields about her. Weigh the mass of my city counting the slotted streets mile after mile along the curving lake, mile after mile toward the greening west, mile after mile from south to north.
Come closer to my city. See the Boulevard a glorious rampart facing to the sun. Here are the parks fresh-jewelled in green and flowering patterns. Here are the homes of science, music, art. Here are the schools and universities. Here are the playgrounds of splendid race moulded in tolerance and liberty.

Light Rapid-Fire Weapons That Have Been Developed for Modern War

MODERN warfare has created a demand for weapons that possess the portability of the standard army rifle and a rate of rapid fire comparable with that of the machine gun. Consequently there have been developed arms that in varying degrees meet these requirements. They are of three general types: Submachine guns, which possess full automatic fire; machine pistols, also with full automatic fire; and semiautomatic rifles, that automatically eject the empty shell of the fired cartridge and reload the chamber, yet fire only one shot with each squeeze of the trigger.

Among the weapons of the first group are the well known Thompson submachine gun; the Johnson light machine gun, which in spite of its name is a shoulder type automatic rifle or submachine gun rather than a machine gun; and the Star submachine gun. The first two are of American design and construction, while the last-named is a Spanish product.

Included in the second group are the machine pistol developed for the German army's parachute troops and the Astra machine pistol, which is made in Spain.

The third group includes the Garand semiautomatic rifle, which has been adopted by the United States army, and the Johnson semiautomatic rifle, a weapon that has performed with merit under severe tests. These two are of American design and make.

The weapons of these three groups by no means complete the list of those designed to combine lightness with rapidity of fire. They are, however, representative of their groups and perhaps the best known arms of their respective classes.

Standard military rifles, all of which are of the bolt action repeating type, vary in weight from 8 pounds 5⅛ ounces to 10 pounds. The Mannlicher, the arm of Bulgaria, Hungary, and Greece, is of the first-named weight. The Schmidt-Rubin rifle of the Swiss army is of the second-named weight. In between these is the American army's Springfield, which weighs 8 pounds 8 ounces and is a half pound lighter than Germany's Mauser rifle.

The army musket of early days was comparatively heavy—weighing as much as 12 to 15 pounds—but the modern trend in military rifles, the successors of the musket, has been toward lightness. The present-day standard rifle, weighing 10 pounds or less, is easily portable. But the standard rifle, while having an advantage, generally speaking, of accuracy at long range—America's Springfield is sighted at from 200 to 2,850 yards and is a dangerous weapon in the hands of an expert marksman at 1,200 yards—is possessed of certain disadvantages. An excellent arm for long-range work, the standard military rifle is not the ideal arm for close-range fighting, mainly because of its comparatively slow rate of fire. For each shot fired with this weapon the soldier must draw back the bolt, push it forward, and pull the trigger. And after his magazine—usually holding about five shots—is empty he must refill or replace it.

An automatic or semiautomatic rifle or machine pistol, to be handled and carried by a soldier as an ordinary rifle or pistol, should not greatly exceed 10 pounds in weight—the maximum, as previously pointed out, of standard rifles. This limitation provides for portability and sets weapons of this general type apart from those that require mounts, such as the .30-caliber Browning automatic rifle, that weighs 20 pounds and is supported on a bipod, and all machine guns, whether on bipods, tripods, or wheeled carriages. The smallest of tripod-mounted machine guns weigh from 18 to 55 pounds each without their mounts and are far too heavy to be adapted for use as close-combat weapons.

The portable rapid-firing arm—rifle, pistol, or submachine gun—is the answer to the need of increased fire power. Tho a great deal of work has been done over a number of years and in various countries in trying to produce a reliable firearm of this sort, it has been only in fairly recent times that armies have adopted this type of weapon, and only in the present European war that it has proved its effectiveness beyond all question of doubt. America for more than 30 years has had semiautomatic rifles for sporting use, Germany in the World war constructed and experimented with the Mondragon semiautomatic rifle, which originated in Mexico, and various other similar weapons have been brought forward for tests, but the fact remains that it has been Germany's lightning war that has put emphasis on the rapid-fire small arm. To meet the threat of Nazi parachutists armed with semiautomatic rifles or machine pistols, the British are arming their soldiers as rapidly as possible with weapons of like effectiveness.

Popular with the British is the Thompson submachine gun, a product of America. This is the weapon that commonly is called a "Tommy gun." It is the arm of the high-powered gangster, the police squad, the bank guard, and the Latin American revolutionist, and the auxiliary arm of America's mechanized cavalry. So impressed by it are the British that they now call all sorts of quick-firing small arms Tommy guns.

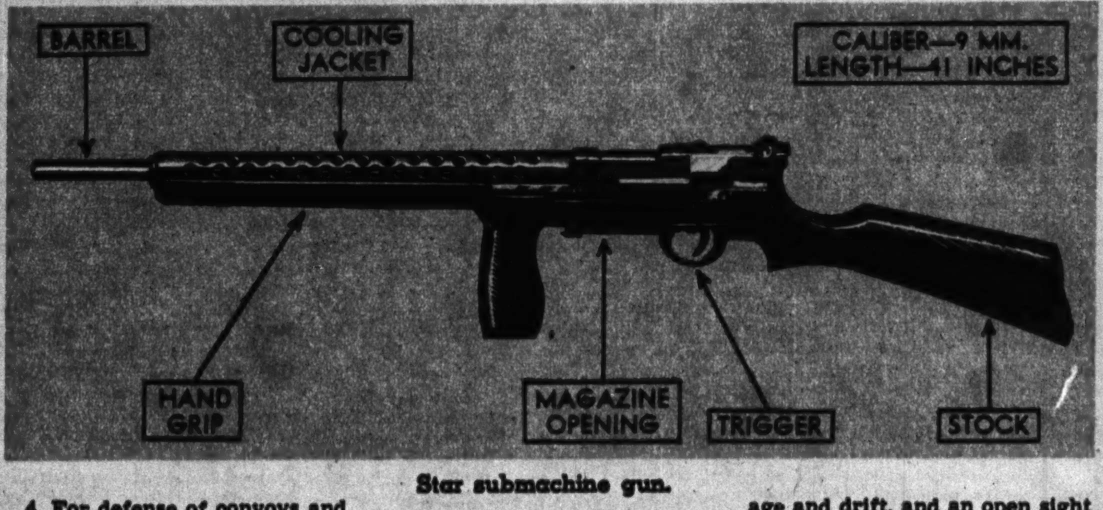
The Auto-Ordnance corporation of New York City, manufacturers of the Thompson submachine gun, enumerates as follows 15 different situations in which its weapon can be effective in warfare:

1. For use of troops carried to advance positions by transport planes, or other means, for the occupation of strategic points. This would embrace parachute troops.

2. For outposts and strong points, and for combat and other patrols and isolated groups of every nature.

3. For advance, rear, and flank guards.



Star submachine gun.

4. For defense of convoys and pack trains.

5. For all night combat work of any nature whatever.

6. For occupation of cities and towns and general street fighting.

7. For use against airplanes engaged in machine-gunning and bombing troop columns.

8. For ignition of woods, grass, and other enemy cover. In this type of work the incendiary tracer bullet is used.

9. For raids of all sorts, close combat in cover, and flank attacks on machine gun positions.

10. For use in tanks and armored cars, in addition to regular armament.

11. For general cavalry use, and in particular when advantage is taken of great mobility to occupy and hold advance positions.

12. For airplane pilot defense. When a pilot is forced to make a landing in hostile territory he can defend himself with this weapon long enough to give him time to set fire to his plane before he is captured.

13. For the augmentation of the fire power of all troops who normally carry only the pistol.

14. For the armament of engineers, signal troops, and other special troops.

15. For every purpose where a maximum fire power at short ranges, or even at mid ranges, is required from a minimum number of men.

Other submachine guns may be used in the same manner as the Thompson gun. So also may machine pistols and semiautomatic rifles, but in a somewhat restricted measure, since the first-named may be limited in magazine capacity and the last-named in rapidity of fire. The semiautomatic rifle has been designed actually as the standard arm of infantry and not merely as an auxiliary arm. The machine pistol, which delivers full automatic fire, should not be confused with the Colt pistol, the side arm of the American army, which, altho it is called an automatic, actually is only a semautomatic weapon, firing one shot with each squeeze of the trigger.

The Thompson submachine gun uses the same cartridge as the Colt service pistol, caliber .45, with a 230-grain bullet and a powder charge weighing 5 grains. The muzzle velocity of the bullet is 870 feet a second. It strikes with a terrific wallop because of its relatively great weight, and it penetrates six ¾-inch pine boards at 100 yards. The extreme accurate range claimed for this weapon by the manufacturers is 600 yards.

Two types of magazines are made for the Thompson gun—the box type, which holds 20 cartridges, and the drum type, which has a 50-cartridge capacity. Both types feed cartridges into the breech mechanism by spring pressure, it being necessary to wind the spring of the drum magazine by means of a key in order to make it function properly. The weapon may be set to fire semiautomatically—one shot for each squeeze of the trigger—and by this method as many as 100 aimed shots can be fired in a minute. In full automatic fire 300 shots can be fired in a minute. If it were not for the time required to change magazines as many as 700 to 725 shots could be fired in a minute.

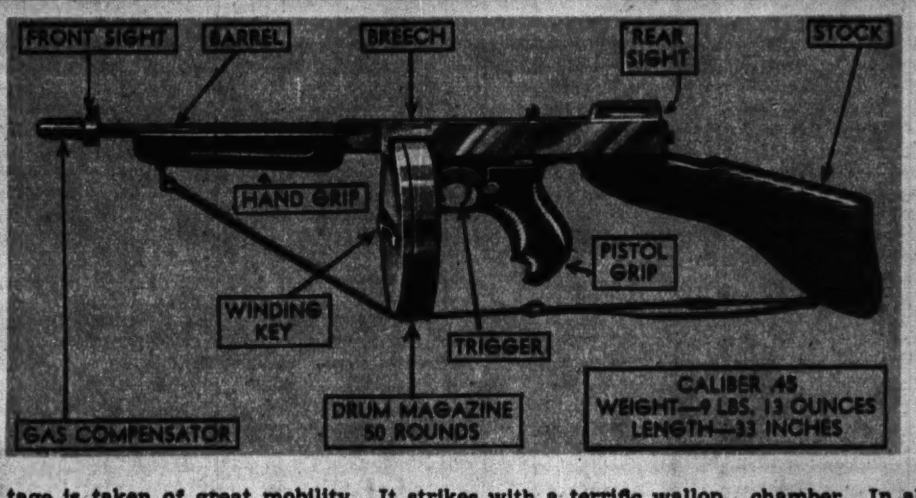
The gun complete, but without a magazine, weighs 9 pounds 13 ounces. It is 33 inches long. Its sighting equipment consists of a fixed post front sight, a rear sight graduated up to 600 yards and adjustable for windage and drift, and an open sight for point-blank (50-yard) use. The weapon may be provided with a compensator, a device attached to the muzzle, which decreases the tendency of the muzzle to rise in automatic fire and makes for greater accuracy in semiautomatic fire. The compensator is so constructed that the powder gases on coming to the muzzle are coned to higher pressures, which are thrown out the orifices in the device in an upward direction, pressing the muzzle downward and tending to overcome its natural pressure upward in rapid fire.



At left: Thompson submachine gun.

The Thompson gun is operated by the recoil of the explosion, which ejects the empty shell, making it possible for the magazine spring to throw a fresh cartridge into the chamber. In all there are only 38 parts to this weapon, five of which are moving parts.

Similar in some respects to the Thompson gun but different in others is the Johnson light machine gun, made by Johnson Automatics, Inc., of Boston, Mass. This, as has been mentioned, might more accurately be described as an automatic rifle. It really is an automatic rifle because of its full automatic fire, its method of firing from the shoulder, and its easy portability. Arms experts often refer to small arms with full automatic fire as self-firing and to weapons with semiautomatic fire as self-loading.

The Johnson light machine gun, which has been developed over a period of six or seven months and now is ready for production, is 40 inches long when equipped with a standard barrel or 38 inches long when equipped with a carbine barrel. It weighs 12½ pounds and thus is easily portable, since it is not very much heavier than the standard army rifle. Its manufacturers assert that it is the lightest weapon of its particular type. Mainly, perhaps, because it fires a much different cartridge than the Thompson gun, they do not put it in the same particular class as the other.

It is equipped with a 20-shot box magazine, but can take magazines of optional sizes holding 10, 15, 25, or 30 rounds. The magazine projects horizontally on the left side of the weapon and in this position is less in the way than it would be in any other. The gun may be reloaded either by changing fully loaded magazines on the left side or by loading single cartridges or cartridges in clips into the right side of the gun. This dual method of loading is of advantage when it is desired to deliver a prolonged, intensive fire. An assistant to the gunner, lying on the left side of the weapon, can remove the empty magazines and feed in loaded ones as rapidly as the magazines are emptied. By this method of firing approximately 250 rounds can be fired in a minute. The rate of fire, not taking into consideration the time required to change magazines, is from 400 to 800 shots a minute. The Johnson light machine gun, like the Thompson gun, may be fired one shot to each squeeze of the trigger by merely turning a control switch located on the arm. If the gunner is alone with the weapon he may at his election either conduct his fire by changing the loaded magazines in the manner previously described, or he may reload the magazine while it still is in the gun by inserting cartridges thru the loading port on the right-hand side. It is possible to add more cartridges to a partly empty magazine without removing the magazine from the weapon or without first entirely emptying the magazine.

The weapon handles the regular .30-caliber United States army ammunition, either of the M1 type or the newly adopted M2 type. It also is made in the .303-caliber (British), the 7.92-mm., and the 6.5-mm. With the M1 ammunition it has an extreme range of 5,500 yards (3.12 miles). Its manufacturers claim for it accuracy comparable with that of the standard army rifle—that it is a deadly weapon in the hands of an expert at a range of 1,200 yards. They further claim that it is effective in barrage fire at 4,500 yards. The bullet of 172 grains, propelled by a 50-grain charge of explosive, has a muzzle velocity of 2,700 feet a second. With the M2 ammunition, which has a 150-grain bullet and generates 38,000 pounds of gas pressure to the square inch, as compared with the M1's pressure of 45,000 pounds, the Johnson machine gun functions equally well, according to its makers.

The Johnson weapon can be taken down rapidly into its 11 separate basic parts. Barrels are quickly interchangeable. The weapon is air-cooled thru a ventilated cover around the barrel. It has a folding leaf rear peep sight and a post front sight. It operates on the recoil caused by the cartridge discharge.

Somewhat similar in its general specifications and operation to the Thompson and the Johnson weapons is the Star submachine gun, made by Bonifacio Echevarria of Elbar, Spain. Ordinarily Spanish weapons are inferior imitations of those made in other countries, but the arms made by this particular manufacturer are said to be notable exceptions, in that they are well made and sometimes embrace original principles of operation. The Star submachine gun is manufactured in two calibers, 9-mm. and the equivalent of the .45. The cartridges are fed into the breech of the gun from a box type magazine. In the 9-mm. the magazines are supplied in two sizes, one of 16-shot capacity and the other of 32-shot capacity. The .45-caliber weapon also is provided with two different sized magazines, one holding 13 rounds and the other 25. The gun is 41 inches long, equipped with full rifle stock or with detachable stock and a pistol grip, and is air cooled by means of a ventilated hand guard that covers the barrel. The mechanism of the Star machine gun is said to be identical with that of the Colt service pistol of the American army, except that it is made to deliver full automatic fire instead of merely semiautomatic fire.

More easily handled in most cases than submachine guns, because of their lighter weights and shorter lengths, are the machine pistols, which can be set to deliver full automatic fire. Among the first of these was the Mauser pistol, a German product which was placed on the market a number of years ago. This weapon, made in both 9-mm. and 7.63-mm. bores, handled magazines of 10 and 20 shot capacity. A hollow wooden holster could be attached to the hand grip of the weapon to form a stock, thus converting the pistol into a carbine. The arm was made to provide full automatic fire, and a number of them were sold in this country before a federal regulation prohibited their distribution here. After that all of the pistols of this type sent to this country were designed to give only semiautomatic fire, such as that of the so-called automatic pistol made now in the United States.

The German machine pistol of the present war is a development of the aforedescribed Mauser, altho its bullet is heavier and slower, if the extreme ranges ascribed to it are true. The pistol, according to British sources of information, has an effective range of 200 yards and is used most frequently in close combat at ranges under 75 yards. It is one of the arms of the German parachute troops—the most effective of their arms. Its low-velocity, heavy bullet—if we accept the British data as to its effective range—must have great shocking power, as has the bullet of the Thompson submachine gun.

The German machine pistol takes a box magazine which holds 30 cartridges. Each parachutist armed with one of these weapons carries six magazines, or a total of 180 rounds. The pistol is supplied with an extensible stock which when folded out makes the weapon into a carbine.

The Astra machine pistol, made by Bonifacio Echevarria of Spain, is equipped with a detachable stock by means of which it can be converted into a carbine for firing from the shoulder. It is about 30 inches long, counting the stock, and handles 9-mm. cartridges by means of a box magazine which is inserted into the hand grip in the manner of an American automatic pistol.

Not so effective for close combat as the aforedescribed weapons, because of their slower rate of fire, are the semiautomatic rifles, such as the Garand and the Johnson, the last-named made by the same company that makes the Johnson light machine gun.

Both the Garand, the weapon adopted by the United States army, and the Johnson handle regulation service ammunition of .30 caliber in either the M1 or the M2 type, altho the Garand is said to function better with the M2 than the M1, because of its lower gas pressure. The Garand, without sling and bayonet, weighs 8.94 pounds, as compared with a weight of 9½ pounds for the Johnson. The first-named is 43 inches long, the second 45⅝ inches long.

The Garand uses a box type magazine with a capacity of 8 rounds, while the Johnson uses a rotary type magazine with a capacity of 10 rounds. The Garand operates on gas pressure generated within the barrel, but the Johnson operates on recoil, as does the Johnson light machine gun. There is great similarity in the parts of the Johnson semiautomatic rifle and the Johnson light machine gun, which is said by their manufacturers to simplify production problems. The Johnson semiautomatic can be taken apart even more easily than can its companion weapon, the light machine gun. A barrel can be replaced in the semiautomatic within a few seconds, and the only tool required to take this weapon down is the nose of a bullet, inserted in a hole provided for the purpose.

The Johnson's barrel, which recoils with the breech, is protected by a ventilated metal hand guard or sheath, which allows for quick cooling. The Garand barrel is covered with a wooden hand protector.

Since these weapons belong to the self-loading group and fire only one shot for each squeeze of the trigger, their rate of fire is considerably slower than that of full automatic weapons. But, on the other hand, they can fire much faster than the standard hand-loaded army rifle. In tests made in the presence of the writer both the Johnson and the Garand delivered 100 unaimed shots each in 2 minutes and 40 some odd seconds. There was only a difference of a second or two in the time required for each to fire 100 shots. A fast rate of fire for these weapons is considered to be 40 shots a minute.

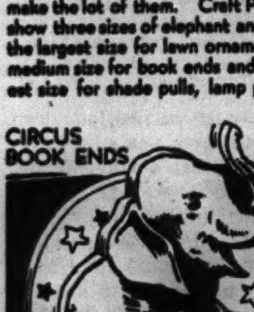
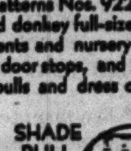
Craft Patterns Nos. 922 and 923 show three sizes of elephant and donkey full-size patterns, the largest size for lawn ornaments and nursery toys, the medium size for book ends and door stops, and the smallest size for shade pulls, lamp pulls and dress ornaments.





● Craft Pattern No. 922 shows the elephants. Craft Pattern No. 923 shows the donkeys. There are right and left patterns of the two smaller sizes. Glue these patterns upon opposite sides of a board—a box end will do—saw out along the printed outlines and smooth and paint the sawed edges. Since the patterns are printed in two tones they require no other painting. Such quick work you probably never have experienced. Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

Breeds That Help the Hunter

COMPANION or pet dogs go into fall with little or no change in their way of living. But for the breeds that help sportsmen find and retrieve game autumn is one of the busiest seasons of the year.

Trainers who teach the fine points of hunting to setters and pointers, retrievers and spaniels, have been conducting "schools" all summer long. Every day the gun dogs are taken into the fields or marshes to practice their routine. In these training schools (always interesting to watch) you can see young setters and pointers pointing live game and being steadied to the boom of a gun and the flush of a bird. The marsh dogs (retrievers), so popular with waterfowl hunters, also have been going to school day after day during the warm months. Now, with autumn at hand, these canine scholars are about to graduate to what the trainers call the real thing—actual hunting with a new owner.

Fall also is the season for field trials—those open-air tests of a hunting dog's ability. These thrilling events, which call into action some of the speediest and brainiest bird finders of the dog world, put another big spotlight on the gun dogs and attract thousands of sportsmen.

So autumn belongs quite properly to some of the best looking and most popular breeds known today, breeds that not only can help the army of 7,000,000 hunters in the United States but also are ideal companion dogs. The setters and pointers (English setter, Irish setter, pointer, and short-haired pointer) are going to romp where the quail, pheasants, grouse, and Hungarian partridges are found. In the marshes will be the powerful Chesapeake Bay and Labrador retrievers, golden retrievers, Irish water spaniels, and American water spaniel. Altho there are other retriever breeds which enjoy working with the waterfowl and upland game hunters, these are the most popular in America today. They get their heaviest workouts in the duck marshes.

The springer spaniel, quite properly called the "all-arounder," is another breed that soon will move into the hunting country along with its close relative, the merry little cocker spaniel. The springer is doing a splendid job for sportsmen in pheasant hunting. Because they like the water, they're also taken into marshes for some duck retrieving.

Dog fanciers who want a cheerful, even-tempered companion and shooting dog do not find it easy to make a choice among these breeds. Our mail brings proof of this statement. The exception is the quail hunter. He needs a pointing dog, so he turns to the setters and pointers. But there are several breeds that can satisfy the waterfowl and pheasant shooter, and not infrequently a sportsman is puzzled about a choice. When a selection is made among this group (Chesapeake, Labrador, golden, water spaniel and others) the sportsman should ask himself these questions: Will my dog be called upon to do 70 to 90 per cent of his work in a marsh on ducks, or will he be used mostly for upland game hunting? Another question is: Do we have the room for a big dog, or will a medium-sized breed be more practical?

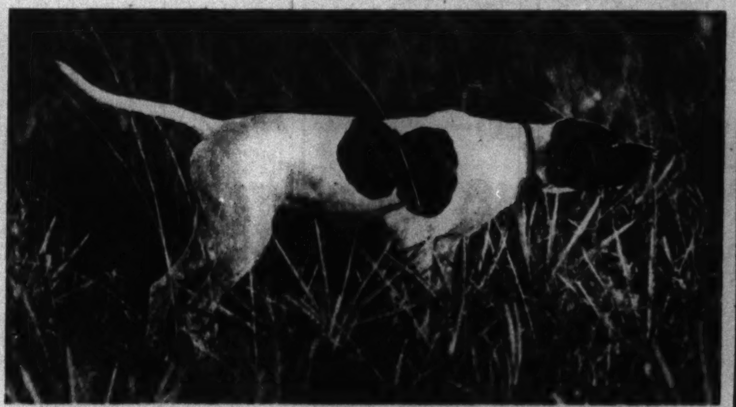
For water and marsh work in all kinds of weather and any type of vegetation the retriever breeds cannot be equaled. They have the size (65 to 75 pounds), the length of leg, the power, and the water-resisting coat to stand rough going. Biting winds, cold water, and thick marsh growths that will tire a smaller dog are just a breeze to them. They also can crash any kind of pheasant cover. Moreover, they may be taught to work ahead of a gun like a spaniel. Our new retriever, Dawn of Kezar, has been taught this trick for pheasant hunting.

The retrievers are big. Some hunters like 'em big and tough. But there are other hunters who prefer a smaller marsh dog. Fortunately, there are breeds which can serve this group. The newly recognized American water spaniel is one. We have hunted over these dogs many times. In fact, some years ago we used one both for duck retrieving and upland game shooting. If the sportsman expects to hunt mostly for upland game there is always the springer—a fast, intelligent hunter with a grand disposition. Most of them love the water and like to retrieve ducks. We used one in the duck marshes for several seasons. Altho not equipped for bitter weather and big, rough water, because it hasn't the coat or the size required under such conditions, the springer nevertheless can be a big help to the duck hunter, and thousands retrieve in marshes every fall. They have the courage to try anything. However, the breed wasn't developed as an out-and-out water retriever. The big retriever breeds were bred for that purpose. But American sportsmen more than any other group of shooters in the world ask their spaniels to do much water work.

Labrador retrievers trained by Francis Hogan are demonstrating that rabbits mean nothing in their hunting life. They have been trained to ignore these animals.

Springer spaniels are popular gun dogs for pheasant hunting. This one is completing the retrieve of a pheasant cock.

A Chesapeake Bay retriever brings in a duck. The Chesapeake is widely used by waterfowl hunters in the sport of duck hunting.



A favorite of quail hunters everywhere is the popular and stylish pointer.

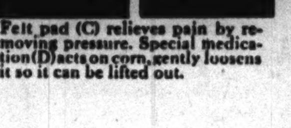
THE TRUTH ABOUT CORNS

Their cause and how to get rid of them

A corn is a mass of dead cells packed into a hard plug (A) whose base presses on sensitive nerves (B)—causes intense pain.



Felt pad (C) relieves pain by removing pressure. Special medication (D) acts on corn, gently loosens it so it can be lifted out.

● Science has long known the cause of corns and clinical tests have proved that corns can be effectively removed the Blue-Jay way. Corns are caused by pressure and friction, become a hard mass as shown at left. Home paring only gives temporary relief—means risk of infection. But it's easy to remove corns the Blue-Jay way. Just fit a Blue-Jay pad over the corn. It acts quickly and surely as shown in diagram. You get wonderful relief. Stubborn corns may require a second application. Then simply by avoiding the pressure and friction which caused your corns you can prevent their return. Get Blue-Jay Corn Plasters today—only 25¢ for 6.

When Worming for Tape, Round (ascarid) and Hook Worms

You Cannot Worm Your Dog WRONG

.. If you follow the sound "no-guess," commonsense Pulvex Worming Method

The Pulvex Worming Method (embodied in every package of Pulvex Combination Treatment Worm Capsules) insures your worming your dog properly for those worms . . . even though you've had no worming experience. It is so sure that many breeders of champion dogs say the Pulvex Worming Method is the method the average dog owner should use. Here's why—

Your dog can have Tape, Round (ascarid), Hook or any combination of those worms at the same time. Your dog should, therefore, always be wormed for all those worms whenever you worm him.

Contrary to common belief, no single-type capsule made can expel all those three worms. Two distinct types of capsules must be used. Each package of Pulvex Capsules contains two types of capsules which, when given a few days apart, will expel Tape, Round (ascarid) or Hook Worms—not just one or two kinds of worms.

Avoid worming your pet wrong for those worms. Worm only with Pulvex Capsules. Packaged two ways: for puppies; for dogs. Either type 50c. At drug, pet, dept. stores.

Autumn punch is a fruity drink made on a tea base and served warm or hot from a punch bowl.

Fruit Has a Double Duty

Decorative, and a Welcome Addition to Fall Menu

By MARY MEADE

LATE SUMMER and early autumn in the country are made more beautiful by branches and vines heavily loaded with ripened fruit. In the city the markets blossom with produce trucked from nearby fruit growing country, brought by train and boat from farther away.

Meal planning and meal getting these days are a great deal of fun. Cooks and hostesses fairly wallow among the grapes, oranges, pears, peaches, plums, apples and other fruits as they pile them high on fruit plates to make edible centerpieces, or make them into beverages or desserts.

Autumn punch is a fall fruit drink which should find favor among hostesses from now on thru Thanksgiving.

AUTUMN PUNCH
(One gallon)

Pour 2 cups of boiling water over 2⅓ tablespoons of orange pekoe tea and let steep for 5 minutes. Strain and add 1⅓ cups sugar. Stir to dissolve sugar. Add 3 cups orange juice, 1 cup lemon juice, 2 cups grape juice, and 2 quarts boiling water. Serve hot or warm, garnished with orange and lemon slices cut into attractive shapes.

Hot spiced cider is another fruity autumn drink. We show it served in pottery mugs set beside a fruit bowl.

HOT SPICED CIDER
(One gallon)

1 gallon cider
3 cups brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
Few grains cayenne pepper
8 2-inch sticks cinnamon
1 tablespoon whole cloves
1 tablespoon whole allspice
½ teaspoon mace

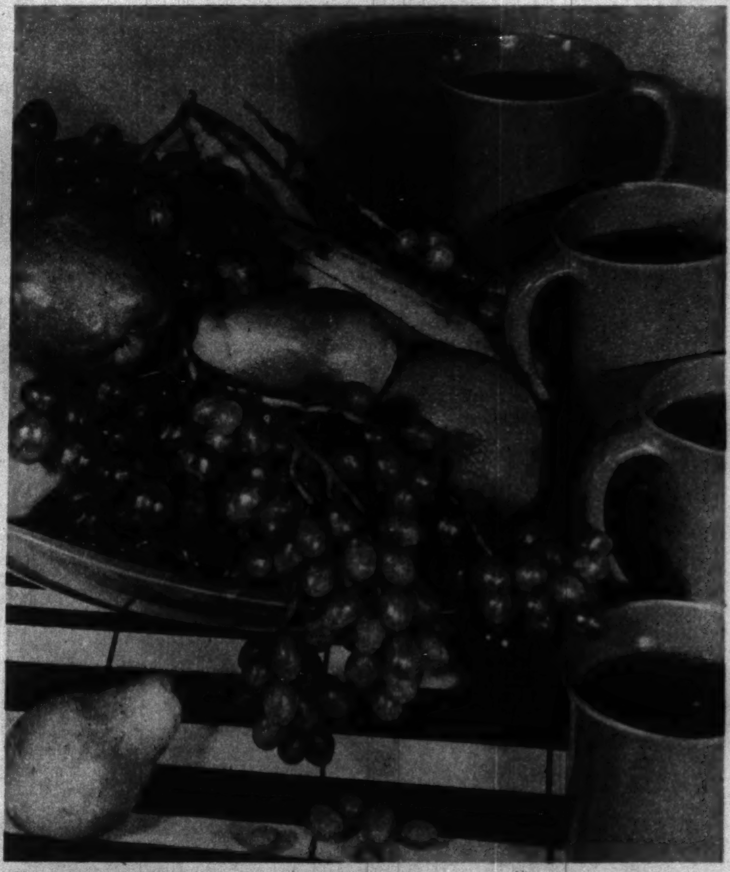
Tie spices loosely in a cheesecloth bag and add with sugar, salt, and pepper to cider. Bring slowly to boiling; boil gently for 15 minutes, and remove spice bag. Serve hot.

Canned and dried fruits, not fresh ones, are pictured with the half ham in autumn dress. Fresh broiled fruits would be just as attractive.

A half ham is cooked like a whole ham, at 300 degrees, uncovered, for 30 minutes to the pound, unless you have one of the new tender hams, which take much less time than that—somewhere around 18 minutes to the pound. Directions for cooking usually accompany these hams, and it's wise to allow the time specified. Brown sugar and water, boiled together to make a sirup were used to glaze the pictured ham. Fruit juice sirup might be used. About forty-five minutes before the cooking period is up, pour the glaze over the ham and add whatever fruity decorations you may wish.

Peach or pear halves, apple rings, or other fruit cooked in sirup may be used to decorate or accompany a ham or half ham.

Fruits should have a part in every meal, especially now that the fresh produce is so abundant and of such good quality. A time-saving and healthful noontime dessert is fruit, chosen from an assortment which has been washed, polished, and heaped, chilled and fresh, into a bowl.



Here is a picture of early fall—fresh fruits in a bowl, and mugs of hot spiced cider.

Half a ham, glazed, fruit garnished and accompanied by skewered dried fruits is an autumn picture, too.

Gems of American Eloquence

● American eloquence has played an important part in the history of our country. From a long list of famous speeches The Tribune is selecting gems of American eloquence which are being presented in this, the Graphic Section, every Sunday. The content of these speeches is important both historically and politically. Persons learning to speak in public will find in them helpful lessons. Speakers and writers can learn a great deal from studying their style. This is the sixty-eighth of the series.

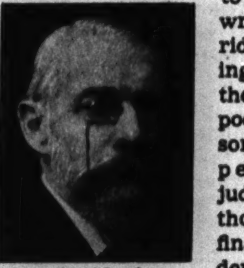
BRANDER MATTHEWS, famous American essayist and dramatic critic, was well and favorably known as a public speaker. He was born in New Orleans, Feb. 21, 1852, and received his education at Columbia university in New York City. From 1892 to 1924 he was a professor of literature at Columbia, and for a long period during that time he also was dramatic critic for a New York newspaper. He was editor of many classics and wrote prolifically on the subjects of literature and the stage. He died in New York City, March 31, 1929. Presented here is an excerpt from an address on the subject of American literature which he delivered before a meeting of the National Educational association in 1896:



Brander Matthews

"As we consider the brief history of the American branch of English literature we can see that the growth of a healthy feeling in regard to it has been hindered by two unfortunate failings—provincialism and colonialism. By provincialism I mean the spirit of Little Peddlington, the spirit that makes swans of all our geese. By colonialism I mean the attitude of looking humbly toward the old country for guidance and for counsel even about our own affairs.

"Provincialism is local pride unduly inflated. It is the temper that is ready to hail as a Swan of Avon any local gosling who has taught himself to make an unnatural use of his own quills. It is always tempting us to stand on tiptoe to proclaim our own superiority. It prevents our seeing ourselves in proper proportion to the rest of the world. It leads to the preparation of school manuals in which the threescore years and ten of American literature are made equal in importance to the thousand years of literature produced in Great Britain. It tends to render a modest writer like Longfellow ridiculous by comparing him implicity with the half dozen world poets. In the final resort, no doubt, every people must be the judge of its own authors; but before that final judgment is rendered every people consults the precedents and measures its own local favorites by the cosmopolitan and eternal standards.

"Colonialism is shown in the timid deference toward foreign opinion about our own deeds and in the unquestioning acceptance of the foreign estimate upon our own writers. It might be defined almost as a willingness to be second-hand—a feeling which finds satisfaction in calling Irving the American Goldsmith, Cooper the American Scott, Bryant the American Wordsworth, and Whittier the American Burns."

Here are the utterances of a man who had given profound thought to the subject of literature. That he understood the two chief and conflicting weaknesses of American students of literature is clearly disclosed in his analysis of provincialism and colonialism. To be avoided, of course, are the extremes of each. Matthews possessed an excellent choice of words and knew the value in public speaking of fine figures of speech, as is brought out in the foregoing sentences. His mention of Little Peddlington is an allusion to that imaginary locality described by John Poole (1786-1872) in his book by the same name, in which humbug, quackery, selfishness, and other social vices abounded.

Reprints of the first 50 "Gems of Eloquence" may be obtained at Tribune Public Service Offices, Tribune Tower or 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago. Price, 25 cents for each portfolio of 25 (30 cents by mail).

CAREER GIRL

ISABELLE JOYCE

ISABELLE JOYCE is an outstanding designer of precious jewelry. Chicago-born, she attended the Church School of Art and the Chicago Art institute. Fashion illustration was her profession until five years ago, when a Chicago jewelry firm made it possible for her to profit by her lifelong fascination for precious jewels and her talent for design. Her hand-made, individual jewelry pieces combine romance and sophistication; while they have the charm and sentiment of old jewels, they are scaled to modern costuming. Examples: A yellow gold diamond-flecked seashell poised against a spray of carved emeralds that suggests seaweed; a huge yellow gold heart stabbed with a spray of Persian turquoise forget-me-nots with diamond leaves and stems. For herself she designed and often wears as a clip a gold starfish with diamond center, set against a spray of coral. One of her newest clip designs is a plump gold cornucopia out of which tumble a huge moonstone and a small deluge of diamond stars. Her models are executed first in wax; it takes from three to four weeks to complete one piece. With her husband she lives in a Chicago apartment ruled by a smooth-haired terrier named Geraldine. She wears beautiful clothes and prefers extreme hats. She has quick deep-brown eyes, and her hair is always brushed upward.

In hundreds of home kitchen tests
"Sure-Mix" CRISCO gets 4 to 1 vote for Lighter, Better-tasting Cakes!

SUCH FINE TEXTURE!
"THE CAKE I MADE WITH CRISCO WAS SO FINE-TEXTURED, LIGHTER THAN WHEN I'D USED THE SAME RECIPE WITH ANOTHER SHORTENING."
Mrs. Edward Cotilla, Upper Darby, Pa.

LIGHTER CAKES!
"MY CAKES TURNED OUT LIGHTER AND FLUFFIER WITH CRISCO THAN WITH ANY OTHER SHORTENING."
Mrs. Frank T. Brennan, Kansas City, Missouri

BETTER-TASTING!
"OO-OO, MOMMY, THIS CAKE TASTES YUMMY! MY, IT'S FLUFFY!" said Diann Day of San José, Calif.—whose mother had just made the Crisco test.

Crisco—and only Crisco—gives 3 new exclusive cake advantages

Are you completely happy about the cakes you make? Do they come out light and fine-textured? So delicious the folks enjoy every crumb?

Well, that's the wonderful kind of cake you can make with New "Sure-Mix" Crisco—as hundreds of women discovered who tested Crisco against other well-known household shortenings.

Families vote 4 to 1 for Crisco cakes

Here's how the cake test was made. Independent investigators called at random on women all over the country. These women were using other well-known shortenings including the most expensive kind. They were given New "Sure-Mix" Crisco and asked to bake cakes with their own recipes—then compare!

Here's what happened . . . The vote was 4 to 1 for Crisco cakes against those made with all other shortenings. Yes, when those women reported their choice, four times as many said their Crisco cakes were lighter . . . had a smoother texture . . . their families said they tasted more delicious!

And the vote was 4 to 1 for Crisco for flakier pastry—better-tasting fried foods, too.

Why Crisco is different

"Sure-Mix" Crisco is the only home shortening we know of which has a patented discovery—a secret of combining with other ingredients. Crisco batters are smoother, can give cakes up to 15% lighter and higher (depending on type of cake).

SPICE CAKE WITH BAKED MERINGUE ICING

1⅓ cups brown sugar (firmly packed)
½ cup Crisco
1 teaspoon salt
3 egg yolks
1 cup milk
2⅓ cups flour
¼ teaspoon soda
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Blend sugar, Crisco, salt and egg yolks. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk. (See how amazingly smooth your "Sure-Mix" Crisco batter is!) Pour into a "Criscoed" 9-inch square pan. Bake in moderately hot oven (375° F.) 30 to 35 minutes, or until done. Leave cake in pan—then cover it with the following meringue:—

MERINGUE: 3 egg whites, 1⅓ cups brown sugar, ½ cup chopped nutmeats. Beat egg whites until stiff. Add brown sugar gradually. Pile meringue on cake. Sprinkle with nutmeats. Return to oven and bake at moderate heat (350° F.) 20-25 minutes.

The Teens Take a Bow

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY
(Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate, Inc.)

THE college girl in the last couple of years has pretty near run the matron—the young matron, we mean—off the scene as a style setter. But, scouting around for news of interest to our own particular department, we find the sub-deb crowding pretty closely on her college girl sister. Yes, that girl between 13 and 16 years of age is making her beauty presence felt, and she is being given considerable attention, too, by the professional powers in the cosmetic and hairdressing field.

In the hairdressing field the younger girl again is given the benefit of professional study so that mothers and the girls, too, do not have to go thru that period known as the "awkward age" which formerly was dotted with promises that the child would "grow out of" this and that. Now the trick is to spare her the awkward age entirely. And success marks the way. They're anything but forgotten children. They're getting a new deal, as a famous authority in the hairdressing field puts it. This designer and hair stylist, head of a widely known institution and one of impeccable taste, does not consider it the slightest bit smart for the younger girl to look older than she is, and the coiffures he designed, and which are illustrated on this page, are as fascinating as youth itself.

These two styles are intended for the girl between 13 and 16, and they are coiffures, our authority tells us, that may be brushed until the young arms are ready to drop off. In fact, he heartily recommends that very young girls do that—brush until their tresses gleam like the coat of a young colt. He allows, in keeping with the times and with the young woman's modern-day pursuits in every other direction, a slight touch of sophistication. But only in the smooth, sleek upward swirl that sweeps the hair back from the face. He orders that the hair end in a soft scroll-like curl high on the head, with a shoulder-length bob softly curled to frame the face.

He likes the bang for its youthful casualness; also prefers that the hair length be shorter than it has been in previous seasons. He's creating new coiffures for the sub-deb's younger sisters, between 9 and 12, in which the hair is quite short and left on the back of the head, not curled, but drawn up and held on top of the head with little ribbon bows.

At left: An adaptation of the plasdque movement. A smooth, sleek, upward swirl ends in soft scroll-like curls high on the side of the head.

A casual coiffure for the sub-deb. Wide, soft waves and forward flowing curls frame the face to give the "careless" look beloved by the modern outdoor girl.

Alien Art of Insurrection

the government and consolidate the revolutionary masses by its success. He took Petrograd (Leningrad) in 24 hours.

Trotsky's Military Revolutionary committee carefully organized a few thousand trusted men. "The basic military unit," he wrote, "was a ten; four tens was a squad, three squads, a company; three companies, a battalion. Big factories like the Putilov (Russian arms plant), had their own divisions. Special technical commands — sappers, bicyclers, telegraphers, machine-gunners, and artillery men—were recruited in corresponding factories."

While the army organized for the putsch, the women formed Red Cross divisions, converted cars to ambulances, and created base hospitals. The armed guards drilled in empty factory buildings, meeting halls, and basements. Rifles, machine guns, and ammunition were stolen, and the keys to the drawbridges were "borrowed" and copied.

Trotsky's men won over some of the troops at Peter and Paul fortress on the banks of the Neva, gaining 80 machine guns, and the sailors of the cruiser Aurora in the harbor. This later conquest gave Trotsky not only a few big guns, but the ship's radio, important for communication.

From headquarters in the Smolny convent, Trotsky sent his forces into the city. "The main operation began at two o'clock in the morning" (Oct. 25), he wrote. "Small military parties, usually with a nucleus of armed workers or sailors under the leadership of commissars, occupied simultaneously, or in regular order, the railroad stations, the lighting plant, the telephone exchange, the state bank, the big printing plants, the munitions and food stores, the waterworks, and the bridges."

In a few hours the city was taken, under the very noses of government troops. A short time later the Winter Palace fell, and Petrograd was completely in the hands of the putschists.

• • •

The Nazis are now masters of street fighting, insurrection, and putsch, but they evidently learned from experience, and not from history, for their first attempt failed miserably.

In 1919, Adolf Hitler joined the German Labor party. It had seven members. By January, 1923, the party had grown to 70,000, and numbered several thousand Storm Troopers. Hitler determined on a putsch.

It came the night of Nov. 8, 1923. The Bavarian People's party was staging a great mass meeting in the Burgerbraukeller in Munich. All of the important leaders of the party and state were present. Hitler was there as one of the invited guests.

At precisely 8:30 p. m. a door of the hall was flung open, and steel helmeted men pushed into the crowd, carrying Maxim guns. Hitler drew his pistol, raced to the front of the hall, and fired two shots into the ceiling.

"The national revolution has begun!" he cried. "Six hundred men are covering the hall. No one may leave. The barracks of the police and the Reichswehr are occupied. The Bavarian government is deposed. The reich government is deposed."

At the muzzle of his pistol Hitler herded the officials of the Bavarian government into another room and demanded that they join in his revolt. They had little choice, and General Ludendorff, in whom they had confidence, already had agreed to join Hitler. The putsch was succeeding.

Captain Ernst Roehm, commanding the Storm Troopers in the streets, mounted machine guns at strategic corners and took over some of the government buildings. But his troops did not take enough. Among other things, they did not take the engineers' barracks, where government arms were stored. And, unlike Trotsky's men, who completed their putsch in 24 hours, some of the Hitler lieutenants went home to bed before it was over!

The next morning, following the plan of Ludendorff, it was determined that the Nazis would march into the city. The veteran World War leader believed that the parade would whip up a popular demonstration for the revolt.

The Nazis, with Hitler and Ludendorff at the fore, crossed the Isar bridge into the inner city, followed by thousands of sympathizers. As they expected, the Munich city police refused to fire.

Lieut. Make Mills.

But they reckoned without the Landespolizei—the Bavarian state police, who rushed from places of concealment as the Nazi column came abreast of the Feldhernhalle. Three times Freiherr von Godin, commander of the state police, gave the command to fire before his troops responded. Then 18 Nazis dropped from a single volley. Hitler was knocked to the street by a falling body. Ludendorff marched on and was put under arrest. The beer hall revolution was ended.

Eleven years later Hitler demonstrated that he had thoroly learned the technique of lightning assault. He used it as a counter-revolutionary stroke to cut down the alleged plotters against his régime. In the "blood purge" of July, 1934, trusted Hitler troopers swooped suddenly upon his own key leaders, and upon General Kurt von Schleicher, ex-chancellor and organizer of the Reichswehr, and heads of opposition factions. In a few hours every possible enemy of Adolf Hitler was liquidated and the weakening faith of the masses was reaffirmed before the terror of the machine gun and the headsman's ax.

In Austria, Norway, and in western Europe the technique of the putsch has since been developed to near perfection.

• • •

The average street riot witnessed frequently in America follows the plan and strategy developed by the European experts. Probably the greatest authority on the subject is Lieut. Make Mills, of the Chicago police department.

"The street fighting system here is well developed, and well known," Lieutenant Mills says. "We see reports of such battles almost daily, from some part of the country or other. They look like spontaneous demonstrations, but most of them are planned in advance. The communists especially want contact with the police as much as possible. The more martyrs they can possess, the better.

"As in Europe, women are often sent into the front lines, to keep the police from acting until the leaders of the riot can take the offensive. They use women, and they like to operate under cover of the American flag, just as in the olden days the rioters carried their 'petitions.'"

Lieutenant Mills describes a typical street disturbance:

"The demonstrators, denied a permit for a meeting at a busy intersection, they like to meet at the same spot as often as possible, gather nearby in groups of threes and fives, too small for the police to molest. They carry propaganda placards attached to heavy, hardwood sticks, which can be used as clubs against the police. Usually three or four leaders, trained abroad, carry guns, stolen or smuggled into the country.

"The demonstration is organized by squads, each led by a provacateur, whose duty it is to incite a direct clash with the police. Lookouts and scouts help to arrange the collision.

"The leader of the demonstration, seldom an American citizen, signals the start of trouble by flinging an armload of handbills into the air. Then jostling, fighting, and disturbances start, quickly bringing the police.

"The leaders hurl bottles, clubs, stones, and any other missiles handy at the approaching officers, and then melt into the crowd. The confusion thus started usually insures a hot battle, and if someone is shot down, or is clubbed into submission, so much the better for the demonstration. It will create hatred for the police, especially if women are the victims. If the police refuse to act, as they do in many cities, there is created a disrespect for authority, and the riot is equally successful."

The communists excel in the mass organization which functions best in strikes, sabotage, and street fighting. The Nazis and Fascists are exponents of the putsch. Both wings have trained agents to organize their particular kind of activity. It has been estimated there are half a million men and women aiding the Fifth Column in the United States today. The Chicago police department has the names and records of 75,000 of them.

CONQUER SUMMER DULLNESS
This Beauty-Freshening Shampoo reveals up to 33% MORE LUSTRE IN YOUR HAIR

WHETHER you like tennis, gardening or any other outdoor activity—summer dust and heat needn't worry you . . . Needn't leave your hair dull, matted, perspiring—once you discover this revolutionary Drene Shampoo! It not only whisks away all dust and grime—but actually "lights up" your hair's glamorous hidden lustre! Revealing unsuspected highlights and color-brilliance in blonde, brunette, titian or grey hair!

Amazing Difference Proved

In tests at Procter & Gamble's experimental beauty shop—women had half their hair washed with Drene, the other half with a fine soap. Their hair was then dressed, both sides equally floodlighted, and compared under a sensitive Lustre-Meter which plainly showed that Drene-washed hair reveals up to 33% more lustre and color-brilliance!

Why this difference? Because Drene's super-cleansing ingredient—found in no other shampoo—does not combine with perspiration or minerals in water as soaps do to form dull film (bath-tub ring) which water won't rinse off; which gives hair that drab off-color look.

Drene's new-type lather leaves no trace of this dulling film—nor scaly, loose dandruff. It cleans around each hair right down to the scalp itself—routing every fleck of unsightly loose dandruff. You feel grand! Your hair glows! Feels smoother! Even takes lovely permanent waves faster with less heating time.

Drene is so popular, it's America's largest selling prepared shampoo. Get it now at any beauty counter. See how thrillingly different your hair can look!

DO DISHES AS MUCH AS 50% FASTER
This Speedy Way That's So Kind to Your Hands!

NOW you can do dishes faster and easier than you ever dreamed possible with old-style soaps! For here's a speedy way that gets dishes so clean lots of people don't bother to wipe them—thus saves you up to 50% on dishwashing time with added safety to hands—thanks to a new "miracle" soap creation!

Called High-Test OXYDOL—it is an improved granulated soap, containing a remarkable new SAFE ingredient. When first you try it—you'll find it does these amazing things—proved by our laboratory tests against many popular soaps widely used for dishwashing:

First: It gives up to 3 TIMES THE SUDS. Lively, energetic suds that help you get dishes done in record time.

Second: Suds last as much as 2 to 3 times longer. No need to be constantly whipping up suds because suds "die down."

Third: New High-Test Oxydol makes suds in one-sixth the time of washday bar soaps. Rich, quick-acting suds, ready to start to work cutting grease 6 times faster.

This means you get speedy, hard-working suds almost instantly—don't have to keep your hands in hot water so long. Hence far less risk of the red, puffy hands so many women charge to constant dishwater soaking 3 times a day.

Even more important, scientific tests on dozens of women's hands in our laboratories prove that Oxydol itself is safer for hands than a whole group of popular washday soaps.

What's more, Oxydol suds prevent those great masses of hard-water scum—leave no clinging, greasy film. You'll be delighted how glassware glistens—dishes sparkle like jewels. In fact, dishes come so clean many people simply stack, give a quick, hot rinse—let dishes dry themselves.

High-Test Oxydol is also extremely economical. Costs LESS THAN ⅓ OF A CENT to do an average dishwashing job. So try the new High-Test OXYDOL way of dishwashing. Get a package tomorrow. Procter & Gamble.

STREAMER KELLY
by JACK RYAN
LET'S HAVE SOME WATER, STREAMER-- WHAT'RE Y' WAITIN' FOR, RAIN?
COMING, CAP--
WITH A SUDDEN SPURT THE HOSE TAKES ON LIFE. STREAMER DIRECTS IT ON THE NEAREST BLAZE
OVER THIS WAY-- THERE'S A MAN TRAPPED ON THE LANDING!!
HELP! HELP! GET ME OUT OF HERE! I DON'T WANNA BURN ALIVE!!
IN HIS HASTE TO GET TO THE TRAPPED MAN, CAPTAIN MAHONEY TRIPS OVER A FALLEN CHAIR-
WHAT TH'
CAP!
STREAMER! GET THAT MAN! I'VE BUSTED MY LEG!!

ROCKY THE STONE-AGE KID
by FRANK BELL
HOW ABOUT A LIL' TRAMP IN TH' WOODS, CHIMP?
WE CAN KEEP OUR EYES OPEN FOR A CERTAIN FLOWER PLANT I ONCE SAW— IT HAS LARGE YELLOW PETALS ALMOST LIKE SILK AND TH' CENTER IS FULL OF TINY RED BUBBLES WHICH KEEP BURSTIN'...—OH WELL, YOU WOULDN'T KNOW ANYWAY....
...I'M SURE MOM WOULD LIKE ONE— SAY... WHAT'S THIS? A STRANGE SIGN! MUST LEAD SOMEWHERE —I GOTTA FIND OUT!
HMM! THERE'S ANOTHER SIGN— I WONDER WHO...
NO! NO! I SAID YELLOW PETALS!
GOSH, I'M ANXIOUS TO FIND OUT WHAT THIS IS ALL ABOUT! —LET'S HURRY...
NOPE! THAT'S NOT IT EITHER!
OOOPS!
EEEEEE

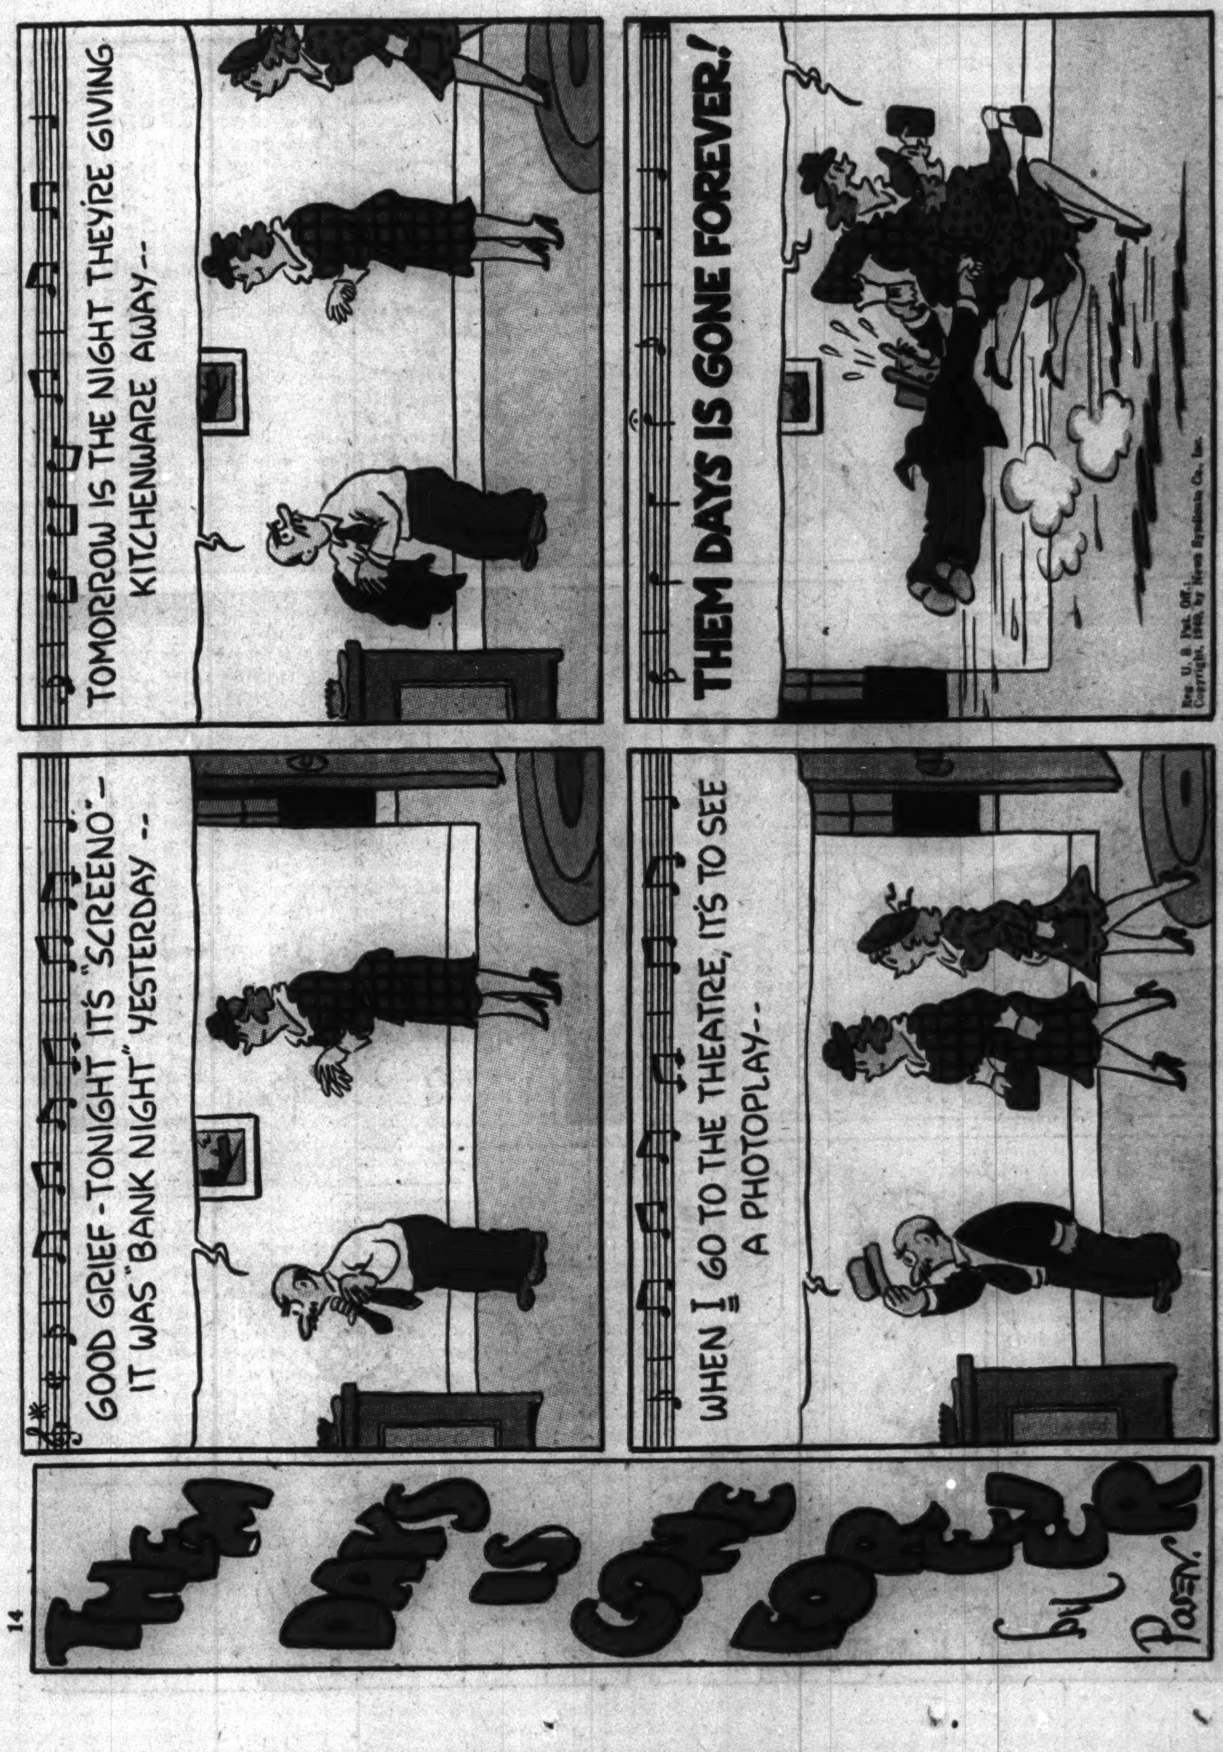
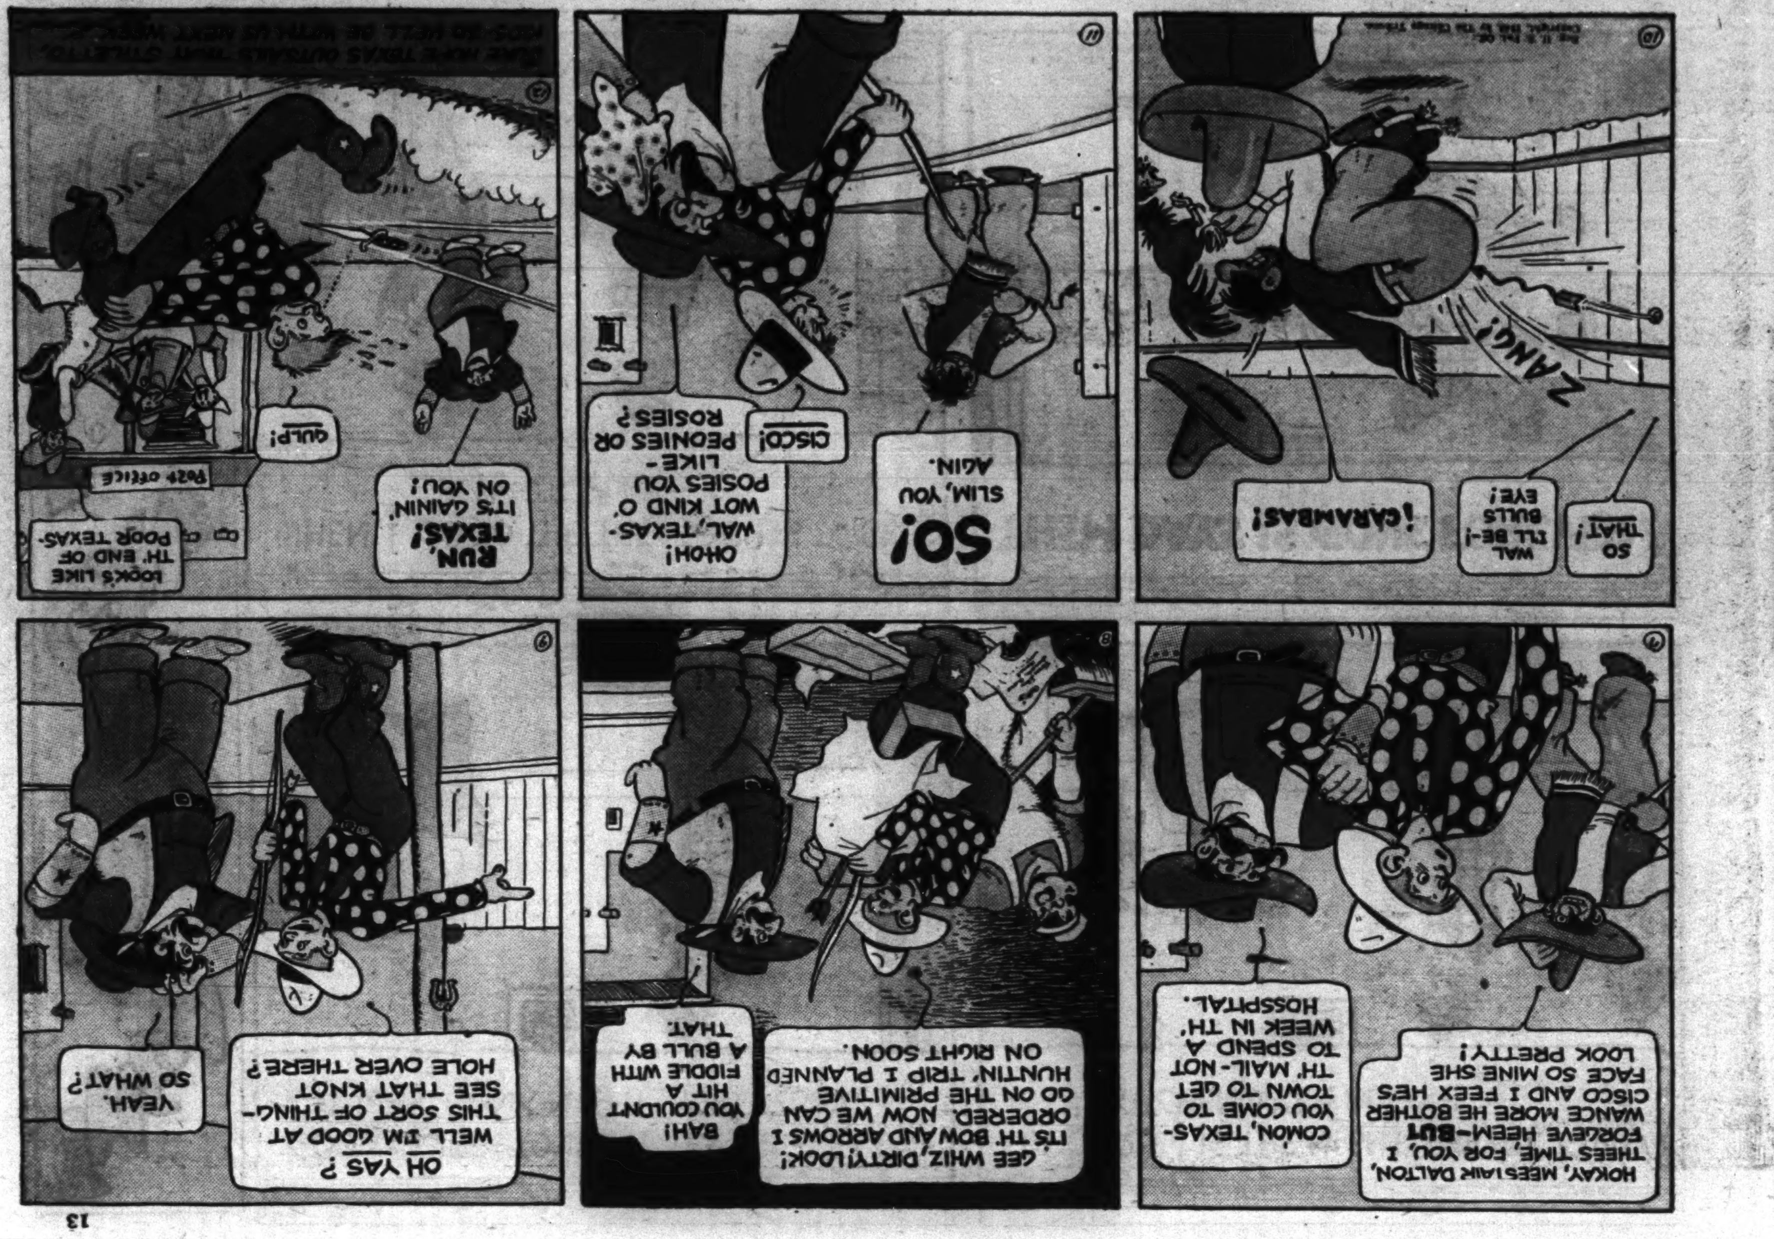
BUCKS McKALE
BUCKS WAS PROMISED A REWARD FOR THE PART HE PLAYED IN THE CAPTURE OF DR. WIRE, WHOSE CONFESSION BROUGHT ABOUT THE DOWNFALL OF THE NOTORIOUS BULLETS BENGAL GANG. BUCKS IS TALKING ON THE TELEPHONE TO THE CHIEF OF POLICE.
YOUR SHARE OF THE REWARD WILL BE $10,000
I WANT TO TALK TO YOU ABOUT THAT, CHIEF-- CAN I SEE YOU RIGHT AWAY?
BUCKS ARRIVES AT THE POLICE STATION.
CHIEF, I WANT YOU TO GIVE MY SHARE OF THAT REWARD TO MR. POMROY!
WHAT?
YES-YOU SEE IT WAS J.P. WHO FIRST SUSPICIONED THE DOC AND SUGGESTED THAT WE FOLLOW HIM-HE WAS RIGHT-THE DOC GOT CAUGHT-I GOT MY $10,000 BACK AND I WANT HIM TO HAVE THE REWARD.
OKAY, BUCKS, IF YOU SAY SO!
JUST LEAVE IT TO ME--I'LL TAKE CARE OF EVERYTHING.
THAT'S SWELL-- NOW I'VE GOT TO GET OUT TO THE BALL PARK.
THE HAWKS BASEBALL CLUB WON THE PENNANT AND IS PREPARING FOR THE WORLD'S SERIES. THERE IS SOME CONCERN AND SPECULATION AMONG THE HAWKS OVER BUCKS' RECOVERY AND HIS RETURN TO THE TEAM.
I HEAR BUCKS IS COMING BACK TODAY
WONDER IF HE'S REALLY CURED?
ONCE YOU GET SORE ARMS, YOU'RE NEVER THE SAME.
WE'LL NEED HIM IN THE WORLD SERIES!
I HOPE THE KID CAN STILL PITCH
NOSEY, I'M WORRIED ABOUT BUCKS. DO YOU THINK HE'LL BE ABLE TO PITCH AGAIN?
I CAN TELL YOU MORE AFTER TODAY'S WORKOUT. HERE HE COMES NOW--
HI-- NOSEY!
GEE, BUCKS, IT'S GOOD TO SEE YOU IN A UNIFORM AGAIN!
BOY, AM I GLAD TO BE BACK!
TAKE THIS FIRST WORKOUT EASY, BUCKS--I'M NOT SURE ABOUT YOUR ARMS!
I HOPE THEY'RE ALL RIGHT!
SO DO WE!
THAT'S THE QUESTION. CAN BUCKS PITCH AGAIN? HAS HE STILL GOT HIS DAZZLING SPEED--HIS AMAZING CURVES-- AND THE FAMOUS GHOST BALL? TIME WILL TELL!



THEM DAYS IS GONE FOREVER
by POREY
GOOD GRIEF - TONIGHT IT'S "SCREENO" - IT WAS "BANK NIGHT" YESTERDAY --
TOMORROW IS THE NIGHT THEY'RE GIVING KITCHENWARE AWAY--
WHEN I GO TO THE THEATRE, IT'S TO SEE A PHOTOPLAY--
THEM DAYS IS GONE FOREVER!



HOKAY, MEES IAIR DALTON, THEES TIME, FOR YOU, I FORGIVE HEEM—BUT WANCE MORE HE BOTHER CISCO AND I FEEX HES FACE SO MINE SHE LOOK PRETTY!
COM'ON, TEXAS—YOU COME TO TOWN TO GET TH' MAIL—NOT TO SPEND A WEEK IN TH' HOSSPITAL.
GEE WHIZ, DIRTY! LOOK! ITS TH' BOW AND ARROWS I ORDERED. NOW WE CAN GO ON THE PRIMITIVE HUNTIN' TRIP I PLANNED ON RIGHT SOON.
BAH! YOU COULDN'T HIT A FIDDLE WITH A BULL BY THAT.
OH YAS? WELL I'M GOOD AT THIS SORT OF THING—SEE THAT KNOT HOLE OVER THERE?
YEAH, SO WHAT?
SO THAT!
WAL I'LL BE—! BULLS EYE!
ZANG!
¡CARAMBAS!
SO! SLIM, YOU AGIN.

CISCO!
RUN, TEXAS! IT'S GAININ' ON YOU!
GULP!
LOOKS LIKE TH' END OF POOR TEXAS—
POST OFFICE

Bobby Make-Believe
HAS AN AWFUL DREAM! EVER HAVE ONE LIKE IT?
ROBERT! ITS NEARLY TIME FOR THE PARTY. YOU MUST HURRY OR YOU'LL BE LATE
HOW DO YOU DO MRS BROWN! I'M ON MY WAY TO RUTHIE'S PARTY
HORRORS!
HELLO GENEVIEVE! I'VE COME TO RUTHIE'S PARTY. I DRESSED IN AN AWFUL HURRY. I'M NOT LATE AM I?
HELLO EVERY BODY! WHAT'S THE MATTER? HAVE I GOT SMALL POX OR SOMETHING?
O! JIMINY CHRISMUS! I HAVEN'T ANY PANTS ON!
IT'S AWFUL! I GOT TO GET HOME IN A HURRY!
GEE WHIZ! NO PLACE TO HIDE AN' HERE COMES VIRGINIA AN SISSY BLY!
YOU NEEDN'T TRY TO HIDE
I JUST GOT TO BEAT IT. THAT'S ALL.
POSITIVELY SHOCKING!
MY GOODNESS!
WOW! THAT WAS A CLOSE CALL! IF I CAN ONLY KEEP OUT OF SIGHT OF THE COP TILL AFTER DARK.
GEE! IT SEEMS I BEEN WALKIN' SO MILES AN' I AIN'T HOME YET!
WHAT'S ALL THE EXCITEMENT IN HERE?
OO' GEE POP! I JUST HAD THE AWFULEST DREAM

Texas Slim and Dirty Dalton
DIRTY, SOME KIDS SUGGESTED "DYNAMITE" OR "SUGAR-PLUM" FOR MY NEW PONY'S NAME, BUT WHEN HE'S BEHAVIN' SWEET LIKE THIS—"DYNAMITE" DOESN'T SEEM TO FIT—
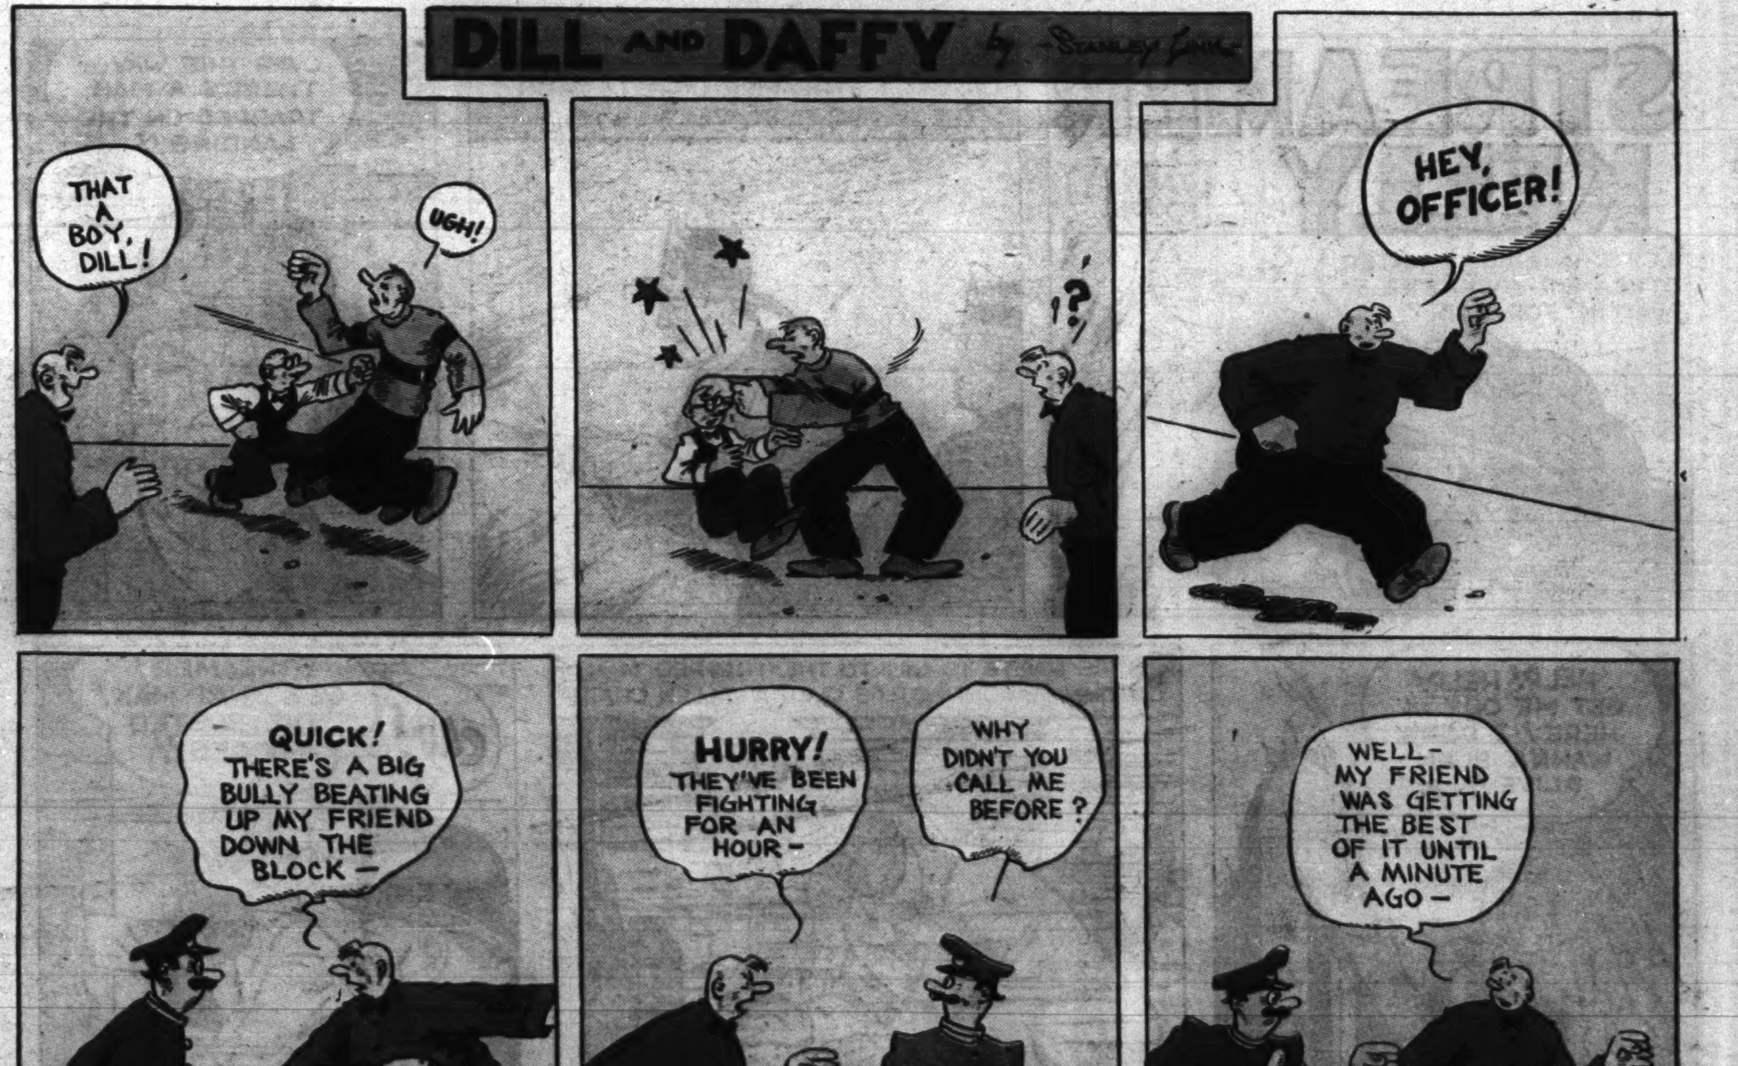
WHAT TH—?
AND WHEN HE'S ORNERY LIKE THIS, "SUGAR-PLUM" ISN'T WHAT I WANT TO CALL HIM.
PSST! TEXAS—PSS-T!
WAN—DOS—TRES—QUATTOR—CINCO—SEEX—SEVEEN—OCHO—NINE—TEN—
GIT OFFA ME—I AIN'T NO SOFA!
CISCO! WHARE'D YOU COME FROM?
NO WONDER YOU BALKED WHEN YOU SAW THAT UGLY MUG OF CISCO'S, HONEY.
OUTTA MY WAY, SIGNOR. HE SPOIL MY SIESTA AND YOU HEAR WHAT HE SAY ABOUT MY FACE—I CARVE MY INITIALS IN HE'S!
TAKE IT EASY, CISCO.



DILL AND DAFFY
THAT A BOY, DILL!
UGH!
HEY, OFFICER!
QUICK! THERE'S A BIG BULLY BEATING UP MY FRIEND DOWN THE BLOCK—
HURRY! THEY'VE BEEN FIGHTING FOR AN HOUR—
WHY DIDN'T YOU CALL ME BEFORE?
WELL—MY FRIEND WAS GETTING THE BEST OF IT UNTIL A MINUTE AGO—
